THE French detachment, which marched under the command of Saubinet, againft Trinomalee, were refifted with bravery by the kellidar appointed by Rangarow of Thiagar, who flood three affaults, in the laft of which the French ftormed the pagoda, and with much fury put 500 men to the fword. This conquest was gained on the 10th of September, and on the 16th Mr. Soupire appeared with a large division of the army before Carangoly, which Murzafabeg not thinking tenable had left with a few troops to refift flight affaults, and returned with the reft to defend Trivatore. Carangoly fubmitted on the first fummons, and at the fame time another detachment under the command of the Chevalier de Crillon marched against Trivatore, where Murzafabeg, with 300 horfe of his own, joined by as many belonging to the Nabob, from Arcot, and a body of Sepoys, met the enemy in the field, and were foon defeated and difperfed; in confequence of which Trivatore was re-taken without farther refistance. In the mean time Mr. Lally himfelf, with an efcort of horfe, visited Alamparva, Gingee, Carangoly, Chittapet, and feveral minor pofts, and then came to Vandiwash, where all the detachments had affembled from their different expeditions. Here he was joined by Mr. Buffy, who, leaving the troops which he had brought from the northward to the conduct of Moracin at Nelore, had paffed from hence with his private retinue, under the fafeguard of a paffport granted by the prefidency of Madrafs. From Vandiwash Mr. Lally detached the Count D'Estaigne with a part of the army to reduce VOL. II. Bbb duce the fort of Arcot, to whom Timery furrendered in the way without refiftance; and before he arrived at Arcot, Rajahfaheb had fucceeded in a negotiation with the Nabob's kellidar to deliver up the fort on an infignificant capitulation. Mr. Lally, thinking that the taking pofferfion of the citadel of the capital would magnify his reputation in the province, refolved to receive the furrender in perfon, and made his entry into the fort on the 4th of October, under the difcharge of all the cannon; and difpatched orders to Pondicherry and the other French garrifons to proclaim the acquifition with the fame oftentation.

The prefidency of Madrafs faw in these operations nothing but what they expected would have happened immediately after the fall of Fort St. David; and the prefervation of Chinglapet, if in their power, gave them more follicitude, than the abandoning of all the other forts together, which the inferiority of their force had left them no means of preferving. At the request of the renter of Chinglapet, they had fent two companies of Sepoys to guard this fort, whilft his own men with arms were employed in protecting the harvefts, and the fame number of Sepoys were fent at the fame time to garrifon Conjeveram. Towards the end of August a lieutenant was appointed to command those in Chinglapet, and carried with him another company. On the 14th of September arrived the Company's fhip Pitt, of 50 guns : she failed from England on the 6th of March together with fix others, under the convoy of the Grafton of 70, and the Sunderland of 60 guns, coming to reinforce Mr. Pocock's fquadron: on board of these thips were embarked 900 men of the king's troops, embodied in a regiment under the command of lieutenant colonel Draper, who, with major Brereton, and 1000f the regiment, arrived and landed from on board the Pitt, but 50 had died on the paffage of a contagion, then called the Breft fever, which had paffed during the war from the French marine into many English ships. The troops which came in the Pitt, and the expectation that the other fhips with the reft would arrive before the change of the monfoon, encouraged the Prefidency to fend four companies more of Sepoys to Chinglapet : this reinforcement ftopped the march of a confiderable detachment tachment, which had fet out on the 19th from Carangoly to attack Chinglapet, where, immediately after, arrived the two companies of Sepoys from Conjeverann, retreating as foon as Trivatore was reduced. The garrifon, now confifting of nine companies, was deemed almost fufficient to maintain the fort, until relieved from Madrafs; and captain Richard Smith was appointed to take the command, and with him were fent two commissioned officers, a ferjeant, a corporal, and 12 European gunners, and two field-pieces; fo that the whole number of Europeans, including the ferjeants of the Sepoys, were thirty chofen men, and Captain Smith was ordered to defend the fort at all events and extremities. On the 25th, the fquadron commanded by Mr. Pococke anchored in the road, having executed a fecret commission which had detained him all this while to the fouthward, and had given rife to a variety of erroneous reports and conjectures. The prefidency on the 25th of August had finally refolved to recall Major Calliaud from Tritchinopoly, with all the European foldiers and Coffres in the garrifon, excepting fuch as were in the fervice of the artillery, or annexed to the Sepoys. Calliaud, just as he was ready to march, received intelligence on the 5th of September, that a very large fleet of English ships were arrived there ; which, although doubtful, required him to fufpend his departure until more certain advices, which he received on the 15th, and the next day began his march, with 180 Europeans and 50 Coffres, leaving, according to his inftructions, the command of the garrifon, in which were now included the 2000 Sepoys brought by Mahomed Iffoof from Tinivelly, to captain Joseph Smith. The detachment marching through the Tanjore country met every kind of affiftance in their way, and on the 23d embarked from Negapatam on board the fquadron, which arrived two days after at Madrafs. This reinforcement increased the means of protecting Chinglapet, and four more field-pieces, with a complement of Lafcars to work them, were fent thither on the 2d of October.

Mr. Lally at length faw the importance of this place, which, 20 days before, he might have taken by efcalade in open day, and refolved to march against it with his whole force as foon as he had fettled fome arrangements in the government of Arcot, and the adjacent countries. In the mean time his communication with Chinglapet, was opened by the poffeffion of Covrepauk, and Conjeveram, which his detachments found evacuated. But his late acquisitions had not hitherto reimburfed the expences of the field, nor established his credit to borrow: fo that his treafury could barely fupply the pay of the foldiers, and could not provide the other means of putting the army in motion, and all that the government of Pondicherry could immediately furnifh was 10,000 rupees : pretending therefore much indignation at this difappointment, he distributed the troops into various cantonments, and returned himfelf, accompanied by Mr. Buffy, to Pondicherry, where as ufual he imputed the failure of his intentions against Chinglapet to the mifmanagements of the Company's administration. Notwithstanding his deep animolity to Mr. Buffy, refpect to the diffinguished character of this officer confined Mr. Lally to the obfervances of public civility; which imposed on no one, as he had ftill more publickly expressed his real opinions. The rank which Mr. Buffy held at this time was only that of lieutenant colonel; and befides Mr. Soupire, who was a major general, fix of the officers arrived from France were colonels, who of courfe must command Mr. Buffy on all fervices when acting together. The colonels, fenfible of the advantages which might be derived from Mr. Buffy's abilities, and his experience and reputation in the country, and how much the opportunities would be precluded by the prefent inferiority of his rank, figned a declaration, requefting on these confiderations that he might be appointed to the rank of Brigadier General, in fuperfession to themselves, which would place him next in command to Mr. Soupire. The public zeal which dictated this requeft, conferred as much honour on those who made it, as their testimony on Mr. Buffy. Their names, highly worthy of record on this occafion, were moftly of ancient and noble descent; D'Estaigne, de Landivisiau, de la Fare, Bretueil, Verdiere, and Crillon. Mr. Lally could make no objection, but with his usual afperity imputed the compliment to the influence of Mr. Buffy's money, inflead of his reputation.

The

The approach of the formy monfoon warned the English fquadron to quit the coaft; and Mr. Pococke, as on all other occasions of confequence, confulted the prefidency on the fecurity of Madrafs during his abfence. They were of opinion that the enemy, if at all, would not attack the town before the rains had ceased, which generally happens about the end of November, and had no doubt of defending it until reinforcements should arrive, or the squadron return. But as the lateness of the scafe might deter the spectred from England from venturing on the coast until the month of January, they requested Mr. Pococke to lend the marines of the squadron, with which he complied without hesitation. One hundred men were landed, and on the 11th the squadron weighed anchor and failed for Bombay.

Mr. Moracin, having purpofely waited at Nelore until the end of September, then began his march with the detachment left to his care by Mr. Buffy, and was accompanied by Nazeabulla with the troops of his government: proceeding through the woods and mountains of Bangar Yatcham Naigue, they arrived at the pagoda of Tripetty on the 5th of October, the day on which the great annual feast began ; which lafts 25 days. They were here joined by Abdulwahab Cawn, with his troops from Chandergherry : they gave no disturbance to the pilgrims, but fummoned the renter to difmifs his guards and deliver up the avenues, who, not having a force fufficient to make any effectual opposition, made proposals to rent the revenue of this, and the enfuing feafts, from the French, on the fame terms as he had hitherto held them from the English goverment, and tendered a fum in hand, which Moracin accepted, and confirmed him in the employment. Then leaving a part of his detachment to guard this valuable acquifition, he proceeded on the 16th with the reft, and the troops of Nazeabulla to Arcot through the country of Bomrauze, who, inftead of oppofing their paffage, paid them a vifit. But Abdulwahab, much offended that the management of the pagoda, which had fo long been the object of his wifhes, was not granted to himfelf, retired with his troops to Chandergherry. and Moracin arrived at Arcot on the 12th, and leaving their troops there went on to attend Mr. Lally at Pondicherry.

The defiftance of Mr. Lally from marching against Chinglapet after the reduction of Arcot, gave the prefidency of Madraís encouragement and opportunity to ftrengthen that place more effectually. The partizan Murzafabeg, having fince the French fucceffies no employment for the troops he had levied, had brought the beft of them, 70 horfe and 200 Sepoys, to Chinglapet, where they were taken into the company's pay; and on the 30th of October it was determined to encreafe the garrifon to 100 Europeans, and 1200 Sepoys, to fend feveral pieces of battering cannon, to lay-in three months provisions, and to repair the works. At the fame time Captain Smith was recalled to Madrafs, to ferve in his former employment of aid de camp to Colonel Lawrence, and captain Prefton was fent to take the command of Chinglapet, which illnefs had obliged him to quit. Before his arrival captain R. Smith had detached Murzafabeg on the 29th, with four companies of Sepoys and fome of the horfe, to diflodge a party of the enemy's Sepoys, who had taken post in the village of Polipore, fituated about two miles from the other fide of the Paliar; Murzafabeg attacked them at day-break, killed and wounded 20, difperfed the reft, and gathered 60 of their muskets, which they had thrown down in their flight.

The arrival of a vefiel at Pondicherry on the 18th, from Mauritius, which brought treafure, together with 100,000 rupees, brought by Mr. Moracin from Tripetti, enabled Mr. Lally to put the French troops into motion again : and, as the fymptoms of the rainy feafon hung back even at the end of the month, parties began to affemble at Carangoly, Salawauk, and Conjeveram, and Mr. Lally himfelf came from Pondicherry to Vandiwafh. On the 2d of November 250 Europeans, 100 troopers, with fome black horfe and Sepoys, marched from Salawauk, and took poft again at Polipore, where they were joined on the 5th by 400 more Europeans, with feveral pieces of battering cannon, and a mortar : intelligence of which came to Madrafs the next day, a few hours after the laft convoy of fupplies had fet out for Chinglapet; and as the main-maintenance of this place depended on the arrival of these fupplies, it was refolved that 1200 Europeans and 1800 Sepoys, by far the greatest part of the garrifon of Madrafs, should immediately take the field to cover them; of which one half, under the command of lieutenant colonel Draper, were to advance as far as Vendalore, within 10 miles of Chinglapet ; whilft the other, with colonel Lawrence, were to halt at St. Thomas's mount, ready to fupport Draper's division : they marched on the 7th in the morning; and the news ftopped the French troops at Polipore from croffing the river, and the march of a detachment advancing from Conjeveram under the command of Saubinet, both intending to intercept the convoy; which got fafe into Chinglapet on the evening of the ninth. Colonel Draper continued at Vendalore until the 11th, when he received fome intelligence of the approach of the whole of the enemy's army, on which he marched back with his division, and joined that with colonel Lawrence at the mount.

Every day had proved the good effects of re-eftablishing the poffeffion of Chinglapet; for, under the protection of this barrier, the country behind, which is more extensive than the districts protected by Pondomalee and Tripaffour, continued to furnish Madrafs with daily fupplies of all kinds of provisions and neceffaries, by which the flock laid up in flore to fuftain the impending fiege was faved ; and to preferve this benefit as long as poffible, the troops which had been fent abroad with Draper and Lawrence were ordered to remain encamped at the mount until the laft hour which might endanger the fafety of their retreat to the town; after which, as the best of external means to protract the fiege when commenced, it was determined to have a body of troops in the field diffinct from those already belonging to the garrifon, which, if nothing more, were to be continually employed in harraffing the enemy's convoys of flores and provisions. Accordingly a contract, which had for fome months been under difcuffion, was concluded with the agent of Morarirow for the fervice of 2000 Morattoe horfe, of which 500 were to arrive in 25 days, and the reft in 45; but as no furcties were received, the punctuality of this affiltance could not be relied on. The prefidency, therefore, as a furer refource, ordered the commandant Mahomed homed Iffoof to take the field with 2000 of their own Sepoys from the garrifon of Tritchinopoly; and requefted the king of Tanjore to join this body with 1000 of his horfe, and the Polygar Tondiman, and even the diftant Moravars, with the beft of their troops; for whom, however, Mahomed Iffoof was not to wait; and, in cafe none of thefe allies arrived in time, he was impowered to enlift 500 good horfe if to be found in his march. The Nabob ftill maintained 300 horfe, part of whom attended his perfon at St. Thomé, and the reft were difperfed in the adjacent diffricts, who on the receipt of fome money joined the army at the Mount; to which all the polygars to the northward of Madrafs were likewife commanded to fend their troops; but none came : and the Partizan Murzafabeg, having been refuted an increafe of pay which he demanded in this hour of neceffity, went off in the night with his 70 horfe and fome of his Sepoys, and took fervice with the French army at Conjeveram. The troops, of whofe approach L. Colonel Draper had received intelligence, were 500 irregular Sepoys, under the command of an active adventurer named Lambert, with part of the horfe levied by Rajahfaheb, who had been fent forward to plunder and terrify the country. They croffed the Paliar, and on the 15th, appeared before Tripaffour, and attacked the pettah, but were repulfed at the hedge which furrounds it, with the loss of 20 men, by the Peons of the renter, and the two companies of Sepoys flationed in the fort.

But the French army were not in fuch readinefs as the English imagined to commence the fiege of Madrafs. All the draught bullocks which Pondicherry had been able to collect were not fufficient to transport one half of the heavy artillery neceffary for the attack; and the greatest part of the train, with many other stores, had been laden a month before on the Harlem taken from the Dutch, which ship failed across the bay, in order to work to the northward on the other side, when she was to stretch across again and fall in with Masulipatam, where she was to receive more cannon and stores, and then come down the coast to Madrafs. The time was elapsed in which a well-failing vessel might have made this pasfage, and without news of the Harlem; and on this disappointment Mr.

Book X. THE NORTHERN PROVINCES.

Mr. Lally ordered another ftore of artillery, which had been deposited at Alamparva, to be shipped on two frigates, the Diligence and the Expedition, which were in the road of Pondicherry, but laden for other voyages; fo that it would require a month before they could get this artillery on board, and work up against the wind and current to Madrafs. However, the French army might have advanced many days before, if they had not been in want of many other articles, which, although of much more minute detail, were equally of absolute necessity. As foon as these were supplied, the first division moved from Conjeveram on the 19th; but Mr. Lally being very ill, had detained the referve until the 22d, when the great body of the monfoon rain fell with the utmost violence, and lasted without intermission for three days : the troops abroad, warned by the fky, were on their march back to Conjeveram when the rain began, but neverthelefs gained their way with much difficulty and diftrefs, and after it had ceafed, the furface of the country continued impaffable for feveral days.

Whilft the collected force of both nations in the Carnatic were thus waiting the impending conflict, each were equally folicitous concerning the fuccefs of the armament fent from Bengal into the northern provinces. Mr. Johnstone, who had been fent from Calcutta to concert preparations with the Rajah Anunderauze, arrived on the 12th of September at Vizagapatam, of which the Rajah's officers there immediately put him in poffeffion, as the Company's reprefentative. The Rajah himfelf was encamped with his forces at Coffimcotah, a fort 20 miles to the weft of Vizagapatam, and 15 inland from the fea. His letter to Mr. Johnstone expressed much fatiffaction that the English troops were coming, but fignified his intention not to furnish any money towards their expences. Tempeftuous weather from the fouth delayed the arrival of the fhips and veffels with Colonel Ford until the 20th of October. As foon as the difembarkation was made, two of the Company's fhips were fent back to Bengal; but the other, the Hardwicke, and the two floops, remained to attend the progrefs of the expedition. The troops moved from Vizagapatam on the 1ft of November, and on the third joined VOL. II. Ccc the the Rajah and his army at Coffimcotah, from whence it was determined to march against Rajahmundrum, where Mr. Conflans had collected the French troops from all parts, and they were already advancing to attack the Rajah; but, on hearing that the English troops were in motion to join him, they halted and encamped.

Mr. Johnstone had difpatched the floop in which he came, with advices to Madrafs of his reception at Vizagapatam; on which they immediately fent away Mr. Andrews, with feveral affiftants, to reeftablish the factory under their own authority, on which the fettlement had always been dependent : They likewife fent Captain Callendar, an officer on the Madrafs eftablishment, to act as fecond under Colonel Forde. The veffel which brought them arrived at Vizagapatam on the 21ft of November ; and Andrews with Callendar immediately went to the camp, which, by long halts and fhort marches, had not yet advanced 30 miles beyond Coffimcotah. Various excufes were employed by the Rajah to extenuate this delay; but the real caufe was his repugnance to furnish the money which Colonel Forde demanded, who was not a little offended at his evafions. Mr. Andrews, who, having been chief of Madapollam, had long been perfonally known to the Rajah, adjusted their differences by a treaty, which ftipulated, " that all plunder fhould be equally divided ; that " all the countries which might be conquered fhould be delivered " to the Rajah, who was to collect the revenues ; but that the fea-" ports and towns at the mouths of the rivers should belong to the " company, with the revenues of the diffricts annexed to them ; that " no treaty for the difpofal or reftitution, whether of the Rajah's or " the English poffeffions, should be made without the confent of " both parties; that the Rajah should supply 50,000 rupees a month " for the expences of the army, and 6000, to commence from their " arrival at Vizagapatam, for the particular expences of the officers." He held out likewife other propofals of future alliance, which he had not yet authority to ratify.

The united forces now moved in earneft, and on the 3d of December came in fight of the enemy, who were encamped 40 miles on this fide of Rajahmundrum, in a ftrong fituation which commanded the

the high road, near a village called Gallapool, and in fight of a fort called Peddipore. They had 500 Europeans, many more pieces of cannon than they could use at once, a great number of the troops of the country, of which 500 were horfe, and 6000 Sepoys. Of the English force embarked from Bengal, only 30 Europeans and a few Sepoys were wanting, who had been left fick at Vizagapatam; fo that there were in the field 470 Europeans, and 1900 Sepoys. The Rajah had 500 paltry horfe, and 5000 foot, fome with aukward firearms, the reft with pikes and bows; but he had collected 40 Europeans, who managed four field-pieces under the command of Mr. Briftol ; befides which his own troops had fome ufelefs cannon. On the 6th, the English and the Rajah's army advanced and took poffeffion of a village called Chambole, on the high road likewife, within four miles of the enemy, when each deemed the fituation of the other too ftrong to be attacked : on which Colonel Forde, as the only means to draw the enemy from theirs to a general action, refolved to march round and regain the road to Rajahmundrum in their rear, by paffing under the hills to their left, where the enemy could not derive much advantage from their horfe. The Rajah approved ; and on the oth, at four in the morning, the English troops were in motion; but the Rajah's with their ufual indolence not prepared to march. Near the foot of the hills, about three miles to the right of the village of Chambole, was another called Condore, to gain which, the English troops having filed from the right, were in march, when at day-break they heard a ftrong cannonade towards the Rajah's camp. It was from 6 guns, which Mr. Conflans, ignorant of Colonel Forde's march, had fent on in the night, under the guidance of an intelligent deferter, who had noticed a fpot that bore upon the camp; and Mr. Conflans was following to fupport them with his whole army and the reft of his field-artillery. The Rajah fent meffages after meffages, which met the English troops returning to his relief; and his own, quickened by the danger, were removing as faft as they could out of the reach of it; and having, in much confusion, joined the English, continued marching on with them to the village of Condore, where all arrived at eight o'clock. The enemy, although from

from long diftances, continued to cannonade whilft any of the English or the Rajah's troops remained within probable reach.

When arrived at the village of Condore, the army was just as far as before from the French encampment at Gallapole, but with better ground between, and a village midway, which would afford a ftrong advanced post. Mr. Conflans imagined that the English troops had marched from their encampment to Condore, in order from hence to take possible of this village, and in this perfuasion croffed the plain to prevent them, with his whole army, and fucceeded in his wish without interruption; for Colonel Forde remained halting at Condore, to regulate his future motions by the enemy's. Mr. Conflans imputed this inaction to a confcious of inferiority, and now imagined that the English intended to march back to their encampment at Chambole, to prevent which, he formed his line, and advanced in much haste, and little order.

The French battalion of Europeans was in the centre of the line, with 13 field-pieces, divided on their flanks, the horfe 500 were on the left of the battalion ; 3000 Sepoys formed the right wing, and the fame number the left, and with each wing were five or fix pieces of cumbrous cannon. The English army drew up with their Europeans in the centre, the fix field-pieces divided on their flanks; the 1800 Sepoys were likewife equally divided on the wings. Colonel Forde placed no reliance on the Rajah's infantry or horfe, and ordered them to form aloof, and extend on each flank of the Sepoys : all this rabble kept behind, but the renegade Europeans under Briftol, who managed the four field-pieces belonging to the Rajah, advanced, and formed with the division of artillery on the left of the English battalion. The line having had time, were in exact order, and had advanced a mile in front of the village of Condore, during which, the enemy cannonaded hotly from all their guns. At length the impetuofity of the enemy's approach, who came on, out-marching their cannon, obliged the English line to halt for action; and it chanced that the whole of their battalion ftopped near and opposite to a field of Indian corn, which was grown fo tall that it intirely intercepted them from the enemy; but but the Sepoys on the wings were free in the plain on each hand. For what reafon is not known, Colonel Forde had ordered his Sepoys to furl their colours, which, befides the principal flag, are feveral fmall banners to a company, and to let them lay on the ground during the action.

The Sepoys and horfe of the enemy's wings greatly outftretched the wings of the English line, and came on each in a curve to gain their flanks; the French battalion in the centre, inftead of advancing parallel to where by the wings they might judge the centre of the English line would be, inclined obliquely to the right, which brought them beyond the field of Indian corn, opposite to the English Sepoys on the left wing; whom from their red jackets, and the want of their ufual banners, they from the first approach mistook for the English battalion ; respecting them as such, they halted to drefs their ranks before they engaged, and then began to fire in platoons advancing, but at the diftance of 200 yards. Neverthelefs. this was fufficient; for the Sepoys, feeing themfelves attacked without cover by Europeans in front, and the horfe and multitude of the enemy's Sepoys, gaining their rear, or coming down on their flank, fcarcely preferved courage to give their fire, hurried, fcattered, and without command; and then immediately broke, and ran away to fhelter themfelves in the village of Chambole, and were followed by the nearest of the enemy's horfe. This fuccefs was greater than even the confidence of the enemy expected ; and feveral platoons of the French battalion were fetting off to purfue them likewife, when they faw a line of men with fhouldered arms marching fast and firm from behind the field of Indian corn across their way, to occupy the ground which the Sepoys had abandoned.

Colonel Forde had been with the Sepoys before their flight, encouraging them to refolution; but faw, by the ufual fymptoms of trepidation, that they would not ftand the flock, which prepared him to order the judicious movement, which the officers were now performing with fo much fteadinefs and fpirit. Captain Adnet, commanding on the left, led the line, and as foon as the laft files were got clear of the corn, the word was given, when the whole halted, halted, and faced at once, in full front of the enemy. This motion was quickly executed; for the foremost man had not more than 200 yards to march, and the field-pieces were left behind. During this fhort interval, the French battalion were endeavouring with much buftle to get into order again; for fome of their platoons had advanced a confiderable diftance before others; and thus the fire of the English line commenced before the enemy's was ready; it was given in divisions, that is, the whole battalion divided into five, and began from Captain Adnet's on the left, which was within piftol fhot, and brought down half the enemy's grenadiers; the fire ran on, and before the time came for Adnet's division to repeat theirs, the whole of the enemy's line were in confusion, and went about running fast to regain their guns, which they had left half a mile behind them on the plain.

The ardour of the English battalion to purfue was fo great, that Colonel Forde judged it beft to indulge it in the inftant, although not certain of the fuccefs of the Sepoys on the right, but concluding that the enemy's Sepoys who were to attack them, would not continue long, if they faw their Europeans compleatly routed. The order was given for the battalion to march on in following divisions, the left leading. Nothing could reprefs their eagernefs. All marched too faft to keep their rank, excepting the fourth division commanded by Captain Yorke, who to have a referve for the whole battalion, if broken, as the enemy had been, by their own impetuolity, obliged his men to advance in frict order. The French battalion rallied at their guns, which were 13 in number, fpread in different brigades, or fets, as they chanced to fland when left by the troops advancing to the action. This artillery began to fire as foon as the ground was clear of their own troops, and killed fome men, which only quickened the approach of the divisions to close in with the guns, of which feveral fired, when the first division was within pistol shot, and Adnet fell mortally wounded; but his men rushing on drove the enemy from the guns they attacked, and the other divisions following with the fame fpirit, obliged them to abandon all the others.

The day, if not completely victorious, was at least fecured from reverse by the poffession of all the enemy's field artillery fit for for quick firing; but their camp, to which they were retiring, ftill remained to be attacked; and Colonel Forde halted until joined by his Sepoys, and, if they would come, by the Rajah's troops.

The Sepoys and horfe of the enemy's right wing were in their turn panic-ftruck by the fire of the English battalion routing their own. and all turned to gain the rear of the guns, keeping aloof to the left of the English divisions; and then went off again with the French battalion to the camp. Their left wing of Sepoys behaved better, advancing to the use of musketry against the English Sepoys of the left, with whom the battalion, when filing off to oppose the French, left the three field-pieces of their right; and the Sepoys, encouraged by this affiftance, the ardour of the Europeans marching off, and the fpirit of their own commander Captain Knox, maintained their ground, facing and firing in various directions behind the banks of the rice fields, in which they had drawn up. The enemy's wing neverthelefs continued the diftant fire, until they faw their battalion of Europeans quitting their guns, and the Sepoys and horfe of the right retreating with them to the camp; when they went off likewife; ftretching round to the left of the English battalion halting at the guns, and keeping out of their reach. Captain Knox then advanced to join the battalion with his own Sepoys, and the fix fieldpieces, and had collected most of the fugitives of the other wing. Meffages had been continually fent to the Rajah's horfe to advance, but they could not be prevailed upon to quit the fhelter of a large tank, at this time dry, in which they, his foot, and himfelf in the midst of them, had remained cowering from the beginning of the action.

As foon as the Sepoys joined, and all the neceffary difpolitions were made, which took an hour, Colonel Forde advanced to attack the enemy's camp; but, not to retard the march, left the field-pieces to follow. A deep hollow way paffed along the fkirt of the camp, behind which appeared a confiderable number of Europeans regularly drawn up, as if to defend the paffage of the hollow way, and feveral flot were fired from heavy cannon planted to defend the approach. Juft as the Englifh troops came near, and the firft division of the Europeans flept out to give their fire, the field-

field-pieces were arrived within fhot; on which all the enemy went to the right-about, abandoned their camp, and retreated, feemingly every man as he lifted, in the utmost confusion; but the English battalion croffing after them, many threw down their arms, and furrendered themfelves prifoners. Mr. Conflans had previoufly fent away four of the finalleft field-pieces; and the money of the military cheft, laden for expedition on two camels. The fpoil of the field and camp was 30 pieces of cannon, most of which were brafs; 50 tumbrils, and other carriages laden with ammunition; feven mortars from thirteen to eight inches, with a large provision of fhells; 1000 draught bullocks, and all the tents of the French battalion. Three of their officers were killed in the field, and three died of their wounds the fame evening; 70 of their rank and file were likewife killed, or mortally wounded : fix officers and 50 rank and file were taken prifoners, and the fame number of wounded were iupposed to have escaped. Of the English battalion, Captain Adnet and 15 rank and file, were killed; Mr. Macguire, the pay-mafter, and Mr. Johnstone, the commission, who joined the grenadiers, two officers, and 20 of the rank and file, were wounded; the Sepoys had 100 killed and more wounded. No victory could be more compleat. Mr. Conflans, the commander of the French army, changing horfes, arrived on the full gallop at Rajahmundrum before midnight, although the diftance is 40 miles from the field on which the battle was loft; the troops took various routs, but moft of them towards Rajahmundrum.

The cavalry of Anunderauze, although incapable of fighting, were very active as focuts to obferve the flying enemy, and the concurrence of their reports determined Colonel Forde to fend forward 500 Sepoys, which in the army were ranked the first battalion of thefe troops, under the command of Captain Knox. They were in march at five in the afternoon. The next day intelligence was received, that many of the enemy's Europeans, and fome of their black fugitives, had stopped at Rajahmundrum; on which 1000 more Sepoys were fent to join those with Captain Knox; and the whole, now 1500, arrived there at break of day on the 10th.

THE NORTHERN PROVINCES.

This city, the capital of the province, is fituated on the eaftern bank of the Godaveri, 40 miles from the fea. In the middle of the town, and near the river, stands a large fort, with mud walls of little defence. The French troops, having loft all their beft cannon, would not truft to those in the fort, and report had represented the English Sepoys as the whole army, the Rajah's and all, in full purfuit; and in this perfuation they had begun to crofs the river at midnight. Fifteen Europeans, with all the flores, baggage, and bullocks, which had efcaped from the battle, had not yet embarked, and were immediately feized; a boat loaded with many more Europeans was in the ftream; and four fmall field pieces, with a thirteen-inch mortar of brafs taken out of the fort, had just reached the other shore when the English Sepoys arrived, who fired for half an hour, as well with their mulkets as from the cannon of the fort, upon the boat and the opposite shore, which deterred the enemy from carrying off the field-pieces and mortar, or from remaining near them; and a party of Sepoys croffing the river in boats, brought them back the fame day without moleftation : a large quantity of ammunition and military ftores, laid up for the French army, was taken in the fort.

Colonel Forde, with the reft of the English forces, arrived at Rajahmundrum the next day; but the Rajah, with his, remained at Peddipoor performing the ceremony of burying the few of his people which had chanced to be killed by the ftraggling shot of the fight. The Hardwicke, and the two floops, were at anchor on the coast fome leagues above the field of battle, which is about 10 miles from the fea; and the day after the victory they failed to cruize on the enemy's vessel between Masulipatam and their factories on the Godaveri : and a few days after the flip Thames was dispatched from Vizagapatam, fully laden with provisions, to Madrafs.

The delay of every day which had retarded Mr. Lally from advancing againft Madrafs was an advantage gained; Captain Jofeph Smith commanding in Tritchinopoly, as foon as he received the orders of the prefidency, equipped 2000 Sepoys from his garrifon, and delivered them, with two fmall field-pieces, to the command of Mahomed Iffoof, who croffed the Coleroon with this force on the Vol. II. 21ft of November, without waiting for the troops of the allies, whofe affiftance the prefidency had requefted. The polygar Tondiman gave affurances, and was really collecting fome, but the Moraver had returned no anfwer, and the king of Tanjore had expressed himfelf in fuch equivocal terms, that the Prefidency resolved to fend major Calliaud, in whom the king had confidence, to convince him of the impolicy of his indifference : accordingly this officer embarked on the 30th in a common maffoolah, intending to land at Tranquebar.

The French army moved again from Conjeveram on the 20th of November, advancing on the high road towards Madrafs: but a large detachment under the command of Mr. Soupire proceeded along the bank of the Paliar, with orders to halt between the river and Chinglapet. On the fame day the partizan Lambert, with his troops and two finall field-pieces, attacked the pettah of Pondomalee, which the enfign, Crowley, attempted to defend, but was driven into the fort with the lofs of 30 or 40 of his Sepoys killed and wounded, and two of their ferjeants, Europeans, were made prifoners. On the 4th of December, Mr. Lally reconnoitred the fort of Chinglapet in perfon, within musket-shot; and contrary to the found rules of war, and perhaps his own conviction, determined to leave it in his rear. On the 7th, the whole army halted at Vendaloor, and Lambert's party appeared in fight of the Mount, where the English army had been reinforced with 400 more Europeans from the town, being all that remained, excepting the invalids and artillery : 300 had been posted, a mile and half in the rear of the main camp, at Sidapet or the little Mount, to guard the bridge and ford over the river of St. Thomé; but on the night after the appearance of Lambert's party, thefe troops were fent back to the town, and the fame number were detached to fupply their place from the camp; for Colonel Lawrence had no intention to rifk a general action. In the afternoon of the ninth a confiderable body of the enemy appeared in fight of the Mount; but Mr. Lally had left his camp flanding at Vendaloor, of which Colonel Lawrence received intelligence, and regarded this appearance of not moving far from it, as a feint to cover the intention of a forced a forced march in the night, higher up, acrofs the river of St. Thomé, which might bring the French army before morning between the English camp and Madrass, and cut off their retreat to the town : he therefore immediately struck his tents and marched back with the whole army to the Choultry plain.

The ground fo called commenceth about 2000 yards fouth-weft of the white town of Madrafs, or Fort St. George, from which it is feparated by two rivers. The one, called the river of Triplicane, winding from the weft, gains the fea about a thoufand yards to the fouth of the glacis. The other coming from the northwest, passeth near the western fide of the black town, the extremity of which is high ground, which the river rounds, and continues to the Eaft, until within 100 yards of the fea, where it washeth the foot of the glacis, and then turning to the fouth continueth parallel with the beach, until it joins the mouth and bar of the river of Triplicane. From the turning of the river at the high ground, a canal, ftriking to the fouth, communicates with the river of Triplicane. The low ground included by the channels of the two rivers and the canal, is called the Ifland, which is about 3000 yards in circumference. 1200 yards from the ftrand of the fea is a long bridge leading from the ifland over the Triplicane river, to a road which continues fouth to the town of St. Thomé. Another bridge over the canal, leads to the weft, and amongft others to a village called Egmore, from which this bridge takes its name. Coming from the fouth or weft, these two bridges afford the only convenient accefs to the Fort or white town, excepting another along the ftrand of the fea, when the bar of the Triplicane river is choaked with fand. All the ground between the St. Thomé road and the fea is filled with villages and enclofures; and fo is that on the left, for half a mile towards the Choultry plain, from which a road and feveral finaller paffages leads through them to the St. Thomé Road.

It was neither the intention of the Prefidency, nor of Colonel Lawrence himfelf, to rifque the army on the Choultry plain, more than they had at the Mount; for a defeat in the field was the certain lois of Madrafs, as the enemy in their fuperiority had 300 European D d d 2 horfe, 385 1758.

The intention was to gain time, for every day was precious; and not to difpirit the troops, who were to fulfain the impending fiege, and might have made finifter reflections if they had been haftily led back within the walls, before their own underftandings were convinced of the neceffity. The ground and the advantages which were taken of it by Colonel Lawrence, fecured their retreat, when it fhould become neceffary.

The Choultry plain extends two miles to the weft of the enclofures which bound the St. Thomé road, and terminates on the other fide at a large body of water called the Meliapore Tank, behind which runs with deep windings, the Triplicane river. The road from the Mount paffes two miles and a half under the mound of the tank, and at its iffue into the Choultry plain, was a kind of defile, formed by the mound on one hand, and buildings with thick enclofures on the other. Colonel Lawrence, retreating from the mount, halted and remained during that and the next day, which was the 10th, opposite to this defile. On the 11th he cut through the mound of the tank, which fwamped the whole length of the road, and then retreated to the other extremity of the plain, close to the enclosures nearest the Triplicane river. In this fituation his field-pieces commanded the road leading across the plain to that part of the enclofures through which this road continues to that of St. Thomé, which from the junction continues ftreight to the bridge of Triplicane. Three companies of Sepoys were advanced in front on the left, to a choultry flanding at the fkirt of the plain, where the road enters the enclofures.

The French army remained at the Mount during the 11th, but marched before day-break on the 12th; and at fun-rife all their European cavalry, having taken a circuit to the fouth of the plain, appeared at the choultry fo unexpectedly, that the Sepoys fearcely ftaid to give their first fire, and ran into the enclosures on their left, through which they gained the main body. The cavalry, thinking themfelves fecured by a finall grove, which was in the rear of the choultry, choultry, drew up in front of it, but were immediately annoyed by the advanced field-pieces; of which, feveral flot made way through the trees and killed three troopers; on which, all galloped away to the St. Thomé road, intending, it fhould feem, to pufh to Triplicanebridge, and then either continue on the ifland, or advance along the ftrand of the river in the rear of the Englifh army: but oppofite to the governor's garden, 500 yards from the bridge, they found the road flockaded acrofs, as well as the lane on the left, along the garden-wall, by which they might likewife have come round; and in thefe two pofts were three companies of Sepoys, with two guns; and the St. Thomé road, for a long way, had no other iffue to the left. The firft fire from the flockades drove the cavalry up the road until out of reach.

