PREFACE

IT was the Maharaja Scindia's command that Gwalior's war activities should be recorded in a handy volume. The task promised to prove so interesting that I had hoped to compile the record myself, but unfortunately the conclusion of the War has been followed by no such peaceful times as had been looked for, and I have had to content myself with merely checking the facts and figures put together by Munshi Mohammad Rafiullah of my office, the text mostly remaining his own. It is a great compliment to his industry and capability that the result has met with the gracious approval of His Highness the Maharaja.

The troublesome details involved in publication were most obligingly undertaken in London by Mr. George Glass Hooper, the head of the well-known firm of Messrs. Kerr Stuart & Co., and it is to his friendly zeal and good taste that the book owes its attractive appearance. I wish to thank Mr. Hooper on behalf of myself and the Government of Gwalior for the trouble and interest he has taken.

INTRODUCTION

THE State of Gwalior is one of the States in Central India. The area of the State is 28,500 square miles and its population is over 3,000,000 souls.

The relations between the Rulers of Gwalior and the Paramount Power in India have been of the most cordial description for over half a century. But the depth of that cordial feeling and the unity of purpose which exist at the present day are best illustrated by the public utterances which the present ruler, Lieutenant-General His Highness Maharaja Sir Madho Rao Scindia, A'lijah Bahadur, G.C.S.I., G.C.V.O., G.B.E., etc. etc., has made from time to time, as well as by the active and "enthusiastic loyalty" to the cause of the British Empire which His Highness has ever been ready and delighted to show. These have been more particularly evidenced since the outbreak of the great European War.

The Chitral Campaign of 1897-8 (when the Gwalior Imperial Service Troops were offered by the Maharaja for active service and accepted by the Government of India), the China War of 1900 (when His Highness not only presented the famous hospital ship Gwalior, but proceeded in person to the scene of operations), and the substantial help which His Highness rendered to the British Government by presenting them with several hundred horses during the South African War, are all instances of his attachment to the British cause.

Nothing can be more appropriate for the object of this compilation than to quote a characteristic passage from one of His Highness's public utterances on an historic occasion. At the banquet in honour of Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales (now Their Gracious Majesties the King and Queen), His Highness said :

INTRODUCTION

“ It will be enough for me to say that whatever useful work has been or is being done in the various departments of my State has but one ultimate goal, viz. to help towards the stability of the British Empire.”

Also : “ My hope and ambition are that the day may come when my Army and I may by our acts show what is not only on our lips but in our hearts.”

These expressions of genuine sentiments were graciously acknowledged by His Majesty in the following terms :

“ I recognise that we have listened to no mere complimentary speech, but that His Highness has taken this opportunity of telling us the guiding principles and motives of his life. We are, I am sure, grateful for his frankness and highly appreciate his noble expressions, for whether we regard these principles from the point of view of the British Empire, the Maharaja himself, or the subjects of the Gwalior State, we cannot fail to recognise in them the highest ideals and aspirations. His goal is the stability of the British Empire.”

The following record is a living proof of that sincerity of purpose and appreciation which have been consistently maintained by His Highness on the one hand and His Majesty the King-Emperor on the other. It will prove beyond question that the “ day,” when it came, found His Highness ready not only with his Army but with all the resources of his State and his people.

MAINLY CONCERNS THE MILITARY

It shows that—

- (a) The Gwalior Imperial and Non-Imperial Troops served the Empire from September 29, 1914, to the end of February 1919. The Transport Corps is still on service.
 - (b) The number of officers and men employed was 5,502; that of horses, ponies, and camels, 1,738; that of transport carts and tongas, 175.
 - (c) Imperial Remounts were trained.
 - (d) For the Indian Army 2,031 recruits were supplied, and facilities were promised.
 - (e) Annual extra expenditure directly due to War was Rs.10,53,673.
- The total of extra expenditure indirectly due to War was Rs.10,61,195.

CHAPTER I

MAN-POWER OF THE STATE AND THE SERVICES RENDERED BY IT

THE GWALIOR ARMY, PAST AND PRESENT

WITH the lapse of time and the change of circumstances—under the latter category the principal being the consolidation of the British rule in India, bringing in its train undisturbed peace and order to the country—the present standing Army of the State is merely a shadow of the once formidable hordes of the Scindias. For purposes of describing the constitution of the Army we might quote from “Gwalior—1905,” compiled by Mr. J. W. D. Johnstone. He says:

“Every schoolboy knows that Gwalior has been for generations one of the great martial States of India, and its present Ruler, by the ardour with which he pursues the military calling, well sustains the reputation of his ancestors. To-day Scindia’s Army numbers over 8,000 Regulars and over 3,000 Irregulars. The . . . latter . . . are the descendants of the old Maratha Light Cavalry, once the terror of the Mughal Armies; . . . the Regulars are a force of all arms.

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

“The Artillery comprises six batteries with a strength of about 100 men each. First in order are ‘A’ and ‘B’ Scindia’s Horse Artillery, . . . and next a single field battery . . . all three being horsed by teams of Australians, with one heavy battery (elephant) and two bullock batteries. . . . Of Cavalry there are three Lancer Regiments; . . . their total number is 1,897 officers and men, each regiment containing one squadron of Marathas, one of Mohammadans, one of Thakurs, and one mixed. The Infantry consists of one company of sappers and seven Regiments of the Line, which amount to a total strength of 5,335. The first four are composed of eight companies each, two Marathas, two Mohammadans, two Rajputs, and two mixed. The remaining three are of similar caste compositions, but have only six companies each.

“Last, but by no means least, has to be named a most useful and important branch of every modern army—the Transport Corps. It underwent its baptism of fire in the Chitral Expedition of 1895, and again served all through the long Tirah Campaign of 1897–8. This valuable body is composed of 447 men, 725 ponies, and 300 carts.”

Such is the Gwalior Army of the present day.

Out of these the three Lancer regiments, two regiments (3rd and 4th) of Infantry, and the Transport Corps have been dedicated to the service of the Imperial Government, and, by their organisation, their discipline, and the high degree of efficiency in which they are maintained, the Gwalior Imperial Service Troops claim a place second only to the British Indian Army.

MAN-POWER OF THE STATE

OFFER OF SERVICES OF THE GWALIOR ARMY

As soon as it was announced that Great Britain had declared war on Germany, His Highness, in his solicitude to help the Empire in its hour of need, offered, among other things, the services of the Gwalior Army. The offer was in fact a little too prompt, for when it was made, the Government of India had not discovered the necessity of availing themselves of the services of the Imperial Service Troops. It was only some time after this offer had been made that the Government decided to draw on the Imperial Service Troops.

THE 3RD GWALIOR IMPERIAL SERVICE INFANTRY PROCEEDS ON ACTIVE SERVICE

Among the Gwalior Imperial Service Troops, the 3rd Infantry Regiment was the first to proceed on active service.

Two double companies, consisting of 14 officers, 2 medical officers, 362 non-commissioned officers and men, and 45 public followers, with 2 ponies and 5 officers' chargers, left Gwalior on September 29, 1914, for the East African Expeditionary Force. A constant reserve of 318 men was maintained at the depot, from which 11 drafts of reinforcements, consisting of 3 officers, 2 medical officers, 201 non-commissioned officers and men, and 10 public followers, were supplied on different dates to replace casualties. Thus 17 officers, 4 medical officers, 563 non-commissioned officers and men, 55 public followers, 2 ponies, and 5 chargers were sent on field from this unit.

THE GWALIOR TRANSPORT CORPS ORDERED FOR ACTIVE SERVICE

Next went the Gwalior Transport Corps, which, consisting of 1 commandant, 2 officers, 106 non-commissioned officers and men, 198 ponies, 6 tongas, and 12 carts, left Gwalior for Bombay on October 6, 1914, and then sailed for France.

The detachment remained in France for about ten months, and thence was transferred to Salonika and later to Mesopotamia. A constant reserve of 40 men had to be maintained at the depot, and 9 draft reinforcements, consisting of 5 officers, 261 non-commissioned officers and men, 59 public followers, 227 ponies, and 100 carts were dispatched to France and Mesopotamia from the said reserve and depot from time to time to replace casualties and also to increase the strength in field.

This unit is still on service at Peshawar.

THE 3RD GWALIOR IMPERIAL SERVICE LANCERS PROCEED TO QUETTA

Two squadrons of the 3rd Lancers, consisting of 13 officers, 304 non-commissioned officers and men, 298 horses, 106 ponies, 4 camels, and 16 transport carts, on relief scale, left Gwalior for Quetta, on garrison duty, on July 27, 1915. The remaining two squadrons also left for Sibi on December 8 and 9, 1915, and remained at the Regimental Headquarters at Quetta and Rawal Pindi, whence they returned to Gwalior about the end of February 1919.

The whole regiment consisted of 23 officers, 2 medical officers, 540 non-commissioned officers and men, 142 followers, with 7 officers' chargers, 545 horses, 218 ponies, 8 camels, and 32 carts.

THE 4TH GWALIOR IMPERIAL SERVICE INFANTRY TAKES THE FIELD

The 4th Infantry Regiment, at its full fighting strength, left Gwalior on October 13, 1914, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Girdhari Singh.

The regiment consisted of 24 officers, 2 medical officers, 808 non-commissioned officers and men, 88 public followers, 65 ponies for first-line transport, and 9 officers' chargers, including 2 for Special Service officers.

A constant reserve of 612 and afterwards of 858 men was maintained at the depot of this regiment, from which draft reinforcements consisting of 2 officers, 3 medical officers, 1 dresser, 1,063 non-commissioned officers and men, and 25 followers were supplied from time to time to replace casualties, and to increase the strength to 1,070 in order to equalise it with an infantry battalion. Thus up to the end of December 1918, 26 officers, 5 medical officers, 1 dresser, 1,869 non-commissioned officers and men, and 113 followers with 65 ponies and 9 chargers were sent on field service from the regiment and the depot.

Mounted signallers to the number of 8, fully equipped, were also supplied from the 2nd Gwalior Imperial Service Lancers, and they served with the Signal Force "E."

THE 2ND GWALIOR IMPERIAL SERVICE LANCERS ORDERED ON GARRISON DUTY

Two squadrons of the 2nd Lancers, on peace strength, consisting of 13 officers, 1 medical officer, 304 non-commissioned officers and men, 143 followers, and 5 officers' chargers, 306 horses, 141 ponies, 4 camels, and 25 carts left Gwalior for Bannu on garrison duty, on February 17 and 18, 1916. In addition to these and with the exception of two squadrons, the whole of the remaining strength of the Lancers were employed either to train remounts at Deolali, Bellari, Aurangabad, and Gwalior itself, or to accompany the trained remounts to Europe.

Further details of these services will be found in their proper place.

SUPPLY OF REINFORCEMENTS

The presence of such a relatively large number of State forces in the field was, as may be easily imagined, a constant source of anxiety to the Headquarters Staff generally and His Highness the Maharaja in particular. The supply of reinforcements and the keeping up to their full strength of the depots of the various units was by no means an easy task, especially when we remember that even the Government of India found difficulties in the enlistment of recruits for the Indian Army. It may be granted that there can be no apt comparison in any respect between the modest forces of Gwalior and the grand Armies of India; but Gwalior's difficulties come the more prominently into view when it is remembered that the Government of India had to face the difficulties with illimitable monetary resources and a vast field to draw upon, whereas Gwalior was practically confined to no more than three districts of the State, which alone could supply fighting material, and even these districts were allowed by His Highness to be partially tapped in the wider interest of the Indian Army.

In addition to these and with the exception of two squadrons, the whole of the remaining strength of the Lancers were employed either to train remounts at Deolali, Bellari, Aurangabad, and Gwalior itself, or to accompany the trained remounts to Europe.

MAN-POWER OF THE STATE

It is impossible to give the exact number of recruits so enlisted in the Indian Army from the State territories, but from the information collected by the Government of India Army Department it appears that 2,031 recruits were taken from Gwalior from August 1917 to November 1918.

THE FORMATION OF RECRUITING BOARDS

But all difficulties were faced as a labour of love, and everyone, from the highest officer to the humblest Zamindar in the State, taking his cue from his Master, tried all he was worth to meet the situation by presenting the necessary number of recruits to the various Recruiting Boards appointed all over the State.

The success of these efforts was further assured by the substantial increases granted by His Highness in salaries of the troops. The Notification promulgating these also announced the following further concessions:

- (1) All approved recruits to receive an allowance of Rs.150.
- (2) Anyone who induces 50 men to enlist shall be awarded Rs.500, together with a dress of honour worth Rs.100. Similarly, persons helping with 100 recruits shall, for every set, receive Rs.1,000 in cash, together with a dress of honour.
- (3) Numberdars and Zamindars supplying batches of 100 or 50 recruits shall, in addition to the aforementioned rewards, receive Rs.6 for each recruit still in service at the end of five years from the date of joining.

It was only with the help of such a comprehensive organisation that the large and recurring demand for drafts could be met, and, in addition, the Army Headquarters were enabled to meet certain outside requisitions which were by no means negligible. As a specimen of these it will be sufficient to quote one single instance. The Government of India required trained artillery drivers, and asked if Gwalior could help. The number asked for was immediately placed at the disposal of the Indian Army, and is still in service.

FURTHER REQUISITION OF THE TRANSPORT

In addition to the transport corps already on field service, His Highness was requested to supply more of this valuable body, and accordingly 100 transport carts, complete with personnel and animals, as also 8 per cent. spare animals and 10 per cent. drivers, were immediately supplied to Government and sent to Mesopotamia.

Thus up to the end of January 1919, 8 officers, 1 medical officer, 367 non-commissioned officers and men, and 86 followers, with 425 ponies, 112 carts, and 6 tongas were sent from this unit.

THE 3RD INFANTRY RETURNS TO ACTIVE SERVICE

Owing to the favourable situation in German East Africa, the 3rd Infantry Regiment—then consisting of 16 officers, 2 medical officers, 381 non-commissioned officers and men, and 24 followers—was ordered to return to India, and it arrived in Gwalior on December 31, 1917. But in October 1918 it was again ordered to proceed to Mesopotamia, at a strength of 930 plus 15 per cent. reserve at the base: total, 1,070. The regiment was accordingly ready to start; but owing to the favourable turn which the War took, it was ordered to be demobilised.

"You need no assurances from me of my full confidence in Your Highness's enthusiastic loyalty and your desire to do everything in your power to help the British Empire—a desire which you have manifested so conspicuously during the past two years by your many munificent acts of generosity."

KHARITA,
May 30, 1917.

"On behalf of His Majesty the King-Emperor and myself, I thank Your Highness most warmly for the staunch support and munificent help afforded by the Gwalior State during the whole period of the War. The Gwalior Imperial Service Troops have rendered valuable service on transport duty in France, Salonika, and Mesopotamia, on garrison duty in India, and fought most gallantly in Egypt, in Palestine, and throughout the East African Campaign. Recruiting was stimulated in the State, remounts were trained, and Your Highness materially assisted with most liberal donations of money, aeroplanes, motor transport, and many other gifts too numerous and varied to mention in detail here. But Your Highness's munificence has extended still further, and many hearts must be filled with gratitude for the alleviations brought to their sufferings by Your Highness's thoughtful generosity. Your Highness originated and carried out most liberally the scheme for the hospital ship Loyalty, presented ambulances, instituted a convalescent home in Nairobi, afforded comfort to the munition workers in England, relief to returned prisoners of war from Germany, and thousands of the maimed and destitute have benefited from your liberal contributions to the various funds instituted for the purpose. Thus with the keenest interest and most substantial aid Your Highness has manifested the depth of your steadfast loyalty and devotion to His Imperial Majesty the King and the British Empire, and has shared in the great struggle for justice and freedom in which India has so nobly borne her part."