Mean while the main body of the French army appeared iffuing from along the mound of the Meliapore tank, and advanced along the road, which was here between an avenue of trees, cannonading at intervals from fome of their field-pieces: they were anfwered without intermiffion by fix from the English line, until their van were half through the avenue, and within 1000 yards, when Colonel Lawrence ordered the retreat. The line marched off their ground by the right, and paffing a village called Chindadrapettah, croffed the river of Triplicane, where it was fordable without difficulty; they then continued round two or three hamlets to the Egmore bridge, which leads over the canal into the Island. Here they halted fome time to receive a guard of 30 Europeans posted in a redoubt at Egmore, in which was the powder-mill of the garrifon. As foon as this party joined, the whole army croffed the bridge, and after fome detachments of Europeans and Sepoys had been draughted and fent to defend the paffes of the black town, the reft of the army marched into the fort. Mr. Lally gave no interruption to the retreat, probably becaufe he fufpected fome ftratagems. Three Europeans were killed in the cannonade, but the French loft 10, and as many wounded.

At the fame time that the main body of the French army were advancing to the Choultry plain, their irregular Sepoys with Lambert bert had proceeded along the fouth fide of the San Thomé river, in order to attack a redoubt fituated on the fide of it near the fea. The guard was only one company of Sepoys, who getting intelligence in time, retreated along the beach and arrived fafe in the garrifon.

As foon as Colonel Lawrence came into the fort, the council of the prefidency affembled, and by an unanimous vote committed the defence of the fiege to the governor Mr. Pigot, recommending to him to confult Colonel Lawrence on all occafions, and on extraordinary emergencies to affemble a council of the fuperior officers of the garrifon. The French army immediately encamped on the ground which the Englifh had quitted, but fent a detachment across the Triplicane river, which took post in the redoubt at Egmore.

As the French army were advancing from the Mount, 300 Europeans, with two twelve-pounders, had been fent off under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Murphy, against Pondamalee. They arrived at noon, and Murphy fummoned Enfign Crowley, with threats, as refifting in an untenable poft, although the fort was of ftone, and furrounded by a wet ditch. On Crowley's refufal, the twelve-pounders were employed until night, when 20 of the French detachment had been killed or wounded, and little damage had been done to the wall; but the Sepoys within, expecting neither fuccour nor quarter, began to waver; on which, Crowley marched with them out of the fort in deep filence at midnight, and paffing where he was apprized the enemy kept flight watch, got out of reach before they were ready to purfue; and, knowing the country, came in the next morning by the north of the black town. The number was 500, in five companies, of which three were the garrifon of Pondamalee, and two had retreated hither from the fort of Tripaffore.

Their arrival brought in the laft of the troops, flationed in diffant out-pofts, and completed the force with which Madrafs was to fuftain the fiege. The roll of the European military, including the officers with 64 topaffes, and 89 coffrees incorporated in the companies, nies, amounted to 1758 men. The Sepoys were 2220. Of the Europeans 24 were troopers mounted. The Nabob's horfe were 200; but, from experience, very little fervice was expected from them. The European inhabitants not military were 150 men, and they were appropriated without diffinction to ferve out flores and provisions to the garrifon. The native boatmen, who alone can ply acrofs the furf, had been retained by fpecial encouragements, and their huts, with their maffoolas or boats, extended under the wall next the fea, where it was fuppofed not a flot was likely to fall. The Nabob, with his family and attendants, had come into the fort on the day that the army retreated from the Mount; but, although lodged in one of the beft houfes, were much ftraitened for want of the room and conveniencies to which they had been accuftomed.

The French army continued on the other fide of the Triplicane river during the day they arrived from the Mount, and all the next; but at two in the morning of the 14th were in motion, and having paffed the river where the English had croffed, proceeded at the back of Egmore to the village of Viparee, which is about a mile to the north-weft of that poft, and from whence a good road leads nearly west to the northern part of the black town. Parts of the ancient bound hedge, and the ruins of fome guard-houfes, still remained along the north and weft fides of the black town; and, with the channel of the northern river, rendered the greatest part of the weftern fide very defenfible: but on the fide facing the north, were many gaps, too open to be maintained. The army, having advanced to the ford across which the road from Viparee leads into the town, fired their field-pieces before them, which the guards returned with their mufketry, but the Sepoys only with one fire, and then ran away. The Europeans, neverthelefs, defended the ford, and feveral other acceffes on either hand, until they perceived that feveral parties of the enemy had entered on the north fide; when all retreated as fast as they could to the fort, and none were intercepted. In the fkirmifhes, three of them had been killed; but of the enemy, eleven. Soon after, the whole of the French army appeared Lorrain, with the battalion of India, on the rifing ground to the weft; but both behind buildings which fcreened them from the fire of the ramparts. A multitude of the natives, with the ufual defpondency of their character, had remained in their habitations until the laft hour, and now came pouring upon the glacis, imploring admittance into the covered way, but were refused, and advised to make their efcape as well as they could in the night; feveral fpies and two or three deferters came mingled amongst them, who reported that the French troops were all employed in ranfacking the houfes, and that they had difcovered feveral warehoufes filled with arrack, with which moft of them had already got drunk; and fuch as were perceived from the town, appeared flaggering under their loads and liquor; on which it was refolved to make a ftrong fally before they fhould have time to recover themfelves.

Five hundred of the best men were draughted, and given to the command of Lieutenant Colonel Draper, who fuggested the defign ; and 100 with major Brereton were to follow a little while after, as a covering party. At eleven o'clock Draper's detachment marched out of the western ravelin; two companies of grenadiers led the line, but the two field-pieces were in the rear. Their way was, firft, 300 yards ftreight on to the weft, where a bridge croffes a ftagnated arm of the river that communicates with the western ditch of the fort. This bridge gives accefs to and from the black town by the afcent of the rifing ground, and is laid pointing to the N. w.: the afcent begins almost as foon as you have croffed the bridge, and the road to the top continues about 200 yards in that direction, when it turns into a long ftreet of Indian houses, which runs nearly north and fouth, and is croffed by feveral others on either hand. Such was the negligence and fecurity of the French army, that they did not perceive the approach of the detachment, until apprifed by a miftake of the English drummers, most of whom being black boys, began to beat the grenadiers march as foon as they entered the freet : and on which the whole line from one end to the other fet up their huzza; but even on this warning the enemy did not look out with fufficient attention to be certified in which ftreet the detachment was advancing, but drew up at the head of another, which ran parallel to it, about 100 yards on the left; in which they advanced 2 or 3 platoons about 50 yards lower down, at the opening of a crofs-ftreet which gave a ftrait communication between the two: the English troops marching on did not receive a fhot until they came opposite to this advanced guard, which then fired, and with execution, for the diftance was point blank : the first of the line returned the fire, but being the company of grenadiers halted no longer than this operation, and then proceeded; for Draper, knowing how near, and where the enemy's main body were drawn up, would not ftop the line, but fationed two platoons from the fucceeding companies to continue the fire, and prevent the enemy from breaking through the ftreet. He at the fame time ordered the two field-pieces to advance from the rear to the front, and the troops marching in whole files opened to the right and left to let them pafs; but before they were brought up, the grenadiers and fome more had pufhed on to the head of the long street, in which they were marching. This was terminated by another much broader that croffed it, coming on the right from the esplanade of the fort to the east, and continued 100 yards on the other hand to the weft of the long ftreet, where the crofs-ftreet turned to the north and then again to the weft. In that part of the crofs-ftreet to the left appeared the regiment of Lorrain, with four field-pieces, drawn up facing the fouth, opposite to the ftreet in which they had posted their advanced guard, and were expecting the English troops; to whom in this position they prefented their flank quite naked. Beyond them, in the continuation of the ftreet, after it has turned to the north, the battalion of India, which comprized the troops belonging to the French company, were affembling. Not a moment was loft in taking the advantage; the grenadiers, and as many more as the breadth of the ftreet, which was here 50 yards, would admit, faced and fired; but had fcarcely time to give a fecond, before the two field-pieces came up. In that part of the crofs-street where the English troops had faced, and in front VOL. II. Eee front of their left, almost adjoining to the long street they had paffed through, lay the ruins of a demolifhed houfe, which fpread more than half-way over the crofs-ftreet, and although not high enough to prevent a fingle rank of mulketry from firing over the rubbish, did not admit the field-pieces, which were therefore drawn up to the right of the rubbish, and the troops which had flood there made room for them, by crowding along the adjoining walls on that fide of the crofs-ftreet. Thefe alterations created fome confufion ; for they were made with much hurry from the ardour of fetting the field-pieces to work; which did not difappoint the expectation, but firing with grape knocked down numbers. Lorrain fcarcely ftood a minute before all the men ran into the oppofite houses; and all the officers could do was to turn the field-pieces, which the gunners likewife abandoned after the very first discharge. Draper immediately commanded his own firing to ceafe, and the grenadiers to follow him to the enemy's guns, to which he ran, and fired a piftol, but without effect, at an officer who remained by them, which the officer having returned with as little, offered to furrender himfelf and the guns, when Draper perceived that he had been followed by only four grenadiers. In the fame inftant, many of the French foldiers, encouraged by the ceafing of the English fire, and the backwardnefs of the men to advance with Draper, gathered again in the ftreet, and began to fire; by which two of the grenadiers were killed, and the other two wounded before they got back to their own men, and Draper returned with them. Now the field-pieces and mufketry on both fides commenced the hotteft fire ; but with encreasing havock from the enemy, whose numbers were augmented every moment by the battalion of India; and many of the English foldiers began in their turn to take shelter in the nearest houses and enclosures. Nevertheless, the brunt of this fight continued 20 minutes, when Draper convinced that no fuccefs was to be expected, and that the arrival of Lally's regiment from the feafide might cut off the whole detachment, ordered the retreat; but not a fingle drummer was found to beat it. The grenadiers of the Company's troops, not having room to be employed in the crofs-10 Areet ftreet occupied by other platoons and the field-pieces, had gone into a large enclofure on the fide of the fireet oppofite to the rubbish ; and as well as the others who had taken fhelter in houfes on the right were not apprized of the retreat: all who were marched huddled together down the crofs-fireet, which opened in lefs than 300 yards upon the efplanade, and under the protection of the guns of the fort; but the enemy purfued to clofe, and their fire both of cannon and mufketry became fo fuperior, that the two field-pieces in the rear of the detachment were abandoned; and the enemy's divisions had advanced to the enclofure in which the grenadiers had taken refuge, before they had thought of marching out. They were offered quarter, which they accepted, becaufe they could make no effectual refiftance, although they were eighty, the prime men of the garrifon. During the fight in the western part of the black town, the regiment of Lally towards the fea were with much difficulty got under arms by Mr. Buffy, for moft of the common men were reeling drunk. However, they had advanced, sheltered by houses from the fire of the fort, until they came within 300 yards of the ftreet in which the English were retreating, and arrived there just as the line were coming out of it upon the efplanade, when the interval between them was open to the fire of the fort ; the fear of which, and the miftruft of their intoxicated men, deterred the other platoons, and the field-pieces, officers from leading them on to the fair attack before them; and they were contented to fire from two field-pieces ill-pointed at the line, who as foon as out of the ftreet turned fhort to the fouth, and proceeded on the lower ground under the houfes which fkirted the weft face of the efplanade, until they came opposite to the north-west angle of the glacis, and met in the way the covering party with Major Brereton, which had advanced and was waiting for them in good order : the nearer the line came to the fort, the greater became their hurry to get into it, for many ran over the glacis; but all the officers, with as many men as they could keep together, marched in order to the entrance on the eaftern face of the north ravelin. No officer, excepting Lieutenant Billock, was killed on the fpot; but Major Polier, Captain Hume, and Enfign Chace, were Eee2 mortally mortally wounded : Polier came into the fort, but the other two were taken. Captain Pascall and Lieutenant Elliot were shot through the body; Lieutenants Stephen Smith and Blair, and Enfign Cook, were wounded and taken; but recovered. Of rank and file 103 were taken, of whom 19 were wounded : Fifty came in wounded, and fifty were left dead abroad, of whom all did not fall in the open action, for more than 20 were found killed in different houses, mostly stabbed with bayonets, and with their antagonifts lying dead befide them; fo that the garrifon loft the lives or fervice of more than 200 foldiers and fix officers by this fally. The French acknowledged 200 of their common men killed and wounded; and had 12 officers wounded, Saubinet mortally, and three killed on the fpot; they loft only four prifoners, of whom one was the Count D'Estaign ; his quarters were with Lally's regiment near the beach, and on the first firing he mounted his horfe. and came galloping down the crofs-ftreet to the rear of the English grenadiers, whom, being fhort-fighted, or perhaps not feeing at all through the fmoke, he took for French troops, nor perceived his mistake until within a few yards, when his horse stumbling, threw him, and before he could recover himfelf, he was feized by two drummers, who had their fwords drawn to ftab him, when Lieutenant Smith, the fame who was afterwards taken prifoner himfelf, ftepped between : his confequence being known, he was immediately fent away with an officer and a file of men to the fort. Mr. Lally blamed exceffively his own regiment for not marching on the first fire, which had they done, and the troops been lefs intoxicated, it is probable that very few of the English detachment would have efcaped. He endeavoured to fix the fault on Mr. Buffy, who juffified himfelf by the delay of Mr. Lally's orders, without which. according to the regulations of the fervice, the regiment could not march ; and then Buffy led them. Mr. Lally regretted exceedingly the lofs of Saubinet and the Count D'Estaign, and with reason; for the one poffeffed all the qualities of an able general, and the other of an active partizan.

Very

SIEGE OF FORT ST. GEORGE.

Very few cafes permit a ftrong fally from the garrifon at the opening of a fiege; the prefent was in fome meafure juftified by the fuppofition that the enemy's troops were intoxicated and in confusion : but, notwithstanding the ardour of the onfet, it left no advantageous impression of the firmness of the garrifon with the French officers; and Murphy, one of the most experience, proposed that a general affault should be made on the town in the ensuing night, in four divisions, and offered to lead the principal attack himfelf. It was lucky for them that his advice was not followed.

The next day the French army began to prepare their batteries, but in fituations concealed by houfes from the view of the ramparts; however, the motions to and fro left little doubt where they were at work, and fhells as well as fhot were fired at intervals throughout the day to interrupt them; although fparingly, except when certain of effect; and this prudent thrift was obferved throughout all the days, until they opened their batteries : but their artillery which had embarked for the fiege was ftill at a diftance at fea, and on the day of the fally a party of four companies of Sepoys, detached with Lieutenant Airey by Captain Prefton from Chinglapet, took the only 13 inch mortar, which was coming by land : it was efforted by 150 Sepoys; they were intercepted and defeated between Sadrafs and Cobelong; but Airey, having no bullocks to draw off the mortar, ruined it as well as he could, and left it on the road.

Intelligence had been received, that one of the veffels which had been laden with artillery at Alamparva, was detained at anchor off the point of Conimere, about 15 miles to the South of Sadrafs, by the contrary wind and current; and a Dutch Snow being in the road of Madrafs, it was refolved to equip and employ her, to attack the French veffel; accordingly 20 failors belonging to the fquadron who had been lately exchanged, and 40 of the marines left by Mr. Pococke, were fent on board under the command of a naval officer of experience; but juft as he was going to weigh, the failors refufed to ferve, pretending that they knew the French fhip was much too ftrong for them; on which they were relanded on the 10th, and the attempt was relinquifhed.

The experience of the very few days that the fort had been invefted, had convinced the Nabob of the increasing inconveniences which he and his family would fuffer by continuing in it through the fiege; and the garrifon still more wished to be freed from the ufeless confumption and embarrafiment of his retinue, which confifted of 400 men, with 200 horfes, befides other cattle, who, neverthelefs, could not decently be difmiffed whilft he remained. It was therefore refolved, with mutual fatisfaction, that he fhould proceed by fea with his wife, women, and children, and their immediate attendants, on board the Dutch fnow, which was to land them at the Dutch fettlement of Negapatam ; from whence, being in the Tanjore country, they might proceed fecurely to Tritchinopoly. They embarked, attended by one of the council, on the night of the 20th. and before morning were out of fight; the Nabob's dependants were then told, that they might provide for their own fafety, and in a few nights most of them quitted the town.

Book X.

On the 16th at night, a fally was made to the north by 40 Europeans, and as many Sepoys; but they were difcovered before they got clear of the glacis, and returned without firing. Two fallies were made on the night of the 19th : the one by 20 Europeans and 30 Sepoys, under the command of Enfign Bonjour, who proceeded to the northward under the beach to the first houses beyond the efplanade, when fome of the Sepoys cried out they faw horfe, and giving a fcattering fire took flight, which obliged the Europeans. after giving theirs, to retreat likewife, but, before they were out of reach, they received the enemy's, by which one was killed and two wounded. The other fally was of 1000 Sepoys, under the command of Jemaul Saheb, to the fouthward; they were to beat up a guard posted at the garden-house, and then proceed to St. Thomé, in order to feize a piece of battering cannon which was waiting there for bullocks, under the efcort of a company of Sepoys: they marched over the Triplicane-bridge, but had fcarcely got into the St. Thomé Road, when they received a fire from the first enclosure on the left, which threw the whole body into a panick, and all excepting cepting 30 or 40 returned into the fort, and none of them had received a wound.

On the 21ft another detachment of 1000 Sepoys with 20 Europeans fallied at 10 o'clock in the day, under the conduct of Lieutenant Balantyne and Enfign Crowley, in order to beat up a party with 2 guns which were reported to be posted at the pagoda in the village of Triplicane about a mile to the fouth of the fort. They croffed the bar of the Triplicane river, and proceeded driving feveral fmall Sepoy guards before them to the pagoda ; where, not finding either the party or the guns they were feeking, they turned into the St. Thomé road, and croffing it, marched along the other road, which leads to the Choultry-plain, intending to attack the enemy's guards on the outfide of the enclofures near the village of Chindadrepettah ; but before they arrived on the plain 300 Europeans were reported ad-vancing from Triplicane river, on which the detachment marched back to the bridge, and returned by the ftrand of the river to the bar, where * a company of grenadiers were waiting to cover their retreat. Whilft this detachment was abroad, two pieces of battering cannon, drawn by a great many bullocks and coolies, were perceived croffing from the village of Chindadrepettah to the s. w. towards the black town, and being within random that of the weftern baftions feveral cannon were fired upon them, which foon ftopt the bullocks and coolies, and one of the guns funk to the axle-tree in the mud; upon which 300 Sepoys, encouraged by the promife of a reward, marched with Jemaul Saheb to fpike up thefe guns : on their appearance the drivers caft off and hurried away the bullocks, and the coolies ran away; but before the Sepoys got to the bridge, which leads to Egmore, 200 European horfe, followed by fome infantry, appeared advancing from the camp in the black town ; on which the party was recalled into the fort.

On the 17th, all the English prifoners that had been taken at the fally were fent away for Pondicherry. They were 100, and were efcorted by 150 of the European horse, 40 European soot, and 500 Sepoys. They moved flowly, and proceeded towards Sadrass, by the road near the sea shore, which passet by Cobelong, where they were 2 halting on the 19th. Captain Prefton, zealous to recover the prifoners, marched in the night of the 19th, with the greatest part of the garrifon of Chinglapet, to intercept them. His party was only 80 Europeans, 400 Sepoys, and two field-pieces. They croffed the country, and halted at 10 o'clock next day fix miles to the fouth of Sadrafs. A channel of 20 miles in length extends from Cobelong to within three miles of Sadrafs, and has at each extremity an opening to the fea, from which it receives its water, and at times enough to overflow the country a mile a-crofs, in which state it was at prefent. Befides the road leading from Cobelong to Sadrafs along the fea fhore, there is another within the inundation, and Prefton remaining where he had halted fent half his force over the water with lieutenant Airey, to wait for the enemy on the other road ; two hours after appeared a body of 400 Sepoys, with fome black horfe, whom Prefton kept at a diftance and difperfed; and in the evening, Airey's party returned without any tidings of the efcort, which had paffed on to Sadrafs before he croffed the water, on which Prefton. marched back to his garrifon, where he arrived the next day.

The commandant Mahomed Iffoof, after having been detained three days at Outatore by the rains, arrived on the 29th of November at Thiagar, where he was joined by the killidar, Kiftnarow, with 250 horfe, and 1000 foot; and Mahomed Iffoof himfelf had enlifted 100 horfe on the road. Their forces marched on the first of December, and invested Elavanafore, which stands ten miles to the west of Thiagar. There were in the fort two companies of Sepoys belonging to the French, with a lieutenant, Dumefnil, and three other Europeans, a ferjeant, and two gunners, and two field-pieces : this garrifon defended themfelves until the close of the evening, when they furrendered. Fifty of the Sepoys took fervice with Mahomed Iffoof; the reft were difarmed and permitted to go where they pleafed, but the four Europeans were fent to Tritchinopoly : fome flores and ammunition were found in the fort. The next day Kiftnarow went away with his own troops to get plunder, and on the 7th burnt a village in fight of Fort St. David; but Mahomed Iffoof did not move until the 5th, when he proceeded to Tricolore, a for-4 a fortified pagoda, ten miles to the north of Elavanafore. On the 6th, he was joined by 200 horfe, 1500 Colleries, and 250 Peons, fent by the polygar Tondiman, and the day after attacked the pagoda, in which were three companies of Sepoys, who defended it with much activity until eight at night, when they offered to furrender provided they were permitted to march away with their arms and effects; and having already killed 15 and wounded 55 of Mahomed Iffoof's troops, he accepted their terms; and then following the track of Kiftnarow marched to the eaftward, fpreading his army to ravage the country, all of which, as far as the fea, paid revenue to the French. On the 15th they appeared at Villenore, within fight of Pondicherry, and brought fo much terror, that the inhabitants of the adjacent villages took fhelter in crowds within the bound hedge. On the 18th they cut the mound of the great tank at Valdoor, and let out the water to deftroy the cultivations it was referved to fertilize. The fword was little used, but fire every where, and the cattle were driven away to Tricaloor. Mr. Lally on hearing of these devastations, sent word to Mr. Pigot, that he would retaliate, by putting men, women, and children to the fword in the territory about Madrafs; he however forbore to execute the threat. On the 21ft Mahomed Iffoof was joined by 300 horfe from Tanjore, not furnished by the king, but hired there with his permission, by Mahomed Iffoof's agents : on the fame day Kistnarow returned with all his troops to Thiagar. The next, Mahomed Iffoof began his march from Villaporum to the northward, ftill continuing his ravages. Rajahfaheb, with a confiderable body of horfe, had been for fome time at Conjeveram, waiting to protect those districts from his excursions, and on his approach croffed the Paliar, and advanced to Salavauck, as feemingly with intention to give him battle; but on better intelligence of his force, took shelter under the guns of Vandiwash. Lambert was also on the other fide of the Paliar with 400 Sepoys, 25 Europeans, and two guns, but on the fame information marched round and ftopt at two days diftance in his rear. On the 25th Mahomed Iffoof with his army joined Captain Prefton at Chinglapet.

On the 22d the Harlem, fo long expected by the enemy, anchored in the evening at Onore, three leagues to the north of the black The next day, the Thames, laden with all kinds of protown. visions, arrived in the road from Vizagapatam ; the wind was high, and the ship had but two anchors, and in the next forenoon parted from that by which the was riding, before one that was coming from the fhore on a catamaran could reach her; and the Harlem getting under weigh from Onore at the fame time, the flood out to fea, intending to regain the road in the evening, but before night was driven out of fight to leeward. She brought the news of the victory gained by Colonel Forde at Pedipore over the French troops with Mr. Conflans, which the fort anounced to the enemy by 21 guns pointed upon their quarters from the northern baftions, and the fire of the whole garrifon drawn up in the covered way. The next day the Harlem stopped and feized a vessel trading from the norward, laden with 1000 bags of rice, of which the French camp was much in want. The artillery brought by the Harlem was not fufficient to fupply the intended batteries ; but feveral cannon and mortars of those unladen from the Diligent and Expedition at Alamparvah, and brought in boats from thence to San Thomé, paffed every day from this place to the camp in the black town, and generally across the plain of Egmore, within fight of the fort ; but fince the fally of the Sepoys on the 21ft, the efcorts were too ftrong to be attacked by any parties which the garrifon could with prudence rifque at that diftance. But the flock of gun-powder neceffary for the batteries was not yet completed; for this was brought the whole way from Pondicherry or Alamparvah, by land; and for the want of bullocks with much delay.

The commandant Mahomed Iffoof on his arrival at Chinglapet difpatched the greateft part of his horfe, which were now near 1000, to ravage and deftroy the country about Conjeveram, from which the French government drew revenues, and their army before Madrafs, provisions. On the 27th, he marched himfelf with his infantry, intending according to inftructions he had received from Mr. Pigot, to furprize the French troops which were quartered in the town town of San Thomé; but Captain Preston thinking this a hazardous enterprize, refolved to participate in it, and accompanied him with 80 Europeans, two field-pieces, and fix companies of Sepoys, from his garrifon. They arrived at the Mount on the 29th, and were rejoined the fame day by the horfe from Conjeveram : during the enfuing night, a detachment of 500 Europeans, of which 100 were cavalry, 600 Sepoys, and 800 black horfe, marched from the black town and other posts, under the command of Mr. Soupire, and at day-break the next morning had paffed the village of Sidapet, and were within fight of the Mount before their approach was known ; however, the activity of Preston and Mahomed Isloof stopt the effects of the furprize, and in a few minutes the troops from both their camps were in march : the enemy halted and began to cannonade, which was returned and continued until 10 o'clock, when Captain Prefton feeing an advantage, made a pufh with the Chinglapet troops, and feized two of their guns, whilft Mahomed Isloof with his kept the main body at bay and prevented them from making an effort to refcue them ; however, the enemy retreated in good order to Sidapte for the greatest part of Mahomed Isloof's cavalry were, if possible, worfe than the black horfe with the French, and few of either ventured within arm's length of each other. Fifteen of the French Europeans, with fome of their Sepoys and horfes, were left dead on the plain, but they carried away their wounded, of whom fifteen were troopers; most of this execution was done by the field-pieces; the Chinglapet troops loft only one European, but feveral Sepoys; and more of Mahomed Iffoof's Sepoys with fome of his horfemen, were killed and wounded : both Prefton's and Mahomed Iffoof's divisions continued at the mount.

At break of day the next morning, 1000 Sepoys, with the troop of horfe, fallied from the garrifon of Fort St. George by the fouthern gate, in order to beat up the guards at the bar of the river, the garden-houfe, and the village of Triplicane, which they effected without opposition; they likewife intercepted a tappy or letter-carrier, coming with many to the French army, which gave information of the arrival of a vefiel at Pondicherry from the ifland of Mauritius with 70 chefts of filver. day clofed the year. Mr. Lally intended to open the next with his first fire against the fort; but the preparations to equip a large detachment intended to attack the troops with Preston and Mahomed Issued, deferred the battery to the 2d of January.

The French, whilft in poffession of Fort St. George, after taken by Labourdonnais, had made feveral improvements and additions to the flight works they found, which neverthelefs, rendered the fort little capable of long refiftance against the regular approaches of an European enemy; nor had they given any extension to the internal area, which did not exceed 15 acres of ground. Neverthelefs, the English let the place remain in the state they received it from the French in 1751, until the beginning of the year 1756; when the expectation of another war with that nation, and the reports of the great preparations making in France against India, dictated the neceffity of rendering it completely defenfible. Accordingly all the coolies, labourers, and tank diggers, which the adjacent country could fupply, were from this time conftantly employed on the fortifications : their daily number generally amounted to 4000 men. women, and children, who had continued on the works until lately driven away by the approach of the French army from Conjeveram.

An addition had been projected in the year 1743 by the engineer. Mr. Smith, father of Captain Joseph Smith, which included as much ground as the former area of the fort : the ditch which marked its limits was then dug and faced with brick, and was fupplied with water by a communication with the northern river, which at that time ran along the foot of the ancient wall to the weft; but on account of the expence, nothing was then raifed above the furface. and the naked ditch remained when Delabourdonnais came before the town, neither an obfirmction nor an advantage to his attack. It was in the fame condition in 1756, when the new works were refolved on; and the plan of Mr. Smith having been approved by Mr. Robins, the fortifications on this fide were raifed in conformity to. that projection. To join the new rampart with the old baftion to the s.w. and to gain the ground in the new area which was occupied by the river, its bed was filled up, beginning from the s. w. baftion, with earth dug from the edge of the rifing ground of the black black town to the north-weft, which the excavation removed 40 yards farther from the works : but only two-thirds of the bed of the river under the old wall had been choaked up. The river ftopped in its former channel, was directed in another, which environed the weft and part of the fouth face of the new works, washing in some places the foot of the glacis, until it rejoined its former bed at the head of the fpit of fand. The old wall of the western fide still remained as a retrenchment to capitulate on, in cafe the outward should be carried. The new extention on this fide comprized three large baftions and their out-works. The fouthern of these three baftions communicated with the old baffion, which flood before on the s.w. angle, by the curtain raifed across the former chanel of the river; and this curtain encreased the fouth face of the fort from 1 30 to 210 vards. Neverthelefs, the works on this fide were much lefs defenfible than those to the west and north ; but the furface of water and quagmire in the river before it, rendered this front inacceffible. excepting by the labours of a much greater army, than the prefent attack. The ground on the north of the fort gave the befieger much more advantage than on the other fides; and this face was therefore ftrengthened in proportion : the two former baftions and rampart, as improved and left by the French, were fuffered to remain, but the ditch and glacis which they had dug and raised, were, the one filled up, and the other removed further out, to admit better works. In the front of the N.W. baftion was raifed another capable of mounting 28 guns; each of the faces were 100 yards in length, and a battalion might be drawn up on its rampart, although a large vacancy was left in the gorge, or back part, to increase the interval towards the former baffion behind, which this was intended to cover; it was from its fuperior ftrength called the royal baftion. A demi baffion corefponding with the royal was raifed before the old N.E. baftion, that flood on the beach of the fea, which however the demi baftion did not entirely envelop; for its right hand or east face extending in a line parallel to the fea, adjoined to the fhoulder angle of the nothern face of the old baftion, leaving this face free to fire forward, but confining the extent of ground it commanded to the fame width as the fpace between the east face of the demibation and the fea:-

to the westward, the old bastion had two guns clear of the demi baftion. which fupplied the defence on this fide by four guns in the flank, and 7 in its northen face. The two new baftions commuteated with each other by a broad fauffebray that paffed along the foot of the old rampart and baftions; this fauffebray was defended by a flout parapet feven feet high, which adjoined to the flanks of the new baftions. The ditch on this front was dry, becaufe the ground here was feven feet higher than the level of the canal which fupplied the ditches to the weft and fouth ; but a Cuvette or trench feven feet deep and 25 feet broad was dug the whole length of the ditch, which before the fauffebray was 180 feet wide, and before the baftions, ninety. The covered way of this front was broad and well pallifaded, and contained between the two baffions a large ravelin capable of 18 guns, o in each of its faces. The glacis was excellent, and little was wanting to compleat the defences on this fide, excepting mines, which the want of time and bricklayers had not allowed. The western face had likewife its covered way palifaded, and glacis, and contained three ravelins, of which that in the middle was the largeft. The eaftern face extended along the beach of the fea within twenty vards of the furf, but thips could not approach near enough to batter it with any effect; and no guns could be brought to bear upon it by land. Before the fea gate, which flands in the middle of the curtain, was a battery of thirteen guns; fifty yards on the right of this battery was a platform of old ftanding, with 14 guns to return falutes, which had hitherto been left without a parapet : the original curtain, although nothing more than a brick wall four feet thick, had never been strengthened; but a trench fix feet deep, and 10 wide, had lately been dug before it; and a ditch with palifadoes was intended to have been carried round the battery and the platform, but had not been executed at either. The only danger on this fide was from a fudden affault or furprize, which could rarely come by boats landing unawares acrofs the furf; but always, and with eafe, by a body of men paffing on the edge of it by either of the baftions at the extremities; to prevent which, a row of anchors, backed by palifades, and a trench a trench were extended from the neck of each bastion quite into the furf. No buildings, excepting sheds, had been raised in the new ground taken in to the westward; and in those of the old, the bomb-proof lodgments were not fufficient for the security of the garrifon.

The first appearance of any work done by the enemy had been difcerned in the morning of the 18th of December, when Lally's regiment had compleated a breaft-work clofe to the fea, 580 yards from the covered way; it was sheltered by houses on the right, but open in front to a direct fire from the north-east and demi bastions : from this breaftwork they continued a trench by two zig zags 180 yards nearer the fort, which brought the trench 40 yards upon the efplanade : here they began a battery intended for many guns, which extended from the beach, parallel to the fame fire as the breaft-work, and behind this battery on the right they raifed another for fix mortars, which they compleated by the end of the month ; but the conftant fire of the fort had retarded their work and prevented them from opening any embrafures in the battery for the cannon, becaufe they had not enough ready for this, and another battery of fix guns, which the regiment of Lorrain had on their fide compleated at the opening of a fireet on the rifing ground to the weftward, which enfiladed the face of the royal baftion, and the covered way before it ; behind this battery were two mortars imprudently sheltered by the rubbish of houses, which had been demolished for the purpose. The garrifon called this the Lorrain, and the other by the fea, Lally's battery.

At break of day, on the 2d of January, the Lorrain battery began to fire both its cannon and mortars, which were foon followed by four thirteen-inch mortars from Lally's, which threw their fhells in vollies all together. The fort returned with fhells as well as fhot upon the Lorrain battery with 11 guns, four on the weft face of the Royal, five on the flank of the Demi, and two on the weft flank of the old north-east bastion : this fuperiority in lefs than an hour difinounted two of the Lorrain guns, and obliged them to withdraw the other four; but against the mortars, either here or at Lally's, the 405 1759.

the fire of the defences could have little effect, excepting by luck, fince they were concealed and defended, as ufual, by a high and ftrong parapet: this annoyance, therefore, continued until feven in the evening, during which time only 80 fhells had been thrown from both, all of which fell about the middle of the inhabited part of the fort, where flood the government houfe, againft which they feemed to have been aimed, and two went through the upper roof: much mifchief was alfo done to the adjoining buildings; but not a fingle perfon was either killed or wounded by their fall or explofions, nor had any one fuffered by the cannon fhot of the morning.

As foon as the night clofed, feveral of the principal European women, with their children, were fent away in three maffoolah boats, to refide under the protection of the Dutch fettlement at Sadrafs; they had not been gone two hours before intelligence was received from Captain Prefton, that a French detachment had furprized the fort of Sadrafs, taken pofferfion of the town, and made the garrifon and all the Dutch inhabitants prifoners; but it was too late to recall the Maffoolahs. Another letter from Prefton, which came in the morning, gave information of an action which he had fuftained the day before.

The town of San Thomé was become a post of great confequence to the French army. The remains of an ancient ditch and bad ground round most parts of the town, with the river and the English redoubt to the fouth, fecured it from furprize, unless attempted by very fuperior numbers. They accordingly made the town the flation of their boats, as well as the temporary repofitory of their convoys coming by land, and had likewife eftablished in it one of the hospitals of their camp: but the junction of Mahomed Iffoof's troops, with Prefton's, rendered the maintenance of the town an object of much greater doubt and folicitude, than when it was only exposed to fallies from the garrison of Fort St. George; and the body of French troops which had engaged Prefton and Mahomed Iffoof at the mount on the 30th of December retreated immediately after the action to San Thomé. The day after the action Preston received intelligence that the partizan, Lambert, was advancing advancing from the fouth, with a large quantity of flores and a flrong efcort ; on which he moved from the Mount, in order to intercept them, and encamped at Trivambore, which is a village with a pagoda, fituated two miles to the fouth of San Thomé, and one from the fea fhore. He was followed by the troops of Mahomed Iffoof: it having been agreed, in order to prevent jealoufies as well as confusion, that the two commands should move and encamp in feparate bodies. The troops of Mahomed Iffoof confifted of 3500 foot, 500 horfe, with three bad field-pieces; they encamped to the north of the village, and extended almost to the fea, with their front towards San Thomé. Captain Prefton, with his division, which confifted of 600 Sepoys, with 80 Europeans, and two brafs threepounders, pitched their tents to the fouth, looking out for Lambert towards Sadrafs. Mr. Lally, apprehensive that they intended to attack San Thomé, encreafed the European infantry there to 500 rank and file, and the European horfe to 150. Mr. Soupire commanded, and leaving all the black troops, whether horfe or Sepoys, marched at three in the morning with the Europeans only, who were 650 horfe and foot, and without field-pieces. Half an hour before day they fell on the camp of Mahomed Ifloof, which had gained no warning of their approach. The furprize and confusion was fo great, that Mahomed Iffoof himfelf efcaped at the back of his tent, and his troops fled every way under the enemy's fire, which lafted fifteen minutes without interruption ; during which Prefton turned out his line, and fent forward his piquets to difcover, who returned without perceiving any figns of troops to the fouth ; at the fame time the croud of fugitives shewed that the enemy were in possession of Mahomed Isloof's camp, and Prefton, judging that their order muft have been much broken by the onfet, the action, the darknefs, and the interruptions fpread over the ground, immediately refolved to attack them; and marching with his whole division at the back of the village to the weftward, came on the flank of Mahomed Iffoof's camp, almost as foon as his approach was difcovered; where the French troops, thinking they had routed all their enemies, were collecting the plun-Ggg VOL II. der :

der; nor could the officers recall them to any order, before the fire of Preston's division, led by his two field-pieces loaded with grape, fcoured through the camp, and his mufketry was augmented by the return of the best of Mahomed Islooff's Sepoys. Nevertheles, fome of the enemy in different parties endeavoured to rally; but, having no ftrong or collected fire to return, they fell, the more they ventured to make refiftance, and all at length broke in confusion; but when at fome diffance the officers prevailed on them to ftop, and they marched off in order. They had got poffeffion of the two fieldpieces, of Mahomed Ifloof's division, but did not tarry to draw them off. Thirty-fix of their Europeans were counted dead; of whom one was a captain, and another a lieutenant. Of the English troopsin both actions two Europeans were killed and fix wounded; of the Sepoys 60, and 121; but only three of the black cavalry, and five horfes were killed. On a review at three o'clock in the afternoon, only 700 of Mahomed Iffoof's Sepoys were numbered ; all the reft of his troops, cavalry, colleries, and fepoys, on a fuppofition that Preston's division had been as eafily routed as themfelves. fled acrofs the country, nor thought themfelves fafe before they got under the guns of Chinglapett, and according to their example the market-people ran away with their bullocks and provisions, of which there was not fufficient for one meal left in the camp; and this want obliged the troops which remained to march away the fame evening with the appearance of defeat as far as Vendaloor, in order to meet a fupply from Chinglapett.