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

TRAINING OF IMPERIAL REMOUNTS

The officers and men remaining behind at the depots of the Imperial Service Lancers and the Non-Imperial Service Regiments (the "A" and "B" Batteries of Scindia's Horse Artillery) were no less employed in serving the Empire. In 1915, when the Government of India were looking to see how best to train the drafts of Imperial remounts and the artillery horses, His Highness offered to train them at Gwalior. The offer was accepted, and the necessary establishment was detailed to Calcutta to bring the horses. The first batch of 342 remounts arrived at Gwalior on March 6, 1915. Subsequent batches were also brought as soon as ready, and the training continued until 1917. The total number of remounts thus received at Gwalior was 1,015, and that trained was 891.

In addition to this, no less than 300 Sowars of the Gwalior Imperial Service Lancers were also employed for a period of over three years on the training of horses at Deolali and Aurangabad Depots.

Parties from the 1st and 2nd Gwalior Imperial Service Lancers, consisting of 4 officers, 156 non-commissioned officers and men, and 4 followers, were also supplied to escort Government remounts to France.

ness the Maharaja, sanctioned the formation of a Remount Clearing and Check Depot at Gwalior, for the reception and segregation of miscellaneous purchases of horses in India.

This depot was under the administrative control of the Director-General of Army Remounts Department, but for executive purposes was controlled by the Inspector-General of Gwalior Army.

All the depot staff, with the exception of the veterinary personnel, had been provided under arrangements made by Colonel Ganpat Rao Raghunath Rajwade, Inspector-General of the Army.

The depot was under the command of Captain Pandhorang Rao Jadho, of "B" Battery, Scindia's Horse Artillery, assisted by a personnel of 2 officers, 16 non-commissioned officers, and 100 men.

Provision of stabling for the horses and accommodation for the men, the supply of the necessary food and fodder, and other equipment and gear (for which Government paid)—all these arrangements devolved on the Darbar.

The depot consisted of 500 horses.

APPRECIATION OF THE REMOUNT TRAINING WORK

The scarcity of fodder and the high mortality caused by influenza, which swept over the world, created insuperable difficulties in the way of running the Remount Depot with unqualified success, and yet the following extract from a private letter from General Templer to His Highness will show how the remounts had been looked after. He said:

"I am glad to be able to tell Your Highness that I found a distinct improvement in the condition of the animals and the general working of the Remount Depot."

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

In 1915 General Broome made the following report to His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India :

“ Yesterday afternoon His Highness the Maharaja showed me in hand the Government remounts which he is so generously training for Government, and this morning he showed them to me on parade and drill. The health, condition, and training of these horses reflected the greatest credit on all concerned with the arrangements. I had no idea I was likely to see horses so well advanced in condition and training as these are.

“ They are well groomed and well shod, and their coats carry the bloom of health which shows they are being well and carefully fed. I hope to withdraw some 300 of them early—next batch only arrived here on March 6 ; a large majority of those going next month will have been here less than two months. To have conditioned and trained them in that time is a performance which speaks for itself.”

On receipt of such a report His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief wrote to His Highness in the following terms :

“ . . . I have received General Broome's report, and I have great pleasure in informing Your Highness that he has spoken in the highest terms of the horses you mention. I feel most grateful to Your Highness for the care and attention that must have been lavished on these horses to bring them to the high state which General Broome reports them to have reached.”

These various activities establish how extremely useful the Gwalior Army as a whole proved itself to be in the service of the King and the Empire during the recent titanic struggle.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE RIGHT HONOURABLE THE LORD HARDINGE OF PENSHURST, G.M.S.I., G.M.I.E., VICEROY AND GOVERNOR-GENERAL IN INDIA (1911-16)

"While I greatly deplore the serious breakdown in health which necessarily prevented you from fulfilling your desire to go on active service, at the same time I recognise that by remaining in India to administer your State and to initiate and organise the various schemes of relief you have done service no less valuable for the Empire than if you had been able to proceed to the scene of battle.

"The achievements of our princely host in every branch of the administration of his State and his great service to the Empire have long marked him out as one of the greatest of Indian rulers; but if our gratitude for his services and our appreciation of his character were great before, how much greater must they be now, after the boundless generosity which he has shown in connection with the War in which we are now engaged. I have before me a list of His Highness's gifts, which is too long to give in detail; it is sufficient to remind you that besides maintaining two regiments and a transport corps at the front and making princely donations to the various Relief Funds amounting to £50,000, His Highness has undertaken to pay the whole of the balance of the cost of the hospital ship Loyalty, after the subscriptions from other sources have been deducted; he is maintaining a convalescent home for wounded Indian soldiers in East Africa, and has presented a motor ambulance fleet at an estimated cost of £25,000, besides motor transport and motor-cars for the British Expeditionary Force at a cost of £23,000. He has offered six aeroplanes mounted with guns and armoured, and in fact one can hardly open the newspaper without reading of some fresh instance of His Highness's generosity. These gifts, which include only a part of His Highness's contributions to the War, are in themselves a monument to which His Highness and his successors after him will always be able to point with legitimate pride, and they may be sure that the British Government will not forget its great obligation to the Gwalior Darbar.

"But it is not so much the magnitude of His Highness's donations, vast though it is, that appeals to the imagination and touches the hearts of his friends and admirers. It is the spirit of loyalty and sympathy that underlies them."

MAN-POWER OF THE STATE

For such service the Darbar did not grudge the employment of its so-called Non-Imperial Service Troops, nor was the Government of India averse to their being so utilised.

It might be interesting to add that during wartime no less than 1,386 men were transferred from the non-Imperial units to the 3rd and 4th Gwalior Imperial Service Infantry Regiments.

This record of the Gwalior Army's services as a whole supplies a striking and, we are sure, a welcome illustration of His Highness the Maharaja's earnest assurance and prophetic words of 1905, when, in the presence of His Majesty the King-Emperor, he said :

“ My hope and ambition are that the day may come when my Army and I may by our acts show what is not only on our lips but in our hearts.”

In short, this tale of many and varied achievements points a moral, which is that, after all, as His Highness the Maharaja has for many years contended, the distinction, for purposes of Gwalior at any rate, between Imperial and non-Imperial troops is utterly devoid of significance, and the latter phrase embodies what may politely be called a misnomer.

Time was when even highly placed officers of the Government, intimately connected with Gwalior, utterly failed to realise the utility of the State maintaining its Army on what was believed to be a comparatively large scale. On the contrary, His Highness the Maharaja, with wonderfully accurate prevision, resisted all such suggestions, and his forecast of distant possibilities would appear to have been amply justified by the effective use which the recent death-struggle found for the whole of the Gwalior Army.

If the Army is not better equipped for purposes of offence and defence, that is due to no remissness on the part of the State. On the contrary, it would appear to be a matter of regret that, even so late in the day, the Gwalior State should not receive sufficient encouragement in its far-sighted designs, having for their ultimate object the strength and support of the British Empire.

GWALIOR IMPERIAL SERVICE TROOPS PRAISED BY GOVERNMENT

In the foregoing paragraphs some of the military activities which went on in the capital have been stated. We shall now proceed to reproduce opinions, recorded by competent authorities, in respect of the forces which the State sent into the field.

The Commander-in-Chief of the Forces in Egypt, while reporting on the work of the various regimental officers engaged upon operations in the vicinity of the Suez Canal, specially mentioned the name of Lieutenant-Colonel Girdhari Singh, commanding the 4th Gwalior Infantry.

The same officer, while writing to the Commander-in-Chief in India about the work of the 4th Infantry as a unit, said :

“ In addition to the excellent work carried out by them in active operations against enemy outposts, they have been employed on the arduous task of constructing strong field works for the defence of the Canal, and in guarding important and valuable points on the lines of communication. In every case they have carried out the task allotted to them to my entire satisfaction. I would be extremely grateful if you would convey to His Highness the Maharaja Scindia of Gwalior my very great appreciation of the services of his Imperial Service Troops, which form a most valuable part of the Forces under my Command."

Naik Girbar Singh, of the Gwalior Transport Corps, was specially mentioned in the reports made by the Officer Commanding Indian Corps, and in the dispatch of Field-Marshal the Commander-in-Chief of the British Army in France. The work of this man was reported as "especially good."

Again, in 1916, a second dispatch was received which contained the following :

" Their [the Transport Corps'] discipline has been beyond all praise. While under fire they have been absolutely imperturbable, especially during the fighting of Ypres in June last [1915], when Major Hate showed conspicuous coolness in leading and controlling the section while assisting the K.D.G.s to place the Château of Hooge in a state of defence."

The following telegram from the Political Secretary to the Government of India is worthy of reproduction :

" The following telegram from the Commander-in-Chief in Egypt has been received by Viceroy. Begins : ' I am happy to inform Your Excellency that the Imperial Service Troops from Gwalior did excellent work both in the Battle of Gaza and pursuit.' His Excellency asks me to convey to Your Highness his warm congratulations on excellent behaviour of your troops."

The following is an extract from a very lengthy report of the General Officer Commanding 4th (Quetta) Division, on the work carried out by the 3rd Gwalior Lancers since its arrival in the Quetta Division :

“ Since its arrival the regiment has performed all duties allotted in a very satisfactory manner. . . . One detachment was actively engaged in operations against the Jhalawans, where . . . Sowar Ibrahim Shah specially distinguished himself by remaining with a wounded British officer under fire, for which he has since been awarded the Indian Order of Merit. . . . Their activity undoubtedly frustrated many intended raids. . . . Captain Ramchandrarao Surwey has done excellent work. . . . Discipline has been excellent. The men have shown a spirit of cheerfulness and devotion to duty under often very trying circumstances, which reflect great credit on Major (now Lieutenant-Colonel) Sambhaji Rao Bhonsle and the officers of the regiment. . . .”

The officer commanding Kalat Column says :

“ Jamadar Ghulam Haidar Khan . . . controlled his men with tact and judgment. I much regret that he was severely wounded in the encounter on June 25. . . .”

RECOGNITION OF THE SERVICES OF MEN OF THE GWALIOR ARMY BY GOVERNMENT

The services of all such officers and men have been graciously recognised by Government, and we give here a special list of those who have been honoured by the grant of titles and other marks of honour.

First among them should be mentioned the name of Colonel Ganpat Rao Raghunath Rajwade, the Inspector-General of the Gwalior Army. For the meritorious services rendered by him as head of the State Military Department, His Imperial Majesty the King-Emperor was graciously pleased to approve of the grant to Colonel Rajwade of the honorary rank of Captain in the Indian Army. He was also appointed an Honorary Aide-de-Camp to His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General in India.

(f) Supplied in silver bullion	Tolas 76,878.5

CHAPTER II

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE AFFORDED BY THE STATE

FROM a narrative of the men we now come to that of money—although the former is no less a narrative of money freely given to the Empire in the shape of men.

LOAN OF RS.50,00,000 INTEREST FREE AND THE POSTPONE- MENT OF TREATY PAYMENTS AMOUNTING TO RS.38,00,000 PER ANNUM

Soon after the War broke out His Highness wrote to the Government of India that, if their financial situation required it, the Darbar would be ready :

(1) To advance them Rs.50,00,000 (roughly £333,335) free of interest ; and

(2) To postpone the payment to them by Government of the half-yearly Treaty Payments, amounting in December 1914 to Rs.19,00,000 (roughly £120,000). Both the offers were "gratefully" accepted by Government, and the fresh loan of Rs.50,00,000 was accordingly made.

PROVIDING RS.35,00,000 IN SILVER

During the later part of the year 1916, when, owing to various circumstances, silver was scarce in India and could not be easily imported from overseas, the Government of India requested the Maharaja to help them with silver in exchange for gold. His Highness, with his characteristic zeal and energy, set about the task, and in a short space of time was able to collect and hand over to the Government about Rs.35,00,000, part of which was drawn from the State Treasury, but the bulk from Jaipur, Rampur, and Dholpur States, whose Rulers are equally devoted to the interests of the Empire and with whom His Highness is on terms of the most cordial friendship. On this occasion the nobility and Sahukars of Gwalior also contributed handsomely.

SUCCESS OF THE INDIAN WAR LOAN OF 1917

The first Indian War Loan was floated in 1917. His Highness the Maharaja realised how necessary it was to render this and all subsequent loans really popular. With this object in view, he had drawn up a Notification (in vernacular) which was circulated broadcast amongst the Sardars, Jagirdars, Officers, Sahukars, Zamindars, and the public of the State. This Notification bore His Highness's own signature, and was, therefore, in the nature of a personal appeal for the benefit of the Empire.

In order to endorse by personal action all that was stated in the Notification, His Highness led off by purchasing War Loan Bonds of the value of Rs.85,00,000 (equal roughly to £600,000).

The Postal Department of the Government of India were on this occasion also consistent in their trust of the State Post Offices, and authorised them to sell Post Office Five-year Cash Certificates, with the result that a sum of Rs.6,53,859.12.0 (or roughly £44,000) was subscribed by the public. Thus the total amount subscribed by Gwalior amounted to very nearly 1 crore of rupees.

His Highness, with his characteristic zeal and energy, set about the task, and in a short space of time was able to collect and hand over to the Government about Rs. 35,00,000, part of which was drawn from the State Treasury, but the bulk from Jaipur, Rampur, and Dholpur States, whose Rulers are equally devoted to the interests of the Empire and with whom His Highness is on terms of the greatest intimacy. The 3rd Gwalior Imperial Service Lancers: some of the officers and men on their return from Rawal Pindi and Sahukars of Gwalior also contributed handsomely.

The result was that a sum of Rs. 50,00,000 was subscribed by the public. This was the first amount subscribed by Gwalior and was a very timely contribution to the war effort.

It would only be fitting to mention here the names of State officers responsible for the successful working of the Postal Cash Certificate Scheme. Their services have already been recognised by the Darbar by the award of a Dress of Honour to each of them. Their names are :

FIFTY LACS OF COINED RUPEES AND 76,878.5 TOLAS OF SILVER

In 1918, when the Government were in urgent need of coined rupees and silver, His Highness, in response to His Excellency the Viceroy's call, placed at the disposal of the Government of India a sum of Rs.50,00,000 in silver from the reserve of the State and 76,878.5 tolas of silver, obtained by melting uncurrent old coins. This practically represented the whole of the silver that was to be found in the Treasury of the State.

The amount has since been repaid by Government.

DEPARTMENTS

It describes—

- (a) The supply of war materials by the State Workshops and the Leather Factory to the extent of about Rs.20,00,000.
- (b) The supply of about 500,000 maunds of grass; considerable quantities of grain and ghee; an X-ray outfit; a band cutting machine, etc. etc.