The fuperior fire of the fort in the morning determined the enemy to wait until they could renew the attack with lefs difproportion. On the 4th a fmall floop laden with flores and ammunition worked through the road and anchored near the Harlem, and maffoolas had every day paffed between St. Thomé and the black town. At daybreak on the 6th, a volley of fix mortars were thrown from Lally's battery, as a fignal of preparation, and they were the firft, either fhot or fhell, which the enemy had fired fince their mortars ceafed on the evening of the 2d, although the fort had conftantly fired both to interrupt their work. At fun-rife they commenced a regular cannonade nade and bombardment, which confifted of feven guns and fix large mortars from Lally's, and feven guns, with a howitz, from the Lorrain battery, with the two mortars in this quarter, which, however, fired but feldom. Although the Lorrain battery fired only from feven embrafures, it had been augmented to ten, of which the ad-" ditional four were in a return, or extending from an angle to the right of the other fix, and bore upon Pigot's, the next baffion on the weft front to the left of the royal. The enemy's fire, both of fhot and shells, was directed more against the buildings than against the works. The fort returned on Lally's battery 11 guns from the old north-east bastion, the north ravelin, and the royal bastion. Against the Lorrain battery, likewife, eleven guns, four from the royal baftion, two from the north-west curtain near Pigot's bastion, and three from the center ravelin called St. George's on the weft : but more guns bore upon the batteries, if it had been neceffary to ufe them.

'The enemy's mortars continued through the night,' and were rejoined in the morning by the cannon of the preceding day, and two more, from a battery intended for four, which was raifed on the efplanade, adjoining to the weft-fide of the burying-ground, about 400 yards to the west of Lally's battery, and almost in the perpendicular of the N. w. or falient angle of the royal baftion, from which it was diffant 450 yards. The two guns, now opened in the burying ground, bore upon the weft face of the north ravelin and on the west flank of the old N. E. bastion. The enemy's cannon still continuing to point high, did little damage to the works, but the buildings, much damaged before, fuffered greatly by the fall of their shells. At the twilight of the next day, the 8th of the month, the three maffoolas which had been fent with the English women to Sadrafs, landed at the fort. The French being in poffeffion of Sadrafs had feized thefe boats, laden them with 50 barrels of gunpowder, and feveral other military ftores, and fent them with the fame boatmen guarded by a French foldier in each, to their own army in the black town. At four in the morning when opposite to the fort, each of the foldiers had fallen fast afleep, on which the boatmen concerted in their own language with the

the certainty of not being underftood, although overheard; and having first poured water into the firelocks, overpowered and bound the January. foldiers, and then landed the boats at the fea gate. This uncommon instance of fidelity and spirit in men, who are deemed a mean and outcast race, was rewarded and encouraged by paying them immediately the full value of the gunpowder and ftores. The enemy's mortars renewed at midnight, and at day-break their cannon, with two pieces more, mounted in the battery at the burying ground. In the afternoon they fet fire to a warehouse near the s. E. baftion, full of faltpetre and brimftone, which could not be extinguished for feveral hours; during which the enemy plied the spot, where the black column of fmoke arofe, with fhells and plunging thot, which did no damage. Lieutenant Brooke, a diligent officer in the artillery, was killed by a cannon ball in the demi-baftion. The enemy's thip Diligent, reladen with artillery and all kind of ftores, anchored in the morning off the black town, having been 30 days in working along the coaft from Alamparva, although the streight distance is not 60 miles.

The fame fire, but more frequent on both fides, continued on the oth, the enemy's mortars still against the buildings; but their cannon, which in the two preceding dayshad only filenced two guns, in this difabled or difmounted five, and two mortars. In the night, befides the ufual repairs, five embrafures were cut through the glacis of the falient angle before the demi-baftion, pointing obliquely against Lally's battery, and guns were mounted in them; but Lally's, neverthelefs, difinounted two guns on the demi-baftion the next day; and on the 11th all the five towards the land on the old N. E. baffion were difabled by this and the Lorrain battery. Early this morning the enemy likewife opened two more guns in a ricochet battery intended for four, which they had raifed near the English hospital, on the rising ground fronting the center ravelin on the weft fide of the fort, against which, however, it was not intended to fire, but to enfilade the royal baftion : it likewife bore upon part of the north-weft curtain towards Pigot's. Notwithstanding this battery stood at a much greater distance from the fort, than any of the other three, it was more exposed than either of them to a fally; for none of their guns had embrafures, but fired, plunging over the parapet, and the guard might be beaten up, and the guns fpiked, before fuccour could arrive from the neareft of the enemy's quarters: aware of this they had carried on a trench, from the end of the fireet through which Draper had marched, to the foot of the bridge, which croffed the ground fronting the battery, and a picquet guard was conftantly kept in the trench, ready to give the alarm. They had likewife began a breaft-work at the bar of the Triplicane river to the fouth, in order to annoy the black people and cattle, which were fheltered on the fpit of fand at the foot of the glacis on this fide; and as many inconveniences would enfue from their difperfion, it was refolved to drive the enemy from the breaft-work.

Accordingly a detachment of 200 Europeans, of which half were grenadiers, and 400 Sepoys, marched under the command of Major Brereton, between four and five in the morning, whilft it was ftill dark : when arrived at the bar they received a fire from fome Sepoys posted behind the unfinished parapet, which killed one and wounded two of the grenadiers ; but, as the Sepoys immediately difappeared, the fire was not returned, and the detachment proceeded through the coco-nut groves to the left, without meeting any other opposition, until they came into the lane which leads into the St. Thomé road, along the garden wall of the governor's houfe, when a trooper, fent forward, difcovered a party of the enemy drawn up at the end of the lane, with a field-piece. On this intelligence the advanced guard of grenadiers marched up brifkly, fired, and pufhing on, received the difcharge of the gun loaded with grape, as well as the mulketry that fupported it, by which five of them were wounded, and lieutenant Robfon mortally : the reft, neverthelefs, feized the gun before the enemy had time to fire it again, who took shelter in a house and garden on their right, from whence their fire killed three Sepoys and wounded two, with an European, before they were diflodged. It was yet fcarcely twilight, and as the grenadiers were drawing off the gun, Jemaul Saheb, the commandant of the Sepoys, who had been prying in the St. Thome road, difcovered another gun T gun a little below the garden-houfe, and appearing jealous of the honour, was permitted to feize and bring it off with a party of Sepoys only, which they effected without receiving any return to their firft fire. The detachment marched back the fame way they had come, and arrived in the fort at fun-rife with the two guns, and five European prifoners, one of whom was an officer feverely wounded. Previous to this, two other, but flight fallies had been made; the one to the N. w. bridge, which fired into the enemy's trench before the hofpital battery; the other, to difturb the workmen in the zigzags to the northward; this party advanced to the head of the work, killed a centinel, and brought away two or three mufkets, without any lofs. The enemy's mortars flackened this day, but the fire of their cannon continued with as much vivacity as before, and difabled four guns, which as ufual were replaced before the next morning.

By this time it was evident that the enemy intended to direct the ftrefs of their attack against the two northern bastions, which dictated the neceffity of fecuring them with additional defences : accordingly a palifade was begun in the ditch on the hither fide of the cuvette, to extend quite round the demibaftion; a blind, or rampart of earth, at 30 yards diffance, in the ditch before the N. E. baftion; and a fafcine battery of fix guns, on the ftrand between the east curtain and the fea, a little in the rear of the shoulder angle of this baftion. Early the next morning, which was the 13th, a shell from the fort fet fire to fome huts behind Lally's battery, which fpreading, caught a magazine, and blew it up, with a number of loaded bombs: no fire paffed this day either from or against the N. E. or demi baftions; and no gun was difinounted in any part of the fort; but the enemy doubled the number of their workmen in the zig zag, who were interrupted as much as possible by what fire bore upon them from the royal baftion, the north ravelin, and the embrasures of the falient angle before the demi-bastion ; in the night the enemy fired with a field-piece loaded with grape, from the head of their works, on a small party posted near this angle, under the cover of a boat, and wounded three of them, on which the reft retired into the covered way.

SIEGE OF FORT ST. GEORGE.

In the morning of the 14th, the enemy opened a battery of three mortars between Lally's and the burying-ground, but in the rear of both, and concealed by the houfes between them, from the fight of the fort : their fire this day difabled a mortar and two guns : during the night a constant fire of musketry from the covered way, and of cannon and mortars from the works of the north front, was kept up against the enemy's approaches, and retarded their progress. On. the 15th, they had 10 guns mounted in Lally's, and kept up through the day a fire from 21, befides their 11 mortars as before : but Lally's guns did all the mifchief to the works, difinounting two guns in the Demi, and two in the north-east bastion, and their shot, which flew over, took in flank the three other batteries towards the fea, and difinounted two guns on the fea-gate battery, two on the faluting battery, and one on the s.E. or St. Thomé baftion, in all eleven: the fire on the trenches continued through the night, from which the enemy, neverthelefs, detached a picquet, which drove in the party posted on the falient angle of the glacis.

The enemy's cannonade continued on the 16th, with the addition of two guns on Lally's battery, which now fired with 12, all. 24 or 18 pounders, to which the fort could only oppose the direct fire of fix of equal weight, which were from the north-east and demi baftions; for the guns in the falient angle of the glacis, and in the fascine battery on the ground below, were of inferior calibres; and as it was conftantly neceffary to employ many men in reinftating the damages of the demi-baftion, a traverfe was raifed to preferve the guns in its flank from the infilading fire of Lally's; and whilft this and other work was doing, the three embrafures of its face to the right, which were open to the fhot of Lally's, were kept closed until the next day; fo that no guns in this baftion were either fired against, or difmounted by that battery ; which having the more to use against the other works difabled one on the north-eaft, and obliged the garrifon to withdraw the five guns in the falient angle of the glacis; and as the trenches were now advanced within 50 yards, thefe embrafures were filled up, and the earth leveled again to the general flope of the glacis, At 11 at night a fally was made from St. George's or the west ravelin to.

to fire into the trench extending before the hofpital battery; but the guard there taking the alarm in time, 50 men advanced acrofs the bridge leading to it, and after a fire given and returned, drove the party back into the covered way. Another fally of 12 Europeans was made at one in the morning, under the command of enfign Barnes, againft the head of the enemy's trenches, into which they gave their fire, and finding only five or fix men in it, advanced, until a relief of 40 or 50 came up from the rear, who drove them back, and before they regained the covered way, enfign Barnes, with two of the foldiers, were killed. Before and after this fally, a conftant fire, as in the preceding nights, was kept up until morning on the enemy's workmen; who, notwithftanding thefe interruptions, advanced the fap above 20 yards.

Even the garrifon acknowledged the activity of the enemy's progrefs, and frequent letters had been difpatched, enjoining Captain Preston and Mahomed Issof to approach, and interrupt their operations ; but these officers were no longer masters of their own. Retreating after the action at Trivambore, they arrived at Vendaloor on the 3d, where they found fome provisions. Prefton's division was unimpaired; of Mahomed Iffoof's, most of the Tritchinopoly Sepoys, and 150 of the new-levied horfe, had rejoined the reft of those who had fled to Chinglapet, who were the 1500 Colleries and 500 horfe fent by Tondiman, the 300 horfe from Tanjore, and the fame number of his own levies; and all thefe troops refused to march back from Chinglapett to Vendalore. The kind of warfare for which they were intended, and only fit, rendered their defertion in the prefent conjuncture of too much confequence to be neglected : and after feveral ineffectual meffages, the two commanders marched on the 6th from Vendalore, and joined them at Chinglapett. On expoftulation, the cavalry in general, pleaded with much complaint, the lofs, although owing to their own cowardice, of their baggage and effects at Trivambore, and little lefs than declared, that they had not engaged in the fervice, with the expectation of exposing their horses against Europeans, but were willing to act in their usual modes; which Preston rightly interpreted plunder; and to gratify their withes.

wifnes, confented to march with them into the French diffricts around Conjeveram, in which they continued feveral days employed in plunder and ravage; and no shelter grounds protected the cattle from the fearch of the colleries. On the 13th, Prefton thinking they had been fufficiently indulged with booty, began his march back from Conjeveram, intending to come again in fight of Madrafs; but on the first halt, all the troops which he had endeavoured with fo much complacence to conciliate, colleries as well as cavalry, left him and croffed the Paliar. This fecond defertion left no doubt of their inutility, and Prefton refolved not to act with them any longer, even if they fhould return of their own accord; but as the horfe of Rajahfaheb, who were 800, and the European cavalry of the French army, rendered it impoffible for the infantry of both the Englifh commands, although many, if unfupported by horfe, to continue near enough to harrafs the enemy's camp, without more rifque to themfelves, Prefton refolved to march to Arcot, in order to collect a body of better cavalry, of which he heard feveral parties were waiting ready to take fervice on the western confines of the province. Mr. Pigot received intelligence of this motion and its motives on the 16th of the month, but concealed it, as every other which might difpirit the garrifon.

The enemy's fire, continuing the fame on the 17th as the day before, difmounted three guns and a mortar. Ever fince the ninth of the month, two fhips had been feen off St. Thomé, which had every day weighed anchor, endeavouring to get to the northward, but were conftantly flemmed by the current from gaining ground: but this evening they paffed the road, and joined the three other veffels off the black town. They were the Expedition, laden with artilley and flores, which had left Pondicherry on the 12th of December; and the Briftol of 30 guns, manned with Europeans, which had lately arrived there from Perfia, and was immediately laden with fhot and fhells for the camp.

On the morning of the 18th the enemy had compleated three more embrafures in Lally's battery, which joining the former on the left, reached almost to the furf, and being a little turned to the s.w. bore upon the north ravelin, which before night was much impaired by them. Neverthelefs, the general fire from the north was diminished, for these new embrasures in Lally's were supplied with three guns from other embrafures of the fame battery; and the four in the Lorrain, which bore upon the royal baftion, ceafed entirely, and their embrafures were filled up; but Lally's and the burying-ground difabled two guns in the demi baftion, two in the north ravelin, a mortar in the royal, and rendered the three northern embrafures of the N.E. baftion unfit for fervice. A party of the enemy had been employed through the day in raifing a breaftwork. at a little diftance to the left behind their former poft at the bar, and began to fire from it at dufk with two field-pieces in barbet against fome Sepoys posted on the spit of fand : their mortars continued firing. vehemently through the day and night, but, as from the beginning of the bombardment, ftill against the infide of the fort. Every day one, two, or three of the garrifon, and fometimes more, had fuffered by the fire; but on this day five Europeans and three Sepoys were killed, and five of each wounded. Notwithftanding a conftant fire of cannon and fmall arms, wherefoever probable, through the night, the enemy advanced their zig-zag across the foot of the falient angle of the glacis, inclining a little to the left towards the furf; and being fo near, the governor iffued inftructions to the officers of the different posts, how to conduct themfelves and difpose their parties in cafe they should affault the outworks.

The next day, which was the 19th, the enemy changed their two field-pieces to the fouth for two eighteen-pounders, from which they fired fhot into the fort : in the forenoon their mufketry in the advanced or fecond crochet had fired finartly upon the north ravelin and the covered way ; their mortars continued inceffantly through the day, and fet fire to three buildings in different parts of the fort at once; but ceafed in the night: during which they only produced their third zig-zag obliquely from the ridge of the glacis to the water mark of the fea, which was not more than 15 yards. The next day, which was the

the 20th, they fired none of the four guns on Lally's battery, which bore on the north-eaft baftion; but continued with the feven bearing on the demi baftion, and the three on the north ravelin, although more fparingly than ufual, but those in the burying-ground battery with more vivacity: a platform on the demi baftion, and a mortar on the north ravelin were ruined by shells: five Europeans were killed; and feven, with three Sepoys, wounded. During the night, they threw few shot or shells, and made but little advance in their approaches, but enlarged their second crochet, and worked hard in erecting a battery, which projected from it along their lass or third zig-zag leading to the crochet which terminated this zigzag on the glacis. Two shall fallies were made upon the trenches during the night, in both of which only one European was killed.

On the 21st the enemy's batteries remained almost filent, but the musketry in their trenches fired brickly on all they faw moving. At five in the evening, a ferjeant and ten men went out by a fally port in the east curtain, and an officer with 20 by the barrier in the northeast angle of the covered way, who were followed by 40 pioneers with their captain : the foldiers advanced to the fecond crochet, which was only 30 yards from the foot of the glacis ; out of which their first fire drove all the troops, who were mostly Sepoys : after which they maintained the crochet for 10 minutes before the guard of the trenches arrived ; and during this time the pioneers worked hard in deftroying the gabions, and what other materials were collected for the construction of the intended battery : the fally was preceded and followed by a fire of mortars, cannon, and finall arms from the fort, upon all whom the alarm brought within fight and reach; and it was fuppofed with much effect : two ferjeants were killed, and five of the pioneers wounded; in the fort one European and one Sepoy were killed, and a ten-inch mortar difabled. In the night the enemy worked hard in thickening the crochet out of which they had been driven, compleated their third zig-zag, which extended 100 yards beyond it, mostly on the glacis, but inclining to the left of the falient angle; and not only began, but finished their third Hhh2 third crochet, which extended to the right from the head of this zig-zag acrofs the ridge of the glacis : they threw few mortars during the night, but mostly into the works ; their cannon flackened likewife the enfuing day, which was the 22d, and efpecially from Lally's battery, in which most of the embrafures were blinded; neverthelefs, the few employed were very effectual, for the repeated repairs, which had been made in the demi and north-east bastions, rendered the fubflituted merlons fo weak that they crumbled to every fhot : a twelve-pounder was difabled on the north ravelin by a fhell, three Europeans and a Sepoy were killed, and feven with nine Sepoys wounded. In the night the enemy pushed on the fap of the fourth zig-zag 20 yards beyond their third crochet, and having made a finall return or fhoulder to the left, continued it from hence quite up to the falient angle of the covered way, and fixed fome gabions on the creft of the glacis on the right hand of this angle: the conteft was now brought very near the walls, and was difputed without intermission : the whole progress of the fourth zig-zag was exposed to the fire of the ftockade of palmyra trees which the garrifon had planted across the east fide of the glacis to the furf, and from this flockade the guard kept up a conftant fire of mufketry on the enemy's workmen, as did another guard from the falient angle of the glacis; and parties of grenadiers were fent out every hour along the beach beyond the flockade to fire upon the third crochet, and all the fap advanced beyond it : cannon, mortars, and mufketry, were likewife fired throughout the night from every part that bore upon their work; but could not ftop it, for the enemy had encreafed the number both of their workmen and guards; they likewife finished their battery at the end of their third zig-zag, which shouldered on their second crochet, and opened it the next morning, which was the 23d, with four guns : but it was fo ill conftructed, that only one of the guns could be brought to bear upon the north ravelin, which it was intended to batter. The Lorrain battery remained clofed, but the hofpital, the burying-ground, and Lally's, with the mortars as before, continued a flackening fire, the cannon only in the day, but the mertars through the night likewife. The ammunition of both began began to wax fcant, and they were waiting for more which had been embarked on the 14th in a brigantine from Pondicherry. However, their fire difabled a twenty-four-pounder on the royal baftion, and compleated the ruin of all the embrafures on the right face of the ravelin; in which a flot from Lally's penetrated quite through the merlon: in the night, the enemy attempted to pufh their gabions clofe to the covered way of the N.E. falient angle, from whence pioneers were fent to overfet them, who rolled fome into the fea, and pulled others into the covered way; this contest was maintained at repetitions for three or four hours, and fupported by the hotteft fire of mulketry, and of grape that from the north-east bastion, and the fascine battery on the beach : feventy discharges were made out of one of the guns: five Europeans were killed, and ten wounded in the night and day, most of whom fuffered in these attacks : one Sepoy was likewife killed, and fix wounded : on the 24th, a twenty-four pounder was difabled on the north-east bastion, of which the works had fcarcely received in the night a repair adequate to the detriment of the preceding day : but fix of the embrafures in the north-ravelin were reftored; the other three still remained unfit for fervice.

At feven in the evening, a party of the enemy confifting of 50 men, who had waited for the dark, advanced from the neareft crochet to the ftockade, from which the guard, which confifted only of 12 men, ran away to the blind before the N.E. baftion; they were immediately fent back with the addition of a more refolute ferjeant and ten grenadiers; but were fcarcely returned, when this ferjeant was fhot dead, through the ftockade; on which the party ftopped, waiting for directions; and the officer commanding at the blind recalled them; after which it was thought imprudent to make another attempt to recover the ftockade, although capable of giving much annoyance to the enemy's work.

At night, a meffenger from Tritchinopoly brought a letter from Captain Joseph Smith with intelligence he had received from Angengo. The Presidency ten days before had received advices from Mr. Pococke, that the squadron had arrived on the 10th of December at Bombay, where he found fix of the company's ships and 419 1759:

and two of the line, with 600 men of Draper's regiment on board; which were arrived there a few days before, having pafied the Cape of Good Hope too late in the feafon to gain the coaft of Coromandel; the letter from Captain Smith gave intelligence that the Company's fhips with all the troops on board had failed under the convoy of two frigates from Bombay on the 31ft: and the fpies which came in from the enemy's camp reported that this news was likewife known there, and had determined Mr. Lally to make a general affault on the fort this very night; on which the whole garrifon and all the inhabitants were flationed and remained under arms at their refpective pofts until the morning.

The fire of the cannon, mulketry, and mortars, from the fort, although maintained conftantly throughout the night, did not prevent the enemy from advancing their fap along the glacis on the eaft face of the covered way as far as the left of the flockade, and they made a return on the right to the creft of the glacis; but had not time to extend the fap to the left along the front of the flockade towards the furf, nor even to compleat a proper lodgement in the return, the want of which left their workmen exposed to the fire of the covered way; but on the other fide of the falient angle they had raifed gabions, and made confiderable progress in a retrenchment intended for a battery.

The night paffed without any alarms of the fuppofed affault ; and the enfuing day, which was the 25th, continued with the ufual fire of cannon and mortars until two in the afternoon, when a fally was made by the guard at the blind, and the fame number of grenadiers, in all forty foldiers with arms, who covered twenty pioneers with tools. Just before the blind, on the east face of the covered way, parallel to the fame face of the demi bastion, was a passing cut in the glacis towards the furf; through which the party passing along the furf, round the right of the flockade, came in flank of the head of the enemy's fap, from which their first fire drove all their guards and workmen, who retreated to their retrenchment at the falient angle waiting for fuccours; during which the English foldiers maintained their ground, and the pioneers overfet the gabions, forme into the fea, others into the covered covered way, and deftroyed whatfoever implements they found : this attack lafted 20 minutes, by which time the enemy had gathered, and were advancing in much fuperior numbers from the retrenchment ; upon which the party was recalled, and retreated, giving and receiving fire. A ferjeant with three grenadiers were killed ; fix others of the foldiers, with captain Black, who commanded the fally, and lieutenant Fitzpatrick, were wounded. The enemy's artillery bore most on the royal and demi bastions ; their mortars falling on the works wounded many more than usual. The total loss, including that in the fallies, was eight Europeans and three Sepoys killed, and 17 Europeans with 13 Sepoys wounded.

The enemy's fap being advanced to the east flank of the covered way threatened immediate danger by furprize on the east face of the fort, to which the fea-gate gave the faireft opening; for the embrafures in the north flank of the battery before it had been ruined by the enemy's flot which had miffed or flown over the N.E. baftion and fafcine battery; and the gateway itfelf was a fpacious arch fhut. occafionally with folding doors; fo that, fhould the enemy ever make a general affault on the ruined works to the north, a party fent at. the fame time along the furf, or even in boats, might force their way through the gate with petards ; and this party might pafs without much interruption; for the fafcine battery which barricaded the beach was nearly demolifhed. The whole of the working party of the night was therefore allotted to remedy these defects, and before morning they repaired the fascine battery, reftored the embrasures, of the battery before the fea-gate, bricked up the arch of the gate-way, and opened a fmall gate on the left hand, which had been. clofed. In the fucceeding nights the workmen began and continued the intended ditch with pallifadoes round the fea-gate battery, which. had hitherto been deferred for fervices of more immediate neceffity. The enemy employed the night with equal diligence, and pufhed the fap of their retrenchment from the falient angle 70 yards along the north face of the covered way, and widened the work in an excavation fufficient to contain cannon and a large detachment of troops : this work, with what was done the night before one the-5

The following day, which was the 26th, the enemy fired most of their fhot into the town ; and most of their fhells, as in the preceding night, into the works of the north front, by which a twentyfour pounder was difmounted on the N. E. baffion, and the cafualties from the evening to the evening were five Seapoys and one European killed, and 11 wounded, of whom were the lieutenants Lang, and Little who loft his left arm. In the fucceeding night the enemy widened and raifed their work on the creft of the glacis, notwithftanding the conftant fire of the defences; and no guards could any longer be kept at the falient angle they had invefted, but centries were advanced every quarter of an hour from the blind before the N.E. baffion, to observe whether they were beginning any new works, but difcovered none. In the 24 hours to the evening of the 27th, no damage was done to any of the artillery, but five Europeans were killed and five wounded, and one with five Sepoys. The enemy's workmen remained very filent in their trenches through the night.

Three hundred Sepoys were intended to fally before day-break on the 28th, in order to furprize the enemy's battery of two guns to the fouth of the bar: but marching too late were difcerned, and received the fire of the battery before they had croffed the bar, on which they were immediately recalled into the fort. In the morning the enemy began to fire again from the battery near their fecond crochet, which had remained filent ever fince they opened it ineffectually on the 23d, and during this interval they had endeavoured to rectify the erroneous construction of the embrafures, which were intended against the right face of the north ravelin : they had likewife brought up two ten-inch mortars to this battery, with which, and three guns, they commenced their fire; but one of the guns failed at nine o'clock, and another at ten ; in the afternoon another, which they were trying in the 4th embrafure, was difabled by a fhot from the fort ; after which, the cannonade from this battery ceafed entirely, but the mortars continued. At noon a party with many voke yoke of oxen affembled at the bar, in order to draw off the two guns there; but the firing of the fort foon made them remove the cattle out of reach. The cafualties from the preceding night to the evening of this day were one European and one Lafcar killed, with ten Europeansand nine Sepoys wounded.

During the night the enemy drew off one of the guns at the bar; their workmen carried on a mining fap from the left of the palmyra flockade acrofs the glacis, and on a level lower than the covered way, intending to pafs under this likewife in order to open the counterfcarp of the ditch : they executed this work with fo much filence, that the garrifon had no fufpicion of it until two the next afternoon, when the fap was advanced as far as the fcarp, or brick facing of the glacis, and being carried too high, the earth of the covered way with the facing fell in, and difcovered them; fome grenadiers were immediately fent to fire and throw granades into the hole, which obliged the miners to ftop, but they renewed their fap lower. Their mortars continued during thefe 24 hours against the works. A nine-pounder was difabled on the N. w. ravelin by the fire from the hofpital; and the embrafures of Pigot's baftion, and of Lawrence's, the next on the left, were much damaged by fhells and ftray flot ; for both these works were out of the front attack, nor was there a fingle gun which bore directly upon them; for the enemy had for fome days ceafed the 4 they opened on the 7th of the month in this direction, which adjoined to the left shoulder of the Lorrain battery. The cafualties from the evening to the evening were two Europeans and three Sepoys killed, and two and one wounded. In the enfuing night the enemy threw many shells into the town, and continued hard at work both in their covered fap and in raifing a battery on the creft of the glacis, but with fo much filence, that the garrifon could not difcover what they were doing : the working party of the fort were employed in reftoring the right face of the north ravelin, and the fame fide of the caponiere leading to it acrofs the ditch.

In the interval fince the defertion of the black troops at Conjeveram, feveral letters and other notices had been received from Cap-Vol. II. I ii tain tain Prefton and Mahomed Iffoof. Purfuing their intention of enlifting a body of better cavalry, they arrived on the 12th at Lallapet, a town of great refort, 10 miles to the N. W. of Arcot, where their invitations foon collected 500 Moorish horse, and 600 Morattoes. The Nabob's brother, Abdulwahab Cawn, was at this time refiding with their mother at Chitore, and being urged by her reprefentations to fome compunction for the diffrefs of the Nabob's affairs, he profered his affiftance; on which Mahomed Iffoof, with a imalle fcort, went to Chitore, and in a few days returned, accompanied by Abdulwahab with 1000 horfe, and more foot, being the troops he had kept in pay fince he quitted Arcot in the preceding year. Overtures were likewife made to a body of 3000 Morattoes belonging to Balagerow, and commanded by an officer named Gopaulharry, who were lying at the pass of Damalcherry; but Gopaulharry infifted on receiving money before any moved, on which Prefton fent him the bill of an opulent shrof for 60,000 rupees, which was to be paid as foon as the horfe arrived at Velore; but as the meflages and march required eight days, the army in the interval fet out from Lallapet. on the 22d, and halted on the 25th at Trivalore, within four miles of the fort of Tripaffore, in which, as well as Pondamalée, the French had a garrifon of Sepoys; but the pettah of Pondamallée being much opener than of Trivalore, Mahomed Ifloof fent off a detachment to plunder it, which they effected after fome fkirmifhing with the Sepoys from the fort, of whom feveral were killed. Befides the booty they got in the pettah, the detachment returned with 3000 fheep and oxen, which had been collected from the country, and were kept under the protection of the garrifon, in the common round the fort, to fupply the French army before Madrafs. 'The Nabob's brother Nazeabulla, who had accompanied Mr. Moracin to Pondicherry, and afterwards the French army to the fiege, had lately returned to Nelore; and the example and exhortations of his brother Abdulwahab, had reclaimed him fo far, as to promife to join him at Trivalore with his force; but he delayed, and the army having been reinforced with ammunition and two more three-pounders from Chinglapet, proceeded on the 27th to Trimliwash, a town fituated on the fkirts fkirts of Malrawzes wood, 12 miles to the N. w. of Madrafs. The polygar, with an agent who had been fent to him by the governor, came to the camp, and promifed to bring 2000 peons and a fupply of rice : but, finding no money was intended to be given him, returned the next day into his wood, and appeared no more. Mahomed Iffoof, as foon as the camp was pitched, rode with a party of horfe as far as Maskelyne's garden, which stands two miles N. w. of Fort St. George, where most of the oxen belonging to the French army were kept under the care of a guard of Sepoys and black horie; whom Mahomed Iffoof's party put to flight, and feized moft of the cattle. The next day the whole body of French cavalry, who were 300, and Rajahfaheb's who were 800, encamped to the north of the garden, and on the 29th one of their parties routed one of Abdulwahab's, and took ten prifoners. The attention to this army, fince their arrival in the neighbourhood, diminished the activity of the enemy's operations against the fort, by the detachments they were obliged to fend and recall on different reports and alrms. Their approach just as the enemy's works were advanced fo near the defences increased the alacrity of the garrison.

On the 30th, at 11 in the forenoon, a fail was deferied to the fouthward; when nearer, her colours were difcerned to be English, and her form that of one of the Company's fhips. All the French veffels, which were five, flung out English colours likewife; and the two ships, the Harlem and Briftol, prepared to get under weigh. A cattamaran was immediately difpatched from the fort, warning the ftranger to beware of them; in the evening Mr. Dalrymple was fent in a boat, with farther inftructions to the captain. The cattamaran got on board before the fhip came to an anchor, which was not until nine at night; and foon after the Briftol came up. received and returned a broadfide, and fell to leeward. The fhip was the Shaftfbury East Indiaman, commanded by captain Nathaniel Inglifs, and one of those which were bringing Draper's regiment from Bombay: but, failing much worfe than the others, they made her the hospital ship, and left her off the fouth of Ceylon on the 7th of the month, after which, a luckier vein of wind and current brought her to her port before them. The fick, who were Iii 2 36

36 men of the regiment, only added to the diffrefs of the garrifon; but she had on board 37 chefts of filver, and many military stores, amongst them, hand-grenades, and bombs of the largest fizes, of which the garrifon were much in need, having nearly expended. their flock of these articles. The communication of letters was eafy and expeditious, after the ship came to an anchor; and, by the governor's order, fhe threw out at day-break the enfigns of a man of war, and received, as if fuch, a falute of 13 guns from the fort. At the fame time the enemy on fhore began to fire upon her with one gun from their neglected battery at the fecond crochet, and two from the breaft-work to the fouth, near the bar; all the three were twenty-four pounders; and fometimes fent red-hot balls. At three in the afternoon, the Briftol, which had fallen far to leeward, worked up again into the road : whilft drawing nigh, boats with foldiers went off to her from the black town. The Harlem, which had likewife been manned from the fhore, bore down at the fame time, and the Shaftfbury had got under weigh to change her flation, but being intercepted by the Briftol fuffained the engagement under fail for two hours, and then anchored, where directed, as near as the foundings would admit opposite to the fouth-east bastion. The other ships anchored likewife, but far out in the offing, and neverthelefs continued firing until night. The rigging of the Shaftfbury was much damaged by the fire of fhips, and fhe received feveral fhot through her hull from the fhore : but no one was wounded except. Lieutenant Browne of the regiment, who loft his right arm. Before 10, the maffoolas of the garrifon landed the fick and the treafure; and it being fuspected that the enemy's fhips might attempt to. board the Shaftfbury with their boats, the governor fent optional. orders to captain Inglifs, either to efcape out of the road, maintain. his station, or run the ship ashore. The confidence was well placed, and Inglifs determined on the choice of danger. The next day, which was the first of February, she stood the fame fire from the fhore, fome from the Harlem, but none from the Briftol, for this fhip had failed away in the night to Pondicherry; and on the 2d, none from the Harlem, which anchored far out in the Offing ; but the fire upon her from the fhore still continued.

SIEGE OF FORT ST. GEORGE.

The preparations of the enemy on fhore against the Shaftsbury, flackened their fire against the fort on the 30th, the day she was difcerned. The three embrafures on the left of Lally's battery, which bore upon the right face of the north ravelin, continued; the two next to them, which were the left of the four that had hitherto been employed against the north-east bastion, likewife remained free; but the interpolition of their own work on the creft of the glacis precluded the ufe of the two other embrafures against this baffion, as well as of the four which had battered in breach the faliant angle of the demi baftion : but they did not think it worth their while to remove the guns of these embrasures into those on the right, in order to batter towards the shoulder angle, that next the flank of this baftion, becaufe they intended, as ufual, to make the breach at the falient angle, in which their fire had already almost ruined the parapet. The fire of the burying-ground battery, with four guns, continued on the left face of the north ravelin, and the flank of the demi baftion, and the four guns in the hofpital battery enfiladed the whole of the north front. The outward gun in Lally's battery which remained free against the north-east bastion, they turned against the shoulder merlon on the left of the fascine battery, raifed by the garrifon on the edge of the furf, of which all the four guns bore on this and the three next embrafures of Lally's, to the left. Their mortars in this, the burying-ground, and the battery between them, likewife continued as before. Such was their fire at the close of this day; and in these 24 hours one 18 pounder was difmounted by the hofpital battery on Pigot's baftion, I European, with 3 Sepoys, were killed, and 9 Europeas, with 2 Sepoys, wounded.