CHAPTER III

RESOURCES OF THE STATE—A NARRATIVE OF THE SERVICES RENDERED BY THE VARIOUS STATE DEPARTMENTS

WE now come to that portion of Gwalior's part in the War which relates to the placing by His Highness of the entire resources of the State freely at the disposal of the Government.

EXECUTION OF WAR ORDERS TO THE EXTENT OF ABOUT RS.20,00,000 BY THE STATE WORKSHOPS AND THE GWALIOR LEATHER FACTORY

Chief among the institutions which rendered substantial service are the State Electric Workshops (managed by Mr. B. B. Pagnis, L.L.A.) and the Leather Factory (managed by Mr. M. R. Powar), which worked for Government for the greater part of the time that the War lasted.

It is impossible to give a detailed description of the various classes of work done by these two institutions, but a mention of the total amount already received in payment from the Government would give some idea of the magnitude of the work.

This sum, so far, aggregates Rs.13,21,000. The Leather Factory is still engaged on the execution of war orders, payments for which will probably amount to Rs.5,65,800. These figures, however, do not include payments for the large supplies of stoneware, acid-proof jars, feeding-cups, fruit-preserving stoneware jars, etc. etc., supplied by the State Pottery Works (managed by Mr. D. C. Muzamdar) to the various medical institutions in India.

SUPPLY OF GRASS

The next important item is the supply of grass. It was about the middle of January 1917 that the Government of India, having to meet abnormally large demands of hay for Egypt, inquired if the Darbar could help them in that direction. It was rather late in the day to start collecting good grass then. Anyhow, a Committee of some of the Revenue and Forest officers was immediately called by His Highness, and the Government were intimated that the Darbar Forests Department could undertake to supply 100,000 maunds of grass, and possibly, and at a push, a further 50,000 to 100,000 maunds. But the actual quantity supplied in 1917 was nothing when compared with the huge figure of about 400,000 maunds supplied in 1918.

The following extract from the report of the British Grass Officer of the United Provinces, which was forwarded by the Resident of Gwalior with the thanks of the United Provinces Government, will be interesting. That officer says :

“ The Gwalior Forests Department supplied no less than 13,609 tons, viz. 84 per cent. of the amount proposed and over a quarter of the total supply of 52,000 tons. . . . The hay was all of the best quality. . . . The burden of the arrangements fell on Lieutenant-Colonel K. N. Haksar, C.I.E., Political Member of the Darbar, to whom I am much indebted. The work itself was ably controlled by Pandit Sundar Lal Pathak, Conservator of Forests. . . .”

In recognition of his services during the War he was given the honorary rank of Captain in the Indian Army and appointed an Aide-de-Camp to His Excellency the Viceroy.

The Darbar gave him the title of Shaukat-i-Jang. The actual quantity supplied in 1917 was nothing when compared with the figure of about 400,000 maunds supplied in 1918.

The following extract from the report of the British Grass Officer of the United Provinces, which was forwarded by the Resident of Gwalior with the thanks of the United Provinces Government, will be interesting. His report says:

"The Gwalior Pottery Works supplied no less than 1,000,000 lbs. of hay for the army in 1917, and over a quarter of the same quantity in 1918. . . . The hay was all of the best quality. The burden of the arrangements fell on Lieutenant Colonel K. N. Haksar, C.I.E., Political Member of the Darbar, to whom I am much indebted. The work itself was ably controlled by Pandit Sunder Lal Pathak, Conservator of Forests. . . ."

RESOURCES OF THE STATE

In addition to the quantity supplied by the Darbar, permission to export hay was also granted to Messrs. Abbott Brothers, of Jhansi.

SERVICES RENDERED BY THE GWALIOR LIGHT RAILWAY

While the cutting, collecting, and baling of grass was done by or through the Forests Department in a very creditable manner, the carriage of it, being one of the most important items in the transaction, was done by the Gwalior Light Railway, as most of the important grass centres in the Northern Districts of the State lie mainly on that railway. Notwithstanding the thousand-and-one difficulties in undertaking such heavy traffic during a time when not only coal was scarce but the rolling stock was insufficient for general requirements, the work was done in a most efficient manner by Mr. B. Lawrence, the General Traffic Manager and Agent of the Gwalior Light Railway.

The following figures will be of interest :

Period of railway operations	149 days
Amount of grass carried	206,258 maunds.
Total number of railway waggons supplied	7,133
Greatest number of railway waggons supplied in one day	78
Average number of waggons supplied daily during the whole period	48

SUPPLY OF A LATHE

The Gun and Shell Factory, Cossipore, knowing that a lathe for turning brass plugs was available in the State Workshops, asked for it, and it was immediately given up to them.

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY TAILORS DAILY

In April 1918 the Government of India, Munitions Board, owing to the greatly increased demand for Army clothing and the existing Government factories being unable to make up the required number of garments, considered it necessary to organise temporary workshops at stations where sufficient labour was available and where suitable accommodation could be provided. Gwalior, so well known for its wide activities connected with the War, was selected as one of the centres, and General Sir Robert Stuart accordingly wrote to the Resident at Gwalior. His Highness the Maharaja readily arranged for the required number of tailors, no less than 250 daily, and a single building necessary for the accommodation of this large number of workmen and the European supervising staff. The idea was, however, given up by the Munitions Board.

X-RAY OUTFIT

The Director of Medical Services, India, was in need of an X-ray field outfit, which was required for the War Hospital at Khandwa. As such an apparatus was in possession of the State Medical Department, the Director approached His Highness with a request for its loan, and the request was forthwith granted.

BAGGAGE-CAMELS

In June 1918 the Resident at Gwalior intimated to the Darbar that the Government, being in very serious and urgent need of baggage-camels, required the Darbar's assistance in procuring as large a number of camels as possible.

RESOURCES OF THE STATE

Although Gwalior is not a State which can boast of having any appreciable number of these animals in its territories, yet no pains were spared in getting together 375 of them. The idea of tapping Gwalior was, however, given up by the Camel Purchasing Officer, and the arrangements already made for the collection of the animals at a few convenient centres abandoned.

EIGHT HUNDRED MAUNDS OF GHEE AND GRAIN

At the request of the Director of Supply and Transport, Bombay, the Darbar arranged through local traders and others for the supply of 800 maunds of ghee from Gwalior. And throughout the years of war considerable quantities of grain and ghee were purchased from the Darbar territories which, although they were not the property of Government at the time of export, were destined for war use.

BAND CUTTING MACHINE

The band cutting machine belonging to the Civil and Military Stores, Gwalior, lent to the Indian Munitions Board, was of the greatest use to the Government Army Clothing Factories at Agra and Lahore.

CHAPTER IV

DESCRIBES THE MAHARAJA'S SOLICITUDE FOR THE SUCCESSFUL TERMINATION OF THE WAR

It contains an account—

- (a) Of the various gifts, presents, and contributions which he gave from time to time for the prosecution of the War, and which amount to a sum of Rs.37,55,900.
- (b) Also of his great enthusiasm in devising an elaborate scheme which promised a number of concessions for the recruits to the Indian Army; and
- (c) Of his ready co-operation with the Government of India in husbanding the resources of the State with a view to economic control and the supply of war materials.

CHAPTER IV

GIFTS, PRESENTS, CONTRIBUTIONS, ETC., DIRECTLY RELATING TO WAR

THIS chapter contains a short account of the different presents, gifts, and donations which His Highness made from time to time for purposes directly relating to the War.

£16,000

In September 1914 His Highness made a present of £15,000 to Government for the provision of motor transport in Europe, and £1,000 for the purchase of a motor-lorry in India.

£1,500

In the following month His Highness made a further present of £1,500 to Government for the purchase of binoculars, telescopes, and compasses for the use of officers and men of the Indian troops. The purchases were made through the India Office, and the words "Scindia's Gift" were engraved on all the articles before distributing them to the Indian Expeditionary Force.

The troops were so much pleased with the gifts that officers of several of the units among whom the articles were distributed wrote to thank His Highness individually.

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

£8,000

Again, His Highness placed at the disposal of the Government of India a sum of £8,000 for providing motor-cars and a motor-lorry to meet the requirements of the Indian Expeditionary Forces. The offer was "gratefully" accepted by the Government of India, and the amount utilised for the purpose named.

£14,400

In January 1915 His Highness decided to place at the disposal of the Government of India four aeroplanes, two for Egypt and one each for East Africa and the Persian Gulf, all armoured and mounted with guns. The offer was communicated to His Excellency the Viceroy, who, while thanking His Highness for his "most generous" offer, said that the machines were more necessary in the Persian Gulf and at Aden than elsewhere. A similar opinion was expressed by His Excellency Sir Beauchamp Duff. His Highness, therefore, gladly agreed to the suggestion. The supply of the machines was kindly arranged by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief with the War Office, the machines actually arriving in Bombay on April 20, 1915.

The various communications which His Highness received from time to time from Their Excellencies the Viceroy and the Commander-in-Chief in India contain interesting details of their excellent reconnaissance work and collection of valuable information of the position of the enemy's trenches, etc. etc.

For want of space we reproduce here a single letter from His Excellency the Viceroy :

GIFTS, ETC., DIRECTLY RELATING TO WAR

“VICEREGAL LODGE, SIMLA,

“July 28, 1915.

“MY DEAR MAHARAJA,

“I think you would like to know that our recent success on the 24th on the Euphrates was largely due to the employment of the aeroplanes which Your Highness so generously presented to the Government. We were informed that the troops could not advance, as it was found impossible to locate the position of the enemy and their guns; but as soon as the two aeroplanes arrived, they were able to make a successful reconnaissance, showing up the whole of the Turkish position, with the result that the attack was completely successful. Without aeroplanes our losses would probably have been very heavy. I assure Your Highness I am very grateful for that gift of yours.

“With all good wishes,

“Yours very sincerely,

“HARDINGE OF PENSHURST.”

All of these machines having subsequently come to grief, His Highness presented another one. Later, in December 1915, in connection with the unveiling ceremony of the statue of His late Highness Maharaja Sir Jayaji Rao Scindia, His Highness offered to replace the remainder also. These were accordingly purchased by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, and dispatched to the field of operation.

The total cost of all the eight machines presented by His Highness amounted to £14,400, or Rs.2,16,000 in Indian coin.

£6,000

His Highness also offered a sum of £6,000, to be utilised in giving bonuses to the workmen in England with a view to encouraging them to turn out more ammunition, of which the Empire was in great need. The offer was "most thankfully" accepted by His Majesty's Government, and by the Rt. Hon. D. Lloyd George, then Minister of Munitions. Owing, however, to the difficulties in the allocation of the money in bonuses, it was decided by the Minister that the sum would most suitably be spent in the provision of rest-rooms, reading-rooms, and amenities of a similar nature, including lectures at the canteens in connection with the more important national factories.

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

His Excellency the Viceroy acknowledged this gift in the following terms :

" VICEREGAL LODGE, SIMLA,
" July 9, 1915.

" MY DEAR MAHARAJA,

" Once more Your Highness's inventive genius has found a way to benefit the Empire by another most generous gift. I have telegraphed it home to the Secretary of State, and am now awaiting his reply. Your suggestion struck me as an ingenious idea, and I hope it will be found to be practicable and will be accepted. I cannot tell you how very highly I appreciate Your Highness's extreme generosity and helpful co-operation in all matters connected with the War.

" Ever yours very sincerely,

" HARDINGE OF PENSHURST."

The following is an extract from a letter of the Rt. Hon. D. Lloyd George, which he wrote to His Highness's agent, Mr. Glass Hooper, in London, to acknowledge the receipt of the amount :

GIFTS, ETC., DIRECTLY RELATING TO WAR

“ MINISTRY OF MUNITIONS OF WAR,
“6, WHITEHALL GARDENS, S.W.

“ July 30, 1915.

“ I should be very much obliged if you would be good enough to convey to His Highness my very best thanks for his generous gift, and also to assure him that every member of His Majesty's Government associates himself with me in expressing our very highest appreciation of the public spirit which prompted him to contribute such a handsome sum of money towards the work of the Ministry of Munitions.”

WAR CONTRIBUTION OF RS.15,00,000 PER ANNUM

In April 1918 His Highness was invited by His Excellency the Viceroy to the War Conference held in Delhi. As at this Conference the Ruling Princes as well as the British Indian public were to be represented, the solution of some of the most important questions of the day was anticipated, and consequently His Highness was only too glad to attend it. It is immaterial for the purposes of this book to note the proceedings of the Conference. Suffice it to say that His Highness offered a sum of Rs.15,00,000 (£100,000) per annum to Government as his State's contribution towards the expenses of the War. The first and last payment of this contribution was made in August 1919.

FLOW OF RECRUITS TO THE INDIAN ARMY

One of the important questions discussed at the Conference was the securing of an immediate development of man-power for military purposes. It may be imagined that His Highness's solicitude to supplement the Government's own efforts in this extremely important matter was very great indeed. But, as explained in Chapter I, it was not possible for Gwalior to render much effective help by actually supplying any very large number of recruits. Anyhow, as it is not in His Highness's nature easily to give in to difficulties, his resourceful mind found a way out of the one which confronted him, and he devised a scheme, unfolded in the following communication, addressed to the Resident at Gwalior, to stimulate further the flow of recruits to the Indian Army :

From Lieutenant-Colonel K. N. Haksar, C.I.E., Mashir-i-Khas Bahadur, Political Member, Huzur Darbar, Gwalior.

To W. E. Jardine, Esq., C.I.E., I.C.S., Resident at Gwalior.
No. 6085, May 30, 1918.

“ 1. I have the honour to enclose for consideration, by Government or the Central Recruiting Board, the translation of Notification which the Darbar are prepared to issue, for wide circulation in all parts of British India, provided the scheme therein set forth has the concurrence of the Government of India.

“ 2. In the terms of the Notification the Government will recognise, it is to be hoped, a desire on the part of the Darbar to stimulate further the flow of recruits to the Indian Army. The scheme unfolded in the Notification is intended to supplement the Government's own efforts in that extremely important matter of raising recruits.

“ 3. As the recent revision of the effective strength of Imperial Service units renders recruitment for the British Army within the Darbar's territories clearly impracticable, in view of the fact that the Darbar's Imperial Service troops, so far as possible, are to be recruited from within the State, the Darbar have thought of thus helping to augment the fighting strength of the Indian Army, which they consider to be the most pressing need of the situation that has arisen. This situation, which had come home to His Highness long ago, has assumed, in his eyes, a grave complexion since he attended the War Conference at Delhi last month. The present proposal is the result of the reflection which His Highness, for his part, has devoted to the solution of a problem with which everyone in the country must be grappling at the present juncture.

“ 4. Assuming, therefore, that the Darbar's idea meets with the Government's entire approval in all its details, I would state the direction in which the Government's co-operation with the Darbar is indispensable to assure success to the scheme which the latter have evolved.

“ 5. First comes the question of giving wide publicity to the terms of the Notification. To that end the assistance of the Government's recruiting officers and of the District civil authorities of Provinces is invited, and it is trusted that instructions will issue to them in due course for bringing those terms to the knowledge of all likely recruits. Partly towards the same end, and partly for reasons connected with dispatch of business, the Darbar would desire to post their own official Agents in the different recruiting centres, and it is asked that this be permitted and the names of centres intimated, vide clause 1 of Notification.

“ 6. These Agents also will distribute the Notification broadcast, and they will arrange for the inspection of the recruits by the Government's recruiting officers and their examination by Government's medical officers, and with these two classes of officers the Darbar's Agents should be brought into relation.

“7. When a recruit has been passed as fit, he will be made over by the Darbar's Agent to the Government's recruiting officer for enlistment, and the said Agent, on hearing from the Government recruiting officer that the recruit has actually joined the colours, will grant a certificate to the recruit's nominee (vide clause 1, sub-para. 3 of the Notification), so that land may be assigned to the latter on arrival at Gwalior. Only in cases where a recruit is unable to nominate a representative to take possession of land on his behalf, it is suggested that he might be allowed, after joining, to travel to Gwalior and back to the depot free of charge.

“8. Secondly, as regards recruits appearing directly before the Gwalior Recruiting Board, it is asked that the Darbar's Army Member be kept informed of the depots to which such recruits may be sent after passing the examination for medical and other fitness.

“9. When the lands available have been nearly taken up, the Darbar will intimate the date from which the operation of the enclosed Notification will cease. This intimation will be given in such good time as not to cause inconvenience to the parties associated with the scheme.

“10. Finally, clause 10 of the Notification already provides that the people taking up land shall do so subject to all the Darbar laws in force for the time being. None the less, the Darbar desire to make it quite clear that the fact of residents of British India joining the British Indian Army at the instance of the Darbar will not confer upon them or their families any sort of guarantee or immunity from Gwalior laws, nor even entitle any British officer to intervene in any manner on behalf of such recruits or their families.”

TRANSLATION OF THE DRAFT NOTIFICATION

“It is widely known how fiercely the War is now being waged. The effects of the War are not merely confined to England: they have been felt throughout the whole of the British Empire. Under these circumstances it is incumbent on all parts of this great Empire to assist whole-heartedly in mobilising the resources of the Empire for the successful prosecution of the War and its speedy termination. The present strength of the Indian Army must, therefore, be considerably augmented. The Government of India are adopting all measures necessary to stimulate the flow of men to the Indian Army. The Gwalior Darbar, ever ready to assist the British Empire, desire to co-operate with the Government of India in this matter. The forces of the Darbar are already rendering service to the Government, and such forces are being maintained at their full strength, as far as possible, by the enlistment of the subjects of the Gwalior State.

“With a view, however, to further stimulating recruiting, and in order to make suitable provision for the families of the recruits, the Darbar have decided to grant parcels of land to persons who, encouraged by the concessions set forth below, enlist in the Indian Army.

“The amount of arable land that can be assigned for the purpose is, no doubt, limited in extent, but the Darbar have resolved to offer all the available land, subject to the following conditions:

“I. Persons (other than residents of the Gwalior State)

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

desiring to enlist in the Indian Army should present themselves before the Central Recruiting Board of Gwalior or officers especially appointed by the Darbar for the purpose at the centres mentioned below.

“ They may either present themselves before such Board or officer, or be presented by a person in accordance with the provisions herein mentioned.

“ After they have satisfied the tests prescribed (e.g. inspection by the British recruiting officer and medical examination), they will be regularly enrolled and will then be entitled to the grant of 25 bighas of arable land, possession of which shall be delivered immediately to the recruit or to some person nominated by him for the purpose (such person is hereinafter referred to as the recruit's representative).

“ No one person, however, may act as a representative of more than one recruit.

“ 2. Land is available in the following Districts of the State : Gird-Gwalior, Narwar, Esagarh, Bhilsa, Shajapur, and Mandsaur.

“ Every attempt will be made to accommodate grantees in the particular zillah, pergana, or mauza in which they may desire to hold. Where, however, land is not available in the particular mauza, grants will be made from land in the nearest pergana and mauza.

“ 3. Recruits shall acquire the right of occupancy in such holdings ab initio, and shall be entitled to hold it free of rent for 30 years according to the prevailing rent-occupancy holdings.

“ 4. Building sites in the Abadi will be given free of all charges for the construction of dwelling-houses. To assist him in the construction of a house, the recruit or his representative will also receive a cash grant of Rs.25.

“5. To enable persons to acquire ploughs and oxen, the Darbar are prepared to make advances up to a maximum of Rs.75 to each recruit, subject to the giving of security by some residents of the State. On such advances no interest shall be charged. The principal sum may be repaid, wholly or in part, within three years of the date of the loan; but when not so repaid, the amount due shall be payable by five annual instalments of equal value.

“6. The representatives of recruits are expected to come and reside in the village and to cultivate the holdings immediately after they have entered into possession thereof. Where, however, the recruit or his representative fails to do so within a year of the termination of the War with Germany, it shall be conclusively presumed that the holder has relinquished his rights and the lease shall be deemed cancelled.

“7. Persons who procure the enlistment of 20, 40, or a larger number of recruits (being some multiple of 20), shall be granted 100 bighas (parcels) of arable waste land for every 20 recruits. Such persons shall be entitled to hold the parcels free of revenue for 30 years, after which they shall be held in proprietary right (Zamindari) and assessed to revenue in accordance with the Settlement Rules then in force. Holders of such parcels of land must bring them under cultivation within a year of the termination of the War, with the help of tenants who are not residents of the State; in default, the parcels will be liable to resumption.

“8. In addition to these grants, persons procuring 60 or more recruits (but less than 120) shall be awarded a cash grant of Rs.500, a Dress (Pagri and Dupatta) and a Sword of Honour; those procuring the enlistment of 120 or more recruits shall be awarded Rs.1,000 in cash, a Dress and a Sword of Honour.

“9. Holdings and parcels of land irrigated from State Irrigation Works shall be charged with the payment of water rates prescribed by the Rules.

“10. All persons acquiring holdings and parcels of land shall, while they reside in the State, be subject to the State Laws and Regulations and shall be amenable to the jurisdiction of the State Tribunals.

“11. When land is granted in accordance with these Rules, the holders of lands will be granted pattas (duly signed and sealed) along with the customary dress. Such pattas shall be kept by the grantees as deeds of title.

“12. Full information relating to the holdings and parcels of land which could form the subject of grant under these Rules, e.g. the quality or class of soil, climatic conditions, means of irrigation, depth of water below the surface of the soil, distance from railways, roads, and mundis, crops usually grown in the pergana, may be obtained from the President of the Central Recruiting Board, Gwalior.”

This was the scheme forwarded to the Government of India for consideration, approval, and circulation in all parts of British India; but in the words of His Highness, used in a different context, “the sunshine ordained by Providence to follow upon the dark shadows now mercifully withdrawn” having soon appeared, the scheme probably reposes on the shelves of the Government of India's Political Department.

As a communication bearing the same date as the above and also arising out of the memorable War Conference of April 24, 1918, it will not be without interest to reproduce here another letter from the Political Member to the Resident at Gwalior.

From Lieutenant-Colonel K. N. Haksar, C.I.E., Mashir-i-Khas Bahadur, Political Member, Huzur Darbar, Gwalior.

To W. E. Jardine, Esq., C.I.E., I.C.S., Resident at Gwalior. No. 6084, May 30, 1918

“ 1. I have the honour to enclose herewith, for consideration by the Government of India, the scheme which the Darbar propose to enforce in pursuance of the recommendations of the Delhi Conference as regards the husbanding and augmenting of resources;

“ 2. In the Darbar's view, the scheme is complete for the objects of the Conference; but any suggestions which the Government might deem fit to make for its improvement would be welcomed, and would receive the careful consideration of the Darbar.

“ 3. For the adequate attainment of the objects of its resolutions the Conference provided for the formation of separate committees for, presumably, the larger States. It was doubtless intended to treat the States, which by their size and population might be so treated, as separate units of administration, and it was expected that the committees formed in such States would work independently, but at the same time in complete harmony and close association with the central organisation which the Government of India might call into being. Judged by this test of relative importance, the Gwalior State should be recognised as a separate unit, and the Darbar trust that the Government will concur in this view. The area of the State is nearly 30,000 square miles and its population well over 3,000,000 souls.

“4. I am, therefore, to invite the Government's acceptance of the scheme. Such acceptance would involve, as the essential condition of the workability of the scheme, the acceptance by the Railway Controller and others of the certificates and recommendations of the President of the Gwalior Central Committee.

“5. In pursuance of clause 2 of the scheme, I am to ask that an exhaustive list may be furnished of what are called 'War Materials.'”

The following is an analysis of the Resolutions of the Delhi Resources Sub-Committee :

WAR RESOURCES ORGANISATION, GWALIOR STATE

The recommendations of the Sub-committee appointed by the Delhi Conference to consider the question of resources may be summed up under three heads :

1, Communications. 2, Munitions. 3, Food-supply.

I. COMMUNICATIONS.—(a) With regard to Communications, the Committee recommend that the people should be so guided as to practise economy in every possible direction, particularly in the consumption in each locality, as far as possible, of local produce only, thus diminishing needless cross-traffic on the railways. To this end the Sub-committee recommended the formation of Provincial and State Committees for the purposes of advising Government Departments and of encouraging the people to confine their requirements as nearly as possible to local produce.

(1) The Darbar are, therefore, pleased to constitute the following Committees :

(i) A Central Committee at headquarters, composed of :

President—The Political Member.

Members—

1. The Naib Dewan Mal.
2. The Member for Trade, Customs, and Excise.
3. The Inspector-General of Municipalities.
4. Lala Ramji Das (as representing the Chamber of Commerce).
5. Rao Bahadur Thakur Man Singh of Narwar.
6. Rao Bahadur Thakur Ishwari Singh of Dhabla Dhir.
7. Sardar Bijey Singh, Rao of Athana.

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

8. Sardar Nawab Haidar Ali Khan of Basoda.

9. One or more Co-operative members.

Secretary—Lala Ramchandra Gupta.

(ii) A District Committee at the headquarters of each District, constituted as follows :

President—The Suba of the District.

Members—

1. All Tehsildars in the District.
2. The Superintendent of Customs.
3. A representative of the mercantile community.
4. A representative of the local municipality.
5. One or more Zamindars (to be appointed by the Suba).
6. One or more Co-operative members.

Secretary—The District Judge.

(2) Should the President of a District Committee consider the formation of a separate committee in any particular pergana necessary, he may form such a committee without reference to the Central Committee. The Tehsildar of the pergana would be the local President of this Committee, on which the mercantile community and the Zamindars of the pergana would be adequately represented. Such Pergana Committee would act in direct subordination to the President of the District Committee.

(3) The Central Committee, with the assistance of the District Committees, would, inter alia, collect information regarding the local products in each district and ascertain the nearest place or places from which commodities could be obtained for consumption in particular areas.

(4) The Central Committee shall, where necessary, issue rules for the guidance of the District Committees, and

8. Sardar Nawab Haidar Ali Khan, of Basoda.

9. One or more Co-operative members.

Secretary—Lala Ramchandra Gupta.

(ii) A District Committee at the headquarters of each District, constituted as follows:

Members—

1. All Tehsildars in the District.

3. A representative of the mercantile community.
4. A representative of the local municipality.
5. One or more Zamindars (to be appointed by the Suba).
6. One or more Co-operative members.

Secretary—The District Judge.

(3) Should the President of a District Committee consider it necessary, he may form such Facing page 62 without reference to the Central Committee. The Tehsildar of the pergana would be the local President of this Committee, or which the mercantile community and the Zamindars of the pergana would be adequately represented. Such Pergana Committees would act in direct subordination to the President of the District Committee.

The District Committees, with the assistance of the Pergana Committees, would collect information regarding the production of each District and ascertain the means by which the surplus commodities could be directed to particular areas.

(4) The District Committees, where necessary, issue rules for the guidance of the District Committees, and indicate generally the lines on which the District Committees would work.

(5) It will be the duty of the Central Committee to classify general traffic into "essentials" and "non-essentials." Essentials would be given specific preference, and non-essentials, so far as possible, shall not be imported at all.

(b) In order to minimise the dislocation of trade caused by the congestion of traffic on railways, and the consequent hardship to the public, the Delhi Conference has recommended the construction of river-craft for inland transport. With special reference to Gwalior, the British authorities should be requested to co-operate with the Darbar in the construction of river-craft for the navigation of the Chambal River.

(c) There shall be a Director of Supplies for the Gwalior State, and the President of the Central Committee shall act as such Director.

In all important matters he shall act in consultation with the Committee, and when necessary shall obtain direct instructions of the Darbar. He will deal directly with the Controllers of Civil Supplies and of Traffic in British India, and will grant necessary certificates for the supply of rolling stock.

II. MUNITIONS.—The Delhi Conference was of opinion that it was necessary to reduce the local consumption of materials needed for war use, and that considerable development was possible in the local production of war materials and other munitions, and they therefore recommended the formation of State Committees to advise Controllers of Munitions as regards :

(a) Stimulating the local production of war materials;

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

(b) Reducing the local consumption of materials wanted for war use ;

(c) Preventing local irregularities in and inflation of prices.

In order to determine how far the Darbar can help towards the production of war materials, it is necessary to obtain an exhaustive list of materials which come within the category of "war materials."

This list should be obtained through the Resident. When the list is received, the Central Committee shall devise measures for stimulating the production of war materials.

As regards preventing the inflation of prices, it is anticipated that occasions will arise for the Darbar to call upon the Munitions Board to take action which would have the effect of preventing or remedying the inflation of prices. Such inflated prices may be general, i.e. the inflation may occur in Gwalior simultaneously with British India, or it may be entirely local. In both cases Government intervention may be invited when necessary, especially in respect of commodities which, not being produced in Gwalior, have to be imported. No separate Committee for dealing with this question seems to be called for. The Central Committee would deal with this subject also.

III. FOOD-STUFFS.—The Conference recommended that, in order to educate the agriculturists in the making of the best possible use of their land for the production of different kinds of food-stuffs, and to obtain and disseminate information in the districts in regard to facilities for procuring fertilisers for the development of agriculture, Provincial and State Committees should be formed to act in co-operation with the local Directors of Agriculture.

The Naib Dewan Mal and the Director of Agriculture are hereby directed to concert measures to give effect to the recommendation of the Conference.

In the matter of propagating information likely to be of value to the agriculturists regarding manures and implements, and in educating the agriculturists regarding the production of particular food-stuffs, the services of Updeshaks of the Zamindar Hitkarni Sabha, the Patwaris and the Pergana establishment of the Land Records and Revenue Departments should be freely requisitioned.

On the termination of the Conference His Highness had the pleasure of receiving the following letter from His Excellency the Viceroy :

“VICEREGAL LODGE, SIMLA,
“ May 6, 1918.

“ MY DEAR MAHARAJA,

“ I know how keenly and zealously Your Highness worked for the success of the Delhi Conference and how much we owe to you for your unremitting labours. I should like Your Highness to know that I feel I owe you a very special word of thanks. The difficulties were many, we needed help, and Your Highness responded nobly to the call.

“ Very sincerely yours,

“ CHELMSFORD.”

This appreciation was followed a few days later by His Excellency the Viceroy's official kharita containing the following message from His Imperial Majesty the King-Emperor :

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

“ . . . The knowledge of your unswerving loyalty to my Throne and Person is a constant source of gratification to me, and these feelings are strengthened by your expressed determination to continue to put forth the utmost of your power to ensure the successful termination of War. Your generous contributions and offers of services are noble proofs of this loyalty and patriotic spirit.”