The enemy's mortars continued through the enfuing night, and mostly against the defences. They worked hard under ground from the palmyra stockade; but, as before, without being discovered : and the earth they threw up on the creft of the glacis likewise concealed there intentions there, although the garrison gave frequent alerts, and threw grenades every half hour, hoping the occasion of a successful fally to explore their work; but the enemy here took no alarm. It was fuppofed they were carrying on a covered fap towards the blind before the north-east bastion, which threatened the most dangerous mine they could spring; and to counteract their intention by meeting their work, the garrifon opened a fap from the left of the ditch, and directed it across and under the ground immediately in front of the blind. The mining gallery towards their battery on the creft of the glacis was likewife pushed on with much diligence. The enfuing morning, the enemy at funrife opened four embrafures in this battery, which extended to the right from the fummit of the falient angle : one of them pointed to the N.E. baffion, and all the four bore on the falient angle of the demi ; but they had raifed the embrafures fo high, that none of their fhot could ftrike the parapet, but all flew over the fort; fo that after five or fix rounds they ceafed firing, and clofed the embrafures in order to alter the level. Befides the guns which they opened and kept up against the Shaftfbury, their other batteries against the fort continued through the day : the hospital and burying-ground, with all their guns, but Lally's only with five, three of which were those against the north ravelin, and the other two, which were the next to them, fired mostly against the fascine battery, where they disabled two twelve pounders: a twenty-four pounder was likewife difmounted on the royal baftion : the cafualties to the troops were 4 Europeans killed, and 9, with 3 Sepoys wounded. During the night, the garrifon, befides the repair of the works, continued their gallery towards the falient angle, and the covered fap before the blind. The enemy continued their fap likewife still undifcovered, and worked in altering their breaching battery; but when they opened it again the next morning with five guns, the fhot as before flew over, and they were again obliged to close the embrafures.

February.

This day was the first of February: the fire of the two guns from the bar to the s. and the other to the N. at the fecond crochet, continued a croffing fire against the Shaftsbury with much aim, and fometimes with red-hot shot, of which feveral went through the hull. The Harlem likewise fired and helped to ruin her rigging. The fort fired upon the Harlem and on the enemy's fouthern guns, and

and in the evening a twenty-four pounder, which bore on them from the San Thomé or fouth-east bastion, burft, whilst Mr. Figot the governor was there; he and two other men were flightly wounded, but four more died of their hurts. The reft of the fire on both fides continued as the day before, excepting that the enemy's mortars were not fo frequent. The Cuddalore, a fchooner belonging to the company, which had lain fome days at Paliacate where the had flopped feveral boats coming from the northward to the enemy's camp, came this day near the road ; but feeing the Harlem ready to weigh, flood out again to fea. A twenty-four pounder was difabled in the faluting battery of the fort by its own fire on the Harlem. The cafualties, befides those who fuffered on the San Thomé baftion, were 2 Europeans killed, and 4, with 2 Sepoys, wounded. In the night, as well as the day, the pioneers of the garrifon continued the two galleries, the one towards the enemy's battery on the falient angle of the glacis, the other under the blind, and the reft of the workmen were chiefly employed in repairing the parapet towards the falient angle of the demi baffion.

In the morning of the 2d, the enemy opened again their embrafures on the creft of the glacis, which they had been repairing all night. but with as little judgment as in the preceding, for their fhot fill flew too high ; and the guns being exposed as before without refiftance to the cannon and mortars of the defences, were clofed again in an hour after they had opened, and remained filent the reft of the day. The other batteries continued as before. The Harlem had weighed before day-break, and anchored out of gun-fhot of the Shaftfbury, which now only fuftained the fire of the three guns on fhore; and theirs lefs frequent than in the preceding days. At eight in the morning, feveral parties of horfe were difcerned from the fteeple, advancing in the plain about five miles N.W. of the fort; and foon after appeared the whole army, with Prefton and Mahomed Iffoof. The enemy's cavalry at Viparee drew out, reinforcements joined them from the black town, and at three in the afternoon firing commenced, which lasted until funfet.

The governor had repeatedly recommended to Prefton and Mahomed lifoof to march round, and take poffeffion of St. Thomé, and from thence to come by the fea-fhore into the fort; or to penetrate wherever elfe they fhould fee an opening; the intention of this junction was to concert measures for a general attack on the enemy's camp, which could not be explained by letters in cypher. and liable to interception. The effort, however, was not to be made by a fally of the united force from the fort; but Prefton's army, after being furnished with money and four days provisions, which the garrifon could fpare, were to march out and encamp abroad again; and at the appointed hour fall on the black town, whilft the garrifon at the fame time fallied upon the enemy's works. This project was fcarcely featible; for the enemy, knowing the junction in the fort, would be on ftrict guard in all their pofts. Prefton, although he difapproved the fcheme, was as folicitous as the governor to carry it into execution; but the Polygars had failed to fupply the provision of rice they had promifed, which obliged the army to fend for it as far as Chinglapet and Conjeveram, and detained them three days at Trimliwash until the morning of the 2d; when they marched, intending to pass to San Thomé between the black town and the Mount, notwithstanding the whole body of the enemy's cavalry were lying in the way, at Viparee. Mr. Lally, hearing of their approach, took a detachment of 300 European infantry, 500 Sepoys, and fix field-pieces, from the black town, and joined his two bodies of cavalry which were lying at Viparee. He was accompanied by Mr. Buffy, and most of the principal officers, of the army. They marched onward in the plain towards Prefton's force, who feeing, them coming, halted on the other fide of a long morafs formed by paddy fields, which interfected the whole extent of the plain from weft to eaft : the cavalry with Prefton, to avoid the enemy's cannonade, kept at a diftance in the rear; but the infantry drew up under the fhelter of banks which continued along the edge of the morafs. Mr. Lally made feveral motions to intice them to crofs; but they were not feduced : on which he took poft at three o'clock in a fpot of ground covered by hedges and trees, and and opened his cannon acrofs the morafs, although at the diftance of 1000 yards, which were anfwered by only fix threepounders. The Sepoys, and even the Europeans on both fides, fired fometimes likewife with their finall arms: but the horfe were never near each other. From the advantage of fituation, notwithftanding the difparity of the cannon, the lofs in Prefton's army did not much exceed the enemy's, being 15 Sepoys, one European, and five horfe killed, and five Sepoys wounded; whereas the enemy left nine Europeans and thirteen horfes dead on the plain. At funfet they retreated to Viparee, where Mr. Lally likewife remained with the detachment of infantry; and Prefton, for want of provifions, returned to Trimliwafh.

In the night the enemy threw fewer shells than usual : from the morning of the 2d to the morning of the 3d, was the first day fince the 4th of January, in which no one was killed in the fort; and no Sepoys received any hurt, but five Europeans were wounded. The pioneers of the garrifon continued the two mines : they who were at work under the blind difcovered no figns of the fap they fufpected; but the miners, who were pushing under the covered way towards the breaching battery, heard, at two in the morning, the found of men working near them in the enemy's mine on the right under the eaft face of the glacis, which it was fuppofed they had relinquished fince it failed on the 23d. At daybreak they fprung this mine on the infide of the covered way, through the counterfcarp of the ditch, at the extremity of the cuvette; into which the bulk of the explosion was thrown. Fragments of the brick-work wounded five Europeans and a Sepoy ; but the explosion itself blew up none; neverthelefs, to deftroy many men feemed the only intent; for if it was meant to facilitate the defcent into the ditch, their approaches were not fufficiently forward to attempt this operation; fince the excavation was entirely commanded by the three innermost guns in the flank of the royal baftion, of which all the feven being covered on the flank by the oreillon, and by traverfes in the rear, had received no hurt from the Kkk enemy's VOL. enemy's cannon, and none of their mortars had chanced to light amongft them; fo that all remained in perfect condition, and the enemy, before they fprung the mine, fhould have raifed a battery in the fame direction, on the creft of the glacis, to take off thefe defences. Immediately after the explosion, they began to fire from two embrasures of their breaching battery in the falient angle, which the fire of the fort, as before, foon obliged them to clofe; their other batteries likewife flackened, and their mortars ftill more. Their workmen were chiefly employed during the night, in lowering the embrasures of their breaching battery; the garrifon, befides the repairs of the demi-bastion, against which the greatest part of the enemy's fire had been directed, worked at their two mining galleries. The cafualties of the day and night, befides the men wounded by the enemy's mine, were only one Sepoy killed, and one wounded.

At day-light on the 4th, the enemy again opened their breaching battery on the creft of the glacis, and for the first time fired from all the fix embrafures, which, although fomething lowered, still remained too high to ftrike below the parapet of the baftions; and the endeayour neceffary to reduce them even to this level retarded the repetitions of their fire. The two embrafures in the left of the battery bore on the north-east, the other four on the demi-bastion. The N.E. returned with three guns, but the demi-baftion with none; for the embrafures were closed, in order to let the workmen thicken the parapet within ; and their fire was much better fupplied by the four innermost guns in the flank of the royal bastion, upon which not a gun in the breaching battery against which they fired, nor from any other, could bear; and the gunners, fenfible of their fecurity, fired with deliberate aim, whilf the three guns on the N. E. baffion continued hotly on their oppofites, and both together obliged the enemy in lefs than an hour to withdraw their guns, and close the embrafures; nor did they attempt to open them again during the reft of the day. At feven the gallery carrying on towards this battery having been pushed to the banquet of the covered way fell in at the end

end there, and the light came in ; but the miners flopped the hole fo foon, that the enemy did not difcover the mifchance. The gallery was then filled five or fix feet back, and from hence a return made to the right, from which it was again continued ftreight forward under the glacis. In the night, the enemy had withdrawn the two twenty-four pounders from the bar, in order to replace others, which had been difabled in the north front of the attack; they however fubflituted a fix-pounder to check any fally from the fort. The ceffation of this fire to the fouth releafed the Shaftefbury from the greatest molestation she had endured, by which feveral of her men had been killed and wounded, her hull fhot through in many places, and all her mafts and rigging ruined. In the morning, before day-light, fhe had moved from her station under the guns of the s. E. or San Thomé baftion, and anchored about a mile in the offing, opposite to the fea-gate. The French ships continued at their anchors out of gun-fhot; fo that all the annoyance which fhe received through the day was a fhot now and then from the fingle gun at the fecond crochet. Against the fort, the four guns at the burying-ground continued with vivacity, but the two enfilading in the Lorrain, and the four crochet on the hofpital battery with lefs frequency : all the enemy's first-rate bombs were expended, and most of the next fizes, fo that they only fired a few shells of eight and ten inches from the fecond crochet. In the evening, a floop from Pondicherry anchored at San Thomé with a fupply of ftores. During the night, the enemy fired a great deal of musketry upon the covered way, and the garrifon, befides the repairs, continued the two mines. The cafualties of the night and day were one European and three Sepoys killed, and four with two wounded, and a twenty-four pounder was difabled on the demi-baffion.

Early in the morning of the 5th, the Harlem, the Diligent, and three finaller veffels, got under fail from their flation before the black town, where they left only one, a finall floop, and flanding to the fouthward were out of fight before the evening. The caufe of their fudden departure, was a report from Pondicherry, that feveral fhips of force had been feen off Negapatam. At fun-K k k 2 rife.

rife, the enemy again opened their breaching battery, but before they had fired three rounds were obliged to close it again by the fame fire as the day before. At nine, a red flag feen on the mount fignified that Preston's and Mahomed Isloof's army were arrived there from Trimliwaish; they had before represented the necessity of remaining at a diftance until fupplied with ammunition and flores from Chinglapett, provisions from the country, and money from Madrafs. Mr. Pigot ordered them at all events to attempt the effort fo often recommended of marching into the fort; but, left it should fail, dispatched in the evening ten of the troop of European horfe, with captain Vafferot, each carrying a thoufand pagodas, who croffed the Island, forced through the enemy's guard at Chindadrapettah, and arrived at the Mount at ten at night, of which they immediately gave notice to the garrifon by four rockets and a large fire. The fire of the enemy's batteries was flacker than ufual in the day, their shells very few, and little musketry in the night. Neverthelefs the cafualties until the morning of the 6th, were another twenty-four pounder difabled on the demi-baftion, one European and three Sepoys killed, and four Europeans wounded.

The enemy's breaching battery remained filent during the 6th; nor had they repaired the damages it had fuftained; but in Lally's, of which the fire had ceafed fince the 30th of the laft month, fix embrafures appeared to have been reftored to good condition for fervice ; but fo many of the enemy's guns had been ruined, that they were obliged to withdraw the four from the recochet battery at the hofpital, to furnish the embrafures at Lally's, which, however, they did not open until the next day; fo that their fire this day was from fewer guns than in any fince they began the fiege, confifting only of the four guns at the burying ground, and two in the Lorrain battery; but they added two ten-inch mortars to the two-already eftablished at the fecond crochet. All their cavalry, European, as well as the black, were observed filing off to the Choultry Plain ; and Sepoys, with guns and tumbrils, were feen marching that way from the black town. The night paffed without fkirmish, for the enemy were not heard at work on the creft of the glacis; but their mortars continued. a continued. In the day and night two Europeans were killed, and two wounded, but none of the Sepoys were hurt.

In the morning of the 7th the enemy began to fire, as was expected, from Lally's battery, but only from four of the embrafutes and with a mortar on the right, all bearing upon the demi and north-east bastions, which together returned fix guns: the other batteries continued as the day before, and the mortars in the night; during which no alarms were given either by the enemy or the garrifon: two guns were difabled on the north-east bastion; two Europeans were killed, and five, and two Sepoys, wounded.

Notwithstanding the inefficacy of the breaching battery, the reft of the enemy's fire had by this time rent the falient angle of the demi baftion from top to bottom ; and Mr. Lally, who viewed every thing with enthuliafm, ordered the principal engineers and artillery officers to give their opinion on the feafibility of florming this breach, and declared his own of fucces; but the officers confidered the question with more deliberation. They agreed that the defcent into the covered way from the breaching battery on one fide, and the gabions on the other, of the falient angle of the glacis, was eafy, and that the defcent into the ditch and paffage acrofs it had been rendered very practicable by the mine they had fprung in the covered way from the eaftern fide of the glacis, of which the explotion had filled up a fufficient fpace at the end of the cuvette or trench of water dug along the middle of the ditch ; but a rank of ftrong palifadoes ranged along the other fide of the cuvette, and having hitherto received no damage must be torn down by hand, before the troops could gain the foot of the breach ; who during the defcent into the ditch would be exposed, without the cover of a fingle gabion on the flank, to the fire of the north-east bastion and of mulketry from the blind before it; to fix guns in the curving flank of the royal baftion, and abundance of fmall arms from the caponiere which led acrofs the ditch to the north ravelin ; and the havock of thefe two fires would continue without the leaft refiftance or interruption upon the troops whilft affaulting the breach itfelf. From these circumstances the officers declared the breach, , breach, although practicable, inacceffible; but added, what they were not afked, that from a comparison of the forces, the profecution of works to quell the fire of the place would only facrifice the lives of many men without the least probability of fuccefs.

The only variation in the attack during the 8th, was the addition of one gun on Lally's, which now fired with five. The force with which the enemy intended to oppose the army at the mount had collected in a feparate camp on the Choultry Plain, and in their rear at Egmore were fix field-pieces with four tumbrils. In the afternoon the Briftol anchored off St. Thomé returning with flores from Pondicherry ; and, as it was apprehended that fhe might have brought a fupply of large fhells, the governor proposed that the Shaftfbury, reinforced with forty foldiers from the fhore, fhould attack her. Captain Inglifs concurred in this intention with alacrity; but his mafts were fo much damaged, that it required the repair of two days before he could fet a fail. No annoyance, excepting mortars, pafied between the befiegers and the fort during the night. Before the morning, the gallery in front of the blind before the north-eaft baftion had been carried far enough toward the fea to fecure this work from any mines of the enemy, and was continued in a direction forward towards the palmyra pallifado, of which the enemy were in pofferfion, in order to crofs any other they might be attempting against the east face of the covered way. Two explosions of powder had been occafioned in the enemy's works by the fall of fhells during the night. In these 24 hours were one European and one Sepoy killed, and two Europeans and one Sepoy wounded; but no gun was difmounted.

In the three laft days, information had been received from Captain Prefton, that Major Calliaud was approaching with a reinforcement from the fouth; and thefe were the first advices concerning him, which had reached either Prefton or the garrifon fince his departure to Tanjore; for every letter which he had written passing through the enemy's country, had been either intercepted by them, or carried far away by the messengers. A variety of untoward incidents had protracted the execution of his commission. He embarked at nine in the morning on the 1st of December in a common maffoolah, which had only fix rowers and the fteerfman; he was accompanied by Mr. Bofwell the furgeon, as his interpreter, and one fervant. In a few hours after they were at fea, a hard gale of wind arofe, in which they could not flow the fail, and fcarcely use the oars; neverthelefs the drift of the wind and current carried the boat by 9 o'clock the fecond night as far as Devi Cotah, which is by the fea one hundred and thirty miles from Madrafs, when the rowers were fo much exhausted, that no entreaties could prevent them from putting ashore; and they grounded on the strand within half a mile of the fort of Devi Cotah, in which was an officer and some French Sepoys, from whole notice they were preferved by the continuance of the florm, and before day-break put to fea again; but the boatmen would not venture over the larger and outer furf, and continued driving in the hollow fea between the two, until noon, when they landed at Tranquebar. The rains had overflowed the rivers, which remained impassable until the 12th. On the 14th Calliaud arrived at Achempettah 15 miles from Tanjore, where he was again detained three days by the bad weather. On the 17th. he reached the city. 1 1 Mail Filling

The king of Tanjore, when more clofely prefied by Captain. Jofeph Smith to furnifh the 1000 horfe requefted of him by the prefidency in December, pleaded the ravages which his country had lately fuffered from the French army, and demanded 200,000 rupees before-hand; at length he more plainly faid, that he thought the Englifh did not care what befell the territory of their allies, provided they could defend their own : but as he could not alledge this indifference to himfelf when attacked by the French; he cited the unconcern with which they had fuffered the French to take every fort belonging to the Nabob, and even his capital of Arcot, without making any efforts to protect them; although he knew that the prefidency had not the means, and with the Nabob's were lofing their own revenues.

Major Calliaud found the king in the fame temper, fo prepoffeffed of the decline of the English fortune, that he neglected the usual. 437 1759-ufual attentions to himfelf, as their reprefentative, and inftead of a house, allotted his habitation in a choultry. In their conference, the king faid he had fufficiently exposed himfelf to the refentment of the French, if Madrafs should fall, by the affistance he had already fent with Mahomed Iffoof, which were 200 horfe ; but not paid by himfelf : neverthelefs he was willing to lend 400 more, provided Calliaud would difcharge their arrears : Calliand demanded Colonel Kennedy and the Jefuit Eftevan, the French hoftages whom the king had detained ; but the king refused, and let them depart on the 19th, as it were, in his fight. Neverthelefs, the horfe were fo neceffary that Caillaud determined not to take offence whilft there remained any probability of getting them, and applied for money to the houfe of Buccangee, which was by far the most confiderable bank in the Carnatic, and had hitherto transacted the greatest part of the Company's exchange throughout the province: but their agents in Tanjore refufed to fupply any money for bills on Madraís. The king knowing this promifed the horfe fhould be ready in four days, if the money were paid. Calliaud then applied to the Dutch government of Negapatam, who profered a loan, but proposed to furnish it in coins, and at rates, which would have produced a loss of 25 per cent. These disappointments obliged him to feek the money at Tritchinopoly, where he arrived on the 24th, and obtained the promife of a fupply from another fhop of Buccangee's house established there : he returned on the 27th to Tanjore, where intelligence had been received the day before, that the Nabob with his family, who had left Madrafs on the 20th. were arrived at Negapatam, and that his wife, in this fhort but tempeftuous paffage, had been brought to bed at fea. At the fame time Seid Muctoon the Nabob's agent at Tanjore informed the king, that the Nabob intended to come into the city in his way to Trichinopoly, and expected to be met, as ufual, upon the road; but the embarkation, the feafon, and above all, the travail of the lady, had convinced the king, contrary to the real motives, that nothing but the defpair of Madrafs could have induced the English government to expose the prince of their alliance to fuch rifques and distreffes; and

and either from the malignant pleafure of infulting his fuperior in diftrefs, or from his dread of the French, if they fhould prove fuccefsful, or both, he refused either to admit the Nabob into the city, or to pay him a vifit without the walls: nor heeded the reprefentations of Calliaud endeavouring to correct his contumacy. The news likewife frightened the fhroff at Tritchinopoly fo much, that he retracted his promife, and refufed to fupply money upon any terms. However, 50 of the horfe were affembled at Condore on the bank of the Coleroon, 10 miles north of the city, and Calliaud, in order to encourage the reft to follow, went thither likewife. The next day, which was the 28th, a detachment of 500 Sepoys, which he had ordered from Tritchinopoly to efcort the Nabob, paffed by in their way to Negapatam ; and on the 1ft of January he received from Mr. Norris, the member of the council who had accompanied the Nabob from Madrafs, 10 of 20,000 pagodas which had been fent by the prefidency to defray the expences of the garrifon of Tritchinopoly : but although this fupply obviated the pretexts of delay, the king fent out no more horfe. On the 5th, major Calliaud vifited the Nabob at Aimapettah, and accompanied him to Pondi, a village 7 miles from Tanjore, where the illness of the Nabob's wife detained them the two fucceeding days, during which major Calliaud went again to the city, when his exhortations, feconded by the appearance of the efcort, prevailed; and the king vifited the Nabob on the 8th with the ufual ceremonies in a choultry on the road. Major Calliaud, to dignify the Nabob's appearance in his own territory, and at his earnest request, judiciously put himself at the head of the efcort, and marched with him to Tritchinopoly : they arrived there on the 10th, but Caillaud returned the next day to Condore; where no more horfe had hitherto joined the first party ; his letters and meffages, for he refolved not to vifit the king again, availing as little as before, he returned to Tritchinopoly on the 17th, in hopes of levying a body of horfe in the adjacent country; and on his departure expressed, intending it should be conveyed, the utmost indignation at the king's evalions. He however left agents at Condore to improve

improve any advantageous change which might happen in his difpofition, and the king, alarmed by the refentment of his departure, fent out the remainder of the horfe with fcribes to clear their accounts ; on which Calliaud returned on the 21ft to Condore, and advancing them fifteen days pay, they croffed the Coleroon the next day. and on the 23d moved to Trimalvedy, a fort belonging to the Arielore polygar, on the bank of the river, about 5 miles above Condore. Here he proposed that they should proceed 10 miles farther that day ; but they halted parlying for more pay until the 25th, when they marched 20 miles to Mongalpaddy, a village still in the diffricts of Arielore; where they were joined by three companies of Sepoys from Tritchinopoly. The whole arrived and halted the next day at Volcondah, and on the 25th reached Thiagar : here the horfe refused again to proceed until they received their arrears, which the king had promifed, and failed to fend. They were however fatisfied with another advance of 15 days, but requested another day's halt in expectation of fome of their neceffaries which were not yet come up from Tanjore. On the 31ft they marched from Thiagar to Tricolore, which is 15 miles onwards. The killidar Kiftnarow, who had before taken the field with Mahomed Iffoof, promifed to follow with all his force from Thiagar : but none appeared. On the 1st of February, Calliaud with his own troops reached Trivanalore, and the next day Villaporam. The partizan Lambert, with 500 Sepoys, had advanced to this place to oppose their progrefs; but, receiving certain intelligence of their force, went off the fame day to Gingee. The want of provisions detained Calliaud's party at Villaporum until the 4th; and on the 7th at noon they arrived at Chinglapet, both foot and horfe fo much fatigued, for the march was feventy-five miles in three days, that they could proceed no farther; on which Calliaud left them there to refresh, and went away with his own attendants to the mount, where he arrived at feven that night; and as the elder officer took the command of all the forces there, Prefton's, Mahomed Ifloof's, and Abdulwahab's.

SIEGE OF FORT ST. GEORGE.

The mount is a craggy rock, of which the bafe is oblong from eaft to weft, and a mile round. It has two eminences, of which that to the eaftward is much the highest, being 150 feet, and has at the top a fmall level plot, in which flands a church, the fubftitute of a much more antient ftructure, dedicated by the ancient chriftians of Coromandel and Malabar to a Saint Thomas, whom the prefent erroneoufly fuppofe to be the apoftle. A flight of broad fleps leading to the church winds on the eaftern fide, just where the hill itfelf begins to round to the north. A village of country-houfes, built by the English, extends from the foot of the mount about 600 yards to the eaft, and confifts of two rows of houses fituated in gardens feparated by a lane. The row which faces the fouth fronts a pleafant plain, and the walls of its enclofures as well on this fide as on the other, where they fkirt the lane, are on a ftrait line. The enclofure which terminated the front row, to the eaft, was the garden-houfe of Colonel Lawrence; it occupied 100 yards to the plain, and, as all the others of this row, the fame extent backward to the lane; the gardens on the other fide of the lane were not all inclofed with walls, but fome with banks and hedges; all however capable of fome defence. The last inclosure in this row, which from its owner was called Carvalho's garden, projected 50 yards farther out to the east than Lawrence's, the last in the front row, of which in confequence it flanked the eaftern fide : and about 200 yards out on the plain to the fouth, directly opposite to Carvalho's, flood the ruins of five or fix mud houfes, with feveral trees furrounding a fmall brick building, which had once contained a fwamy, or idol. This station flanked the ground before the front row of inclofures. The lane that feparated the two rows continued nearly in a ftreight line from the east, and terminated at the bottom of the steps leading to the fummit of the mount. On the right hand of the fteps was a craggy path from the plain on the fouth, and on the left hand an outlet leading round the north fide of the mount: contiguous to the path on the right, and within piftol-fhot of the fteps, was a house which looked upon the outlet to the north; and the laft house on the other fide at this end of the lane commanded manded obliquely the opening of the path from the fouth: a fpacious gateway at the bottom of the steps fronted the lane between.

The black troops, exclusive of those which major Calliand had left at Chinglapett, were 2200 horfe, and 2500 Sepoys; but the Europeans were only 103, 12 of whom were artillery-men, and 10 with Vafferot, troopers; the other 80 were mulketry, including, officers ; the artillery were fix three-pounders. Of the Sepoys, those from the garrifon of Chinglapett, and 700 of Mahomed Iffoof's, might be relied on; but little dependance could be placed on the reft. and lefs on the cavalry. In this conviction, Calliaud determined torifque little in the plain, but to defend the whole village of the mount, which afforded excellent flations. The plain to the north, behind the fecond row of inclofures, required few precautions, becaufe the ground, being laid out in rice-fields, precluded the approach. of cannon, and the ufe of cavalry. But, if the enemy should get posteffion of Carvalho's garden, they might foon penetrate intoall the other inclofures of the fecond row along the lane when the first row, attacked from this in the rear, and in front by another division of the enemy from the plain on the fouth, could not be long. maintained. Calliaud therefore confidered Caravalho's garden as the decifive post, and stationed in it 60 of the European musketry with four of the field-pieces. The two other field-pieces, with the 20other European firelocks, and 300 Sepoys, were posted at the fwamyhouse; the inlets of this post were barricaded, and the walls of the mud-houses were lowered to parapets for the musketry, and where neceffary still lower for the field-pieces, but time and means were wanting to inclose them either with a ditch or pallifades. Seventeen hundred Sepoys were diffributed in the gardens. of the front row facing the fouth, but the greatest part in Lawrence's to the east, and a communication was prepared between all thefe enclofures by openings in the walls of feparation. The remaining 500 Sepoys were stationed to defend the inlets to the upper end of the lane, at the foot of the mount; fome in the two houses there, others on the fleps, others at the gate, and others in different parts. of the rock itfelf. The black cavalry had encamped along the north. fide fide of the mount, and were ordered to hold themfelves in readinefs to act as occasion should require.

With the dawn of the next day, which was the oth, the enemy were difcerned approaching in two large bodies. The one confifting of 1200 Sepoys, and 500 black horfe, advanced from the Marmelong, or San Thomé river, towards the east end of the village, but having no field-pieces, regulated their approach by that of the other body, which, having taken a circuit to the left, were perceived at two miles diftance on the plain to the fouth. This body confifted of 200, being the whole of the French European cavalry, and 600 European infantry: the cavalry was in the center in two ranks, the troopers on the right, the dragoons next, the huffars on the left. The infantry were equally divided on each fide of the cavalry, and both divisions had two field-pieces on each of their flanks, eight in all, of which two were twelve, two nine, and the other four, fix-pounders. The whole was commanded by a relation of Mr. Lally's, of the fame name, and with the rank of Colonel. The black horfe with Calliaud formed on his fummons in front of the garden walls; they were crowded, according to their cuftom, ten or twelve ranks in depth. Abdulwahab prefented himfelf with feeming refolution at their head, and Calliaud, with the 10 troopers and Vafferot, rode on their left. The French cavalry were advancing before their infantry; and it was the intention of Calliaud, that his own fhould wait until they came in a line with the flank fire of the fieldpieces at the fwamy house : but when they were within 1000 yards, where the ground began to take an afcent towards the garden walls, although fcarcely perceptible in a lefs fpace, the whole body of the black cavalry with Calliaud fet off fcampering, fhouting, and flourishing their fabres. The French cavalry came on to meet them at a round trot; but halting fuddenly, the first rank discharged their carbines, by which four or five horses, and as many men, were brought to the ground, on which the whole, excepting Calliaud and the 10 troopers, went off at once, fome efcaping along the fide of the mount to their right, but others turning, prefied into the path in their rear, which led into the head of the lane at the foot of the fteps, and pufhed acrofs it by

by the other outlet, to the plain on the north of the mount. The French cavalry followed them until they themfelves came within reach of the flank fire of the field-pieces at the fwamy house, which falling amongst the troopers and dragoons on the right, obliged them to check and turn back ; but the huffars on the left, not feeling fo much of this annoyance, pushed on, and purfued the fugitives through the opening into the upper end of the lane, where they immediately fell under the fire of the 500 fepoys posted in the different stations in that part of the mount and in the two houses, which drove them with as much precipitation as those they were purfuing, through the outlet to the north, from whence they galloped round the mount, and rejoined the cavalry from which they had feparated, in the plain to the fouth. Calliaud, with the troopers, retreated to the inclofure next Lawrence's garden, and his horfe, which had received a ball in the breaft, fell under him at the gate. As foon as the Huffars returned, the whole of the French line advanced again in the fame order as before, and halted at the diftance of 600 yards; the division of infantry on the right, opposite to the fwamy house; the other on the left, over against the last inclosures at the foot of the mount. From these fituations the infantry of both divisions fent forward their field-pieces 200 yards nearer, which began a brifk and indifcriminate cannonade against the garden walls, and the post at the fwamy houfe, which was answered with effect only by the two field-pieces at this poft; for the fire of the fepoys, even here as well as in the gardens, was thrown away, and neverthelefs could not be restrained. Mean while the body of enemy's troops to the east halted behind a ridge, which extended at the diftance of 400 yards, opposite to Carvalho's garden, against which their fepoys kept up a constant and useless fire of musketry, which nevertheless was often answered from the four field-pieces in the garden.

Colonel Lally feeing no effect from his field-pieces against the garden-walls to the fouth, and the danger of storming them, before the advanced post at the swamy house was carried, detached at nine o'clock 100 Europeans from the division of infantry on the right, to attack it at the push of bayonet; but the fire of the two field-pieces, and the musketry there, met them so hotly, that they broke within 30 yards of the post, and retreated with precipitation to their division, which on this repulse recurred again to their field-pieces. Calliaud, neverthelefs, was convinced that the post would be foon attacked again, and could not be maintained throughout the day, and therefore drew off one of the fieldpieces. At ten the enemy fent a ftronger detachment to make another attack, who were beat off as the first; and half an hour after. another attack was made by 200 of the division, who were likewife repulfed; but these fuccesses had fo much elated the defenders, that all the fepoys, with most of the Europeans, accompanied by enfign Airey himfelf, rushed out to purfue the detachment; who, as if by defign, retreated fast, and led them 300 yards into the plain : two troops of horfe, who had been patrolling in the rear of the infantry, chanced at this moment to be just behind the remaining Europeans of the division to the right; and feeing the advantage, fet' off at full gallop and fell fword in hand upon the purfuers, before they had time to form in proper order to refift the fhock. All were in an inftant feattered, and many were cut down before they reached the fivamy houfe; when, although fafe, they did not think themfelves fo, but leaving the field-piece, ran out on the other fide to gain the gate of Lawrence's garden, which flood open before them ; but before they got there, the troopers galloping round the east fide of the post, fell upon them again, up to the very gate, where their career was checked by a ftrong fire of the Sepoys, whom Mahomed Iffoof feeing the difaster had ranged along the walls. The furprize, for feveral fell, deprived the cavalry likewife of the recollection to return, and take fhelter behind the cover at the fwamy houfe ; but they galloped acrofs the angle of Lawrence's towards the angle of Carvalho's garden, where Caillaud feeing them coming, met them with the fire of the 4 field-pieces in this post: but the gunners having hitherto only ufed ball, forgot to change their charge for grape fhot, which greatly diminished the execution; for the cavalry paffed within 30 yards of the angle, and continued galloping onward to the north eaft, until out of reach, when they turned in the rear of their Sepoys behind hind the ridge. However fome of them fell; but all the lofs they had fuffered was much lefs than the havock they had made ; for they had killed or cut down more than a hundred, but moftly Sepoys.

Book X.

'The right division of the enemy's infantry with their field-pieces immediately took pofferfion of the deferted poft; their left likewife advanced fomething nearer the inclofures on their fide, and both began a hot cannonade against the garden walls, which being flight, but of brick, were eafily perforated. The Sepoys within took fhelter behind the houfes, ready to man the walls on a clofer attack; but ever and anon, one or other of those, obliged to move to and fro, was killed ; and thefe cafualties, although few, difpirited many, who took every opportunity to quit their stations, and steal into the back enclosures, from whence they escaped round the mount, and hastened far from the field. Of the black cavalry not more than a hundred had returned fince the rout in the morning, and kept both the rows of enclofures between themfelves and the enemy's fhot. At noon a party was difcerned advancing from the San Thomé river, with a piece of cannon drawn by many oxen. It was a heavy iron eighteen-pounder. The field-pieces at Carvalho's fired upon them at random fhot, which frightened the cattle, and obliged the drivers feveral times to unyoke the reftive, and at laft to throw them all off, when the Lafcars alone dragged the gun : but when arrived at the ridge, where the Sepoys had taken post, it could not be made use of behind it ; and whilft they were drawing it farther forward into the plain, feveral fhot which took place amongft them interrupted their attempt. At length it was brought to a proper station, and at 2 o'clock began to fire at point blank; it was opposed as before by the 4 threepounders, which could not with the fame certainty reach fo far, and feveral of the men ferving them were killed by the fhot, and wounded by fragments of the houfe. Mean while the enemy to the fouth, befides their cannonade, which continued hotter than in the forenoon, advanced at different intervals feveral parties, as well from the divifion on the left, as the fwamy houfe, with the appearance of affault, but only to draw the unneceffary fire of the Sepoys, which always always fucceeded ; and it became fortunate that fo many had quitted, for even the beft who remained could not be reftrained from firing on every motion, although in vain. But by 5 o'clock in the afternoon, the perfeverance of the enemy's cannonade obliged them likewife to diminish it, for fear of ruining their own guns, and at funfet it ceafed totally, and they were feen yoking, and foon after drew off all their artillery, moving to the eaftward : the eighteen-pounder ceafed and drew off at the fame time. The fight was more joyful than they fufpected to the troops in the village, for Calliaud had just before received information, that the mufket ammunition was expended to fix cartridges a man, and only three balls, befides the grapethot, left for each of the field pieces; fo that no retreat could have been made, if prefied by the enemy in the open plain. Spies followed them until they had croffied the river of San Thomé, and began to take up their quarters in the village of Marmelong; and immediately on the return of the fpies at eight at night, Calliaud marched away with all that remained of his force, in filence, for fear of the enemy's cavalry, and left fires to deceive them. Before the morning, they arrived at Vendaloor. The fugitive cavalry of the morning had run away with fo much hurry, that they reached Chinglapett before noon. To rejoin them, as well as to get a fupply of ammunition, Calliaud continued his march the next day, and arrived there in the evening, where all the Sepoys, who had not intirely deferted, were likewife affembled. Of the Europeans, feven were killed dead, and 1 3 wounded. It was not fo eafy to afcertain the lofs fuftained by the Sepoys; but by the reports of those who held out through the action, it was computed that fifty were killed on the fpot, and about 150 were brought away wounded. The lofs of the enemy was not known, but fuppofed to be 50 Europeans, and most in proportion of the cavalry. The firing of the action was heard in the fort, and feveral parties at different times of the day were feen going towards the mount, and not a few palankins and doolies returning from it with the wounded.

Notwithstanding the draughts which had been made for this attack, the enemy's fire on the fort continued with more vivacity than might have been expected, although not fo frequent as the day be-Vol. II. M m m fore, fore, but both their shot and shells were directed against the buildings. The Shaftefbury was not ready to weigh and bear down upon the Briftol, at anchor in the road of St. Thomé, before the night clofed, and in this interval the Briftol employed all the boats which could be affembled in unloading her ftores, and for more difpatch put a part of them on board of the floop which was in the road when the arrived, and into the other from the black town, which had paffed and anchored near her; neverthelefs fhe had not difcharged half her cargo before night, and for fear of the Shaftefbury fet fail, and was out of reach before morning. It being fuppofed that the fervice at the mount had drained the enemy's posts to the fouthward of the fort, two companies of Sepoys were detached in the afternoon, who proceeded as far as the governor's garden, from whence they brought off fome ammunition, and in their return fet fire to the gabions of the battery near the bar, meeting no opposition. The enemy's mortars continued fparingly through the night, but as in the day against the houses. Not a man or a gun was hurt in the fort during these 24 hours; but the numbers of the garrifon were by this time fo much impaired by cafualties and ficknefs, that the grenadier company, which had hitherto been kept in referve, were obliged to furnish a proportion to the guards of the different posts.