PRESENT OF 349 HORSES

His Highness also made a present of 349 (121 cavalry and 228 artillery) horses to Government, and in addition offered to maintain in the field, for as long as necessary, at least ten British officers. The Government, while gratefully appreciating the latter generous offer of the Darbar, expressed their inability to accept it, as such officers could not be sent from India to serve in Europe. The cost of the horses was Rs.1,62,400.

FIELD-SERVICE CLOTHING SUPPLIED BY DARBAR

According to a resolution of the Government of India, dated September 29, 1897, the first supply of the ordinary and field-service clothing to the Imperial Service Troops, while on active service, has to be made at the cost of the Darbar concerned. But the expenditure on renewals of field-service clothing has to be defrayed by the Imperial Government. Renewals of ordinary clothing have also to be made at the Government's expense. The Darbar, however, expressed their desire themselves to defray all the expenses on account of ordinary and field-service clothing and their renewals, so far as the present War was concerned, and the offer was gratefully accepted by the Government of India.

GIFTS, ETC., DIRECTLY RELATING TO WAR

No accurate figure of the expenditure which the State had to incur on the mobilisation of troops and the purchase of remounts can be given here, as final accounts will not be ready for some time. But the following details will not fail to interest :

Budgeted expenditure of the Gwalior Imperial Service Troops
prior to War Rs.11,57,852

Directly due to War :

Annual increment owing to increase in salaries of the non-commissioned officers and men due to War	Rs.1,61,797
Annual amount of War allowances paid to officers and men due to War	Rs.2,86,560
Annual expenditure for the maintenance of extra depots and Reserve Battalion maintained as constant reserve due to War	Rs.5,05,192
Annual expenditure on account of pay of the increased strength of the 3rd and 4th Imperial Service Infantry Regiments, including war allowances	Rs.1,00,124
Or a total annual extra expenditure due to War	Rs.10,53,673

Indirectly due to War :

Expenditure on the equipment of the Regiments and draft reinforcements for field service and garrison duty	Rs.2,45,785
Extra expenditure on account of the purchase of remounts and ponies and the manufacture of 100 transport carts	Rs.4,67,250
Rewards given to officers and men returning from active service	Rs.99,740
Joining allowances and bonuses given to recruits	Rs.1,45,600
Miscellaneous due to War	Rs.1,02,820
Or a total extra expenditure due to War	Rs.10,61,195

Rs.75,000

His Highness also spent a large amount in the organisation of prayers for the success of the British arms. The total comes to a figure of about Rs.75,000.

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

RS.10,000 AND £25

Among numerous sad events which occurred during a war so ravaging, nothing was sadder than the death of the august General who was a great personal friend of His Highness the Maharaja, namely, Field-Marshal Earl Kitchener of Khartoum. As a mark of respect to that great man, all the State offices and other institutions were closed for one day, and His Highness made a contribution of Rs.10,000 towards the Kitchener Memorial Fund which was started by His Highness the Maharaj-Rana of Dholpur to mark the personal affection of the Ruling Princes and Chiefs of India for the great soldier and their admiration for his intense devotion to his King and Country.

A small sum of £25 was also paid by His Highness as subscription to the memorial raised in England to the memory of Lord Kitchener's shadow—the late Colonel Oswald FitzGerald, C.M.G.

RS.4,500

To the two Committees organised for the reception and presentation of souvenirs to the Indian Delegates who had joined the two Imperial War Conferences held in London, His Highness made a contribution of Rs.4,500.

The other minor contributions or expenses falling under the heading of this chapter come to about Rs.10,000.

CHAPTER V

TREATS OF THE MAHARAJA'S WAR CHARITIES

No less a sum than Rs.78,83,200 was paid out of the State Treasury for various charities and forms of relief necessitated by the War.

The selection of charities would show the great wisdom manifested by the Maharaja in distributing his bounties.

(He organised a hospital ship ; started a convalescent home ; presented an ambulance fleet ; entertained the families of inspecting officers of the Imperial Service Troops and units of the Indian Army passing en route through Gwalior ; provided large quantities of comforts for the sick and wounded ; presented cigarettes and other smoking-requisites to the Indian soldiers ; sent one lac of tins of vaseline and several hundred dozens of bottles of soda-water for the troops in East Africa ; etc. etc.)

CHAPTER V

GIFTS, DONATIONS, ETC., TO THE VARIOUS CHARITABLE AND RELIEF FUNDS

THE mobilisation of the State's forces for active service, the affording of the few financial conveniences which were within the Darbar's power, the employment of the various Departments of the State in helping with war materials, and the offering of the different gifts, presents, and donations to Government for purposes directly concerned with the War—these are merely acts which, as one of the allied Sovereign Princes of India and working towards the stability of a Government which he regards as the "greatest and best Government in the world," His Highness was bound to perform. We now propose to deal with those acts of His Highness which reveal the man that he is—a generously humane, a wisely charitable, and a deeply sympathetic man.

The following is a narrative of His Highness's numerous munificences and charities in connection with the various institutions founded in and out of India for the benefit of those who have suffered from the effects of War, and of the different gifts and donations which he made from time to time for the relief and convenience not only of the Armies and Navy of the Empire, but of those of the Allies also.

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

Let us, therefore, begin with His Highness's first charity shown at home.

Rs.2,00,000

With the object of relieving distress among the families of the brave Indian soldiers who had gone to the Front and to afford assistance to the widows and orphans of those who had died in service, an appeal was issued by His Excellency the Viceroy to all the Ruling Princes, Chiefs, nobles, merchants, and peoples of India. This appeal was couched in the most earnest and touching terms.

The war activities of the Gwalior public will be recorded in their proper place, but what His Highness did in response to this appeal was immediately to remit to the Central Committee of the Fund a princely donation of Rs.1,00,000.

This munificent act was repeated again at the beginning of 1919, when, in response to a fresh appeal made by His Excellency the Viceroy, His Highness gave a further donation of Rs.1,00,000 towards the same fund.

£10,000

This was chronologically his second donation of the kind. The first one was the still more imposing amount of £10,000, which was given to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales's National Relief Fund.

Hospital; a further £200 to the Friends of Belgium Society; a present of 100,000 tins of vaseline for the use of soldiers at the Front; £100 to the Œuvres de Bienfaisance; £100 to Princess Mary's Fund,—all these were made in rapid succession as the sufferings of the people increased with the progress of the War.

It was only a just appreciation when His Excellency Lord Hardinge said, "One can hardly open the newspaper without reading of some fresh instance of His Highness's generosity."

£20,260 (COST OF THE CHRISTMAS PRESENT)

But Christmas was drawing nigh, and His Highness was anxious to make a Christmas present to the fighting forces of the Empire, and particularly to the sick and wounded. After much consideration, he decided to present a complete unit of motor ambulances (consisting of 41 vans with the accessory lorries, motor cycles, etc.), and accordingly the following cablegram was sent to the Private Secretary to His Majesty the King-Emperor:

"May I crave gracious acceptance by His Majesty as a present to the Army and the Navy of a complete unit of motor ambulances?"

In reply the following cable of November 3, 1914, was received by His Highness from His Most Gracious Majesty the King-Emperor:

"I am deeply grateful for your most noble offer, which I gladly accept in the name of my Army and Navy, both of which will greatly appreciate and value your sympathy and generous thought and gift."

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

As soon as the above message was received, His Highness issued instructions to his London agents, Messrs. Kerr, Stuart & Co., to purchase and fit out the ambulances. Arrangements were accordingly completed by Mr. Glass Hooper sufficiently in advance of the date on which the fleet was to be presented to His Majesty.

His Highness nominated Colonel Sir D. W. K. Barr, K.C.S.I., as his representative for the occasion, and on the morning of December 21 the fleet was taken to the grounds of Buckingham Palace. Their Majesties the King and Queen, Princess Mary, Prince Henry, Lord Stanmore (Lord-in-Waiting), Lord Stamfordham (Private Secretary), Vice-Admiral Sir Colin Keppel, and a number of other Household officials were present on the occasion. Sir David Barr read the following address :

“ MAY IT PLEASE YOUR MAJESTY,

“ SIR,

“ I have had the honour of being commissioned by His Highness the Maharaja Scindia of Gwalior to offer, on his behalf, to Your Majesty, as a Christmas present, a fleet of 41 ambulance cars, 4 officers' cars, 5 lorries, and 10 motor cycles for service with the Navy and Army.

“ His Highness hopes that this gift may be accepted as a mark of loyalty and devotion to Your Majesty, and of his earnest desire to provide aid to the sailors and soldiers who are wounded in action while fighting for the honour of England against Your Majesty's enemies.”

The fleet was organised by Mr. Glass Hooper, His Highness's agent in England.

Sir,
I have had the honour of being commissioned by His Highness the Maharaja Scindia of Gwalior to offer, on his behalf, to Your Majesty, as a Christmas present, a fleet of 41 ambulance cars, 4 officers' cars, 5 lorries, and 10 motor cycles, for service with the Army and Navy.

The Maharaja says that the gift may be accepted as a Christmas present to Your Majesty, and as a gift to the sailors and soldiers who are fighting for the King and Your Majesty's enemies."

Yours faithfully,
Mr. Glass Hooper, His Highness's Agent in London.

AN INDIAN RAJAH'S PRINCELY GIFT TO THE KING-EMPEROR.

This picture illustrates another instance of the ungrudging spirit in which the princes of India have rallied to the support of the King-Emperor. It shows a procession of motor ambulances presented by the Maharajah of Gwalior to the King for service at the front, leaving Buckingham Palace after they had been accepted by His Majesty. This handsome gift—by no means the first to come from the same source—comprises a complete ambulance unit of forty-one motor ambulances, four officers' cars, five motor lorries, and ten motor cycles.

MAHARAJA'S GIFT.

A FLEET OF 60 MOTOR CARS
FOR THE FORCES.

The King at Buckingham Palace yesterday morning accepted from the Maharaja Scindia of Gwalior a Christmas gift of a fleet of motor ambulances, auxiliary cars, and motor cycles—sixty all told. The gift was offered to His Majesty by Lieut.-Colonel Sir David Barr, who represented the Maharaja, and Mr. Hooper, his Highness's agent, was also present. The King was accompanied by the Queen, Princess Mary, and Prince Heary. Sir James Dunlop Smith, Political Aide-de-Camp to the Secretary for India, was among those in attendance. The fleet consists of:—

Forty-one ambulance cars.
Four officers' cars.
Five motor lorries.
Ten motor-cycles.

Each car has attached to it a brass plate bearing the name of the donor, "Scindia."

The cars entered the Palace grounds by the Grosvenor Gardens gate and filed past the King and Queen, who had taken up their stand near the King's door, afterwards leaving the grounds by the garden gate and passing to the Mall through the courtyard. The King accepted the gift and placed it at the disposal of the naval and military authorities, and His Majesty intimated his intention of telegraphing his thanks personally to the Maharaja.

The following cablegram was received by His Highness on the same date from His Majesty the King-Emperor :

“I have just inspected the fleet of ambulance cars which Sir David Barr has presented to me in your name. I gratefully accept, in the name of my Navy and Army, this munificent gift as a Christmas present from Your Highness. It is yet another proof of your unswerving loyalty to my Throne and Person and of your thoughtful interest in the welfare of the Empire.

“GEORGE R. I.”

The fleet was called the “Scindia Fleet,” and a brass plate bearing the name “Scindia” was attached to each car.

The total expenditure incurred in making this present amounted to £20,260, or about Rs.3,03,900 in Indian money.

Rs.2,34,758 (COST OF THE CONVALESCENT HOSPITAL)

Shortly after the outbreak of War His Highness intimated to the Commander-in-Chief in India his desire to donate a convalescent hospital to accommodate 6 British officers, 6 Indian officers, and 50 rank and file. His original intention was to send this hospital for the use of the Indian troops in France, but the Commander-in-Chief, while gratefully accepting the donation, pointed out how urgently such a hospital was needed for the troops operating in East Africa, and suggested that it might be sent there. His Highness immediately agreed to this suggestion, and gave orders to Major C. E. Southon, I.M.S. (whose services had been kindly lent by the Government of India), to put arrangements in train.

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

Mobilisation was started in November 1914, and all equipment—drugs, surgical equipment, furniture, etc., down to the smallest item—was obtained mainly from the resources of the State itself, the balance being supplemented by purchases in the open market in Bombay. A motor car was also provided by His Highness.

The following hospital staff were appointed :

Major C. E. Southon, I.M.S.	Officer-in-charge
Mrs. Southon	Matron
Sub-Assistant Surgeons	Three
Accountant	One
Compounders	Five
Ward orderlies	Eight
Rank and file	Fifteen
Tailors	Two
Blacksmith	One
Bhishtis	Three
Cooks	Seven
Carpenters	Two
Barbers	Three
Dhobis	Two
Sweepers.	Six

making a total of 60, all of whom were men from Gwalior.

The hospital sailed from Bombay on December 11, 1914, and arrived in British East Africa ten days later. The spot selected for the site of the hospital was Nairobi, an ideal place for the purpose for which it was selected—namely, to enable officers and men to convalesce from the fatigues, privations, and disease incident to the rigorous campaign which they were undergoing in the unhealthy, low-lying, and swampy country in British and German East Africa.

GIFTS, DONATIONS, ETC., TO VARIOUS FUNDS

For the British section of the hospital a range of buildings known as the Scott Sanatorium was rented; and, about a quarter of a mile distant, the convent school buildings were kindly made available for the Indian section.

On January 15, 1915, the necessary arrangements having been completed, the two sections were reported to be ready to receive patients. From that date onwards the hospital was full for the whole three years of its existence.

Two European nursing sisters and a masseuse were added to the staff of the British section.

In February 1916, at the urgent request of the medical authorities, 25 extra beds were added to the 50 in the Indian section.

The hospital was inspected by many distinguished visitors, among them being His Excellency Sir Henry Benfield, Governor of British East Africa; the Acting Governor; the Hon. Mr. C. C. Bowring; Generals Tighe, Smuts, Van Deventer, Scott, and Pike. They were unanimous in expressing themselves as well pleased with the way in which the hospital was being run, and General Smuts mentioned it in his dispatch of February 28, 1917, published in the London Gazette of April 18, 1917. He said :

“ His Highness the Maharaja Scindia came forward in a most patriotic manner at the commencement of the campaign and equipped, with a complete medical staff and every comfort, a convalescent home of 58 beds for Indian officers and men, which has been constantly in use and of the greatest benefit. The 'Scott Sanatorium' was also taken over by him for the use of convalescent British officers, and has proved of great value."

The hospital was running from January 1915 to February 1918—a period of just over three years. During that time in the British section 304 officers were brought back to health. Of these 103 belonged to the Indian Expeditionary Forces; 92 to the East African Forces; 54 to the Imperial Army; 36 to the South African, 17 to the West African, and 2 to the Belgian Forces. Of these, 229 were returned to duty; 54 were invalided, and the remainder transferred to other hospitals. The daily average of the sick practically equalled the capacity of the hospital, and the average stay for each patient was 17 days.

In the Indian section 3,812 cases were admitted; 121 of these were Indian officers and 3,691 Indian rank and file. Of the total admissions, 1,376 were Hindus, 2,100 Mohammadans, 303 Sikhs, and 33 of other religions. There were in all 6 deaths; 349 were invalided; and 3,467 were returned to duty after an average stay in hospital of three weeks. The daily average of the sick in hospital during the whole three years was 46.

The work of the hospital staff was excellent. The Indian troops having been recalled, the services of the hospital were no longer required. It was accordingly closed down in February 1918, returning to Gwalior on March 11, 1918.

different regiments, quartered in all parts of the Indian Empire; while those admitted to the British section came from all parts of the world—from Canada on the one hand to Australia on the other. Major Southon, in his report, says :

“ All these men, from the lowest to the highest ranks, expressed their hearty appreciation of the hospitality they had received from His Highness, and to one and all in future the name Scindia will recall happy times spent in his hospital, while they were convalescing from the rigours of a most strenuous campaign.”

The initial cost of equipping the convalescent home and the recurring expenses thereon stand at Rs.2,34,758.

The following letter of appreciation was received from His Excellency the Acting Governor-General and Commander-in-Chief, British East Africa :

not only upon the gallant Indian troops, but also upon officers of the different Imperial and Colonial units, including many of our local forces serving in the campaign against German East Africa. It has afforded them an opportunity of recuperating in congenial surroundings from the diseases and hardships to which they have inevitably been subjected, and I feel confident that Your Highness will feel amply repaid by the knowledge that the establishment and maintenance of the establishment during the past three and a half years has contributed so greatly to their comfort and happiness.

“3. It affords me the greatest pleasure to be able to inform Your Highness that the manner in which the convalescent hospital has been conducted throughout by Major Southon, the Resident Medical Officer-in-charge, and Mrs. Southon, the Matron, has earned the admiration and respect of all who have come into contact with it, and I am fully convinced that Your Highness could not have placed the management in more capable hands.”

We also quote here the concluding paragraph of a letter which was received by His Highness from Surgeon-General G. Douglas Hunter, Director of Medical Services, East African Force:

“I would again thank Your Highness for your great generosity in presenting and maintaining these hospitals for the past three years in British East Africa. They have been of the greatest help to the Medical Services, and all the members of this force are most grateful for Your Highness's kind thought and action.”

The following telegram, dated December 17, 1918, from General Van Deventer, General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, East African Expeditionary Forces, refers particularly to the great need supplied by His Highness the Maharaja's convalescent home in East Africa, and as such is reproduced below:

“ In continuation of my G.823 of yesterday, I beg that you will convey my warmest gratitude to those who by their generous gifts have alleviated the sufferings of the sick and wounded and contributed to the comfort of those in the field, chief among whom are His Highness the Maharaja of Gwalior. . . .”

£1,000

His Highness had already made in 1914 and 1915 substantial donations towards the Belgian Relief and other Funds; but in his sympathy with the destitute children of that unhappy people, His Highness made a further donation of £1,000. The donation was acknowledged by Her Majesty the Queen of the Belgians in the following touching terms :

“FLANDERS,
“January 20, 1918.

“MY HONOURED AND VALUED FRIEND,

“I have just received intimation of the splendid gift of 29,250 francs which you have so kindly sent to me for the relief of Belgian children whose fathers have given their lives in the cause of justice and right during the present War. I thank you with all my heart, for the object is one which touches me very deeply.

public, and as we are enumerating here only the donations given by His Highness to the charitable organisations, it will be sufficient to state that His Highness's donation to this Fund was Rs.27,500.

Other minor subscriptions and donations which His Highness gave to the same fund elsewhere are :

The " Our Day " Fête and Bazar at Mhow	Rs.500
The " Our Day " Calendar Committee, Allahabad	Rs.100

Rs.5,000

In order to enable the disabled soldiers and followers of the Indian Army of all ranks and classes to supplement their pensions by earning a little in spite of their disability, it was decided to start institutions for training them in various trades and handicrafts, which could be practised in spite of their unfitness for further military service. Such an institution was started for the Bombay Presidency by Her Excellency Lady Willingdon, and called " Queen Mary's Technical School."

It was visited by His Highness, who gave Rs.5,000 towards its funds.

Rs.1,35,248

Another important item of His Highness's charity was the presentation to the Indian Branch of the St. John Ambulance Association of 500 original ten-bed units, which contained complete comforts for 5,000 Indian wounded, and a similar consignment of 500 boxes containing comforts for 5,000 British troops.

The total cost of these units was Rs.1,35,248.

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

£1,500

His Highness came across an article in a newspaper on the "Tray Waggon Tables," which by their handiness and portability were expected to prove of great use in field and base hospitals, and he at once decided to make a present of a number of them for use in hospitals at the Western Front.

Five hundred of these tables were accordingly presented to His Majesty for distribution among the various hospitals. A number of them were also presented to Her Excellency Lady Willingdon for distribution in the several hospitals in Bombay. The total cost of these tables came to about £1,500.

£6,000

As a Christmas present in 1917, His Highness presented a sum of £6,000 to Their Majesties for the benefit of naval officers and men who had become disabled or whose families required help. The amount was utilised, by His Majesty's command, for the purpose for which it was presented.

£1,000

Another donation of £1,000 was paid by His Highness through Mrs. Lloyd George towards the British and Foreign Sailors' Society.

£1,000

Yet another donation of an equal amount (£1,000) was given to the Young Men's Christian Association at Amara, founded for providing comforts for the sick and wounded in Mesopotamia.

FIFTY TENTS

The Government of India were in need of a number of tents for hospital use with the Expeditionary Force in France. His Highness accordingly offered to present 50 tents; but the required number having already been made up, the tents were not actually sent.

CIGARETTES, 2,846,000 ; TOBACCO, 20,000 lb. ; CHILLUMS, 9,000

In the words of General Maxwell, Commander-in-Chief of the Forces in Egypt, His Highness "very kindly and thoughtfully" ordered a large quantity of cigarettes and chillums and tobacco for the Indian Expeditionary Forces serving at the various theatres of war. The following details may be of interest :

2,046,000 Scissors cigarettes sent as a gift to the troops in France.

800,000 Scissors cigarettes sent as a gift to the troops in Egypt.

5,000 chillums, and

10,000 pounds of tobacco for the troops in France.

4,000 chillums, and

10,000 pounds of tobacco for the troops in Egypt.

The following message was received by His Highness from the Secretary of State for India, through the Resident at Gwalior :

"It is reported by Sir James Willcocks that during April, 7 cases of chillums and 20 of tobacco were received as gifts to troops from Maharaja Scindia, and that these were greatly appreciated by all ranks. Sir James asks that his thanks in the name of the troops under his command be conveyed to the Maharaja for the generous gift."

Another letter of appreciative thanks was received from General Maxwell.

The total cost of these articles was about Rs.15,000.

Rs.14,253

With the object of providing funds for various charities and relief institutions opened in Simla and Bombay, a number of articles presented for the benefit of those funds were put to auction by the authorities concerned. His Highness gave a cash donation of Rs.3,000, and also purchased a number of articles, the total value of which was Rs.14,253.

INVITING THE FAMILIES OF IMPERIAL SERVICE OFFICERS AS GUESTS

On the outbreak of war, when India was called upon to do her duty by the Empire, the British officers attached to the Imperial Service Troops were also ordered on active service. This meant a great deal of inconvenience for the families of the officers. His Highness, ever mindful of the interests of fighting men, readily came forward with the offer to put up, as his guests, at Gwalior the families of these officers. Some of these were officers with whom His Highness was not personally acquainted, but they were all equally welcome.

Here again we have an interesting example of the unique kindness of His Highness's heart. The stay of quite a large number of European ladies at Gwalior necessitated the presence of a medical adviser. Not that the State Medical Department could not supply any relief required, but for reasons of sentiment it was thought that a European I.M.S. officer had better be in attendance. His Highness, accordingly, arranged with the Government that Major Fayrer, the Residency surgeon, who, in the general mobilisation of the Army, was ordered to go to Alexandria, should be allowed to remain in Gwalior for such time as the lady guests were there.

His Highness's offer was to put up and entertain the families of all the inspecting officers of Imperial Service Troops who were going on active service, while these officers were away. But as arrangements were made by the Government for sending them off to England, the guests departed after a comparatively short stay.

THE HOSPITAL SHIP "LOYALTY"

Rs.60,00,000 (£400,000)

On the outbreak of a great war, the ordinary citizen usually manifests his keenness to help the country by offering to fight or sometimes by contributing to organisations for the relief of sufferers. Amongst the latter class of people there are many who give handsomely to the charitable institutions created, but it occurs to very few of those who are able to divert the stream of their overflowing resources into channels of beneficence themselves to organise anything, at any rate in the earlier stages of a war, that would tend to the relief of the wounded.

We recall here with some amazement, and, as events have proved, with no little satisfaction, the contrast that was instituted between active and non-active support (rather a misnomer) rendered to the War when His Highness the Maharaja, within a week of the outbreak of hostilities in 1914, mooted the idea of presenting the Government with a hospital ship. However, having realised the great value of such an organisation from his experience of the China War in 1899-1900, His Highness was determined to carry out his idea of providing such a ship, if need be, for the duration of the War.

It is only right to say that in the meanwhile His Highness consulted Her Highness the Begum of Bhopal, who saw eye to eye with him in regard to this matter. Her Highness's agreement secured, His Highness invited other Ruling Princes to join in the movement, and dispatched the following telegram to His Excellency the Viceroy on August 12, 1914:

"I myself and several other Ruling Chiefs, including the Nizam of Hyderabad, the Begum of Bhopal, the Maharajas of Jodhpur, Rewah, and Datia, the Rajas of Dhar, Sitamau, Jhabua, and Sailana, have very generously offered for the use of the Imperial Government whenever required a hospital ship of three hundred beds to be named Loyalty."

The reply received was in these terms:

"I have received your Highness's telegram of yesterday, informing me that Your Highness and several other Ruling Chiefs, including the Nizam of Hyderabad, the Begum of Bhopal, the Maharajas of Jodhpur, Rewah, and Datia, the Rajas of Dhar, Sitamau, Jhabua, and Sailana, have very generously offered for the use of the Imperial Government whenever required a hospital ship of three hundred

I will inform you later of arrangement proposed for hiring and fitting of ship and engagement of Surgeon-General Crofts, if available, with suitable staff."

Being convinced that the provision of such an adjunct of war was not only an act of mercy but also one worthy of the best traditions and particularly of the munificence of the Indian Princes, His Highness was determined that as many of his brother-Princes as cared to come into the scheme should be associated with him in its execution. To that end he had telegraphed his proposition to all of his personal friends amongst the Princes and Chiefs, and finally the following came in as contributors :

Before we go any further it might be interesting to give a few particulars about the good ship that eventually came to be styled the Loyalty, a name under which, let us hope, she will sail as long as she is afloat, and therefore a name by which, we trust, she will go down to history.

The Loyalty was originally the Empress of India, built by the Naval Construction and Armaments Company of Barrow-in-Furness in 1891 for the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's North Atlantic and North Pacific Ocean trades. Together with her sister-ships Empress of China and Empress of Japan, she was specially designed, built on very handsome lines, and fitted most luxuriously with everything considered necessary for the comfort of passengers of all classes. The matter of engine-power and speed was kept specially in view, so that these ships in their time were the fastest in the Pacific trade, and earned a great name for the quick transmission of passengers, mails, and fine goods, such as silk and tea, between Hong-Kong, Japan, and Vancouver, and thence to various points by the Canadian Pacific Railway across the North American Continent. It will thus be seen that the Loyalty, prior to becoming a hospital ship, took a great part as Empress of India in the opening up and developing of commerce in one of the outlying parts of the Empire. Incidentally, she had the honour of carrying our present King as a passenger when he was Prince of Wales.

It would almost seem to be in the natural order of events that the good ship Empress of India, after carrying on such useful commercial work for twenty-three years, and being relieved on the Pacific station by a larger and more modern style of ship (the new Empress of Asia), should come on the scene at the outbreak of the Great War, just when His Highness the Maharaja had decided to present a hospital ship of 300 beds capacity for use during the War. Most appropriately, the ship was acquired from the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. The Director of the Royal Indian Marine and his officers acted for His Highness in the matter of buying, altering, and refitting the Empress of India of London, and changing her to the Loyalty of Bombay. This was done in October 1914, and within four months from the time war was declared the hospital ship Loyalty was ready to begin her good work and assist in the relief of suffering humanity. The hospital was staffed with 4 medical officers, 1 assistant surgeon, 1 S.T. sub-conductor, 1 matron and 6 nursing sisters, 10 sub-assistant surgeons, 10 compounders, 10 Government ward orderlies, an escort of 1 Indian officer and 12 men, 5 pack-store orderlies, 2 hospital store-keepers, 2 assistant store-keepers, 7 dhobis, 2 barbers, 2 darziz, 4 Hindu and 4 Mohammadan cooks, and 8 sweepers; also an office establishment of 2 clerks. A few of these were lent by the Government of India, the rest being recruited from

Gwalior, Indore, Dhar, and Bharatpur States, and locally in Bombay.

The cost of buying and fitting out the ship was approximately £120,000, and the expense of her up-keep for four years was £360,000, the total being nearly half a million sterling.

The Loyalty, having been renamed by Lady Willingdon on November 28, 1914, sailed for the Persian Gulf the next day, but was recalled to Karachi and eventually left for England on December 24. The ship, after going home, returned to India full of patients, and from that time took up her place as one of the Indian hospital ships based on Bombay, except for three months in 1915, when she was attached to the Mediterranean Field Force and was based on Southampton. She then returned definitely to Eastern waters, which she did not leave, and after having completed exactly four years' active service, was finally dismantled in November 1918. In all she did 40 voyages, 3 of which were to England, 16 to Suez, 18 to the Persian Gulf, and 3 to British East Africa. During these voyages she carried 15,510 patients—British, Australians, Indians, West Indians, East and West Africans, and Chinese; and German, Turkish, and Arab prisoners of war.

As a tribute to the work of the hospital staff we reproduce here an extract from an article in the Times of India, 1918, and a copy of a letter which Field-Marshal Lord Methuen, Governor of Malta, wrote to His Highness the Maharaja in 1915.

From the "Times of India"

"The writer of this article can speak from experience—a voyage of twenty days on the Loyalty—of the great comfort of the ship and of the kindness and hospitality he received at the hands of the Staff, particularly from Lieutenant-Colonel J. W. Watson, I.M.S., the officer-in-charge, and Captain J. K. Wilson. It was a delightful and memorable experience, and it may confidently be asserted that the many thousands of the sick and wounded who travelled on the Loyalty will always look back with gratitude to the days they spent on her, and will retain the kindest memories of the skilled treatment they received at the hands of Colonel Watson and his subordinates and of the many good friends they made among the staff on board."