The next day, which was the 10th, the enemy fired with four guns and one mortar from Lally's, three guns from the buryingground, two from the Lorrain battery, and with two mortars at the fecond crochet : the guns at Lally's fired fmartly, but most of the shot from hence, as well as the shells from all the three mortars, were, as the day before, directed against the buildings, which were much rent and shattered. The mortars continued through the night, during which the garrison began another embrasive in the fascine battery on the beach, within the flow of the furf; it was intended to sweep the strand, along which the enemy might approach under cover of the bank of sand which forms the beach and stops the sea that has thrown it up. The gallery or mine at the falient angle was this day compleated : it had been pushed 90 feet from the counter-fcarp of the ditch, which brought it under the enemy's breaching battery, when a fhort return was made on each hand from the end, and in a chamber at the end of each return was laid a box, containing 200 pounds of powder, to which the faucifions were fixed. The gallery before the blind was fufficiently advanced towards the feafide to crofs any approach under ground to the blind, and another branch was opened from this gallery ten feet on the outfide of the east face of the covered way, parallel to which it was intended to prolong the branch, to the north, in order to difcover and meet the enemy if working under ground in this part. In the morning the Cuddalore floop belonging to the Company anchored in the road from Pulliacat, where the had been fome days, and had ftopped feveral embarkations of the country, coming with provisions from the northward to the enemy in the black town : orders were immediately fent off to her by a cattamaran; in confequence of which fhe bore down into the road of St. Thomé, and attacked the two fmall veffels lying there, which had not yet landed all the ftores they had received from the Briftol. The veffels, after receiving a few fhot, weighed and ran close to the furf, within 100 yards of the shore; the Cuddalore followed them as near as fhe could, when a party of mufketry, with two field-pieces came to the ftrand, and began to fire on her; by which the crew, who were all lafcars, were fo much frightened, that they could hardly be prevailed on to ftand the deck ; the mafter, therefore, bore away, and in the evening anchored again before the fort. The fire of the day and night wounded two Europeans and one Sepoy, and difabled a 24 pounder on the demi baftion.

On the 11th the enemy's fire continued from the fame cannon and mortars as the day before, but more brifkly. The Cuddalore floop bore down again in the morning upon the two veffels in the road of St. Thomé, and was again beat of by the fame fire from the fhore. The outward embrafure of the fafcine battery in the furf was compleated, and pallifadoes ftaked in front of it: a range of trees were laid before the pallifadoes, and others along the fhoulder of the battery in the furf itfelf. The cafualties in the day and night, were two Europeans and one Sepoy killed, and four Europeans and

The fame fire continued on the 12th, but with more effect, difabling fix guns. Before this time all the original parapet of the N.E. baftion had been battered away; and fo much of the body of the baftion itfelf crumbled, that the outfide of the gabions and fand-bags, which had been fubfituted on the rampart, did not extend beyond the ground which had been the line of the infide of the original parapet; and in the afternoon of this day a flot from a twentyfour pounder on Lally's battery came quite through the gabions, and wounded a centinel in the baftion; four other Europeans and one Sepoy were wounded, and two Europeans were killed, during thefe 24 hours.

At three in the morning of the 13th, a party from the enemy's trenches, confifting of 50 coffrees, advanced along the fea-fide from the ftockade, of which they were in poffeffion, intending to ftorm and nail up the guns in the fascine battery. They were led by a ferjeant chofen for his bravery, with the promife of a commiffion if the attempt fucceeded. The party was difcovered when within 30 yards of the work, on which they halted, probably to form for the pufh. and in this fhort interval received two rounds of grape-fhot from the embrafure next the breach, the execution of which threw them into fuch confusion, that they all ran back to the trenches, leaving feven dead, and the ferjeant defperately wounded. Upon this alarm, the drums beat to arms, and all the garrifon and inhabitants repaired to their feveral posts : and a finart fire was kept up from the defences. and returned by the enemy from the trenches, for fome time after the party was repulfed. The ferjeant crawled into the covered way, where he was taken up, told what he knew of the enemy's intentions, and died before day-break. This day the enemy ceafed firing from the three guns in the Lorrain battery, by which the number of their cannon was reduced to feven pieces; but the five in Lally's fired very brifkly : their three mortars continued as before through the day, but very fparingly during the night, which gave fufpicion that they were bufy at work in their trenches, and before day-light at three o'clock in the morning, it was difcovered that they had advanced fome gabions on the edge of the furf beyond the Palmyra ftockade, which indicated that they either intended to bring cannon againft the fafcine battery, or to advance by traverfes under cover of the beach which was fteep, and then attack the covered way and the fafcine battery together : a ftrong fire was kept up from the fafcine battery upon the ftockade, and the gabions they had advanced until the morning. In thefe 24 hours no guns were difmounted in the fort, but three Europeans were killed, and four, with one Sepoy, wounded. The mine under the enemy's battery at the falient angle of the covered way was compleatly ftopt up before noon ; and three pioneers, covered at night by ten grenadiers, were continued at the counterfcarp in readinefs to make the explosion.

It being difcovered at day-break of the 14th, that the enemy had renewed their gabions beyond the flockade, a fally was made upon them at fun-rife. A fubaltern and 15 men went along the covered way till they came upon the flank of the flockade, 40 men with two captains advanced directly in front of it along the glacis, followed by 20 pioneers and an engineer without arms. The two parties attacked at the fame inftant, and their first fire drove the enemy from the stockade, and continued firing forwards from it on all that appeared ; at the fame time the north ravelin, the royal, the demi, and N. E. baftion, plyed the trenches with grape fhot, and all together deterred the enemy from venturing out of them, which gave the pioneers leifure to overturn the gabions into the fea, and to fpread and level the earth they contained. After which, the whole detachment returned unmolefted into the covered way, having only two men flightly wounded. The enemy's fire continued as the day before, but they threw very few shells in the night, during which they worked hard in replacing the gabions which had been overfet in the morning, and endeavoured to compleat the traverfe from them towards the furf; but the fire of a twelve-pounder from the fascine battery, and the shells from the demi bastion, continually interrupted their work. In the evening the Diligent and a floop with ftores from Pondicherry anchored in the road of St. Thomé ; 2

Thomé; and on their appearance 15 failors which had been taken out of the Shaftsbury to serve in the garrison, with 30 more Europeans, were fent on board with orders to Captain Inglifs to bear down, and attack thefe veffels. The decks of the Shaftfbury being lumbered with goods, fhe did not get under fail until 11 o'clock at night, and was too foon difcovered by the two veffels, which immediately got under way, and before day-break were too far to the fouthward to be purfued. In these 24 hours two Europeans were killed, and 5 wounded, but none of the Sepoys were hurt. A twenty-four pounder on the demi baftion was split in the muzzle by one of the enemy's fhot. For feveral days a number of labourers, guarded by a party of foldiers, with an officer, had been difcerned from the steeple demolifhing the governor's garden-houfe, and in the afternoon of this day they fet fire to the village of Chipauk which flood at the back of the garden, between the bar of the river and the village of Triplicane.

The next day, which was the 15th, the enemy's fire was very brifk in the morning, from fix guns in Lally's, four at the buryingground, and two in the Lorrain battery; but it decreafed in the afternoon, and at 5 o'clock they only fired from three in Lally's, and two at the burying-ground, and from neither of the two in the Lorrain battery: the fire of their mortars likewife flackened. Several camels and many coolies were feen paffing from St. Thomé acrofs Egmore plain to the Black town, loaded, it was fuppofed, with ammuntion; but a much greater number of coolies with all kinds of burthens paffed from thence to the fouthward, which confirmed the intelligence of a fpy, that the enemy were fending away their fuperfluous flores and the remains of their booty to Pondicherry, and gave credit to the information of the deceafed ferjeant, that they had determined to raife the fiege. They fired very few shells, and continued very quiet in their trenches during the night; but the garrifon fuspecting that they might be carrying on their gabions by the feafide, kept up a fmart fire from the fafcine battery upon the head of their fap until 2 o'clock in the morning, when the moon gave fufficient light to difcover that they were doing nothing there; on which

which the firing ceafed. At the fame time, the enemy's guard in their battery on the creft of the glacis, which for fome days had only been used as a lodgement for mulketry, perceived and fired upon a party of Sepoys who were leveling the rubbish at the foot of the demi baftion, which had been beat down by the cannonade of the day. One of the Sepoys was killed, on which the reft ran away. and no other of these troops could be prevailed upon to continue the work, which was however compleated by a party of Europeans. A fix-pounder in the fascine battery was disabled by one of the enemy's thot. 'The cafualties in the 24 hours, were one Coffree and one Sepoy killed, and one of each, with two Europeans, wounded, and lieutenant Hopkins loft his right arm by a cannon fhot. Two letters were received this day from Major Calliaud, dated the 11th and 1 2th, advising his intention to make a forced march from Chinglapett, with the troops under his command, in hopes of furprizing the fort of Sadrafs, of which the French continued in pofferfion ; and requefting that money and ammunition might be fent to him there, in confequence of which the Cuddalore floop was immediately difpatched with 300 three-pound thot, and 20,000 pagodas in money. This fum compleated 70,000, which had been fent out of the fort, fince invefted, for the fupply of the army abroad. Much more remained in the company's treafury, which was indebted for this affluence to the remittances from their acquifitions in Bengal; but, had this fource failed, the wealth of individuals collected within the fort would have been much more than fufficient to have anfwered all the expences incurred for its defence. Very different were the faculties and finances of the enemy. The treafury of the government at Pondicherry was exhausted, and individuals from their diftruft and deteftation of Mr. Lally would lend none to forward the public caufe, although their own; and from violence and mifmanagement, the countries which had been reduced, and were the whole extent between Devi Cotalı, Arcot, and Madrafs, had furnished neither revenues or other means adequate to the wants and confumption of the enemy's army employed in the fiege, where the pay of the common foldiers was at this time fix weeks in arrear, and their

their other neceffities equally ill fupplied; who neverthelefs, notwithstanding the difcontented difcourses of their officers, still more difhonourable becaufe they had all got plunder, perfevered in their duty with unremitting fpirit and alacrity, and Mr. Lally feems to have refpected their merit. But the Sepoys had neither the fame principles, nor received the fame encouragement, for he had always treated them, as all the natives in general, with the utmost contempt and feverity, which they now revenged, just as their flender fervices became most important, by threatening to leave the army, if they were not immediately paid; and fpreading their example by their correspondence, 500, who had been posted with a few Europeans in the fort of Tripaffore, forced the gates, and marching out with their arms plundered the country, in order, as they faid, to collect their arrears. The news was brought to the black town a few hours after the event, on the 15th, and created much anxiety, because all the provisions which the army received, came by Tripaffore, and might be eafily diverted by these malecontents. Few refrained from declaring that the fiege ought to be immediately raifed ; but Mr. Lally, to maintain the lead of his own opinion, gave out that he would never quit the enterprize, until he had tried the fuccefs of a general affault, and talked as if the hour was not far diftant.

The next morning, which was the 16th, the enemy's cannon, although not increafed in number, fired with more vivacity than for many days before. At 3 in the afternoon intelligence was brought by a catamaran from Paliacat, that a floop, which had juft anchored there, had fpoke on the 9th of the month in the lat. of 14°, with the fhips from Bombay, from which the Shaftfbury had feparated; and that they had been feen on the 12th off Durafapatam, 100 miles to the north of Madrafs. At 5 o'clock in the afternoon, the fix fhips were deferyed in the N.E. ftanding towards the road; neverthelefs the enemy's fire continued with uncommon vivacity until funfet; and it being concluded, that, if they had ever intended to make a general affault, it would be attempted this night, before the reinforcements could be landed, every foldier and inhabitant in the garrifon capable of ftanding to his arms repaired to their relpective pofts, and

and as foon as it was dark a hot fire of mufketry from the north face of the defences was kept up on the enemy's works, which they returned with equal alacrity. At ten at night the fhips, directed by lights held out in the fort, anchored in the road. The firing on fhore fill continued, and at 2 in the morning that from the enemy, in their lodgement, on the creft of the glacis, and in their pofts and fap opposite to the N.E. bastion and fascine battery, although very ftrong before, grew ftronger than ever, but their fhot flew too high : it began to flacken foon after, when the blaze of fires were perceived in their trenches : at 3 all their annoyances ceafed intirely, after which no motions of men were any longer diffinguished; but feveral large piles of wood in the rear of Lally's battery were feen in flames. The cafualties fince the preceding morning to this time, were three Europeans and one Sepoy wounded, and one Sepoy killed.

At day-break the whole army were difcovered in full march from the weft fide of the black town towards the Choultry Plain, and the greateft part had already croffed the northern river. They had previoufly undermined the redoubt and powder-mill at Egmore; and at 9 o'clock a party left for the purpofe made the explosion, which intirely ruined both; thefe works had coft the Company 30,000 pounds, and could not be reftored in a twelvemonth. The enemy were then perceived marching on to the mount. The hurry of their retreat faved the black town from the refolution which Mr. Lally had taken of reducing it to ashes, if compelled to raife the fiege. By noon the troops in the source all landed: they were, including officers, 600 men.

Joy and curiofity carried out every one to view and contemplate the works from which they had received fo much moleftation, for the enemy's fire had continued 42 days. Thirty-three pieces of cannon, 18 or 24 pounders, were found in their pofts and works, of which 26 were difabled; but feven were in their carriages, and both in good condition. Some fpare carriages were likewife left, and many cannot fhot, but no mortars, although feveral beds; and many military flores, with quantities of powder in cafks and flannel bags, Nor II. were found carelefsly fcattered in the trenches. They evacuated San Thomé, and whatever guards between this place and the fort were withdrawn at the fame time that the army left the black town. The garrifon, as foon as certified of their departure, fent out parties to the fouthward and to Egmore, who collected 19 guns more, mostly iron three pounders: fo that the whole number which the enemy lost and left behind were 52 pieces of cannon. One hundred and fifty barrels of good powder, and as many cafks of damaged ammunition, were found in San Thomé. But the ftrongest proof of the hurry and confusion with which they raifed the fiege, was the neglect of their fick and wounded, leaving 44 Europeans, (all who had not been fent away before) in their hospital in the black town, with a letter from Mr. Lally, recommending them to the care of the English governor: they were received and treated with the fame attentions, as if they had belonged to the garrifon, and most of them afterwards recovered.

The fort fired during the fiege 26,554 rounds from their cannon, 7,502 shells from their mortars, and threw 1990 hand-grenades : the mufketry expended 200,000 cartridges. In these fervices were used 1768 barrels of gun-powder. Thirty pieces of cannon and 5 mortars had been difmounted on the works. There remained in the fort, artillery fufficient for another fiege, with 30,767 cannonballs, but only 481 fhells, and 668 barrels of gun-powder. As many of the enemy's cannon-balls were gathered in their works, or about the defences of the fort, or found in wells and tanks in the black town, as the garrifon had expended. The enemy confumed all the shells of the two first rates in the stores of Pondicherry, and threw of all forts 8000, of which by far the greateft number were directed against the buildings, all of which lay together in half the area within the walls, in the old town to the eaftward : and fcarce a house remained that was not opened to the heavens.

Of the European officers, one major, Polier, two captains, fix lieutenants, and four enfigns, were killed : one captain and one lieutenant died of fickness : 14 other officers were wounded, of whom fome fome dangeroufly; and four were taken prifoners: in all 33. Of rank and file in the battalions of Europeans, and of the men belonging to the artillery, 198 were killed, 52 died in the hofpital, 20 deferted, 122 were taken prifoners, and 167 were wounded; in all 579; but many of the wounded recovered. Of the lafcars, who were natives affifting in the artillery, nine were killed, and 15 wounded. Of the Sepoys, including officers, 105 were killed, 217 wounded, and 440 deferted. The lofs in Europeans was more than reinftated by the troops brought in the fhips.

The governor Mr. Pigot, as foon as the enemy difappeared, relinquifhed the fpecial authority which had been vefted in himfelf, to the ufual administration of the council, of which he was prefident; and received their thanks for the good effects of his refolution and activity during the fiege: he had visited the works every day, encouraging the garrifon by his prefence, and rewarding those exposed to feverer fervices, with money. Provisions of all kinds in abundance, and of the best condition, had been laid up, and as well as all the military flores, were distributed from the different magazines, under the direction of the members of the council, affisted by the inferior fervants of the company, whose habits of business eftablished and continually preferved these details free of all let and confusion.

The Prefidency, as foon as re-eftablished in its usual forms, acknowledged their fense of the zeal and constancy with which the garrison had fustained every danger and fatigue; and no men ever better deferved this testimony, for fcarce a murmur had been uttered: all was emulation: All however acknowledged that the enemy, in proportion to their numbers compared with the strength of the garrison and works, had pushed the attack with unremitting perfeverance and endeavour, and the enemy equally respected the fcience and strength of the defence. Indeed most of the principal officers of the Company's troops had been inured to fervice under their general Colonel Lawrence, whom they still regarded as their preceptor in the fiege: they were, Major Polier; the Captains Pascall, N n n z. 457

Charles Campbell, Beaver, Richard Smith, Gurtler, de Beck, Freishman, Vafferot, Black, Hume, Donald Campbell, Greig. Every repair and additional work was executed with regularity and difpatch under the direction of Mr. Call the chief engineer, although this was the first fiege, whether offensive or defensive, in which he had ferved. Captain Hiflop, who arrived with a company of the King's artillery-men, at the fame time as Adlercron's regiment, was the fenior officer in this branch ; he had ferved in Bergenop-zoom. The Company's artillery, which furnished all the cannon and ammunition, was commanded by Captain Robert Barker : even the enemy acknowledged that the promptitude and execution of the fire from the fort was fuperior to their own : whatfoever guns or mortars were difabled on the defences, were immediately replaced by others prepared in ftore : Colonel Draper and Major Brereton were of the King's troops : fo that no town was ever attacked, which had in proportion to the garrifon fuch a number of excellent and experienced officers. The exertions of Major Calliaud and Captain Preston were equal in the field. Thus every officer of distinction on the eftablishment of Coromandel was employed in the defence of Madrafs, excepting Captain Jofeph Smith, to whom was committed the prefervation of the next important object, Tritchinopoly, in which the French prifoners out-numbered five to one the invalid Europeans of his garrifon.

In the evening, after the enemy retreated, came in Vafferot and the ten troopers with intelligence from Calliaud. This officer marched from Chinglapett on the 13th, but mifled by the guides did not arrive at Sadrafs, as he intended the next night, but the morning after; when the Dutch refidents, although remaining in the town only on fufferance from the French, who were in poffeffion of their fort, protefted against his entrance with hostile appearance on the territory belonging to the Dutch company. At the fame time a party of French troops, which were halting there in their way from Pondicherry to join Mr. Lally, went into the fort, and this reinforcement rendered the attempt impracticable excepting by a regular attack, to which the artillery with Calliaud was not adequate.

adequate. He nevertheles remained to invest the fort, and foon after intercepted a letter from Mr. Lally to Mr. Deleyrit, dated the 14th, written in the bitterest terms of reproach and refertment, imputing the failure of his attempt against Madrass, which he then faw inevitable, to the iniquities and treachery of the government of Pondicherry, denouncing, that if this place should escape the vengeance it merited of fire from heaven, nothing could preferve it long from destruction by the fire of the English.

The lofs of men fuftained by the French army is no where acquired; they were 2700 firelocks when they advanced from Conjeveram; and Mr. Lally, in the intercepted letter, fays, that he had ftill 2000 Europeans; the Sepoys with him were not more than 1000, for feveral detachments were abroad. The lofs of the cannon and ammunition which had been left or thrown away, he imputed to the want of ferviceable bullocks, and this deficiency to the rapacity of the contractors leagued with the council of Pondicherry. His army marched away in rags, and without provisions, but, having gun-powder and horfe, exacted them, and continued their rout to Arcot. Advices of their retreat had been fent off to Calliaud as, foon as they difappeared, who immediately on the information detached Mahomed Iffoof with 1200 Sepoys from Sadrafs, to reinforce Chinglapett, left the French army fhould inveft this place; the Sepoys by a forced march arrived before the enemy could have intercepted them, if fuch had been their intention : the next day Major Calliaud, with the remaining fix companies of Sepoys, and all the cavalry, Abdulwahab at the head of his own, came into Madrafs. Thus ended this fiege, without doubt the most firenuous and regular that had ever been carried on in India; and we have detailed it, in hopes that it may remain an example and incitement.

JOT only the Carnatic and its dependencies, but all the adjacent powers, had fixed their attention, with various hope and anxiety, on the fiege of Madrafs, as an event, which fooner or later must greatly affect their respective views and interests. It was believed, and juftly, that much and extensive reputation would be acquired by the defence; but as this advantage would foon be loft if the adjacent territory were not recovered and protected, it was refolved to take the field without delay. With the reinforcement brought in the fhips, there were in the town when the fiege was raifed, of all ranks, 1900 estimated Europeans, including 90 Topasses and 60 Coffrees, inferted in the different companies : of this number 1 500 rank and file were fit for immediate duty; and this force was fufficient to face the French army. Neverthelefs, the vigour of the determination exceeded the means : many carriages for the artillery and flores were to be prepared, and the artificers being mostly natives were few, and had much other work to do : draught and carriage bullocks were to be provided, and the ravages of the enemy had left none in the country; provisions were equally fcarce : perfeverance, however, continued. Chinglapett being fecured, the reft of the troops with Mahomed Iffoof, the horfe with Abdulwahab, and thofe fent with Major Calliaud by Tondiman and Tanjore, encamped on the choultry plain, where they were joined day by day by the Europeans of the garrifon; but the whole were not ready to move before the 6th of March, and in this interval arrived two more companies panies of Draper's regiment, which the thips they came in from England had carried to Bengal in the latter feafon of the laft year, and they were now returned to the coaft. The whole force which now took the field were 1156 Europeans, rank and file, including the artillery men, with 10 field-pieces, of which two were 12 pounders, 1570 Sepoys, 1120 Colleries, and 1956 horfe. On news of their approach, Mr. Lally moved back from Arcot with the main body of his troops, and took post at Conjeveram, where the advantages of the fituation left them nothing to fear from an inferior force; and, his health being much impaired, he went away to Pon . dicherry on the 6th, leaving the command to Mr. Soupire, with orders not to rifque a general battle; but to wait the attack. The defects of equipments still retarded the progress of the English army, and it was the 18th before they arrived at Paupa Braminy's Choultry, within feven miles of Conjeveram. On the last march, Mahomed Iffoof, with fome horfe, advancing before the line, met fome of the enemy's European cavalry, who, though much inferior in number, ftood a fkirmish with the foremost of his; and were driven back, with the lofs of an officer and two horfes killed. On the 3d, Captain Preston at Chinglapett, hearing there was but a slight force in the fort of Carangoly, had detached Lieutenant Airy, with feven companies of Sepoys, to furprize it; but they took a panic under the walls, not to be recovered by the bravery of their officer, which encouraged the garrifon to fally, who killed 25 of them in their flight.

Whilft the army was before Conjeveram, letters were received from Colonel Forde, who was fet down before Mafulipatam, defpairing of fuccefs, unlefs he were reinforced with men and fupplied with money. By this time, it was found that all the refources of the prefidency were inadequate to the expence of keeping the army in the field, and no probability appeared of gaining a decifive advantage over the enemy. The Prefidency therefore inclined to bring the troops into cantonments, and to fend 200 men to Colonel Forde. Colonel Lawrence, although convinced of the imprudence of attacking the enemy in the pofts they occupied at Conjeveram, was equally perfuaded of the evil confequences fequences of retreating before them, and came to Madrafs on the 26th, to diffuade the Council, either from diminifhing their force, or from withdrawing it into garrifon; and his arguments prevailed. He then declared the inability, to which the impaired flate of his health had reduced him, of continuing in the command of the army; and received the higheft regrets and encomiums of his eminent fervices, crowned by exertions much beyond his age, in the defence of Madrafs. The command then devolved to Lieutenant-Colonel Draper, who was likewife too ill to accept it, and foon after embarked for England; on which it fell to Major Brereton, the next officer in the king's regiment, and Major Calliaud fucceeded Colonel Lawrence in the diffinet command of the Company's troops.

Nazeabullah, the Nabob's brother, had accompanied the French army to Madrafs, and remained fome days with them in the black town; when his own affairs, his doubts of the fuccefs of the fiege, and the reprefentations and example of his brother, Abdulwahab, who was joining the English troops in the field, induced him to return to Nelore, which Mr. Lally having derived no advantage from his prefence or endeavours permitted without reluctance. Still, however, holding fair to the French, he retained a few of their Europeans, and 200 of their Sepoys; but as foon as he heard that the fiege was raifed, he refolved to declare intirely for the English, and blackened his zeal, by putting to death all the French Europeans, excepting their officer, Saint Denys. It is not known whether they attempted reliftance; but the Sepoys laid down their arms, and were quietly turned out of the fort. With the advices of this deed, he profered to pay 30,000 pagodas a year, if the Prefidency would confirm him in the government of Nelore, and its diffricts ; and, as no revenue, excepting from his good-will, was to be expected from that part of the country, until the English army had gained the fuperiority, his terms were accepted, and he fent the French officer to Madrafs. Abdulwahab continued with the army, and his fervices were rewarded by a confirmation of the diffricts of Chandergherry and Chitore. The three greater Polygars to the Vol. II. Ooo north46*3* 1759.

northward, Bangar-yatchum, Bomrauze, and Damerlah Venkytappah, wrote letters of congratulation, although they had given no affiftance during the fiege: they were ordered to guard their own hills, and affift Chandergherry and Chittore, if attacked. The minor Polygars nearer Madrafs were frightened, in expectation of punifhment for the robberies they had committed in the Englifh diftricts during the diftreffes of the fiege; but their delinquency was overlooked, and they were told to affift the forts of Pondamelée and Tripaffore, into which garrifons of Sepoys had been fent, as foon as they were abandoned by the enemy in their retreat to Arcot.

Even the cautious Mortizally of Velore congratulated the Prefidency on the repulse of the fiege. The body of Morattoes, with Gopaul Row, who had in the preceding year warred and gained the half of Cudapah, and to whom proffers had been made for their affistance, remained at the paffes of Damalcherry, waiting the event : and as foon as the French retreated, Gopaul Row claimed 12 lacks of rupees, alledging that he had neglected other concerns of greater confequence, in expectation of the ultimate fummons of the prefidency, and that the dread of his troops had obliged the French to raife the fiege. It was known that he had equally been offering his affiftance to the French, and the prefidency recommended to him, to cut their army to pieces before they reached Pondicherry, and then he fhould have the money. He replied, in feveral letters, fraught with infinuations of the mifchief he intended to bring on the English, as well at Bombay, as in the Carnatic; and fent 500 of his Morattoes to join the French army; but Mr. Delevrit, the governor of Pondicherry, advifed Mr. Lally not to entertain them, becaufe they would not fail to plunder with greater detriment in the French diftricts, as more extensive, than in those which the English had recovered. They were difinified with compliments and a finall prefent, on which Gopaul Row to compensate and revenge the disappointment, fent a detachment round the hills, which took poffeffion of the town and pagoda of Tripetty, intending to collect the revenues of the approaching fealt in April, which the French government expected. 7 expected to receive. This detachment in their way fummoned the three northern Polygars as friends to the English, to pay their shares of the chout, or tribute, which Gopaul Row had demanded, and had not time to exact in the preceding year.

The king of Tanjore fired guns, and congratulated on the fortune and prowefs of Madrafs; and, the Prefidency encouraged by his profeffions, proposed to him to affift them in a plan to furprise the fort of Karical, when the fquadron fhould arrive on the coaft : to which he anfwered, that the last hostilities of the French had ruined his country, and that the crop at prefent on the ground would likewife be deftroyed, if difturbances were renewed : but that, as the English had beat off the French army from Madrafs, they fhould immediately drive them out of Pondicherry, when Karical would fall of courfe. He was then requefted to let beeves be purchased in his country as provisions for the squadron ; which the strictness of his religion regarded as an abomination, nor would he fuffer the interpreter to go on in reading the letter, written to him on this fubject.

The Nabob, ever fince his arrival at Tritchinopoly, had continued fick. His diforder was a jaundice, produced by excels of vexation at the late humiliations of his fortune : the repulse of the French attack on Madrafs conduced not a little to the recovery of his health; but his mind retained much follicitude for every future contingency. However, the vigilance of Captain Joseph Smith had preferved the diffricts dependant on the city in peace and cultivation, and their revenues were more than fufficient to defray the neceffary expences of the garrifon, as well as of the Nabob's family. The great number of French prifoners in the city, who were 500, whilft the European force in the garrifon did not exceed 70 men, had been an object of constant anxiety, and plots were continually discovered of their intentions to break out of their dungeons; which obliged Captain Smith to confine them with the utmost feverity. The Rheddi of Terriore, whom he had driven out of that town and diffrict in the month of July of the preceding year, went away with those who escaped with him, to the borders of the Myfore country, where he was, at different times, joined by fuch as were were difaffected to the other Rheddi, who had been reftored in his ftead. They fometimes made plundering excursions into the country between Terriore and Utatore; but attempted nothing of confequence. However, their numbers encreafed; and they kept up a correspondence with feveral of the pfincipal men who continued to refide with the Rheddi in Terriore. When Mahomed Iffoof marched away in November to the relief of Madrafs, the garrifon of Tritchinopoly could not fpare the number of Sepoys neceffary to compleat his command, and three of the five companies which had been left in Terriore, were recalled to make up the deficiency. As foon as they were gone, the expelled Rheddi, with his troops, who were waiting to retake the place, arrived before they were difcovered at the barrier of the wood, where fome of the remaining Sepoys were ftationed; but the reft of the guard had been feduced, and inftead of affifting the Sepoys, turned their arms upon them, and delivered up the barrier to the enemy, who marched on, and advanced to the town without interruption, fending fo much terror before them, that the Rheddi within, with his troops, and the inhabitants, that adhered to him, ran away into the wood and hills, leaving the English ferjeant with the Sepoys, to defend themfelves as they could. The ferjeant took pofferfion of the palace. which was an extensive building; but the enemy furrounded it in the houfes on all fides, that not a man could apppear who was not exposed to their fire, which obliged the ferjeant to capitulate, and he eafily obtained permiffion to march away to Tritchinopoly, with their arms, and whatever elfe they chofe to carry. Captain Jofeph Smith had received fome intelligence of the intention to attack the place. and had detached fome troops to reinforce it, but it was loft before they arrived at the wood. This event happened in the end of November. In the next month, Huffein Cawn, who had been driven in the month of July from Seringham by a detatchment from Tritchinopoly, returned from Pondicherry with fome Sepoys and two field-pieces, and took post at Utatore, intending again to advance to the ifland, and retake the pagoda; but Captain Smith fent a party from the garrifon, under the command of Captain Blake, who did not

not fuffer them to reft until they took refuge in the Myfore country, where they remained, propofing fchemes, and foliciting affiftance; but meeting little encouragement from this government, Huffein Cawn offered to join the Rheddi, who had retaken Terriore, in making incurfions into the Nabob's country: but the Rheddi, making a merit of refraining from the mifchief in his power, proffered money and regular terms of fubmiffion to the Nabob, who, for the fake of the money, and to fave the expence of defending the diftant villages, accepted his obedience, and confirmed him in the government; in which this was his fourth inftallation, and the other Rheddi had loft and refumed it as often.

The countries of Madura and Tinivelly had relapfed into their former flate of anarchy and confusion, after Mahomed Isloof, with fo large a part of his force, was recalled out of them in the month of July. All that the feven companies of Sepoys left in the city of Madura could do, was to collect from the country provisions fufficient for their fubfiftance. The incurfions of the Nattam colleries from the north, and of those under the Polygars along the hills to the weft, ruined or appropriated whatfoever cultivation or revenue arofe in the diffricts at a diffance from the city. To the fouthward, in the Tinivelly country matters were much worfe. Maphuze Cawn forgot all his former professions of reconciliation, united more firmly than ever, and took up his refidence with the Pulitaver, who led the western Polygars; and Catabominaig, with Etiaporum, who were the heads of the weftern, concluding from the fuperiority of the French in the Carnatic, that the affairs of the Nabob and the English would never recover, feized whatfoever country lay convenient for them : nor did the five companies of Sepoys left in the fort of Palamcotah, and bereft of all alliance, venture any opposition to their encroachments, or even to maintain the town of Tinivelly; of which Maphuze Khan and the Pulitaver once again took pofferion. The Sepoys contented themfelves with preferving Palamcotah, where they were often obliged to defend the walls against the skirmishes of the Pulitaver's colleries, which confumed their ammunition; and, as none of their letters reached the Carnatic, or even Tritchinopoly; ther they wrote by the hand of a Topafs, a letter to Anjengo, which is the fouthern of the Englifh factories on the coaft of Malabar, requefting fupplies; but the Topafs writing what he thought Englifh, the letter was fo unintelligible, that the factory neither underflood from whence or whom it came, nor what they wanted. At length, letters from Mahomed Ifloof procured them credit, which enabled them to purchafe provision, and even to get lead and gunpowder from the fea-coaft in the bay of Tutacorin. It was very fortunate, that the fidelity of the Sepoys in Madura and Palamcotah continued unfhaken; for had either of thefe fortreffes been betrayed, no means remained of retaking them; and the ceffion of Madura might have purchafed Hyderally, the Myfore general, to join the French, who at this very time had an officer of diffinction treating with him at Seringapatam.

The repulse of the French from Madrafs had increased the danger of lofing thefe countries, fince the French, being no longer under the neceffity of keeping their whole force collected in one point, might, ftill leaving fufficient to oppose the English army in the field, detach the reft to other objects. The partizan Lambert was moving with his flying troops from Pondicherry to the weftward; and danger to the city of Madura might accrue even from Huffein Cawn, if he fhould get a body of Myforeans to accompany him from Dindigul. On these confiderations, the Prefidency refolved to fend Mahomed Iffoof back into these countries, and to accept his offer of renting Madura and Tinivelly, together, at the rate of five lacks of rupees for the enfuing year, clear of all charges, excepting what might arife from the necessity of defending them either against the French, the Myforeans, or Morattoes. The Nabob had, ever fince the firft appointment of Mahomed Iffoof to conduct the war in these countries, regarded him with fuspicion and averfion, and infifted that they should be left to his own difpofal and controul; although he had not in his whole dependence, a relation or officer of military refolution and experience fufficient to maintain them in this time of difficulty.

The French and English armies continued almost in fight of each other for two and twenty days; the one wishing to be attacked, in their

their posts at Conjeveram, the other, a general action in the open plain; and neither was feduced to give the advantage which the other defired. Most of the districts to the fouth of the Paliar were under either the protection or jurifdiction of the French government; and as other defiances had failed, Major Brereton refolved to march into them, as the likelieft means of bringing the enemy to a battle, or at least of obliging them to quit Conjeveram, when fome opportunity might arife of retaking this place, without which, even the diffricts already recovered as far as the English army had advanced could not be protected, unless by their continuance in the field, and in this part of the country. Accordingly, the army moved on the 1ft of April from their encampment at Papa Braminy's Choultry ; on the 6th, they arrived, and took pofferfion of the pettah of Vandivash, in which they began to open ground against the fort, and fent to Madrafs for two pieces of battering cannon; and a detachment fent by captain Preston from Chinglapett beat away the guard at Outramalore, of which place he took poffeffion, to fecure the line of communication with Vandiwash.

Mr. Soupires neither gave any interruption to the English army, as they were marching away, nor followed them. Mr. Lally had ordered him to rifque nothing, and the French army had for fome days been reduced to great diffrefs for want both of money and provisions. The fiege of Madrais had exhausted the treasury of Pondicherry, and its revenues were anticipated by mortgages for loans, and what monies could be collected from the country between Conjeveram and Arcot, or borrowed in the camp, fcarcely furnished the expences of the day, and the inhabitants of the neighbouring villages finding that the English paid punctually, and at better prices, evaded as much as possible to carry any provisions to the French camp. The renters of the neighbouring diffricts, magnified the detriment which their lands had fuffered from the Morattoes of Gopaul Row, in order to protract their payments, by the plea of difcuffing their accounts. In this fituation, Mr. Soupires confidered the removal of the English army as an advantage; fince it permitted him to retreat to Arcot, with the appearance of parting on equal terms. He left in Conje469 1759. April.

veram 300 Sepoys and 100 horfe, under the command of Murzafabeg, who had deferted from the English a little before the fiege of Madrafs. The renters at Arcot furnished Mr. Soupires money and provisions for eight days, and he extended his troops in different parties between Arcot and Trivatore, which is fituated 20 miles s.w. in the high road from thence to Vandiwash.

Book XI.

Mr. Lally, as foon as he heard that the English army was before Vandiwash, immediately came out of Pondicherry with 300 Europeans, ordering Mr. Soupires to meet him with the main body at Chittapet ; where they arrived on the 14th. Trivatore is farther from Chittapet, than it is from Vandiwash. The nearer road from Vandiwash to Conjeveram is not good; but from Vandiwash to Trivatore, and hence to Conjeveram excellent, and of quicker difpatch, although by the large angle it makes feveral miles more. Major Brereton was informed in the evening of the 13th of the march of the French army with Soupires, and that the whole had paffed Trivatore; on which he decamped in the night from Vandiwafh. and, by a forced march, arrived the next day at Trivatore, which he found abandoned, and blew up one of the baftions; and continuing the fame ftrefs of march, they arrived, on the evening of the 15th, near Conjeveram. Several letters had paffed with Murzafabeg, who pretended to be willing to betray his truft, but afked fuch terms as proved, that he only wanted to gain time until the French army could come to his relief; on which Colonel Monfon, with the advanced division, invested the pagoda in the evening, which it was determined to ftorm the next morning. Murzafabeg no longer diffembled, but kept up a brifk fire of mufketry through the night; by which feveral, and Colonel Monfon himfelf, was wounded.

The gateway of the pagoda at Conjeveram is fpacious and lofty, and the tower over it one of the largeft and higheft in the Carnatic. It ftands in the middle of the weftern wall, and fronts the principal fireet of the town, which is very broad; but there is an area between, of the fame breadth as the wall of the pagoda, and 300 yards acrofs. There were no gates fixed in the gateway; and to cover the entrance, the French had thrown up a ravelin before it in barbette, on which,

as well as on the fmall towers at each angle of the pagoda, were mounted guns, but old, and of little fervice; and fcaffoldings of bamboos for finall parties of musketry were raised along different parts of the wall within. There was, in the area without, a large choultry, with the back to the pagoda, about 200 yards from the gateway, but a little to the right. Near this choultry, as good cover, the troops threw up a ramp in the night, and early in the morning began to fire over it against the ravelin from their two twelve-pounders, which the enemy returned with all their means, but with little execution ; only wounding Major Brereton flightly, and two or three of the gunners. By eight o'clock the earth of the ravelin appeared fufficiently beaten down, and the troops marched to the attack, led by Major Calliaud at the head of the grenadiers. Few of the defenders waited the affault hand to hand, but, after giving their fire, ran into the pagoda. The officers, ftimulated by an intemperate rivality of danger, got first over the ravelin, and began, as the men came, to form them for the attack of the gateway, in the middle of which the enemy had laid a large old iron gun on logs of wood; and within were two lines of Sepoys difpofed in an angle for the advantage of a crofs-fire on the entrance. In a minute, 40 or 50 men, of whom much too many were officers, were crowded together within the ravelin, when the enemy fired their gun, which they had treble loaded with powder, and to the muzzle with mufket-balls and bits of ragged iron. The excess of the explofion, and the thick black fmoke which arofe from it, gave the idea of a mine, nor was the effect much lefs. It killed eight men on the fpot, and wounded ten. Of the killed were Captains Stewart and Bannatyne, Lieutenant Elliot and Enfign Hunter; of the wounded, Major Calliaud, Captain Vaughan dangeroufly, a Lieutenant and two Enfigns. Even most of those who were fafe were fo furprized by this havock, that they flood awhile before they formed again to the attack; during which, they luckily fuffered very little from the mulketry within. By this time, a party of Sepoys, led by Mahomed Iffoof and Lieutenant Airy, had clambered over the oppofite wall of the pagoda, and appeared in the rear of Ppp thofe VOL. II.

thofe who were defending the gateway; and, on their fhout, the troops at the gate rufhed in, and in a minute the whole garrifon was between two fires, at mercy, every man for himfelf begging quarter; which was given with more humanity than ufual on fuch exafperation. After all was quiet, Murzafabeg furrendered himfelf, out of one of the chapels into which he had retired, to fome of the Sepoys; but, as they were conducting him to Major Brereton, Mahomed Iffoof met them, knew the prifoner, and faying, "Thefe are "the terms to be kept with a traitor," with one ftroke of his fcymetar, almoft fevered his head from his body. The news of this fuccefs was received at Madrafs the next day, on which likewife arrived advices of no little importance from Colonel Forde.

Book XI.

1758. The Rajah Anunderawze had fo little fense of the advantages December. which might have enfued by preffing on the French immediately after their defeat at Peddipore, that he did not come up with his troops to Rajahmundrum, where Colonel Forde with the English forces were waiting for him, until the 16th of December, which was ten days after the battle, although the diftance is only 40 miles. Anunderawze had promifed to make the first payment of his treaty, as foon as he fhould be put in pofferfion of the fort of Rajahmundrum; and, in confidence of his word, Colonel Forde had lent him 20,000 rupees, before he marched with the English from Cassimcotah. This fum, with a fupply to the factory at Vizagapatam, and the expences of the field, had abforbed all the money which came from Bengal; and Colonel Forde had nothing but the Rajah's promifes to anfwer the pay of the troops for the month of December. However, still relying on them, he croffed the Godaveri on the 23d, still hoping to appear before Mafulipatam before the French had recovered the ftun of their late defeat : but the Rajah neither followed with his army, nor fent any money; and, as it would have been vain to have attempted even the march without both, Colonel Forde, with much vexation and refentment, recroffed the river with all the troops on the 26th. The Rajah imagined they were returning to punish him, and, in this fright, fled immediately to the hills which fkirt the province

province about twenty miles to the North of the city; and Colonel Forde, for the convenience of a nearer communication with Vizagapatam, marched two days back, and encamped at Peddapore, which, with a name very nearly the fame, is a fort ten miles to the west of that which has defignated his victory. Mr. Andrews immediately fent him 20,000 rupees from Vizagapatam, and on the 13th of January came himfelf to the camp ; from whence he went into the hills, and reached the Rajah on the 15th, whofe fears of the Colonel, and averfion to furnish any money, continued as ftrong as ever, infomuch that he feemed no longer folicitous about the fuccefs of the expedition. His conduct was the more perplexing, becaufe the news that the French were befieging Madrafs had ftopped the English credit in thefe provinces, which the Rajah's name alone could immediately reftore; and if his troops did not march, others must be hired, for which no money could be found. The dilemma induced Mr. Andrews to alter the treaty he had made fome time before, and to agree, " that whatfoever fums the Rajah might furnish should be con-" fidered as a loan ; and that the revenues of all the countries which " might be reduced on the other fide of the Godavery, excepting fuch " as belonged to the French either by eftablishment, or grant in " propriety, fhould be equally divided between him and the English." With these conditions Mr. Andrews brought him back to the camp on the 18th : and it was agreed to march on to Mafulipatam ; but it took feven days more in bargains for exchange with the fhroffs before he furnished only 6000 rupees in ready money, and bills at ten days for 60,000 more. At length the armies moved from Peddapore on the 28th, after fifty days had been loft, of which the first twenty diligently employed would probably have accomplished all the purposes of the expedition, which now appeared of much more difficult execution, as the enemy had gained full time to recollect themfelves : nor had the delay the finalleft plea of neceffity; for the Rajah might with as little inconvenience have done at first what he unwillingly complied with at laft; although the expedition had been undertaken from a reliance on his promifes, warranted by the earnestnefs of his follicitations.

The Hardwicke and the two floops, which had been difpatched from Vizagapatam on the 12th of December, anchored the next day in the road of Yanam, which lies on the eaftern mouth of the Godaveri, where the agents of the French factory, on news of the defeat at Peddipore, had embarked their effects and themfelves in a fnow, which had not got out of the river when the Hardwicke arrived; and they furrendered to her longboat without refiftance. Some days after, the veffels failed down to Mafulipatam, and cruized between this place and Narfipore on the weftern arm of the Godaveri, until the 9th of February, when they fixed their flation in Mafulipatam road, waiting for the arrival of the army; but weighing occafionally to bring veffels to, that were paffing in the offing, of which they intercepted feveral laden with rice for Pondicherry, and the French army before Madrafs.

The English army arrived on the 6th of February at Elore; but, to prevent another quarrel, Colonel Forde had been obliged to let the Rajah march as he lifted, employing his troops to the right and left, in levying contributions, on promife, however, of rejoining him foon at Elore. This place, otherwife called Yalore, is fituated 50 miles s. w. of Rajahmundrum, and nearly 40 N. of Mafulipatam. It is the capital of a province, or phoufdarry, of no great extent, and one of the four obtained from Salabadjing by Mr. Buffy. It has been very little known to the English, and never frequented by them fince they withdrew their factory from Mafulipatam in the laft century. The town is extensive, and in the middle of it is a very large fort, in which the French ufed to keep a garrifon mostly of black troops; but the Marquis de Conflans had taken them away with him, as he was paffing on to Mafulipatam, where he had determined to make his fland. The long delay of the English troops in following him feemed to have infpired him with a little refolution : for with fome of the troops which had joined him after the defeat of Peddipore, and the garrifons of Elore and Rajahmundrum, he formed a body of 200 Europeans, with four field-pieces, and 2000 Sepoys, which he called his army of obfervation; but they did not venture within lefs than thirty miles of Elore, and kept moving moving to the West of Masulipatam, collecting or extorting tributes. Colonel Forde, whilft waiting for the Rajah and his troops, detached Captain Knox, with the first battalion of Sepoys, to reduce the French factory at Narfipore, where by this time the garrifon, by the arrival of ftragglers from the late defeat, was augmented to 100 Europeans, and 3 or 400 Sepoys. Narfipore ftands 20 miles to the s. E. of Elore. Letters were previoufly fent to the Indian Zemindar of the district, threatening the destruction of his country, if he gave the French any affiftance, but offering him alliance if he would join the English army with his troops. The Zemindar met Captain Knox on the road, and accepted the terms with cheerfulnefs; and the French troops at Narfipore having relied on his affiftance, marched away as foon as they faw his defection, leaving in the factory, befides common effects, fome cannon and marine ftores, and in the river feveral boats and veffels; but they funk what ammunition they could not carry off. The English detachment leaving a few men with the Zemindar's officers to take care of what was worth preferving, returned to Elore, where on the 18th came in the Rajah with all his troops collected ; and the next day the Zemindar of Narfipore with 1500 foot, armed in the fashion of the country. But, although fo much time had already been loft, the Rajah was not yet ready to proceed, and detained the army at Elore until the 1ft of March.

Mr. Conflans, on his defeat at Peddipore, had written letters to Salabadjing, earneftly requefting he would march with his army from Hyderabad to Mafulipatam, when both their forces united could not fail of deftroying the Englifh troops, and punifhing the powers of the country which had revolted to their common enemy. The diftance of Salabadjing with Mr. Buffy from the purfuit of Nizamally towards Bampore had encouraged this prince to refume his former ambitions; in which he was, at leaft fecretly, abetted by the adherents of Shanavaze Khan and Mahomed Huffein, whofe deaths, as well as his own flight to Brampore, had been the immediate confequences of the affaffination of Hyderjung, the duan of Mr. Buffy: but this confederacy refrained from any confpicuous 475 1759. fpicuous exertion, until they faw Mr. Buffy and the whole of the French force quitting Hyderabad, and the fervice of Salabadiing, in obedience to the orders of Mr. Lally; when judging little likelihood of their return, they acted with more open declaration; and foon after, Nizamally was enabled, with the affiftance of his friends, to increase his force from 1500 to 15000 horfe, with which he marched from Brampore in November, and was received with homage into the city of Aurengabad; but the fortrefs of Dollabad still held out for Salabadjing. The indolence of Salabadjing, wedded to habits, faw no means of coercing his brother, but by the accuftomed affiftance of a body of French troops, which his own aid to Conflans in this time of neceffity was certainly the likelicft means of procuring : but few of his officers were defirous of feeing the re-eftablishment of a power, which had interfered fo much with their own authority and advantages in the government : neverthelefs, they imagined, that the prefent contest for the ceded provinces between the French and English might give a chance of recovering these countries to their former dependence on the foubahship; and in this view most of them advised him to march towards Mafulipatam. His brother, Baflaulet Jung, concurred in the fame opinion, and marched with his forces from Adoni at the fame time that Salabadjing was advancing from Hyderabad. Both joined near the Kriftna, and amounted to 15000 horfe and 20000 foot. Neither their approach, nor the probability of their affifting the French, deterred Colonel Forde from his purpofe of proceeding against Masulipatam. It was obvious, that the junction of Salabadjing's army with the French would bring heavy vengeance upon the Rajah, if the English troops should be obliged to retire before them : but even this confideration, becaufe the danger was diftant, could not induce him to relinquish the immediate advantages of his delay, although nothing more than the collections of the day levied by his troops fpread abroad in all parts of the country.

the fituation of the city, and 14 in breadth from north to fouth. From the beginning of the rains in July, until the end of September, the whole is fpread over with water, excepting 60 or 70 finall illots, on which the inhabitants remain; but during the reft of the year the whole is dry and pafiable, and in many places highly cultivated. The army, and for the first time any of the English troops marched across the lake, and on the 3d of March encamped near a finall fort, called Concale, in which the French had left a ferjeant with 13 Europeans, and two companies of Sepoys. Captain Maclean, with fix companies of Sepoys, were fent to attack and even efcalade the fort : the garrifon had the day before received affurances from Du Rocher, the Commander of the army of obfervation, that he would arrive to their affiftance on the 28th; relying on which, they manned the walls, and feemed refolute to defend themfelves. Much firing of mulketry paffed with much lofs to the affailants, who neverthelefs twice attempted to break through the wicket of the gate, for want of better implements, with iron crows; but were each time beaten off; on which Captain Macleane fent to the army for a reinforcement of men and two guns; they arrived in the evening, and the guns were immediately applied, and beat open the gates. The detachment rushed in without mercy, and in the first onfet killed all they met, who were only Sepoys; for the Europeans hid themfelves until the firing and flaughter ceafed. A few hours after, a native brought intelligence, that a party of forty Europeans, with fome Sepoys, from the army of obfervation, were arrived within a few miles; on which Captain Macleane marched out to attack them. But they, hearing the fort was taken, had retreated. A fmall garrifon of Sepoys, with a few Europeans, was left to fecure the fort from furprize, and the army marched on towards Mafulipatam, in fight of which they arrived on the 6th of March; and the fame day received advices, that the French army under the command of Mr. Lally had been obliged to raife the fiege of Madrafs.

The fort and town of Mafulipatam are fituated beyond the reach of cannon-fhot afunder. The fort stands a mile and a half from the fea-fhore, on the edge of a found formed partly by an inlet of the fea, partly by drains from the circumjacent ground, and fiill more by a continued ftream which the river Kriftna fends off about 15 miles to the s. w. and which falls into the upper part of the found, very near the fort. The found has fometimes three fathom, and at others only three feet water; and opposite to the fort, is 500 yards in breadth. The fouth fide of the fort extends about 600 along the found, and 800 from thence to the north; and its area, as well as form, would differ very little from a parallelogram of these dimensions, if the eastern fide did not lie in a re-entering angle, which, however, is a very obtuie one. The ground along the fea fhore for two miles to the north and fouth of the inlet of the found, is a collection of fand-hills, which extend about half a mile inland, when they ceafe on the border of a morafs, which furrounds the fort on every fide, and continues to the weft and fouth for feveral miles; and to the N. W. and north, there is no hard ground at lefs than a mile of the fort, excepting a few finall fpots of fand in the morafs, which are near it to the N. E. : but to the eaft, the fand-hills along the fea are within 800 yards of the walls. The morafs in all directions is interfected with creeks and gullies, which fall into the found.

The Pettah, or town of Mafulipatam, is fituated a mile and a half to the N. W. of the fort, on a plot of ground rifing above the morafs; acrofs which, the communication between this ground and the fort is by a ftraight caufeway 2000 yards in length. The town is very extensive, and its ground on the farther fide ftill to the N. W. is bounded by another morafs, which ftretches along it from the s. W. to the N. E. but is ftopped by the fand-hills of the fea fhore, along which is the only accefs to the town on firm ground; for both moraffes are miry even in the drieft feafon, and were fc now, although no rain had fallen for 40 days.

Mr. Conflans, with all his troops, excepting the few guards in the fort, were encamped in the Pettah for the convenience of water, of which there is none in the fort but what is preferved in cifferns. His ideas of remaining here extended no farther than this advantage; although, by flinging up an entrenchment acrofs the dry ground from one morafs to the other, he might have flopped the Englifh army, to which the force with him was equal, being 500 Europeans and 2000 Sepoys, without the army of obfervation, which he had not recalled; and, as foon as the Englifh army appeared, he retreated by the caufeway, into the fort. The troops of Anunderauze and of the Zemindar of Narfipore encamped in the pettah; the Englifh on the fand to the North Eaft.

The French, fince they took poffeffion of the fort in 1751, had modernized the defences: the walls were mud faced with bricks as high as the parapet; and the three fides to the weft, north, and eaft, contained 11 angular baftions of various fhapes and fizes; before which were a pallifaded berm, and a wet ditch; but no glacis. The front to the fouth along the found, from reliance on that defence, was left open. The baftion next the N. w. fronted the caufeway leading to the pettah : in this baftion was the gateway, and 120 yards of the caufeway was converted into a caponiere, which terminated in a ftrong ravelin that fcoured along the length of the caufeway.

No regular approaches could be made to the fort, but by an army ten times fironger than Colonel Forde's; for hitherto black troops, howfoever numerous, were counted for nothing in the fervice of carrying on trenches. Colonel Forde therefore refolved to attack the fort from the fand-hills to the eaft, as the neareft fhot; and by batteries detached from each other, without the communication of trenches, as little was to be feared from the fallies of the befieged. The ground had the advantage, although this circumftance would not have determined the choice, of being neareft to the difembarkation of the flores and heavy artillery from the Hardwicke, which, with the two floops, were in the road.

Three batteries were erected; one in a fifting village near the inward point of the fand to the s. w. where it is bordered by the inlet of the fea to the South, and to the Weft by a large creek in the morafs coming from the north. Four hundred yards to the north of this battery, and nearer to the edge of the fame creek, was another : the third battery was at an equal diffance 100 yards in the rear of both. The battery to the north, and that to the fouth, had each two eighteen and two twenty-four pounders; but in the fouth were likewife the bombarding artillery, which were three mortars, of 13, nine, and eight inches. The battery in the center had only two twelvepounders.

In the s. E. angle of the fort, clofe on the found, was a baftion called the François, of 10 guns. For fome diftance from hence to the north, the want of hard ground had obliged the rampart to recede in a re-entering angle, in the bottom of which was a work in the form of a demi-lune, having only two faces, without flanks. which would have been needlefs, fince the line of the faces fufficiently flanked the baftion François on the right, and that called the Saint John on the left. This work was called the Dutch baffion. The Saint John had eight guns, and beyond it in the N.E. angle of the fort was the baftion called the Camelion, mounting 10 guns. The fouthern of the English batteries fired on the François and Dutch baftions; the center on Saint John's; and the northern on the Cameleon. As foon as their polition was decided, the garrifon raifed a battery on the left fhore of the inlet as you enter from the fea ; which took them all in flank ; but as this battery was feparated from the fort by the whole breadth of the found, and might be attacked in the night by the boats of the ships, the garrifon kept a constant guard in it of Europeans, besides Sepoys. They likewife ftationed a ftronger guard in the ravelin at the end of the caponiere on the other fide of the fort. Befides the immediate fuperiority of artillery ftanding on their works, the garrifon had others in ftore, mounted ready to replace what might be rendered ufelefs in the courfe of fervice; whereas the English army could only reftore the loss of theirs by borrowing the common guns of the Hardwicke, which were nine-pounders, or the Rajah's, which were good for nothing.

The French army of obfervation, as foon the English passed onwards from Concale, croffed the country to Elore, where there was no garrison to oppose them; and from hence went on to Rajahmundrum, where the fick of the army, in all 25 Europeans, and 40 Sepoys, had been left under the command of Mr. Briftol, who a few days before had received a large fum in gold and filver; fent from Bengal to Vizigapatam, and from hence to him, for the fervice of the army with Colonel Forde. On the approach of the enemy, Briftol fent away the treafure to Cockanarah, a Dutch fettlement on the coaft; and as foon as they appeared on the river, ordered all fuch of his men as were capable of the fatigue to go away, and endeavour to gain Vizagapatam. The enemy marched two days onwards from Rajamun. drum, giving out that they intended to take Vizianagarum, the capital of Anunderauze, as well as the English fort at Vizagapatam; but their views were only to extort money from the chiefs and renters, by the feverities they exercifed in the country. However, finding they could not collect as much as they fpent, they returned, and directed their march to meet the army of Salabadjing. The daily news of their motions terrified the Rajah with apprehenfions for his countries, and no perfuations could induce him to advance either his credit or money : none remained in the military cheft : Colonel Forde had borrowed all that the officers under his command had realized from the fpoils of the campaign, and had even used the prizemoney of the troops, and the interpolition of the French army of obfervation precluded the hopes of receiving what had been fent to Mr. Briftol; and by this time, every foldier in the army had perceived the obstacles which must be furmounted, to reduce the fort; which exafperated the fense of their diffreffes. In these agitations, the whole line of Europeans turned out on the 19th, with their arms, and threatened to march away. Colonel Forde, with much difficulty, prevailed on them to return to their tents, and to depute one or two to explain their complaints. The deputies declared, that all were refolved not to ferve the fiege, unlefs they were immediately paid the amount of the prize-money already due to them, and were affured of the whole booty, in cafe Mafulipatam fhould be taken. According to the Company's regulations, authorized by the Crown, the troops in India are only intitled to one half of what is taken in the forts they reduce; the other half is referved to the Company. Colonel Forde promifed to pay them their prize-money, out

April. out of the very first he should receive; and, as he could not break through the regulation, affured them he would folicit the Company, by a representation of their hardships and fervices, to give up their share of what might be taken in Masulipatam; of which, he should retain the amount, until their determination was known. These promises appealed them; and they returned to their duty with their usual ardour. Nevertheless the batteries were not compleated till the 25th, 18 days after the arrival of the army, during which the fort had kept a constant fire, which had only killed five men.

Salabadjing, as he approached, fent forward letters and meffengers, commanding Anunderauze and the Zemindars who had joined the Englifh, to quit them, and repair immediately, as vaffals to his ftandard. On the 27th, advices were received in the camp, that his army was arrived at Bezoara on the Kriftna, 40 miles from Mafulipatam; and the fame day came reports, that the French army of obfervation had retaken Rajahmundrum.

The Rajah, who had for fome days been faultering, was now fo terrified, that he marched away with all his forces the fame night, without giving any warning, intending to regain his own country on the other fide of the Godaveri; and, notwithstanding the dilatorinefs of his former motions, he on this occasion advanced 16 miles. before day-break. Colonel Forde fent meffengers after him, reprefenting the abfurdity of his conduct, in thinking to efcape the numerous cavalry of Salabadjing on the one hand, and the French army of obfervation, who were towards Rajahmundrum, on the other; whereas, by remaining with the English troops, his retreat would be affured, and the reduction of Mafulipatam, even now not impracticable. The plain good fenfe of this advice brought him back. with his army to the Pettah. Colonel Forde, although with little hopes, would not neglect the only means in his power of amufing-Salabadjing from advancing to the relief of Mafulipatam, and requested his permiffion to fend a deputy to treat, professing no other intention than to take pofferfion of the French garrifons and factories. on the coaft, without affuming the authority they had held in the inland.

inland countries. Salabadjing confented to receive the deputy, and Mr. Johnstone was fent to his camp on the 1st of April.

Book XI.

The three batteries continued a hot fire from the 25th of March to the 4th of April. On the 5th, the weather, which had hitherto been gentle, changed to a hard gale of wind, with thunder, lightning, and immenfe rain, which brought in the fouthern monfoon, with the return of fair weather on the 6th. In the evening the artillery officers reported, that there was no more than two day's ammunition left for the fervice of the batteries. Intelligence was likewife received, that Salabadjing was advancing from Bezoara, and that the French army of obfervation, which he had invited, were very near his. It was now no longer poffible for the English army to retreat the long way they had come, as the whole garrifon of Mafulipatam and the army of observation would join the Subah's in the pursuit. However, the camp might embark ; for the fhore at Mafulipatam is still, and the only part on the coast of Coromandel, on which the fea does not beat with a ftrong furf. But Colonel Forde regarded this mode of retreat as intolerable difgrace, and refolved to florm the fort; judging, moreover, that the garrifon would not fufpect the attempt at the very time when the excess of the. rain had rendered the approach over the morafs much lefs practicable than before. He accordingly ordered the fire of the batteries to be kept up with double vivacity through the next day, and all the troops to be under arms at ten at night ..

The ditch of the fort, at the ebb of the tide, which would happen at midnight, has only three feet water, and having no glacis, nothing prevented the immediate accefs. Notwithstanding the garrifon had constantly repaired in the night the damages of the day, the hot and continued firing of this day had ruined the baftions fufficiently to mount ; and each of the three had been equally fired upon, to confound the enemy's guess of the affault. As no outworks obftructed a full view of the body of the place, it was feen from the batteries, that the two baffions upon the found on the extremities of the fort to the s. w. and the s. E. were in barbette, that is, without embrafures and merlons, but with a parapet low enough for cannon to. 1759.

to fire over, which is rarely four feet high. From the s. w. baffion, which was named St. Michael's, to the next on the w. called the Saline, the exterior ground was a miry fwamp of mud, in which the ditch that furrounded the reft of the fort, could not have been continued, but at great expence and labour, and was left in this state, becaufe fuppoied of more difficult paffage than the ditch itfelf. Some days before a black fervant of Captain Yorke's, who had lately lived in Mafulipatam, told him that he had fometimes feen the natives employed in the fort wade over the quagmire between the two baftions : and on this intelligence, Colonel Forde had permitted Captain Yorke and Knox to examine this paffage; they took 100 Sepoys, and placing them in different parties behind one another to fupport their retreat, went on at midnight, properly clad to the fkin, in order to refemble black men naked, and entered the quagmire, which they pafied half over, and found it not above knee deep, but the mud very tenacious ; they returned undifcovered, and their report determined Colonel Forde to try an attack on this quarter at the fame time as the main affault; which at leaft would diftract the enemy's attention. In the fame intention the country troops belonging to the Rajah were to march along the caufeway over the morafs, and on each fide of it, and to fkirmifh against the ravelin in front of the gateway.

The battalion of Europeans, reinforced with 30 failors from the Hardwicke, all the artillery-men, and half the Sepoys, were allotted for the real attack, which was to be made on the baftion called the Camelion in the N. E. angle of the fort. Their whole number was 346 Europeans, rank and file; the Sepoys amounted to 1400; of which the other half were allotted to the falfe attack under the command of Captain Knox. Each of the three attacks was to be ready on their refpective ground before midnight; when, as foon as the falfe attack commenced on the weft fide, the real, and the Rajah's were likewife to begin. As no counter-attempt was apprehended, the guard of the camp was left to fome of the Rajah's troops. The attack with Captain Knox having farther to go, marched off firft; the main attack was in three divisions, of which the Europeans formed two, and the Sepoys the laft; but but when they were to move, Captain Callender, who by his rank was to lead the first division of Europeans, was not to be found ; and after much fearch and enquiry, the troops proceeded without him, croffing the morals from the dry ground of fand directly oppofite to the Cameleon, the baftion they were to affault. In the way they were joined by the gunners croffing the morafs likewife from the batteries, which for fear of furprize they did not quit until the last moment. But before the troops arrived at the ditch, they heard the firing of Knox's attack, which neverthelefs had only begun at the appointed time; on which all marched as fast as they could, as before up to the knees in mire, and in croffing the ditch, up to the middle in water and mud. Here they were difcovered just before they got to the palifade on the berm; and whilft the first division, commanded by Captain Fischer, were tearing it up, which took feveral minutes, the enemy gathered on the breach, and began likewife to fire cannon and mufketry from the next baftions, the Saint John's on the left, and that called the finall-gate on the right. The opposition only encreafed the ardour of the affailants, and whilft the first division of Europeans with Fifcher were gaining the breach, the fecond, commanded by Captain Yorke, fire dup against the Cameleon, and the division of Sepoys led by Captain Macleane against the fmall gate. Several were killed before Fifcher's division had mounted, and got poficifion of the baffion ; when, having waited until Yorke's came up, they turned and advanced along the rampart, to get pofferfion of the water-gate, the next baffion on the right. There was a handy gun, with its ammunition on the St. Jean's, which Captain Yorke, on the fuggestion of Captain Moran, who discovered it, ordered the gunners to turn and fire along the rampart to the left, and in the mean time prepared his division to follow the fame direction, as foon as a number of Sepoys fufficient to maintain the baftion were come up the breach; but, just as he was fetting off, he perceived a line of Sepoys coming along in the way below, between the foot of the rampart and the buildings on the ground : they were fent to reinforce the Cameleon, from the arfenal near the found, where Mr. Conflans continued waiting the event with the grenadier company and other troops. Yorke immediately ran down, and feiz485

ing the French officer at the head of the Sepoys, bid him order them to lay down their arms and furrender, which they obeyed with little reluctance, and were fent up to the baftion. Yorke, having obferved that the way below was free from interruption, and much broader than the rampart above, refolved to march along it, to get pofferfion of the reft of the defences allotted to his attack ; his divition accordingly came down, excepting a few left with the prifoners, and the artillery-men with the gun. The guard of the next baftion, St. Jean's, had sheltered themselves within the angles, from the infilade of the gun; they were 20 Europeans, and more Sepoys, who, as foon as Yorke's divisions came under the baftion, advanced to the edge of the rampart, fired down upon them, which killed feveral and wounded more, and then cried out, that they would furrender. Captain Yorke generoufly fpared the return of their fire : their arms were gathered, and they were conducted by a party to the Cameleon, where the Sepoys were in referve, who reinforced the party, which was posted to fecure the St. Jean's. The division then marched on, and when under the Dutch bastion, received the fire of the guard, fcattered indeed, but with equal iniquity followed by the immediate offer of furrender, which was accepted with the fame humanity as before, and the baftion and men fecured by parties from the division, and the referve. These interruptions had allowed the division time to think and expect more, and many fhewed much unwillingnefs to go on; for darknefs covers fhame; however, they yielded to the threats and exhortations of Captain Yorke; but had not advanced many paces beyond the Dutch baffion, before they paffed a finall brick building clofe to the rampart, which curiofity led fome to examine. It was an expense magazine of ammunition, and one unluckily cried out, a mine : this word ftruck the whole division with terror, and all inftantly ran back to the Cameleon, (the officers accompanying to reclaim them) and Captain Yorke, who marched at the head, was left alone, with only two drummers, who were black boys, beating the grenadiers march, which they continued, but in vain, for none rejoined; on which Captain Yorke went back, and found all his men in much confusion at the baftion, fome even proposing to go out of the breach and quit the fort. Severity was inftantly neceffary, and Captain Yorke, as foon as on the baffion, threatened to put the first man to death who offered to come near the breach; on which fome of the foldiers who had ferved with him in Adlercron's regiment, and enlisted in the Company's fervice, cried out that their commander was ill used, and offered to follow him wherefoever he pleafed : their number immediately encreafed to 36, with whom he marched off, leaving the reft to follow, as the officers could bring them on. The length of this interruption, joined to the preceding, had given the French officer at the next baftion, the François, which ftands on the edge of the found, time to get down a gun loaded with grape-fhot and to point it up the way the party was coming ; it fired when they were within a few yards, and with great execution, killing feveral and wounding fixteen. Captain Yorke fell, with a ball through each of his thighs, and each of the black drummers was killed dead at his fide. This havock, however, did not difcourage the reft from bringing off their Captain, where they carried to the Cameleon; and the guards, pofted in the St. Jean and Dutch baftions, not difinayed, kept their ground, waiting the event."

During thefe efforts of the left division, the right, commanded by Captain Fischer, was advancing from the Cameleon to the right, but along the rampart. The next, which is the finall gate, was not in complete repair; and the Sepoys with Macleane were attempting to foramble up it, which, with the approach of Fischer's division, drove the guard away to the next bastion, called the Church-yard, from which they fired continually, but without order, as the division approached; and when near, asked quarter, which was granted.

Colonel Forde continued with the referve on the baffion of St. Jean, iffuing the neceffary orders, according to the reports from both divisions. The prifoners as faft as taken were brought to him there, and he fent them, as they came, down the breach, into the ditch, where they were guarded as well as the night permitted by a proper Vol. II. number of Sepoys, threatening at the point of bayonet to kill the first that moved; but very few of them ventured any disturbance. The Rajah's troops had for fome time begun their attack on the ravelin on the caufeway, and, if nothing more, with all the din and clamour they could make; but the fire of the false attack with Captain Knox continually diminished; as having begun earlier, they had expended most of their ammunition, although, finding the enemy prepared in this quarter, they only fired acrofs without venturing to pass the quagmire. However, this attack kept some of the garrifon from the more material fervice against the real, and the Rajah's prevented the guard at the ravelin from returning into the fort, which they ought to have done, as being of little use without the walls, whilft the body of the place was in inftant danger. But the feparation of the main attack into two divisions, confounded the defence much more than the attacks without. Mr. Conflans, not knowing what to do, kept at his houfe near the Sound, continually receiving meffages magnifying the danger, and fending orders which new reports continually induced him to contradict.

The parade of the fort was under the bastion of the great gate, and as this is the ufual place of rendezvous on alarm, most of the troops and officers who remained willing to continue the defence, whether driven from their posts, or wanting immediate orders, repaired hither, and had joined the guard of the baftion above, before Fifcher's division was ready to advance from that of the church-yard. Near 100 were affembled, but their fire was ill directed, beginning too early, before the division was fufficiently near, which preferved theirs, and only giving that of the first platoon, rushed on, and foon cleared the baftion. Fifcher immediately fent down to fecure the gate below, which fhut out the troops on the ravelin, and prevented the efcape of any from within. Whilft the division was getting into order to proceed again, appeared Captain Callender, no one knew from whence, and taking the command, marched at their head towards the next baftion, called the Pettah, from which came scattering fhot, fcarcely more than one at a time, and the last that dropped, shot Callender dead; immediately after which the fire of the garrifon garrifon in all other parts of the fort ceafed, and foon after came a meffage from Colonel Forde, ordering Fifcher's division to ceafe likewife, as Mr. Conflans had furrendered. He had fent a meffage to Colonel Forde, offering to capitulate on honourable terms; to which Forde answered, that he would give none, but at difcretion, nor even this, but would put every man to the fword, if the least refissence continued from any part of the garrifon, and all did not immediately furrender themselves prisoners.

Book XI.

On the return of the officer, Mr. Conflans fent orders round for the troops to quit their arms, and repair to his quarters at the arfenal, which is a spacious enclosure. As soon as all was quiet, the English troops affembled on the parade, under the bastion of the gateway; and 100 Europeans, with two guns, and two companies of Sepoys, were detached to remain on guard over the prifoners until the morning; when, whatfoever troops were at the ravelin, and the battery at the inlet, and had not escaped, came into the fort, to become prifoners with the reft of the garrifon. The whole number exceeded those to whom they had furrendered, being 500 Europeans, of whom 100 were either officers or inhabitants of better condition. and 2537 either Coffrees, Topaffes, or Sepoys. Of the affailants, 22 Europeans were killed, amongst them the Captains Callender and Mollitore, and 62 wounded. The Sepoys, who behaved with equal gallantry as the Europeans, as well in the real, as at the falfe attacks, had about 50 killed, and 150 wounded. The Rajah's people likewife fuffered more than was expected from them; but nothing in proportion to the English troops. The fort was furnished with 120 pieces of cannon, and abundance of military flores. The plunder of other effects was likewife valuable; and all that was not merchandize was given back to the prifoners ; half the reft was divided amongft the English army, and the other half referved for them according to the promife they had received.

The improbability of the attempt was the principal caufe of its fuccefs, for the garrifon from the beginning had regarded the fiege with mockery, and, being in daily expection of the arrival of a body of troops which were coming by fea from Pondicherry, had con-Rrr 2 certed, 489 1759.

certed, that the army of obfervation, joined by this reinforcement, and a great detachment, if not the whole of Salabadjing's army, fhould then furround and attack the Englifh army, which they reprefented to themfelves as involved in impending and inevitable deftruction; and indeed, if thefe efforts had been made by Salabadjing's army, and the French troops abroad, without waiting for the reinforcement, the Englifh army could not have kept their ground, fince the Rajah, with all his troops, would certainly have run away, and the enemy's horfe, amongft whom were many Morattoes, would have cut off all provisions, and harrafied every motion : nor could they have made the embarkation, to efcape by fea, without abandoning all the flores and artillery.

The miniftry of Salabadjing were therefore not more furprized, than vexed, at the lofs of the place, becaufe, confcious that it might have been prevented by the activity they had neglected to exert. They held councils with the French commander of the army of obfervation, and determined ftill to wait for the reinforcement; when they expected at leaft to reduce the Englifh to compound for their retreat by the furrender of Mafulipatam. The Rajah Anunderauze, divining what might happen, propofed to return to his own country, as foon as the place was taken; and Colonel Forde, from utter contempt of his character, made no objections to his departure; he marched away with all the Indian forces on the 12th, to regain the Godaveri; and, by hafty marches, was, in two days, out of the reach of purfuit.