"Field-Marshal Lord Methuen, Governor of Malta, presents his compliments to the Maharaja of Gwalior, and begs to express to him the extreme pleasure that it gave him to go over his beautiful hospital ship the Loyalty, and see the arrangements that have been made for the wounded on board of her. Lord Methuen has now seen a good number of hospital ships, but in no one of them has he seen any operating-theatre that can be compared with that on board the Loyalty. It would not be possible, so far as his experience teaches him, to find any ship better provided in every way than the Loyalty, and he must at the same time add that he has not yet met with any more charming and courteous officers than those who were on board the ship of the Maharaja."

the Canadian Pacific Railway Company: Captain H. A. Hailey, R.N.R., and officers, Chief Engineer J. J. Mark, with a Chinese crew. These officers were, however, called up for war and transport service of an active nature. The ship was then handed over to Captain James Wilson, R.N.R., formerly of the British India Company's service, with Mr. Colin W. Bain as Chief Engineer. A crew of Bombay Lascars, Punjabi firemen, and Goanese saloon boys was substituted for the Chinese. Captain Wilson had formerly commanded the hospital ship Gwalior in 1900, and, although retired from the British India Company's service, he at once volunteered to take the Loyalty over from Captain Hailey. Unfortunately Captain Wilson's health failed after a short period, and he again had to retire. The ship was then taken over by Captain J. K. Wilson, who joined the Loyalty under Admiralty orders at Southampton on July 3, 1915, and has since navigated her, ably assisted by British Mercantile Marine officers in the deck and engine departments, and most appropriately a full Indian crew, most of whom stuck to the ship for three years and served well.

INCIDENTS AT SEA

Unique as a part of the ship's life-saving work was the rescue of the crew of the s.s. Ben Vorlich, after that ship had been shelled and torpedoed by a German submarine near Ushant, on August 1, 1915. This incident and the sinking of the s.s. Clintonia were witnessed by the Loyalty from a distance of about $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles when she was full of badly wounded men (British cases from the Dardanelles) on her way from Alexandria and Malta to Southampton.

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

When plying in Indian waters the Loyalty had the good fortune to render assistance to a transport, the Edavana, which took fire and was abandoned at sea. Hearing the distressed vessel's messages on the wireless, the Loyalty proceeded with all speed to the place indicated and picked up seventy of the burning ship's people in three boats during the night, afterwards transferring them to the s.s. Madras, which was bound for Bombay. Had the Loyalty not been a hospital ship she would have towed the Edavana into Bombay, but of course she could not do this without infringing the Geneva Red Cross Convention.

She also rendered assistance to several Indian and native craft (met at sea during her voyages) short of water and provisions, and to a lighthouse crew in the Red Sea.

Thus ended this magnificent organisation after a career of great benefactions.

On the dismantling of the Loyalty, the strength of the medical staff, excluding the menial establishment, was 55, and just above two-thirds of them were men from Gwalior. His Highness the Maharaja, as a mark of his appreciation of their services, rewarded them by the grant of Gwalior medals and purses. The name of Captain Vinayak Mahadeo Phatak, I.M.S. (temporary), must be mentioned in particular, both as having served on the Loyalty since October 8, 1914, and as being the recipient of the Gwalior Gold Medal.

of food should be made by the Darbar on payment. Of course, nothing could be more distasteful to His Highness than to permit payment being accepted for the articles of food supplied to the gallant soldiers who were going to risk their lives in the cause of the Empire.

It was accordingly arranged with the Army Headquarters in India that a timely notice about the movement of troops through Gwalior should be given to the Darbar, and the Darbar would look to their being suitably fed.

The following troops who passed en route through Gwalior were fed at State expense :

The 2nd, 3rd, and 13th Kashmir Infantry Regiments.

The 30th Garhwalis.

The 1/6th Hampshire Regiment.

The number of men thus fed was 224 officers and 14,420 rank and file, or a total of 14,644.

The pleasant duty of feeding the troops was performed by Messrs. H. M. Bull and G. J. M. Hamilton, who were specially detailed by His Highness for the purpose.

The expenses incurred came to about Rs.20,000.

PROTECTION OF THE INTERESTS OF SEPOYS ON ACTIVE SERVICE.

The Maharaja's solicitude for the interests of his subjects is simply admirable. In the year 1914 he ordered a Notification to be promulgated, which laid down that such of the officers and men of the Gwalior Imperial Service Troops on active service as had claims filed by or against them in any of the Civil and Revenue Courts, or against whom claims might thereafter be filed during their absence on war, should be protected by the abatement of their suits. And in order that such of them as had their homes in British India should equally be benefited in this manner, he invited the help of the Government of India. The Government also had analogous legislation under consideration, and a few months later, about the middle of 1915, they issued an Ordinance to provide for the special protection in respect of Civil and Revenue litigation of Indian soldiers serving under war conditions. This Ordinance was made applicable to the men of the Gwalior Imperial Service Troops residing in British India, and by a reciprocal arrangement the legislation which protects the officers and men of the State Imperial Service Troops is now applicable to men of the Indian Army residing in the Darbar territory.

GIFTS, DONATIONS, ETC., TO VARIOUS FUNDS

This arrangement has proved most beneficial to the latter. For they applied for the redress of their grievances, whether fancied or real, and there was no application which was shelved without a thorough inquiry on the spot. Often a person, thousands of miles away from his home, has had restored to him the possession of a tree standing near his home, or a few feet of land belonging to his ancestral field which had been usurped by a malicious neighbour or even a thoughtless relative. This is here mentioned to illustrate the keen interest of the Administration in safeguarding the interests of the Sepoys at the Front.

CIVIL EMPLOYMENT OF WOUNDED SOLDIERS

It was brought to His Highness's notice that the Government of India were considering the question of the special measures that should be taken to provide civil employment for the large numbers of wounded and invalided Indian soldiers returning to India from the Overseas Expeditionary Forces. His Highness at once ordered the issue of a circular order to all the heads of the various departments, enjoining that, whenever any suitable vacancies occur under them, preference should be given to the ex-soldiers of the Imperial Service Troops of the State who have been invalided from the Army on account of wounds and injuries sustained on active service.

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

The following donations from Her Highness the Dowager Maharani and the Maharanis Scindia must also find a place in this record :

£2,000

In 1914 Their Highnesses gave a donation of £1,000 to Queen Mary's Needlework Guild, and a further donation of £1,000 in 1915. These were graciously acknowledged by Her Majesty the Queen-Empress, in an autograph letter, in the following terms :

“BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

“MY DEAR MAHARANI,

“Pray accept my warmest thanks for the generous donation which you have so kindly made towards my Needlework Guild.

“Let me assure you how very much touched I feel at your generosity, and I thank you from my heart. Believe me with so many kind messages,

“Your sincere Friend,

“MARY R.I.”

Their Highnesses the Maharanis also subscribed Rs.50,000 towards the Gwalior Ladies' War Fund, for the provision of comforts for soldiers at the Front; but this Fund, by arrangement subsequently made, was amalgamated with the Gwalior Imperial Indian Relief Fund.

A SHORT ACCOUNT OF THE PART PLAYED BY THE STATE SUBJECTS

THE activities of the Gwalior public in connection with the War date from September 10, 1914, when a general meeting was convened in the Town Hall, with the object of collecting funds for the Gwalior Imperial Indian Relief Fund. Lieutenant-Colonel Amir-ul-Umara, Sardar Sir Apaji Rao Sahib Sitole, K.B.E., C.I.E., was in the chair.

COLLECTIONS FOR THE IMPERIAL INDIAN RELIEF FUND

The meeting was largely attended by the nobility, gentry, and general public of the towns of Lashkar, Gwalior, and Morar. After several patriotic and stirring speeches, the subscription list was opened and the audience subscribed liberally.

A Committee to organise the work of collection of funds throughout the State was also formed, and meetings were held at the headquarters of each of the eleven districts of the State.

Another meeting of ladies, with the same object, was also held under the presidency of Her Highness the Dowager Maharani Sakhya Raja Sahiba Scindia, C.I., and subscriptions to the extent of Rs.63,794 were promised on the spot.

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

A list of subscriptions of sums up to and above Rs.50 is appended at the end of this book as List No. I. The total amount collected was Rs.3,34,332.7.7.

THE "OUR DAY" ORGANISATION IN GWALIOR

Rs.1,02,500

In the month of August 1917 a public appeal was issued by His Excellency the Viceroy, and a week later another touching appeal by Her Excellency Lady Chelmsford. The object of these two appeals was to provide funds for the Red Cross and St. John Ambulance Associations, either by making donations and contributions directly or by organising and participating in such celebrations and entertainments as would tend to secure substantial sums for these charitable institutions. Although His Highness had already set aside Rs.75,000 from the collections made for the Gwalior Imperial Indian Relief Fund for this magnificent fund, yet the object of these two appeals was so noble that the Maharaja at once decided to respond to the call.

The 12th of December was, accordingly, with the rest of India, observed as a public holiday in Gwalior. Meetings were held at Lashkar, Ujjain, and other headquarters of every zilla and pergana. In addition to these, under the Presidency of Muntazim-ud-Daula, Sardar Sahibzada Sultan Ahmad Khan Sahib, M.A., LL.M. (Cantab.), Barrister-at-Law, a long programme of entertainments was drawn up for celebrating the day, which was called "Our Day" in Lashkar.

The spacious grounds in front of the Victoria College were soon converted into a city of tents, and the place

The object of these two appeals was to provide funds for the Red Cross and St. John Ambulance Associations, either by making donations and contributions directly or by organising and participating in such celebrations and entertainments as would tend to secure substantial sums for these charitable institutions. Although His Highness had already set aside Rs.75,000 from the collections made for the Gwalior Imperial Indian Relief Fund for this magnificent fund, yet the object of these two appeals was so noble that the Maharaja at once decided to respond to the call.

The 12th of December was, accordingly, with the rest of India, observed as a public holiday in Gwalior. Meetings were held at Lashkar, Ujjain, and other headquarters of every zilla and pergana. In addition to these, under the Presidency of Muntazim-ud-Daula, Sardar Sahibzada LIEUTENANT-COLONEL J. W. WATSON, I.M.S., AND OTHER OFFICERS ON BOARD THE "LOYALTY" was drawn up for celebrating the day, which was called Facing page 106 in Lashkar.

The spacious grounds in front of the Victoria College were soon converted into a city of tents, and the place was thronged with the populace in great numbers. His Highness the Maharaja and all the gentry and high officials of the State were present, thus contributing to the success of the scene.

As was to be expected, the appeal was received most enthusiastically by people of all classes and all grades of life. Even the poorest of the poor contributed his few pies to the fund, which reached the respectable figure of Rs.1,02,500 for the whole of the State, excluding Rs.27,500 from His Highness the Maharaja.

A list of subscriptions up to and above Rs.25 appears as List No. II at the end of this book.

One of the most interesting items among the collections was a sum of Rs.500 obtained by the auction of a one-rupee currency note, then recently introduced by the Government of India, and the first one brought to Gwalior. It was purchased in the name of the Yuvraj Maharaj (Prince George Jivaji Rao Scindia).

We give below an extract from a letter from Mr. E. J. Buck, Honorary Secretary, "Our Day" Committee, Delhi, addressed to Sardar Sultan Ahmad Khan Sahib. He says :

"I am now desired to offer Her Excellency Lady Chelmsford's and Executive Committee's best congratulations to His Highness the Maharaja and all concerned on the splendid results obtained in Gwalior."

PEOPLE'S LOYALTY

Mass meetings were convened throughout the Darbar territory, and the resolutions passed by those assemblies were to the effect that the people will remain firmly loyal both to the Government of His Highness the Maharaja and to the cause of the British Government, and will not allow any feelings of disloyalty towards the latter Government to arise amongst them.

The marked feature of the resolutions passed by the various meetings attended purely by the Muslim subjects of His Highness was their disapprobation of the attitude of the Turkish Government in the War, and their significant assurances of loyalty to both the Governments.

As a mark of the Darbar's appreciation of these proceedings, the Political Member of the Government, for reasons of his holding general charge of all war work, was directed by the Darbar to convey their hearty thanks for this wise and loyal action of their subjects of all classes and creeds, especially of their Muslim subjects. And it seems only appropriate that a list of these Associations should find a place in this record. It is accordingly appended as List No. III.

It will be remembered that His Highness the Maharaja spent no less than Rs.75,000 in the organisation of prayers for the success of British arms. Where the Maharaja did so much, the poorer classes were not behindhand in showing, in their own humble way, their solicitude for the one object in view. Pandit Rup Kishore, an astrologer of note, prepared 2,000 janeoes (the sacred thread worn by the Hindus) and sanctified them according to the Vedic rites, which, as believed by the Hindus, render the courage and valour of the persons wearing them unconquerable. These janeoes were presented to the Hindu soldiers entitled to wear them, at the front.

THE PART PLAYED BY STATE SUBJECTS

The members of the Women's Mutual Improvement Society presented two large cases of comforts and hospital requisites to the St. John Ambulance Association.

We also give below verbatim copies of the two Notifications published by the Political Department of the Government of His Highness the Maharaja in the months of November 1914 and March 1915, as they reflect the loyalty of the people of Gwalior towards their beloved Ruler and the Supreme Government :

It was thus that the loyal people did their duty. The only palpable deficiency in this meritorious record seems to be the absence, from an otherwise ample list, of a class of the Darbar's subjects and State's dignitaries whom a policy of isolation has dissociated from their Suzerain and the parent State, i.e. the Guaranteed Thakur Sahiban.

The Ruler's duty was still more nobly done when His Highness refused to impose a drain on the people's resources so long as the coffers of the State were in a position to cope with the situation. His Highness, with characteristic appreciation of the fundamental tie between the Ruler and the ruled, delivered himself more than once in public of the sentiment that the money he gave to the War was his people's money.

CHAPTER VII

CONTAINS, PRINCIPALLY, APPRECIATIONS OF HIS HIGHNESS THE MAHARAJA'S ACTIONS

CHAPTER VII

THE ARMISTICE CELEBRATIONS AND THE RENEWAL OF HIS HIGHNESS'S ASSURANCES TO THE KING-EMPEROR

MONDAY, October 7, 1918 (the day on which Bulgaria signed the Armistice), was observed as a public holiday throughout the State, and sweets were distributed to all the school children, and to the inmates of institutions like the Orphanage, the Blind Asylum, and the hospitals at the Headquarters and at some of the more important places in the State. But this was only a foretaste of the rejoicings yet to come.

On the signing of the Armistice by Germany and the practical termination of the War, the 27th of November, 1918, was again a public holiday throughout the State, and it found Gwalior en fête and participating in the Victory rejoicings.

His Highness the Maharaja came down from Shivpuri by a special train with his entire suite, including all the Members of his Government. The Resident at Gwalior also took part in the public functions.

His Highness first motored to the Jayaji Chauk, the great square of the city, to preside over the mass meeting of Sardars, officers, citizens, and the country folk there assembled in their thousands to hear the news.

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

The proceedings were opened by Mr. H. M. Bull, as head of the Gwalior Municipal Board, who, on behalf of the citizens of Lashkar, Gwalior, and Morar, thanked the Maharaja and the Resident for their presence on this historic occasion.

Mr. W. E. Jardine, C.I.E., the Resident, then addressed the assembly in an apt and telling speech. He said :

“ I cannot omit on such a day to mention the services of the 3rd Gwalior Infantry in East Africa, of the 4th Infantry in Egypt and Palestine, and of the Gwalior Transport in France and Mesopotamia. And there is another little thing that I must mention which is better known, it seems, in England than it is even in Gwalior, and that is the fund placed by His Highness's munificence at the disposal of the Ministry of Munitions of War in England. ‘ His gift ’—I quote the eloquent words of His Majesty's Secretary of State for Munitions, the Right Honourable Winston Churchill—‘ has been of inestimable value in ameliorating the hardships inseparable from the sudden establishment of vast munition works and the consequent crowding together of thousands of workers, for whose health and happiness, without His Highness's generous forethought, it would have been impossible to make speedy and adequate provision. His Highness's gift helped to allay industrial unrest, to foster a cheerful and willing spirit which sped the great work of providing munitions of war for our armies in the field.’ It is with such words as these that the Right Honourable Winston Churchill begs His Highness's acceptance of this little ‘ Book of Thanks.’ ”

THE ARMISTICE CELEBRATIONS

And Mr. Jardine presented, amid prolonged cheers, the beautiful "Book of Thanks."

His Highness then rose to reply, and, in the course of his reply, he said :

"The duty of every ruler is to clasp his subjects to his bosom, to share their joys and their sorrows, and to apply himself sedulously and incessantly to the betterment of their lot. . . . In this gigantic War it was my constant endeavour to help our King-Emperor and his Government to the utmost of our capacity by giving subscriptions and in all other possible ways. I must here say that I never forgot that the money which I freely gave belonged to my subjects. For its disposal I was their appointed trustee and custodian. My constant aim, therefore, in whatever I did for the War, was to vindicate the people of the State, the officers of the State, and my Counsellors. I can honestly say that I put all personal considerations of renown and aggrandisement last. Let us hope that our earnest prayers will hasten the settlement and ratification of peace terms. When that day arrives, I hope to make my sense of gratitude known to all those of my people who have actively helped in this War by recruitment and in other ways, not only by publicly thanking them, but also by suitably rewarding them for their services."

Turning to Mr. Jardine, His Highness said :

"Resident Sahib, I request you to convey to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for Munitions and to the munition workers of England my heartfelt thanks for this most welcome gift, this splendid 'Book of Thanks,' which with its illuminated address and illustrations I shall always cherish as a memento of the former's generous appreciation and the latter's touching affection.

"Further, I would request you to convey to His Majesty the King-Emperor the message that, as ever before, we are at all times ready to serve him with all our hearts and all our resources, and that we are resolved for ever to stand by the words which were publicly uttered by me in his august presence thirteen years ago and have been reiterated all along."

His Highness concluded by announcing that he had decided, with common consent, to send to His Majesty on behalf of himself and the State a sum of £7,000 for the relief of British and Indian prisoners recently released by Germany, and he trusted that the public generally would associate themselves with this contribution.

The next day His Highness sent the following cable to Sir James Dunlop-Smith, India Office, London :

"Yesterday at celebrations consequent upon Armistice, my subjects, family, and I resolved to present His Majesty seven thousand pounds for relief of British and Indian prisoners just released from Germany. Am arranging remittance. On receipt of this sum would you kindly lay it before our gracious Sovereign with our humble duties for distribution as he may direct ?

"SCINDIA."

THE ARMISTICE CELEBRATIONS

One of the interesting and at the same time important details of the proceedings in connection with the Armistice was the conveying of His Highness's felicitations and congratulations to His Majesty the King-Emperor and Their Excellencies the Viceroy and the Commander-in-Chief in India, and the receipt of their appreciative acknowledgments. We are accordingly reproducing here the three messages from His Highness and the replies :

“November 16, 1918.

“To the King's Most Gracious Majesty, London.

“Terms of the Armistice have just reached here. I hasten to convey to Your Majesty, our august Emperor and our beloved Sovereign, the cordial felicitations of myself and my people on the final triumph of reverence for Right. This without doubt has come mainly through the strong arm of Britain nobly persevering in the fight for Justice. In this supreme hour our hearts must turn to the Author of our Being. Of Him we pray that our glorious Empire may abide for ever, enduring as an emblem of Humanity and Rectitude. May it be given to Your Majesty further to signalise your resplendent reign by thoroughly vindicating the cause of Righteousness, awarding to all their just dues, from which will spring Happiness and Contentment—the sunshine ordained by Providence to follow upon the dark shadows now mercifully withdrawn.

“SCINDIA.”

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

“To His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, Chief's Camp, Simla.

“Just seen the Armistice terms. Hearty congratulations to Your Excellency on the consummation of our troops' efforts. Your Excellency may take just pride in the fact that the blow in Palestine which precipitated the German debacle was principally struck by the Army over which Your Excellency presides with such superb skill and fostering care.

“To His Excellency the Viceroy, Viceroy's Camp.

“I have just read terms of Armistice in Pioneer. In the joy that fills our hearts let us first discharge the sacred duty of thanking the King of Kings for His mercy. Next I would convey to Your Excellency our united hearty congratulations on the triumph of our cause, which was and must remain the cause of Justice, Humanity, and Right, and has been stamped as such by approving Providence. To Your Excellency India joyfully owns the debt of a deep gratitude for many acts of liberal and far-sighted statesmanship, and for none more than for continuing to her the opportunities of vindicating herself on the battlefields of East Africa, Mesopotamia, and Palestine, where States and British India fought side by side with their British comrades-in-arms with such success. We must feel proud of our troops, by whose efforts, directed by a wise policy, all danger to India has been averted. All parts of India must now look to Your Excellency for achieving the triumphs of peace, which are greater than the triumphs of war, of which an earnest is already forthcoming. This will be the fitting culmination of the challenge which the British Empire deliberately threw down to ruthless oppression and savage injustice. God save the King-Emperor and all hail to the British Empire.

“ LONDON, November 23, 1918.

“ I greatly appreciate Your Highness's cordial and welcome telegram conveying the congratulations of Your Highness and your people on the successful issue under God of so mighty and so prolonged a struggle. I am deeply sensible of the unswerving loyalty of the Princes and peoples of India and of the unfailing moral and practical support they have given ever since the outbreak of hostilities. I am sincerely proud of the glorious part played by the Armies of India in so many theatres of war. Congratulate Your Highness on the gallant services of the Gwalior troops in more than one zone of battle. Victory has been gained at terrible cost, but the memory of those from every part of the Empire who have made the supreme sacrifice will never fade.

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

“SIMLA, November 19, 1918.”

“I am most grateful to Your Highness for your kind telegram of congratulations. The Indian Army has nobly upheld its proud traditions, and it will always be a pride to me to have been associated with the men who have fought so gallantly for their King-Emperor.

“CHIEF.”

The Treaty of Peace has since been signed by Germany and the greatest war ever known in history has been brought to a close after more than four years of varying fortune. Gwalior may well be proud of the part she played in this world-conflict. Its record should inspire future generations, as it is the record of a duty which devolved on her as an ally and unit of the British Empire, and which was so whole-heartedly performed by her illustrious Ruler, his united Government, and his willing and devoted subjects.

It is always pleasant to have performed one's duty, but such performance is rendered all the pleasanter when it meets with a just appreciation at the hands of those whose recognition of service rendered counts for a great deal.

The following messages exchanged between His Highness the Maharaja and His Imperial Majesty the King-Emperor on the one hand, and between His Highness and His Excellency the Viceroy on the other, together with the kharita addressed by the latter to His Highness, will ever remain memorable documents in the archives of Gwalior:

THE ARMISTICE CELEBRATIONS

To Lieutenant-General His Highness Maharaja Mukhtar-ul-Mulk, A'zim-ul-Iqtidar, Rafi-ush-shan, Wala Shikoh, Mohtasham-i-Dauran, Umdat-ul-Umara, Maharajadhiraja, Hisam-us-Saltanat, Maharaja Sir Madho Rao Scindia Bahadur, Srinath, Mansoor-i-Zaman, Fidvi-i-Hazrat-i-Malik-i-Mua'zzam-i-Rafi-ud-Darja-i-Inglistan, G.C.S.I., G.C.V.O., G.B.E., A.D.C. to His Majesty the King-Emperor, LL.D. (Cantab. & Edin.), D.C.L., Maharaja of Gwalior.

“MY HONOURED AND VALUED FRIEND,

“I rejoice to inform Your Highness that the Treaty of Peace was signed at Versailles on June 28, 1919, and the greatest war ever known in history has thus been brought to a close.

“We and our Allies drew the sword in 1914 against the forces of organised militarism and in defence of the ideals and principles of Liberty and Justice. Our foes, possessed with the lust of power, subdued and trampled upon their weaker neighbours, setting at naught the laws of war and the dictates of humanity.

“After four chequered years of conflict, Germany and the nations whom by force and fraud she constrained to fight for her have been utterly defeated, and the Allies, by the favour of Almighty God, have gained a glorious victory for freedom and honour.

“On behalf of His Majesty the King-Emperor and myself I thank Your Highness most warmly for the staunch support and munificent help afforded by the Gwalior State during the whole period of the War. The Gwalior Imperial Service Troops have rendered valuable service on transport duty in France, Salonika, and Mesopotamia, on garrison duty in India, and fought most gallantly in Egypt, in Palestine, and throughout the East African campaign. Recruiting was stimulated in the State, remounts were trained, and Your Highness assisted with most liberal donations of money, aeroplanes, motor transport, and many other gifts too numerous and varied to mention in detail here. But Your Highness's munificence has extended still further, and many hearts must be filled with gratitude for the alleviation brought to their sufferings by Your Highness's thoughtful generosity. Your Highness originated and carried out most liberally the scheme for the hospital ship Loyalty, presented ambulances, instituted a convalescent home in Nairobi, afforded comfort to the munition workers in England, relief to released prisoners of war from Germany, and thousands of the maimed and destitute have benefited from your liberal contribution to the various funds instituted for the purpose. Thus with the keenest interest and most substantial aid Your Highness has manifested the depth of your steadfast loyalty and devotion to His Imperial Majesty the King and the British Empire, and has shared in the great struggle for justice and freedom in which India has so nobly borne her part.

"I desire to express the high consideration which I entertain for Your Highness, and to subscribe myself

Your Highness's sincere friend,

"Viceroy and Governor-General of India.

“SHIVPURI, July 1, 1919.

“To the King's Most Gracious Majesty, London.

“We rejoice in the culmination of the titanic struggle started on August fourth, 1914, and my family, subjects, and I offer Your Majesty our united and heartfelt congratulations upon the final signing of Peace. May the future now bring forth an uninterrupted career of solidarity, peace, and contentment for the resplendent Empire over whose destinies Your Majesty presides with such genuine sympathy and marvellous insight.

“SIMLA, July 5, 1919.

“To His Highness Maharaja Scindia, Shivpuri.

“I thank Your Highness warmly for your congratulations on signing of Peace Treaty. I share Your Highness's hopes for the future of the British Empire and India.

“VICEROY.”

His Majesty's message of December 8, which is in acknowledgment of His Highness's present of £7,000 for the relief of British and Indian prisoners of war, was not mentioned in its proper place, and we are now placing it last, because of a certain sentiment attaching to the final sentence of that message :

“LONDON, December 8, 1918.

“I sincerely thank you for the renewed proof of your munificence in the gift of seven thousand pounds to be devoted to the relief of the British and Indian prisoners of war. It will be a pleasure to me to see that it is distributed as you wish. Your unstinted liberality towards funds connected with the War is deeply appreciated by me, and I desire to express my heartfelt wishes for the continued welfare and happiness of you and your subjects.

SUMMARY OF SERVICES RENDERED

SERVICES OF THE GWALIOR ARMY

ON the declaration of war and the selection of the Gwalior Imperial Service Troops for active service, the Darbar had to effect an increase of 311 non-commissioned officers and men in the strength of each of the 3rd and 4th Infantry Regiments over and above the sanctioned field-service strength. Subsequently, as the demand for fighting men increased, this number was raised to 318 men for the 3rd and 612 for the 4th Regiment.

The depot strength of the 4th Regiment was later raised to 858. A Reserve Battalion, 858 strong, was also raised for the duration of the War in order to maintain constant reserves and ensure supply of reinforcements.

Consequent upon the frequent supply of reinforcements and the maintenance of the regiments at such increased strength, strenuous efforts had to be made for the enlistment of recruits. Recruiting Boards were accordingly organised and appointed in all the eleven districts of the State. The number of recruits enlisted from 1914 to the close of 1918 was 8,615. In order to stimulate the enlistment of recruits, a joining allowance of Rs.150 was given to each man until July 1917, after which the following concessions were sanctioned by the Darbar :

GWALIOR'S PART IN THE WAR

- (a) A bonus of Rs.50 and 25 bighas of land to each recruit.
- (b) A reward of Rs.10 for every recruit presented for enlistment.
- (c) A Dress or a Sword of Honour to all those who presented recruits in large numbers.

The whole of the Imperial Service Troops (2 Regiments of Infantry, 3 of Cavalry, and 1 Transport Corps), comprising the following combined strength, served the Empire on active operations in France, Egypt, East Africa, Salonika, Mesopotamia, Palestine, and Waziristan; on garrison duty in Bannu, Quetta, and Rawal Pindi; and on the training of Imperial Remounts in Aurangabad, Deolali, and Gwalior :

120 officers; 4,552 non-commissioned officers and men; 817 public followers; 13 medical officers; 1,726 horses and ponies; 175 carts and tongas, and 12 camels.

The Non-Imperial Service Troops also helped the War with 1,386 men.

Most of these troops remained on active service from September 29, 1914, to February 20, 1919. The Gwalior Transport Corps is still on active service in Peshawar.

The total of annual extra expenditure directly due to war was Rs.10,53,673, and the indirect expenditure amounted to Rs. 10,61,195.

The number of Imperial Remounts trained in Gwalior was 891. A Remount Training Depot (of 500 horses) was also started in Gwalior, the personnel, etc., being supplied by the Darbar.

Facilities were also given for the enlistment of recruits in the Indian Army, and the figures, available for a period of 16 months only, show that 2,031 recruits were taken during that time from the territories of the Gwalior Government.

The Darbar were also ready to promulgate that recruits, other than Gwalior subjects, who enlisted themselves in the Indian Army through the State Agency, would be given 25 bighas of land, rent free for 30 years, building site for a house, and a cash grant of Rs.25 in each case. Cash rewards, a Dress and a Sword of Honour were also promised to those who presented recruits in large numbers.

CONCLUSION

CONCLUSION

THIS record would be complete if it included a description of the Peace Celebrations, which were fixed for the third week of December 1919, and of which a programme worthy of the occasion was drawn up under the inspiration of His Highness the Maharaja. But as we must go to press without further delay, this little incompleteness must remain. We trust, however, that this record, such as it is, of the services rendered by the illustrious Ruler of Gwalior and his devoted subjects to the Empire in connection with the great World-War will suffice to point a moral. If we are asked to suggest the moral deducible, we would say that it is contained in a description of "the guiding principles and motives" of the Ruler of the Gwalior Dominions. The exact words employed in that description are :

" HIS GOAL IS THE STABILITY OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE," and therefore, inasmuch as the destinies of Britain and India are linked together, India prospers while the British Empire stands solid.

It would be interesting to add that the broad observation on the Maharaja's ambition was offered in the Banquet-hall of Jai Bilas Palace on December 21, 1905, by the