Early in the morning of the 15th appeared two fhips, ftanding into the road, under French colours. The commander of the Hardwicke, Samfon, was afhore embarking prifoners, of whom he had already received 40 on board: but his brother, who was the chief mate, immediately weighed, and got to windward of the ftrange fhips; on which, the largeft anchored in the road, as did the Hardwicke at a diftance; but the other ftill plying up, the Hardwicke weighed again, as did the largeft fhip, and the wind having changed, both of the enemy's bore down, with a fair fail: in the mean time, Captain Samfon, with eight gunners lent from the army, got got on board, and determining not to run, before he had tried the fhrength of the fhips, waited to exchange a broadfide, which difcovering them to be ftouter than his own, he again hauled the wind, and working more dexteroufly got again out of their reach, but continued in the offing. The two French fhips anchored again in the road, and in the night fent a catamaran, which they had brought with them, on fhore, with letters to Mr. Conflans, fignifying, that they were the Harlem and Briftol from Pondicherry, with 300 troops Europeans and Topaffes, befides the crews: they were the aid of which advices had been received before. No anfwer being returned, they fufpected the lofs of the place, and early the next morning ftood out again after the Hardwicke, which bore away for Bengal, and before noon all three were out of fight.

The army of Salabadjing was at this time within 15 miles of Mafulipatam; and imagining, that the French fhips would return to land the troops, fent forward all the Morattoes towards the fhore. Colonel Forde, notwithftanding the great number of prifoners which were to be guarded, divided his force, and, leaving half in the fort to take care of them, encamped with the other on the ground he had occupied before. This countenance kept the Morattoes out of cannon-fhot, but they burnt and flew all around for feveral days; when Salabadjing, feeing no probability of retaking Mafulipatam, began to treat in earneft; and Colonel Forde went to his camp, and was received with much attention.

But another motive of equal weight concurred to induce this change in Salabadjing's difposition towards the English. Some account of the affafination of Mr. Buffy's Duan, and of Nizamally's flight to Brampour, had reached Bengal before the departure of the prefent expedition; and Clive, judging that the atrocity of the injury which Nizamally had committed would carry his deteftation of the French nation beyond the reach or wish of reconciliation, wrote letters to him, requesting his affistance to the army with Colonel Forde in exterminating the French out of the provinces they had difinembered from the fovereignty of the Decan. Colonel Forde dispatched these letters, with his own to the fame purport, and Nizamally 491 1759.

zamally had received them : whether they contributed to influence his immediate operations we are uncertain ; but as foon as he was certified that Salabadjing was marching against the English army to Mafulipatam, he took the field with his own from Aurengabad, advancing towards Hyderabad, and giving out, that he intended to reform the administration. The news of his intentions, which preceded the advices of his march, alarmed Salabadjing for the prefervation of Hyderabad itfelf, and made him not only anxious to return thither as foon as poffible, but defirous of being accompanied by a body of English troops; fearing, that if he entertained the French army of obfervation, all reconciliation with his brother Nizamally would be precluded. Neverthelefs the influence which the commander of these troops had gained over his brother Baffalutjung. who managed the most important affairs of the government, delayed the execution of his treaty with Colonel Forde until the 12th of May, on which day it was figned, and delivered.

The treaty confifted of four articles. By the first ; The whole territory dependant on Mafulipatam, with eight diffricts, as well as the jurifdiction over the territory of Nizamapatam, with the districts of Codaver and Wacalmannar, were granted to the English without the referve of fine or military fervice. By the fecond article, Salabadjing promifed to oblige the French troops, meaning the army of observation, to pass the Kriftna in 15 days; nor, in future, to permit the nation to have any fettlement in the country of the Decan, which this treaty defines to be bounded on the fouth, by the Kriftna; nor to entertain any French troops in his fervice, nor to give them affiftance, or ever call them again to his own. By the third, he promifed not to call Anunderauze to account for whatfoever he had collected out of the governments belonging to the French, nor for the tributes of his own countries for the prefent year; but he was hereafter to pay the fame for them as had been paid by Vizeramrauze, and the father of Vizeramrauze. If Anunderauze failed in this flipulation, Salabadjing was left free to treat him as he pleafed : but in all cafes was neither to affift, or give protection to the enemies of the English; and by the 4th article, the English engage neither to affift, or give protection to his. The territory ceded to the

the company extended 80 miles along the fea, and 20 inland, and the revenues amounted to 400,000 rupees a year,

As foon as the treaty was figned, Salabadjing offered Colonel Forde a district near Masulipatam, as a jaghire or pension for himfelf, if he would accompany him with part of the English troops against his brother Nizamally. Colonel Forde, with as much earnestness, requested his affistance to take or destroy the French army of obfervation, who were encamped in the neighbourhood, avowedly under the protection of Baffaulet Jung. Neither fide had the leaft inclination to gratify the other, and Salabadjing on the 18th marched away in much difgust with the English, to whom he had confirmed, without any reciprocal benefit, the most advantageous acquifition of its extent, they could wifh to gain, with the view of maintaining, on the whole coaft of Coromandel from Ganjam to Cape Comorin. The body of French troops croffed the Kristna, but marched to the westward, in confequence of affurances from Baffaulet Jung to take them into his fervice, when he fhould return from Hyderabad to his own government of Adoni. The Prefidency of Madraís confidered Mafulipatam as dependant on their authority, and appointed Mr. Andrews, with a council, to manage the revenue and trade : and Colonel Forde remained there with the troops, in expectation of orders for his future proceedings from the Prefidency of Bengal.

Mr. Lally, with the French army, was in full march after the Englifh, when he received the news at Trivatore that they had taken Conjeveram, on which he halted; but fent forward the partizan Lambert, with the body of troops he commanded apart from the army, who pofted themfelves feven miles from the Englifh, in the road to Arcot, in order to prevent the incurfions of their cavalry into thofe diftricts; but the Englifh army had no intention to ravage a country they intended to recover. Lambert's party confifted of 300 either Topaffes or Europeans, unfit for the regular battalions, about 700 Sepoys, and 200 horfe. They had been detached whilft the two armies fome time before were facing one another at Conjeveram, to retaliate on Kiftnarow, the Killidar of Thiagar, the ravages he had 493 1759-had committed in the adjacencies of Pondicherry, and to retake the forts which he and Mahomed Iffoof had reduced whilft the French army were preparing on the other fide of the Paliar, to attack Madrafs. In the middle of March, he fet down before Elavanafore, which Kiftnarow, leaving his rock of Thiagar, refolved to defend in perfon; continual fkirmishes passed between them for ten days, when Lambert, feeing no probability of taking the place with battering cannon, of which he had nine, marched away, and fet down before Trivatore; where likewife were fome Sepoys left by Mahomed Ifloof, and fome of Kiftnarow's, who were very near furrendering, when Lambert, with his whole detachment, was recalled to the main army; which on the 19th advanced to Covrepauk, where they took up their quarters, still keeping Lambert's party between them and the English, which continued at Conjeveram, and threw up redoubts in their front, and on their flanks.

Soon after the detachment of Gopaulrow's Morattoes had taken poffeffion of Tripetti, he received orders from Balagerow at Poni, to return and join him there without delay; left he fhould be ftopped by the floods of the Kriftna, which fwells in May. He accordingly recalled all his parties, excepting a finall detachment left to guard Tripetti, under the command of an officer named Narrain Sauftry, and the main body marched away from the paffes of Damalcherri, in the beginning of April. At the fame time, Abdulwahab, the Nabob's brother, was permitted to return, with his troops, to Chandergerry ; from whence he fent them against Tripetty, of which they got possefition after a slight refistance : he then requested the Prefidency to grant him the farm of the pagoda; but as his rank exempted him from controul, the Prefidency let it to the fame renters as were holding it when taken by the French, by whom they had likewife been continued in the management.

Three companies of Sepoys fent from Tritchinopoly joined Kistnarow foon after Lambert's party was recalled from the fouth, with whom and his own troops Kistnarow immediately took the field again, and ravaged ravaged as far as Trivadi, within 14 miles of Pondicherry, and from thence to Cuddalore, where, fince the reduction of Fort St. David, the French kept a garrifon. Some bad troops were fent from both, and the adjacent diffricts, to oppofe him, and having amongft them 30 Europeans, and he none, excepting the ferjeants of the Sepoys, the enemy attacked him with confidence, and were decifively beaten. Ten of their Europeans, and a great number of their country troops, were killed. Of the Englifh Sepoys 30, and nine of Kiftnarow's people; but the enemy left behind them three pieces of cannon, a tumbril, and 30 barrels of ammunition, which he carried away in triumph to Thiagar; and from thence fent back the Englifh Sepoys to Tritchinopoly. This fuccefs was gained in the beginning of May.

A few days after the reduction of Conjeveram, intelligence was received, that the garrifon of Sepoys at Palamcotah, in the country of Tinivelly, had ventured to ftand an engagement in the field against Maphuze Khan and the Pulitaver, joined by most of the other Polygars, and, although the enemy quitted the field, fo many of the Sepoys were killed and wounded, that the garrifon could no longer appear out of the fort. It had before been refolved to fend Mahomed Iffoof into the fouthern countries, as foon as the army in the field could be diminished without rifque; of which, the caution of the French army at Covrepauk to avoid even the chance of fkirmifnes, and the departure of the Morattoes with Gopaulrow, who might have joined them, no longer left any apprehensions. The troops of Tanjore and Tondiman were therefore ordered to return, with Mahomed Iffoof's detachment, and the whole body were to pafs by Vicravandi and Trivadi, in order to affift Kiftnarow in ravaging the French diffricts in the way. They fet out together on the 26th of April: the detachment with Mahomed Iffoof was fix companies of Sepoys, 60 of the horfe, and fix of the European gunners he brought with him, and two field-pieces: the Tanjorines were 300 horfe, and Tondiman's troops 250, with 1100 colleries. After the first day's march, the troops of Tanjore and Tondiman declared they would not expose themselves to the rifque of passing through VOL II. Sss the Mahomed Ifloof, impatient to arrive at his defination, yielded to, if he did not fuggeft, their repugnance, and confented to go the way they chofe. Accordingly, they all quitted the fireight road to the fouth, and firiking to the weft, pafied by Arnee, and entered the mountains about nine miles fouth of Velore: then continuing along the Valley of Vaniambady, they came out at another pafs near Tricalore, and burning feven or eight villages under that fort which were held by the French renters, they arrived at Thiagar near Tricalore, and burning feven or eight villages under that fort which were held by the French renters, they arrived at Thiagar on the 8th of May, where Kiftnarow was returned from his excurfion to Trivadi. The Tanjorines and Tondimans, thinking the reft of the country from Thiagar fafe, proceeded home more like travellers than troops: but Mahomed Iffoof's detachment marched on in regular order to Tritchinopoly, where they arrived on the 14th; and, on the 16th, having taken leave of the Nabob, he comtinued his march to Madura.

Nothing could teffify more confidence than the difmiffion of fuch a number of troops in the face of the enemy. Their diffreffes for every kind of fupply, and for want even of their pay, after they arrived at Covrepauk, deterred Mr. Lally from trufting their goodwill in action, until he could fatisfy their complaints. For this purpofe, he went to Arcot, and, having detected various frauds in the management of the Amuldar or renter, who farmed the diffricts. fined him 40,000 rupees ; and he received 10,000 from Mortizally of Velore, with the promife of fome provisions, to refrain from molefting his domain. But before he had procured thefe aids, he received news, that the English squadron, confisting of nine fail of the line, and three frigates, had arrived on the 28th of April at Negapatam, from Bombay. Their appearance, whilft the French army was at fuch a diftance, alarmed the garrifon at Karical, and even Pondicherry itfelf; but not Mr. Lally, who, on the contrary, thought it requifite to fhew better countenance, and, having fatisfied immediate wants with the money he had obtained, marched on the 6th of May with the whole army from Covrepauk, and encamped camped the next day at Balchitty's Choultry, feven miles to the weft of Conjeveram. The fituation they choic was ftrong, and the country being quite level, the advanced guards of the two armies were in fight of each other.

Book XL.

An exchange of prifoners had been fome time before agreed on, and 100 of those taken at Fort. St. David arrived at Chinglapett from Pondicherry on the 6th, which enabled the prefidency of Madrafs to reinforce their army with that number, although of other Europeans; but the French could not immediately receive an equal advantage, becaufe their prifoners were releafed from Tritchinopoly, and had to march from thence to Pondicherry. Colonel Brereton fell at this time dangeroufly ill, and with much regret was obliged to be carried into Madrafs, when the command devolved to Colonel Monfon, the next officer in the king's regiment, who immediately made preparations, and on three fucceffive days, from the 12th to the 15th, drew the army out of the lines, offering the enemy battle in the plain; but the ground of their encampment was too ftrong to be attacked by an equal force. By this time, the refources of money and provisions which Mr. Lally had lately procured were nearly exhaufted, and the foldiery renewed their complaints, which most of the officers, from perfonal hatred to himfelf, were little folicitous to reprefs. Knowing their difcontent, he would not venture the battle he otherwife wished, (for he was always brave and impetuous, and had 2000 Europeans in the field,) before he had tried how far their prejudices might influence their duty : and made feveral motions, tending to no great confequence, which convinced him, that, in their prefent mood, they would not fight with ardour under his command. The English army, ignorant of the motives, were much furprized to fee the whole of the French quitting their encampment on the 15th, and in March towards Trivatore. From hence they were difposed into different cantonments. Parties were fent to Arcot, Covrepauk, and Carangoly, 200 Europeans to Chittapet, 400 with the field artillery to Vandiwash; 1200, with 100 European horfe, marched to Pondicherry, whither Mr. Lally likewife went, refolved Sff 2

refoved not to meet the Englifh again in force, until the arrival of the French fquadron, which was daily expected with reinforcements. On the 28th, the Englifh army was diffributed into cantonments at Chinglapett, Conjeveram, Tri-Permadore, and Muflewack, which, with the forts of Pondamalée and Tripaffore, formed a barrier from the river Paliar to Pulicate. The French had fome time before withdrawn their troops from Sadrafs, and reftored the fort and town to the Dutch.

Thus ended this campaign, after it had lasted 100 days, during which of 8 or 10,000 men in arms, not five were killed. But the principal object of both fides was to protect their respective territory, and not to risque an engagement without positive advantage, which neither gave.

Mr. Lally carried with him to Pondichery more refentment than ever against the governor, the council, and all who were employed in the civil administration of the company's affairs; imputing to their malverfations all the obstacles and impediments which obftructed the fuccess of his arms. The council, he alledged, received prefents from the renters of all the diffricts, who, emboldened by the knowledge of their peculations, continually evaded the regular payments, or infifted on remiffions in the terms of their leafes: and whilft the public treafury was thus difappointed or defrauded of its incomes, its iffues he infifted were fquandered with equal prodigality, becaufe the council and their dependants held fhares in all the fupplies for the public fervice, whether in the camp or city. Something of thefe accufations might be true; but Mr. De Leyrit, the governor, was a man of diffinguished moderation and equity; and other members of the council were likewife men of worth, fuperior to fuch practices; but all who were not, fheltered their own characters under the public difbelief of the calumnies against those who were guiltless of the delinquencies imputed to them : and all knowing Mr. Lally's averfion to Mr. Buffy, who had remained ill at Pondicherry fince the fiege of Madrafs, paid particular court to his perfon and character, and continually expressed their regrets at the indifcretion of the ministry in France appointing Mr. Lally to the 2 fupreme fupreme command in India, when they had it in their power to have employed an officer of fuch approved and fuccefsful fervices as Mr. Buffy.

As foon as the main body of the French army arrived at Pondicherry, 60 Europeans were fent to Karical; against which place, from its diftance and fituation on the fea-fhore, although a regular fortification, Mr. Lally always apprehended a defcent from the Englifh fquadron. Another party was prepared to attack Kiftnarow. whofe ravages had greatly impaired the revenues expected from the adjacent districts; but did not take the field until the 24th, which gave time to Captain Joseph Smith, at Tritchinopoly, to fend three companies of Sepoys, under the command of Hunterman, the ferjeant-major of the garrifon, who arrived at Thiagar before the French 'party; which thereupon returned to Trivadi : where they remained waiting for detachments until they were ftrengthened to 200 Europeans, 1500 Sepoys, 40 huffars, 500 black horfe, and eight guns, and were likewife joined by the matchlocks and peons of the French diffricts : when, by forced marches they fuddenly invefted Elavanafore on the 5th of July; and took it by affault on the 11th. Kiftnarow himfelf was in Thiagar; his gallantry, and the importance of the place, which protected all the diffricts fouthward towards Tritchinopoly, determined Captain Smith to make an effort for their prefervation, which the ftrength of his garrifon could ill afford. Forty Europeans, with three guns, and fix companies of Sepoys, marched under the command of Lieutenant Raillard, a Swifs, and before they reached Volcondah were joined by 1000 horfe, which the Nabob had levied fince his arrival at Tritchinopoly, intending to employ them in the Madura and Tinivelly countries, which he expected would have been left to his management. Kiftnarow, on hearing of the march of Raillard's detachment, came out of Thiagar with all his horfe, and fome Sepoys, in the night of the 12th, and the next day joined him at Volcondah. Serjeant Hunterman, with the reft of the three companies of Sepoys he had brought, and what foot Kiftnarow ufually kept in Thiagar, remained to defend it, until his return with the reinforcement. break of day on the 14th, the whole body of the French troops, now commanded by the Vifcount Fumel, who had made a forced march in the night from Elavanafore, appeared before the pettah at the bottom of the rock, and invefting it on every fide on the plain. brought two guns against the two opposite gates on the north and fouth, and difpofed two parties to escalade in other places. The fight was every where fharp; both the efcalades and the attack on the north gate were repulfed; but after two hours, the enemy forced the other, and brought their guns into the town, and Hunterman, ftill unwilling to give up, had nearly been cut off in his retreat to the gateway of the paffage leading up to the fort above, which he however gained, having loft one third of his Sepoys; but the enemy more, having 200 of theirs, and thirty Europeans, killed and wounded. They had fcarcely difposed their guards, when their fcouts brought word, that the troops with Ralliard and Kiftnarow were approaching, and were within a few miles; on which, Fumel, with the impetuofity of his nation on fuecefs, marched out with most of the troops, but without the field-pieces; and met the English, who were advancing fast on the plain within two miles from the fort. Ralliard, thinking the advantage of his two field-pieces greater than it really was, halted his line to cannonade, which the enemy flood; and, inftead of coming on as Ralliard expected, waited till their own, which were five, came up, when they fired amongst the Nabob's cavalry, and knocked down feveral; on which the whole of this daftardly body went off, and left the infantry unflanked. Ralliard and Kiftnarow were in this inftant riding towards the cavalry. to lead them up to the enemy's; and, hurried by vexation, followed in hopes of rallying them, and left the infantry without command; against whom the enemy, feeing the horse going off, advanced to the pufh of bayonet. There was, not far in the rear of the English line, a village, in which the oxen with the ammunition and the flores were waiting; and the gunners, thinking it a fafe ftation to fecure the field-pieces, turned, and began to draw them off as fast as they could, thinking they fhould be covered by the reft of the infantry ; who, confused by these various appearances of terror in others, took panic panic themfelves, and broke, before the enemy's Europeans were at their breafts; and all inftantly fell under the fabres of their black cavalry : meanwhile the exhortations of Ralliard and Kiftnarow were vain to retain the Nabob's, who went off on the full gallop in the road to Tritchinopoly. All the Europeans were killed, or made prifoners : all the Sepoys threw down their arms, and fuffered more. as the enemy did not think them worth taking, and only 200 of them got back to Tritchinopoly. Kiftnarow, feeing all loft, followed the Nabob's cavalry; Ralliard rode back to the enemy, difcharged his piftols at the first he met, and then galloped out of their reach. He was afterwards found dead five miles from the field of action; his head and breaft bruifed with violent ftrokes of his piftol, under which he is fuppofed, as he had neither cartridges nor fword, to have expired, and to have inflicted this fevere, but needlefs execution on himfelf, to avoid the difgrace of his defeat. The enemy returned to Thiagar, and fummoned Kiftnarow's officer in the upper fort to furrender, who, encouraged by Serjeant Hunterman, refufed; which obliged them to fend to Chittapet and Vandiwash, for three mortars, and more Europeans. They fired and bombarded the rock until the 25th; when Hunterman, having nearly expended all the ammunition, capitulated to 600 Europeans, and obtained honourable terms for the whole garrifon, Kiftnarow's people as well as the English Sepoys; all being permitted to march away with their arms, their perfons without fearch, their baggage on oxen, and under an efcort of French troops to the diffance they chofe: the artillery only excepted. The gallantry of Hunterman was rewarded with an enfign's commission.

Nothing of confequence had paffed between the two armies fince they went into cantonments, except reciprocal excursions of finall parties to drive off cattle, of which the English collected 5 or 6000. The French garrifon in the fort of Arcot confisted of 60 Europeans and fix companies of Sepoys; and being as ill paid as the rest of the troops, the Sepoys made overtures to Colonel Monson, profering to deliver up the fort for a reward in money. At the fame time, the Kellidar of Covrepauk, in which were only ten Europeans, and he of 501 of Timery, who had none, offered likewife to fell their forts. Timery, from its diffance, was not deemed worth the purchale; but the reputation of Arcot, and the communication with it by Covrepauk, induced the prefidency to accept the terms of thefe forts, although coftly. But the Sepoys at Arcot, when the day of execution approached, confeffed that they could not fucceed; and a few days after 200 Europeans were fent into the fort from Vandiwafh, but not, as it feemed, from any fufpicion of the plot. However, their march flopped the bargain with Covrepauk.

Narrain Sauftry, the Morattoe officer, whom Abdulwahad had driven from Tripetty, took up his refidence in Carcambaddy, a town in the hills, 15 miles diftant, belonging to a petty Polygar, fubject to a greater called the Matlaver, with whofe affiftance he raifed forces, mostly fuch as were to be found in those wilds; and in the night of the 30th of June, by a bye path in the mountain of Tripetty, got poffeffion of the temple on the fummit. The troops maintained by the renter, and two companies of Sepoys with Enfign Wilcox, were in the town below, which commands the ufual path of the pilgrims to the pagoda. Narrain Sauftry therefore waited for another force, which the Matlaver was to fend ; when one from the rock, and the other from the plain, were to furprize the town. They accordingly made the attack on the 9th of July at four in the morning; and, after fkirmishing an hour, were beaten off, with the lofs of 20 men killed and wounded; but the Morattoes still kept poffeifion of the pagoda. A few days after, the town was reinforced by the prefidency of Madrafs, with three companies of Sepoys, 15 Europeans, and a fmall gun. None but Indians, and they of the Better cafts, are permitted to afcend the hill on which the pagoda ftands; for the Bramins pretend, that if the fummit fhould be trodden by forbidden feet, all the virtue of the pagoda in the remiffion of fins would be loft, until reftored by an immenfe purification. Not apprized of this creed, the Sepoys fent by the prefidency were as ufual a mixture of Mahomedans and various cafts of Indians, fo that out of the fix hundred, only 80 were worthy to mount to the affault: and the Europeans were utterly excluded. The renter neverthelefs neverthelefs, with the 80 Sepoys, and his peons and matchlocks, in all not exceeding 500 men, ventured to attack the enemy in poffeffion of the pagoda, and was repulfed with lofs; but the blood shed in the attack did not unfanctify the pagoda.

In the latter part of June, three of the ufual fhips arrived from England, with 200 recruits, fent by the Company; and brought intelligence, that the 84th regiment of 1000 men, in the king's fervice, were coming in other fhips, under the command of Lieutenant-colonel Coote, the fame officer whom we have feen ferving in Bengal with the rank of major; he was appointed to the command of the Company's troops in Bengal; but with permiflion to ftop and ferve with his regiment, if more neceffary, on the coaft of Coromandel. The fatisfaction ariting from this intelligence was in fome meafure impaired by a refolution of the Court of Directors; who, dazzled by the wealth acquired in Bengal from the revolution of Plaffy, and by reprefentations of its fufficiency to fupply their other prefidencies, had determined to fend no more treafure to any of them until the year 1760; but for every reafon this intelligence was kept within the council.

At this time likewife, 200 English prisoners were received from Pondicherry, in exchange for the fame number of French releafed at Tritchinopoly; but more than one half of the English were feamen, taken in the frigates stranded at St. David's, and other vessels; who were immediately fent away to the squadron, which was cruizing to the fouthward. However, these additions to the army enabled the Presidency to extend their attention to objects they had been obliged to neglect, in order to make head in the adjacencies of Madrafs: and 90 Europeans, of whom 20 were invalids, and the others not the best men, were fent to Tritchinopoly, proceeding by sea to Negapatam, and from thence through the country of Tanjore.

Three companies of pepoys had been fent to bring away as many of the French priloners as they could guard from Mafulipatam. As the fea was adverfe, they marched by land, and were joined on the road by 100 horfe of Nazeabulla's, from Nelore. They arrived at Vol. II. T t t Mafulipatam

Mafulipatam on the 1ft of June, and on the 15th began their march back with 200 of the prifoners; but on the 3d day were recalled by Colonel Forde, in confequence of intelligence which threatened their farther progrefs with danger.

The Subah Salabadjing, on his return from Mafulipatam, halted within four days of Hyderabad, and commenced a negotiation with his brother Nizamally. An interview enfued, which was followed by a reconciliation, and concluded by the reftoration of Nizamally to the fame extensive powers in the government of the Decan, which had excited the apprehentions of Mr. Buffy, and the mortal hatred of both to each other, in the beginning of the preceding year. This revolution in the administration deprived Baffaulet Jung, the other brother, of all his power; which had been confiderable as Duan, and little controled by the indolence of Salabadjing. He therefore marched away in feeming difguft with his brothers ; but with most against the ablest ; and took with him the troops which had formed Conflans' army of obfervation. They were 200 Europeans, and the 2000 Sepoys under the command of Zulfacar Jung : his own were 1 500 good horfe, and 5000 foot of various forts, with a train of heavy artillery. They recrofted the Kriftna, fummoning acknowledgements, and plundering the country; and when Bonjour's detachment, fet out from Mafulipatam, were arrived at Condavire, within 50 miles of the road of his march. From hence, Baffaulut Jung, and his principal officers, fent forward. threatening letters to Nazeabulla at Nelore, and the three greater Polygars, as well as all the leffer ones along the Pennar, ordering them to account for their fhares of the tribute with the arrears, due to the throne through the officiality of the Subah of the Decan, by whom Baffaulet Jung pretended he was commissioned to call them to account ; and, as a more effectual terror, gave out, that he fhould pafs through their countries, in order to join the French at Arcot. The file of his letters, and ftill more his approach, had deterred Nazeabulla, as well as the northern Polygars, from giving any affiftance to the English in recovering the mountain of Tripetti; although all applied to Madrafs for affiftance to defend themfelves. This confternation was ftrong, when the renter was repulfed in the attack attack of the mountain; and, on the news of his ill fuccefs, 200 of the black horfe, with three companies of Sepoys, were fent from the army at Conjeveram to Tripaffore, where they would be in readinefs either to fuccour the renter, Nazeabullah, the Polygars, or to march on to join Bonjour's detachment, if returning. But this party was fcarcely arrived at Tripaffore, when the prefidency received intelligence from Enfign Wilcox, that a detachment of Europeans, Sepoys, and horfe, fent from Arcot to Narrain Sauftry, were marching round the hills, in order to attack the troops in the town of Tripetti; which if they should take, the revenues of the approaching feast in September would be loft, and the recovery of the pagoda, refifted by French troops, rendered hereafter much more difficult ; whereas, in the prefent state, Narrain Saustry in possession of the mountain, and the English of the town, neither at least could get any thing, excepting by a compromife. The importance of this object, and of the other concerns in this quarter, determined the prefidency to fend Major Calliaud, with 200 Europeans and 300 Sepoys. They arrived at Tripetti on the 8th of July; but, as before, the reinforcement of Sepoys furnished few of the right fort to attack the mountain. Calliaud therefore marched with the Europeans, four companies of Sepoys, and two guns, against Carcambaddy, the way over hills and vallies, covered with wood, but inhabited by a people fit only for fkulking attacks, although of no contemptible caft, being entitled to the pagoda of Tripetti. They fired continually from the thickets and covers, and killed and wounded feveral of the line before they forced the first barrier. At the fecond, Major Calliaud with much difficulty got one of the guns upon a rock, which flanked the barrier, and the first discharge, loaded with grape, killed the Polygar and feveral of his men, after which the detachment met no farther refiftance. They were feven hours gaining their way, and arrived at three in the afternoon at the Polygar's town; which they found abandoned, burnt it down, and deftroyed the adjoining plantations. The next day they returned to Tripetti, and Calliaud thinking the enemy in the mountain would be as much difcouraged, as the renter's people were elated by this fuccefs, fent all the fit men of his Sepoys, who, with

with the renter's, did not exceed fix hundred, although Narrain Sauftry had twice as many, to attack the pagoda again; which the enemy, after fkirmifhing three hours, abandoned, and all ran away to take fhelter in the hills of Matlaver. Four of the renter's men were killed, and 20 wounded. Every thing being thus quieted in the neighbourhood, and no farther tidings of the French party from Arcot, Calliaud fet out on his return on the 18th with all the troops he had brought, excepting ten Europeans, whom he left with Wilcox.

No party of Europeans had marched from Arcot against Tripetti, and the report arole from the plundering excursion of fome Sepoys and horfe in the fkirts of Bomerauze's country, to fecond a demand they were making on him of 60,000 rupees. Neverthelefs the advices were fo intirely credited at Madrafs, that Colonel Brereton, without waiting to advife with the council, ordered Major Monfon to move the army from Conjeveram towards Arcot, as nearer to fuccour whatfoever the enemy might intend to diftrefs. They marched on the 5th; and on the 7th in the morning appeared before Covrepauk, with two 18 and two 12 pounders. This fort is fmall, but well-built of ftone, and has a wet ditch, which was in good order. Colonel Monfon fummoned the officer, more according to form, than his own expectation of the answer he received, which was, that, if the garrifon, whites and blacks, were permitted to retire to Arcot, the foldiers with their knapfacks, and the officers with their effects, the gate should be immediately delivered : the capitulation was transacted and concluded in lefs than an hour. This eafy fuccefs, for the fort was worthy of breach, gave hopes that the French garrifon of Arcot would not make all the defence they might; and as the fituation was equally near to Tripetti, the army advanced, and arrived in the city on the 9th. The garrifon fhewed good countenance, and their artillery was fo fuperior, that nothing could be done, until the English army were supplied with a train from Madrafs, before which the greatest part of the French army might arrive from their different cantonments to the relief of Arcot; and for this reafon, Major Monfon, before he received the orders of the 3 the prefidency, marched back to Conjeveram; but left 400 Europeans of the Company's troops in Covrepauk, which fecured the revenues of the country between thefe two flations.

Book XI.

Mr. Pococke, waiting for the arrival of the French fquadron, had continued with his own to windward of Pondicherry, moftly at Negapatam, where they were plentifully fupplied with cattle by Captain Joseph Smith at Tritchinopoly, who caused them to be driven to the fea-coaft, out of the obfervation of the king of Tanjore. In the end of June, a Danish vefiel arriving at Tranquebar, reported, that 12 fail of French ships were in the bay of Trincanomaly in Ceylon; on which, the whole fquadron weighed on the 30th, and on the 3d of July came off the mouth of that harbour; where they neither faw, nor gained any tidings of, the French fhips. Mr. Pococke then cruized off the Fryar's Hood, the N.E. headland of the ifland, which all veffels coming to the coaft of Coromandel at this feason endeavour to make, and, in this station, met five of the expected fhips from England, with the first division of Coote's regiment, with which he returned, and anchored on the 30th at Negapatam; keeping them in company until the provisions and ftores they had brought for the use of his squadron were taken out. The prefidency received advices of their arrival on the 5th of August, and notwithstanding the various wants of men at this time for defence and attack on fhore, requefted Mr. Pococke to detain the troops, to ferve with him in the expected engagement with the French fquadron. Several advices had lately been received, that the Dutch government of Batavia, their capital in the Eaft-Indies, were preparing an armament, which was to fail to the bay of Bengal; and on the 8th fix ships arrived at Negapatam, having left another in the bay of Trincanomaly. They had on board 500 European foldiers, and 1 500 difciplined Malays, with abundance of military flores. Various reports and conjectures were formed of the deftination of this force. The Dutch themfelves gave out, that it was chiefly intended to reinforce their garrifons on the coaft; and their unavowed emiffaries reported, that the whole were to act as auxiliaries to the English against the French on the Coast of Coromandel. Mr. Pococke knew how how much the military force in Bengal had been diminifhed by the expedition to Mafulipatam, and might fuffer by the ufual mortality of the climate; and reafoning from the antipathy of the Dutch government to the great fucceffes and power which the English had lately acquired in Bengal, fufpected that the armament he faw was principally intended to reduce their influence in that country; and, with the fpirit of confiderate gallantry, and zeal for the general fuccefs of the public fervice, which on all occasions diffinguished his command, fent all the troops to Madrafs, recommending, that a part of them might be immediately forwarded to Bengal. They were all landed by the 25th, and marched in different parties, as foon as refreshed, to the main body at Conjeveram, where Colonel Brereton, having recovered from his illnefs, again took the command.

A few days after the return of Major Calliaud from Tripetti, the Polygar of Carcambaddy with his own, and a number of the Matlaver's people, began to repair the town; on which Enfign Wilcox marched with the 25 Europeans, 300 of the Sepoys, and an iron three-pounder. They were galled the whole way, and obliged to force the three barriers in the path; and when they came to the open fpot of the town, where they expected no refiftance, met the moft, by a continual fire from the thickets round. Wilcox neverthelefs perfifted, and, being aimed at, received at once three mufketballs, and was mortally wounded. On which the troops put him into a dooley, and retreated, likewife bringing off the gun. The enemy did not follow them earneftly; fo that the lofs was only three Europeans killed, and 14 Sepoys wounded.

The French party of Sepoys and black horfe from Arcot, had been beaten back by Bomerauze's people, and lay at Lallapet, near the mountains, 10 miles N. w. of Arcot, waiting an opportunity of renewing their incurfion; but were beaten up there on the 26th, by three companies of Sepoys, and the troops of the renter of Covrepauk, fent by Captain Wood, who commanded in the fort. The enemy fled at the firft fire, leaving 70 mufkets, and 17 horfes, and the Sepoys remained to guard the neareft pafs leading from Lallapet into Bomerauze's country.

Baffaulet

THE CARNATIC.

Baffaulet Jung, with his army, had, in this while, continued his march from Condavir to the fouth, and, having paffed Ongole, attacked the fort of Pollore, about 30 miles to the north of Nelore and the river Pennar, which, although out of the country of Damerla-Venkytapah-naigue, was of his dependance. This fuccefs encreafed the fright of all the three polygars, and of Nazeabulla in Nelore; and all renewed their applications to Madrafs for immediate affiftance, and the Tripetty renter was fully perfuaded, that Baffaulet Jung intended to get pofferfion of the pagoda, before the great feaft, which begins in the middle of September, and generally produces 20,0001.; and it was known, that Baffaulet Jung was in ftrict correspondence with Pondicherry.

To these alarms on the north of the province, were added others in the fouth. The detachment with Fumel which had taken Thiagar had advanced as far as Volcondah, where, after many threats and meffages, they had frightened the Kellidar out of 60,000 rupees; and, during the negociation, their horfe plundered as far as the ftreights of Utatoor. It was then reported, that Furnel intended to advance with the whole, and take pofferfion of the ifland of Seringham, which would give them all the country between Thiagar and Tritchinopoly. This detachment could not be oppofed in time from Madrafs; becaufe the interjacent country was under the enemy's garrifons; and whatfoever troops might be fent from hence, proceeding half way by fea against the monsoon, and then through the country of Tanjore, would not enter into action in lefs than fix weeks, and then, if fuccefsful, would be out of the reach of recall. Tritchinopoly was the nearest station to make head against them; but the whole garrifon would not, in the field, have been equal to the force with Fumel.

Fortunately, in this concurrence of perplexities, the diffreffes and difcontent of the French army had continued as urgent as ever, even after the expence of the campaign was diminifhed by their retreat into quarters. In the beginning of August, the whole of Lally's regiment, excepting the series and corporals, and 50 of the foldiers, mutinied, and marched out of the fort of Chittapet, declaring, that they would not return to their colours, until they had received received their pay, of which many months was in arrears. Their officers, by furnishing their own money, and engaging their honour for more, brought them back, excepting 30, who dispersed about the country : but this defection, which the cause exempted from rigorous punishment, shook the discipline of the whole army.

From this view of circumftances, the Prefidency of Madrafs refolved to leave fomething to chance in the extremities, rather than diminifh the fuperiority, which their force had lately acquired in the center of the province, by the reinforcements arrived from England, and the enemy's detachment to the fouthward; and determined to employ this advantage immediately againft Vandiwafh, the moft important of the enemy's flations between Madrafs and Pondicherry. Accordingly 300 Europeans, with two twelve-pounders, and all the ftores neceffary for the attack, were fent to Chinglapett ; but whilft on the road, and before the main body had moved from Conjeveram, arrived the Revenge, on the night of the 10th of September, with important intelligence from the fquadron.

The Dutch at Negapatam, pretending that their armament from Batavia required the fervice of all their maffoolah boats, would fpare none to water the Englifh fhips; to procure which, Mr. Pococke failed on the 20th with the fquadron for Trinconamalee, where common boats can ply to the fhore. They anchored there on the 30th, but at the mouth of the harbour; and the Revenge was fent forward to cruize off the Friar's Hood. On the 2d of September, at ten in the morning, fome fhips were difcovered to the s. E. Soon after came down the Revenge, chafed and fired upon by one of the ftrangers, which denoted them to be the long-expected enemy. The Englifh fquadron weighed immediately, and could not get within cannon-fhot of them by fun-fet; but perceived that the number and ftrength of the fhips greatly exceeded the force they had met the year before.

Mr. D'Aché having left the coaft, as we have feen, on the 3d of September, arrived, after thirty days fail, at the Ifle of France, and found in the port a reinforcement of three men of war, under the command of Mr. D'Eguille, an officer of experience and reputation. Several of the Company's veffels, but none of force, for enough had been fent before, were likewife arrived from France. The crews of all thefe fhips amounted to 5500 men, and all the provisions which could be collected in the ifles, or even drawn from Madagafcar, with the fupplies fent from Europe, were infufficient to feed this multitude, added to the numbers already in the colony, which they nearly equalled. Several councils were held on this diffrefs. and it was at length determined to fend one of the men of war, with eight of the Company's fhips, which would take off between 3 and 4000 men, to the Cape of Good Hope, where they were to purchafe provisions fufficient for the fquadron in the enfuing voyage, and, in the mean time, the crews would be fupported without breaking in upon the general flock. These thips arrived off the Cape in the beginning of January; and two of them had the luck to fall in with and take the Grantham, an English East-India ship, difpatched from Madrafs in September. They purchafed, but at a vaft expence, a great quantity of grain, wine, and meat, and returned to the Isle of France in April and May; after which, the ftrength of four of the Company's fighting thips, which had not hitherto mounted the number of guns they were built for, were armed to the full scale of their construction. These alterations, and other equipments, retarded the departure of the fquadron until the 17th of July. They went first to the isle of Bourbon, and then to Foulpoint, in the island of Madagascar, to take in some rice, and other provisions, which had been procured there; and on the 30th of August arrived off Batacola, a port in Ceylon, 60 miles to the fouth of Trinconomaly; where they received intelligence of the English fquadron, and two days after came in fight of them off Point Pedras. The land and fea-winds differing in the fame hours at different diftances from the shore, the currents likewife various, squauls, a fog, and contrary courses whilst feeking each other when out of fight, kept them afunder, or out of immediate reach, until the 10th of September, when they again fell in with one another off Fort St. David. The French, being farthest out at sea, lay-to in a line of battle a-head, their heads to the Eaft. The English having the Uuu wind VOL. II.

wind came down a breaft, and at two in the afternoon were within gun-fhot, when each fhip edged to get into their flations alongfide of their alloted antagonifts.

The English squadron confisted of nine ships of the line, attended by a frigate, the Queenfborough, two of the Company's fhips, and the Protector converted to a fire fhip. The French were 11 fail of the line, of which four were of the navy of France, and they had three frigates under their lee. Difference of failing, and difappointment in working, prevented the English from forming their line with as much regularity as the enemy, who were waiting for them, drawn up in order of battle.

The French line was led by the Actif of 64, one of the King's fhips. She was followed by the Minotaur, another of the King's, of 74, in which Mr. D'Aguille wore the flag of Rear-Admiral, and by much the floutest ship in the squadron, having in her lower tier thirty-two-pounders, which in the French weight is equal to 40 English; then stood three of the Company's ships, the Duc d'Orleans of 60, the Saint Louis of 56, and the Vengeur of 64. These five formed the van. Mr. D'Aché, in the Zodiaque, hoifted his flag in the center, fupported by the Comte de Provence of 74: the four others of the rear-division were the Duc de Bourgogne, of 56, the Illustre, of 64, the Fortunée of the fame rate as the Illustre, and the Centaur of 68; of which only the Illustre was a King's ship. The Elizabeth of 70 led the English line, followed by the Newcastle of 70, the Tiger of 66, and the Grafton of 74, in which was Rear-Admiral Stevens: thefe four were the van. Mr. Pococke, in the Yarmouth of 74, was in the center, followed by the Cumberland of 66, the Salifbury of 56, the Sunderland of 60, and the Weymouth of 60 clofed the rear. The total battery of the French fquadron exceeded the English by 126 guns, and confequently by 63 in action.

The Grafton was the first ship up, and whilst prefenting her broadfide fell a-breaft of the Zodiaque, whom Mr. Pococke, as in the two engagements of the laft year, intended to referve for himfelf. Mr. D'Aché immediately threw out the fignal of battle, and began to fire on the Grafton, the first shot at 15 minutes after two; but Mr. Stevens waited for the fignal of his admiral, which did not appear appear until five minutes after, when the Yarmouth was very near and ranged against the Comte de Provence. The firing then became general through both lines; but the Sunderland, the last but one of the English line, failing very ill, kept back the Weymouth behind her. By this mischance the Salisbury, which was much the weakeft ship, being only of 50 guns, and they only eighteen and nine-pounders, ranged, unfupported, against the Illustre, and fustained likewife the fire of the Fortunée behind, which the Sunderland should have taken up, at least in this state of the action : the confequence was equal to the difparity, and in 15 minutes the fall of the Salifbury's maintopgallant, and then her forefail, obliged her to quit the line: but by this time, the Sunderland fhooting ahead, engaged the Illustre. The three ships of the English van, ahead of the Grafton, had luckily fallen foon, and in good order, into their stations, and in less than a quarter of an hour, the Actif, which was oppofed to the Elizabeth, took fire, which brought the crew from the batteries, and the Elizabeth taking advantage of their confusion plyed her exceffively, and foon drove her out of the line to extinguish the fire: the Elizabeth still edging down upon her, was stopped by the Minotaur starting forward; which obliged her to haul her wind again, and this operation shot her beyond the line of action. The Newcastle then took up the Minotaur, although a 60 to a 74; and the Tiger, of which the Captain had been blamed in a former engagement, fupported the Newcaftle, by taking on herfelf the fire of the two next fhips. The fight between these five continued with the utmost violence for 70 minutes; when neither the Newcastle nor Tiger had a fail under command; on which Mr. Stevens, who had left the Zodiaque to Mr. Pococke, and had beaten the Vengeur out of the line, came between, and feeing the two fhips of the French line next beyond the Vengeur much crippled, fet forward to engage the Minotaur; and her broad-fide, as the was paffing on, drove the St. Louis out of the line. In the rear, the Sunderland, which had taken up the Illustre, was likewife attacked by her follower, the Fortunee; and in ten minutes, before she had fired three rounds, her maintop-fail fell, and her head-head-braces being likewife fhot away, her foretop-fail fwung a-back, which made her fall a-ftern of both her antagonifts. At ten minutes past three the Count de Provence, which had stood the Yarmouth, and was afterwards taken up by the Cumberland, likewife left the line to refit her rigging, as did the Duke de Bourgogne, which had divided her fire between the Cumberland and the Salifbury, and received theirs, divided likewife in return. The Weymouth, by what accident we don't find, was kept a-ftern in the rear; but at three o'clock, the Salifbury came again into the engagement; and, on the French fide, the Illustre, feeing the two ships before her gone, clofed up to the Zodiaque. At four, the only thips engaged were the Minotaur and Duc d'Orleans against the Grafton, the Zodiaque against the Yarmouth, the Illustre against the Cumberland, and the Fortunée and Centaur against the Salifbury and Sunderland. The pilot of the Zodiaque feeing, as he thought, the Fortunée and Centaur going off likewife, put the helm a-lee without order, and, as Mr. D'Aché was running to correct him, a grape shot carried off the flesh of his thigh, to the bone; he fell fenfelefs, amongst four or five who were killed or struck down with him. The captain of the Zodiaque had been killed an hour before; and the officer who took the command after Mr. D'Aché fell, wore the fhip to rejoin the comrades which had already left the line. The Centaur, Illustre, and Minotaur, thinking fuch was the will of their admiral, wore likewife, and fet fail to accompany him. The English ships still in action endeavoured to follow them, but were foon left out of gun-fhot, and all firing ceafed at ten minutes after four.

In this engagement the rear division fuffered much lefs than the van. On board the Weymouth, which closed the rear, not a man was either killed or wounded, and in the Sunderland ahead of her, the whole lofs was only two men killed; neverthelefs the Centaur, the last of the enemy's rear, fuffered as much in her mast and rigging from their fire, as any of the other ships of the French line, who were closer engaged, and her Captain, Surville the elder, was killed. The Salisbury had 16 killed, killed, and 40 wounded; the Cumberland 8, and 30; the Yarmouth 10, and 27; the Grafton 13, and 37; the Tiger, which fuffered the moft of any, 37, and 140; the Newcaftle 26, and 65. The Elizabeth four, and twenty. In all 114 killed, and 369 wounded. In the Newcaftle, the captain, Michie, an officer of diftinguifhed gallantry, was killed; as were Mr. Jackfon, the firft lieutenant of the Tiger, captain More, who commanded the marines in the Elizabeth, and the mafter of the Yarmouth. Brereton, captain of the Tiger, Somerfet of the Cumberland, the fecond lieutenant of the Grafton, and the fourth of the Salifbury, were wounded. None of the Englifh fhips, after the engagement, could fet half their fail; and the Newcaftle and Tiger were taken into tow by the Elizabeth and Weymouth. The lofs of the French crews was fuppofed to be equal; but when they went away together at fun-fet, all, excepting the Centaur, carried their top-fails.

The uncertainty of the number of troops which the French fquadron might have brought for Pondicherry, determined the prefidency of Madrafs to fulpend for a while the attack they had refolved to make on Vandiwafh; but to fend a part of their troops to Tripaffore to fupport that part of the country againft Baffaulut Jung But no arguments could prevail on Major Brereton to defift from the enterprize, from which he expected to acquire diffinguished honour; and the prefidency, unwilling to check his ardour, refrained from giving him positive orders to defift.

Heavy rains had rendered the roads and rivers impafiable until the 26th, when the whole army marched from Conjeveram; it had been reinforced with 40 men from Chinglapett, under the command of Preston, and with 100, of 158 released prisoners, which had arrived at this garrison on the 11th from Pondicherry. The whole force was 1500 Europeans, 80 Coffres, and 2500 Sepoys, infantry; 100 European, and 700 black cavalry; 10 field-pieces, and two eighteenpounders : and two more eighteen pounders were to join from Chinglapett.

On the 27th in the morning, the horfe before the line, when within three miles of Trivatore, fell in with 50 of the French huffars, 515 1759•

fars, who flood them, but, overpowered by numbers, were routed, and eight, with an officer, taken prifoners : in the afternoon, the garrifon of Trivatore, which confifted only of a captain and 22 men of the Lorrain regiment, furrendered on the first fummons. The main body of the enemy had advanced from Vandiwash in the morning, and were halting at the village of Parfee, fix miles on the road, of which Colonel Brereton receiving information, marched on without flopping at Trivatore, and encamped near them; and at midnight, the enemy moved off, and returned to Vandiwash; where, as before they took up their quarters in the pettahs, and under the walls of the fort, into which the governor Tuckeafaheb, notwithstanding the strictness of his alliance, was very averfe to admit any of the French troops, excepting fome of their gunners; and they to prevent worfe confequences, would not compel him. The English army continuing their march the next day, encamped in the evening under the ledge of rocks, which extend about three miles to the N. w. of the fort. The day after, which was the 29th, parties were employed in reconnoitring; but neither their obfervations, nor the enquiries of fpies, difcovered the real flate of the enemy's force.

On the march of Major Monfon to Arcot in the beginning of August, the French drew the greatest part of their Europeans from the garrifons of Chittapet, Carangoly, and Outramalore, to their main body at Vandiwash, from whence the whole had advanced as far as Trivatore, when Monfon, finding the attack of Arcot impracticable, returned to Conjeveram : on his retreat, they detached 100 Europeans to reinforce Arcot, and fent back the troops which they had drawn from the three other garrifons ; which reduced the European infantry that returned to Vandiwash to 600; but the whole of the European cavalry, who were 300, went with them. The fame alarm for Arcot had led Mr. Lally to recall the detachment to the fouthward with Vifcount Fumel, who were then before Volcondah; but Fumel, not having levied the contribution he expected, delayed to obey the orders, and, on Monfon's retreat, was permitted to perfift, and had time to finish. During

THE CARNATIC.

Book XI.

During the delay between the first refolution, and the prefent motion of the English army to attack Vandiwash, the government of Pondicherry obtained fome uncertain intelligence of the intention, and again reinforced the main body there with 400 men from the adjacent garrifons. They likewife again recalled Fumel, and more than half his detachment were arrived at Pondicherry, from whence they were at this time 'advancing towards Vandiwash, and, as it was reported, under the command of Mr. Buffy. Major Brereton received intelligence of the approach of this party, but no information that the troops from the other garrifons were arrived at Vandiwash; and thus computing the whole number assembled there, including the cavalry, instead of 1300, to be only 900 Europeans, to which his own force was nearly double, thought no time fhould be loft before the arrival of the detachment they expected from Pondicherry, and determined to attack them in their quarters on the night of the 29th, which was the next after that of his arrival before Vandiwash. There were three pettahs under the fort, lying to the w., the s., and the E.; the w. at 150, the s. at 220, and the E. at the diffance of 170 yards. The fouth pettah contained the houfes of the more opulent inhabitants, and was inclosed on the E. s. and w. by a mud rampart, which on the s. fide had circular projections to ferve as baftions ; but the north fide next the efplanade was left open, that the guns of the fort might preferve their command on the ftreets and houses. The pettah to the east commenced opposite to the N.E. angle, and extending 650 yards, covered the east fide of the fort, of the efplanade, and of the pettah to the fouth. The western pettah extended only along the breadth of the efplanade to the fouth ; it had for fome time been abandoned, and was in ruins, and most of the natives, on the approach of the English army, had quitted their habitations in the other two. The French cavalry lay in the eastern pettah. Their infantry were under sheds and tents in the covered way and on the efplanade to the fouth, and they kept guards on the ramparts of the fouth pettah ; but none as they ought, in the ruined pettah to the weft.

A thoufand

A thoufand Europeans, including a company of 80 Coffrees, and fix hundred Sepoys, were allotted to ferve in the attack : they were divided into three divisions; the first led by Major Monfon, was to affault the fouth face of the fouth pettah, and having entered, were to advance through the ftreets to the efplanade, where the main body of the French troops were lying; who at the fame time were to be attacked on the right by the fecond division, advancing out of the pettah to the weft : this division was commanded by Major Robert Gordon. The third Major Brereton commanded himfelf, as the referve for occafions, and they took post under a ridge which runs parallel to the weft face of the fouth pettah, but farther back on the plain than the pettah allotted to Gordon's division. 'The European and black horfe were to halt a mile in the rear of Brereton's. The reft of the troops were left to guard the camp. Monfon's division confifted of 360 Europeans, of whom 200 were grenadiers, all that were in the army, and they had one company of Sepoys as attendants: Gordon's were 200 Europeans, and So Coffrees : Brereton's 360 Europeans and 500 Sepoys. Each of the three divisions had two excellent brafs fix-pounders.

The pettah to the South has three principal freets, which interfect it intirely from north to fouth, and feveral others in the fame direction, of fhorter extent; nor are any of the crofs-ftreets from east to west regularly pervious from one wall to the other, and fome of them are only fhort communications between the ftreets in the other direction : fo that many dodging advantages might be taken by knowledge of their different bearings and interfections. At two in the morning, the head of Monfon's division approached towards the gateway on the fouth face of the pettah, and were challenged and declared by two or three Sepoys advanced on the plain to look out; on which the guards on the ramparts began to fire. The gateway was in a return of the rampart from the left, and the road to it lay under the reft of the rampart to the right, fo that the two field-pieces which were advancing at the head of the line could not batter the gate at lefs than 150 yards, without being immediately under the fire of this part of the rampart, which with with the uncertainty and delay of their effect in the dark, determined Colonel Monfon to try the wall at once. It had neither ditch nor pallifade before it, and the first grenadiers lighted upon a part, which, for want of repair, permitted them to fcramble up, and being followed by more, they drove the enemy before them, opened the gate, and let in the main body of the division. The gate entered upon the principal freet of the three which leads through the pettah to the efplanade; and the other two are about 50 yards on each hand. The troops, as they came in, first ranged along the ground between the wall and the habitations, which was broad; and then formed into three columns, one in each of the ftreets; but the two field-pieces moved at the head of the center column. All the three advanced very deliberately, keeping as nearly as poffible on the fame parallel, the two outer columns fending fmall parties into the crofs ftreets on their outward flanks to difledge the enemy from whatfoever pofts their fire came, which, although not ftrong from any, was frequent and from feveral; but the greatest annoyance was from two field-pieces at the edge of the efplanade, firing down the center ftreet. However, they were at length filenced by the two field-pieces, with the center column. Firing had been heard on the ground allotted to Gordon's division, but soon ceased. In an hour and a half the three columns arrived at the openings on the efplanade, where to their furprize they met no farther refiftance; and difappointed of the affiftance they expected from Gordon's division, it was refolved to wait for day-light, and in the mean time to throw up a barricade at the head of the center-ftreet, which for want of proper tools was very infufficiently performed. Their lofs hitherto was not ten killed and wounded.

A fky rocket was the fignal for Gordon's division to advance from the western pettah, and it was fired as foon as Monfon's had entered the fouthern. The troops of Gordon's had, for fear of difcovery, kept on the fide of the pettah fartheft from the efplanade, but Prefton and two or three more officers had examined the ftreets, which were very narrow, and beyond on the efplanade, where they found Xxx the

the ground rugged, and interrupted with floughs and flanding water. But Gordon not having acquired any diftinct ideas from their report. boggled, and was confused in the orders he gave. At length it was underftood, that the troops, as foon as they had pafied through the pettah, were to form on the efplanade in divisions, which would be 15 in front. The felect picquet of 40 picked men, commanded by Lieutenant Dela Douespe, who were to lead the attack, were soon through, and formed, and advancing. Gordon himfelf was to march at the head of the main body, but he was not to be found when it was ranging on the efplanade; and Prefton, his fecond. not knowing the motives of his absence, would not venture to take his poft; and thus the whole were ftopped, waiting his return. The picquet marched with recovered arms, and without dropping a fhot, until they came to the angle of the fouthern pettah, where the rampart had a fhoulder, on which were mounted two pieces of cannon, which by the direction of the freets could not be turned to any fervice in the fight behind them; and it fhould feem that the enemy had difcovered the fituation and intention of Gordon's attack, for a confiderable body of infantry were waiting at the angle, fome on the rampart, and others at the edge of the houfes below; who, as foon as the picquet were within a few yards, fuddenly threw a number of blue lights, which difcovered them intirely, and were inftantly followed by a ftrong running fire of mufketry, and the difcharge of the two pieces of cannon; but the whole of the execution was from the mulketry, for as the picquet was almost under the rampart, the cannon could not point low enough, and fired over their heads. Douespe returned the fire with disparity of fituation, and greater of numbers, but would not retreat without orders, and was not without hopes of being immediately joined by the main body of the division, efpecially as the two pieces which accompanied it, began to answer the two guns on the rampart. But his expectations of farther fupport were vain. The fhot of the two guns from the rampart fell near the main body whilft forming, and fome mufketry fired upon them from the covered way of the ford on which the 80 coffrees all ran back back into the pettah, and through it, quite away, and the Europeans not led on, and having nothing effectual to fire upon, foon broke and went off likewife, leaving the picquet, and the fieldpieces still engaged. But Preston, for Gordon was not yet to be found, knowing the determination of the picquet to perfevere, ran fingly to them, and brought them back to the pettah, where they joined the officers deferted by all the reft of the troops : but the artillerymen, animated by the well-known refolution of their commandant Captain Robert Barker, still stood by him and their guns. The fugitives not all equally frightened, made their way to the referved division with Brereton, who on the first notice, ran unaccompanied to the pettah from whence they were coming, and in the ftrong impulse of indignation, ran the first man he met through the body: unfortunately he was one of the braveft in the army; fo that this example carried little influence, and left none to exhortation, and very few obeyed his call; with whom he went as far as the two guns, which Barker was still firing, and by this countenance had deterred the enemy from making a pufh, which would eafily have taken them; but Brereton, fenfible of the rilk to which they were exposed, ordered him to draw them off into the pettah, from whence they joined the referve at the ridge. Thus all were gone before the firing ceafed in the fouthern pettah, where Gordon with four or five of the fugitives foon after appeared, coming in at the gate to the fouth, where Monfon's division had entered.

The day broke, and the enemy's fire recommenced and encreafed with the light. The gunners, whom the Kellidar had admitted into the fort, plied the cannon on the towers opposite to the three ftreets, to the head of which Monfon's division had advanced; and with the field-pieces on the efplanade, their fire was from 14 guns all within point blank, from the fort at 300, from the field-pieces at 100 yards. The return was from the two field-pieces at the head of the center-ftreet, and from platoons of mufketry in the other two. The difparity was fevere, and could not be long maintained. The officers ordered the men not employed.

ed, to take shelter under the sheds projecting before the walls of the houses in the enfiladed ftreets; the sheds, as in the other towns of Coromandel, were feparated from each other by partitions of brick or mud : fome withdrew into the crofs ftreets immediately behind. Neverthelefs, all who appeared were fo exceffively galled, that it was neceffary to retreat; but from the continual hope of fupport from the two divisions without, Major Monson wished not to quit the conteft until the last extremity. In the middle of the pettah is a continuation of ftreets leading quite across it, although not in a ftreight line, from the east to the west fide, where the last ends upon the area of a pagoda, in which a party had been posted, and the wounded were sheltered and ferved. The columns were ordered to retire into this line of the crofs-ftreets, where all, according to the breadth of the main ftreets, might fire down them, and immediately difappear, until loaded and ready to fire again. This movement flaggered the enemy, for they could do no more, if they continued on the efplanade at the other extremity of the ftreets; and if they advanced along them, would be exposed in deep columns. Nevertheles, confident in their numbers, and preffing to decide before the English troops should be reinforced from without, they began and maintained this fight with great fpirit and activity, until they were convinced it could not fucceed; on which they fent off their rears, which brought two of their fieldpieces from the efplanade, and with them marched along a ftreet adjoining to the western wall of the pettah, which led them to the pagoda towards this end of the crofs-ftreets: which the guard immediately abandoned, leaving fome of the wounded in the pagoda; having fecured this flation, the party advanced the field-pieces along the line of the crofs ftreets, firing and taking in flank the whole of Monfon's division, against which the attack in front likewife continued, and with encreasing vivacity: and in a very little while the remaining field-piece of the division was difabled : on which the men began to lofe courage, and Monfon confulting his fecond, Major Calliaud, they refolved to retreat and take post against the fouthern wall of the pettah. The grenadiers of one of the Company's battalions were to halt near the gateway, gateway, but feeing it open, marched out into the plain, quickening their pace at every step. Major Calliaud, who was near, instead of calling after them, followed, and running beyond, ftopped fuddenly before them, and cried, " Halt." The inftinct of discipline prevailed. They obeyed, and forming as he ordered, faced, and, luckily for themfelves, followed him into the pettah. Major Monfon met him at the gate, and, in the midft of much vexation, thanked him with much cordiality; but faid, that the whole body, ftill clofely prefied by the enemy, were faultering too fast to be trusted any longer; and that it was better to lead them off in order, than rifoue their going off in confusion of their own accord. The exhortations of their commanders encouraged them to keep their ranks; the Sepoys marched in front, helping to carry off the wounded, and fifteen prifoners. The enemy, by unaccountable overfight, did not follow them into the plain; but were contented with firing from the wall : about half a mile from which, the line halted in a grove, and in a little while perceived Major Brereton's and Gordon's divisions, with the European and black horfe, the Sepoys, and two fieldpieces, advancing round to join them; at the fame time, they faw the whole body of the enemy's European cavalry, 300 riders, ap-proaching from the eaftern pettah, where they had remained in expectation of an opportunity of cutting off their retreat, which, from want of alertnefs, they loft, and could not venture to attack after Brereton appeared. The whole returned to the bank, where Brereton's division had taken post, and in the afternoon from thence to the camp, without moleftation or alarm. The lofs, on the immediate review, appeared to be 12 officers, and 195 rank and file, killed, wounded, and taken prifoners. The Lieutenants Minns and Latour were the only officers; but, it was supposed, that 70 rank and file were killed; and that of this number, 50 fell in the pettah. The eagerness of performing fome diftinguished fervice before Colonel Coote fhould arrive, and fuperfede him in the command of the army, urged Colonel Brereton to make this attack, which was much more hardy than judicious, even if the enemy had not been reinforced.

inforced. However, the great gallantry and the inferior numbers of the body which fuftained the greateft part of the lofs, rather encreafed than diminifhed the confidence of the army. The enemy fuffered as much, having 200 killed and wounded. Mainville, who commanded against Lawrence at Tritchinopoly, just before the truce in 1754, and two Captains, were killed.

The two fquadrons anchored on the 11th, the day after they had engaged each other; the English in the road of Negapatam, the French 4 leagues farther to the fouth, who being much lefs difabled, were ready to fail again on the 13th; and two days after, anchored in the road of Pondicherry. The fhips immediately landed whatfoever fupplies they had brought for the fervice of the colony ; the treafure amounted only to 16000 pounds in dollars, and the diamonds taken in the Grantham, were worth 17000 pounds. The troops were only 180 men. Mr. D'Aché would not go afhore, and fignified his intention of failing immediately for the illands. The feafon, although advanced, was not yet dangerous, nor were his ships more hurt than the English; but this refolution role from intelligence of the four men of war, which were coming with Rear-Admiral Cornish to join Mr. Pococke, and who might arrive every day. Accordingly, early in the morning of the 19th, Mr. D'Aché made the fignal for weighing, and all the fhips loofed their top-fails,

The fupplies they had brought were fo much lefs than the wants and hopes of the colony, that difappointment appeared in every face; but the fight of the fhips getting under fail, in 24 hours after their arrival, fpread univerfal confernation, and excited the utmoft indignation. All the military officers, the principal inhabitan, and even the clergy, affembled at the governor's, and immediately formed themfelves into a national council; which unanimoufly decreed, that the precipitate departure of the fquadron muft produce the moft detrimental confequences to the interefts of the ftate, as holding out to all the powers of the country an opprobrious acknowledgement that they had been entirely defeated in the laft engagement, and could not ftand another; and that they utterly defpaired fpaired of every thing on thore. In confequence of this deliberation, a protest was immediately drawn, declaring Mr. D'Aché responsible. for the lofs of the colony, fuch were the words, and refolving to complain to the King and ministry, and demand public justice of his conduct. The ship Duc d'Orleans was by fome accident, detained in the road, after the others were under fail, and the commander was charged to deliver the proteft to Mr. D'Aché, and a copy to every commander in the fquadron, which were twelve leagues out at fea when the Duc d'Orleans joined them. Mr. D'Aché immediately held a general council of his captains, and on the 22d anchored again in the road of Pondicherry; and came afhore to confult with Mr. Lally and the government. On the 25th, in the morning, the English squadron, coming from Negapatam, appeared ftanding in line of battle into the road, but driving by the current to the northward. All the French fhips weighed, but hawled the wind clofe, which being at w. s. w. kept them at their first distance from the English, which they had it in their power to bear down upon, and engage. Mr. Pococke, unable to get up to them, kept his line of battle until the evening, when he continued his courfe, and anchored on the 27th at Madrafs. Mr. D'Aché ftill infifted on returning as foon as poffible to the iflands; and the government of Pondicherry unwillingly compromifed for his departure, on condition that he should leave all the Coffrees ferving in the fquadron, which were 400, and 500 Europeans, either failors or marines; who were accordingly landed, and he failed away on the 30th of September. Mr. Lally, with his ufual fpleen, called the Europeans from of the fea; and, indeed, most of them for a while could be fit for little more than to do duty in the town, whilft the regular troops kept the field.

The animolity of Mr. Lally to Mr. Buffy had continued, without remiffion : he even employed his emifiaries to perfuade Mr. Buffy to make him a prefent of money, as a certain means of reconciliation; intending to use the proffer as a confession of Mr. Buffy's delinquency, of which he was every where feeking proofs. and ambition were never more ftrictly united than in this defign. Mr. Buffy, having remitted his fortune to Europe, offered his credit. if employed in community with the government of Pondicherry and Mr. Lally's, to raife money for the public fervice; but treated the hints of the other propofal, as the defperate zeal of his adherents unwarranted by himfelf. They faw one another but feldom, but were obliged to correspond on public affairs. The letters of Mr. Lally were replete with fufpicion, jealoufy, infinuation, artifice, infolence, farcafm, and wit; Mr. Buffy's, with fagacity, caution, deference, argument, profound knowlege, the justeft views of affairs, and the wifeft means to promote their fuccefs : and Mr. Lally himfelf, whilft he pretended to ridicule, respected the extent of his talents. Their differtion was in this flate, when the arrival of a frigate from France on the 20th of August brought orders from the king and ministry, recalling all the intermediate officers, who had been fent with commissions fuperior to Mr. Buffy's, and appointing him fecond in the command, and to fucceed to it after Mr. Lally. This diffinction produced a more civil intercourfe, and Mr. Lally, with feeming complacence, asked the affiftance of his counfels. The first he gave was the most obnoxious he could. Rajahfaheb, the unfortunate but infignificant fon of Chundahfaheb, had lately found means to perfuade Mr. Lally to appoint him Nabob of the Carnatic; and the ceremony had been performed with oftentation, in the month of July, both at Arcot and Pondicherry. This promotion, without the participation of Salabadjing, the Subah of the Decan, was a public renunciation of his alliance, and might be improved by Nizamally to confirm him in the interefts of the English. The approach of Baffaulut Jung on the northern confines of the Carnatic appeared to Mr. Buffy a refource, not only to re-eftablish the former union with Salabadjing, but likewife to ftrengthen the immediate operations of the French army, by offering Baffaulut Jung the government of the Carnatic and its dependencies under the fanction of Salabadjing, on condition that he would join them with his troops. Mr. Lally at first revolted against the idea : and his aversion to it was imputed imputed not more to his jealoufy of the importance which Mr. Buffy would regain, by his influence with a prince long accuftomed to refpect his character, than to his own obligations to Rajahfaheb, who it was faid had purchafed his appointment. However, Mr. Lally had confented, that Mr. Buffy fhould march with a detachment to join Baffaulut Jung, and conclude the negotiation, when the French fquadron failed away from Pondicherry, where news arrived the fame day of the action at Vandiwafh, which Mr. Lally, as a complete victory, fired a hundred guns round the ramparts of Pondicherry, and wrote magnificent accounts of the fuccefs to every man of confequence within or near the province.

Mr. Buffy arrived at Vandiwash on the 5th of October. The English army had left their encampment in fight of this place the day before; they halted two days at Trivatore, during which heavy rains and the bad quality of the only water they had to drink brought fickness upon the camp, which caufed Major Brereton to guit this post, and repair to Conjeveram, where they arrived on the 7th. On the fame day, Mr. Buffy marched from Vandiwash with all the troops encamped there, reinforced from other parts to 1 500 European foot and 300 horfe, befides the black horfe : he expected the English might wait, and give battle, but they were gone ; and the garrifon left in Trivatore, which was only ten Europeans, and a company of Sepoys, furrendered to him at difcretion. Draughting 150 of the European horfe, and 400 foot, to accompany him to Baffaulut Jung, he fent back the reft of the army to Vandiwash, and arrived at Arcot on the 10th; where he was detained feveral days, by the rains of the monfoon.

Baffaulut Jung advancing from Polore gave out that he would attack Nelore; but when he came near the Pennar quitted the fouthern road, and, turning to the weft, encamped on the 10th of September on the plains of Sangam, a town with feveral pagodas on the bank of the river, 16 miles from Nelore. Here he fummoned Nazeabulla and the three greater Polygars to come and pay their obeiffance to him in perfon. Nazeabulla contrived to make him believe magnified Vol. II. their cannon, which were ranged in front of the camp, facing the north, from whence alone the appearance of the English army could be expected. The night paffed without riot or confusion.

In the mean time, expresses were fent to Pondicherry, where the whole council immediately affembled at Mr. Lally's, who accufed them all, as the infligators of the revolt; but produced 10,000 pagodas out of his cheft, and fent them by the Vifcount Fumel, with the promife of a general pardon to the troops. The council likewife gave affurances, that the whole arrears fhould be discharged in a month, and fent their plate to the mint, as an earnest, which example was followed by many of the inhabitants. Fumel arrived early in the morning of the 20th at the camp of the troops, who had moved fix miles farther on to the westward, towards Arni : He was permitted to confer with their chiefs, whom he harangued on the obvious topics of defertion, difhonour, and the deftruction of all the French interefts in India, and thought them fufficiently relented, to appeal to the whole ; who, according to his requeft, affembled round him on the plain, to the number of 2000 men. He gave hints of the money and pardon; and his representations had wellnigh converted them, when 70 or 80, who were the desperate mutineers, and had kept away from the affembly, rushed in with there bayonets fixed, and faid, that nothing could be determined without their confent, which should never be given to a reconciliation before they had received every farthing of their arrears. Fumel, thinking neither their number or violence fufficient to revoke the impreffion he had made, broke up the affembly, fignifying, that he should return to Vandiwash, and wait there three hours for their determination, before he returned to Pondicherry. Within the time the anfwer came; the ferjeant La Joye was a fenfible man, and difapproving, although he commanded the revolt, prevailed on them to be content with receiving fix months pay immediately, the reft in a month, and a general amnesty, figned by Mr. Lally, and all the members of the council of Pondicherry. Accounts were immediately begun ; and, whilft waiting for them and the return of meffengers fengers from Pondicherry, the troops continued abroad with the fame regularity as before, under his command. The pardon arrived, and the money was paid on the 21ft in the morning, and the whole body, excepting 30 who had deferted, marched back under the command of their former officers to Vandiwafh, where before evening the whole camp was enlivened with dances and jollity, as if after fome fignal fuccefs.

Mr. Buffy, on the first intelligence of the revolt, refolved to proceed no farther, until he faw the event. The difcontent caught the troops he had taken with him, and he was obliged to appeale them by a month's pay, and then to wait, until the money to inake up the fix months, as to the reft of the army, was remitted from Vandiwash; and before he refumed his march, feveral incidents had happened, which neceffitated him to change the state of his detachment, and the rout he intended to take.

As foon as the English army, returning from their unfuccessful attempt at Vandiwash, arrived at Conjeveram, 200 Europeans, with two field-pieces, 200 black horfe, and 500 Sepoys, were detached under the command of Captain More, towards the encampment of Baffaulut Jung at Sidaporum; they were to be joined in the way by the fix companies of Sepoys at Tripetti, by 1000 belonging to Nazeabullah at Nelore, and by the Europeans in both these places, who were about 70. This force was intended to follow and harrafs Baffaulut Jung's army, if they fhould march round to meet and join Mr. Buffy ; but it was the 15th of October before they reached Kalastri, where the troops from Tripetti arrived the fame day, but those from Nelore had not yet advanced. The two Polygars, Bangar Yatcham and Damerla Venkatypettah, terrified by the cavalry of Baffaulut Jung at their borders, and doubtful of the diftant protection of the English troops, temporized, and according to his fummons went to his camp, accompanied by Sampetrow. This man, who has been formerly mentioned, came into the province with the Nabob Anwarodean Khan, and had ferved as his Duan, or prime-minister, until his death ; after which, he was sometimes confulted and employed, but never trufted, by Mahomedally, and had had a little before the fiege of Madrafs retired with his wealth, which was confiderable, to Kalaftri. His difguft to the prefent Nabob had attached him to Maphuze Khan, who ftill continued helplefs and difcontented, endeavouring to keep up the difturbances which he had created in the Tinivelly countries. An officer deputed by them both went to Baffaulut Jung, as foon as it was known that he had feparated from his brothers, Salabadjing and Nizamally; and it is faid, feconded the advice of the French in his fervice, to enter the Carnatic, but with very different views; for Sampetrow, who managed the intrigue, intended that Baffaulut Jung flould proclaim himfelf Nabob, and appoint him his Duan; forefeeing that the concerns of his countries nearer the Kriftna would foon call him away; when he intended that Baflaulut Jung should nominate Maphuze Khan his deputy in the Carnatic, and Sampetrow continuing Duan, would, by his afcendance over Maphuze Khan, gather the whole power of the government into his own hands. When it was objected what engagements were to be taken or kept with the French, Sampetrow faid, None, if poffible, with either them or the English; but, if neceffitated to chufe, Maphuze Khan was at leaft equally free from predilection to either. As a fpecimen of his own abilities for the fituation to which he afpired, he perfuaded the two Polygars to make each of them a prefent of 40,000 rupees in ready money, and added the fame fum of his own. This affiftance was very much wanted, and gave recommendation to his counfel, of which he was expecting the effect, when an officer of the first diffinction in Salabadjing's court, and the confident of Nizamally, arrived in the camp, with offers of friendship, reconciliation, and grants, to diffuade Baffaulut Jung from entering into any alliance with the French against the English. Nizamally forefaw, that the standard of his brother, as the fon of Nizamalmuluck, with the force he commanded, and his refources, if acting in conjunction with the French in the Carnatic, might turn the fortune of the war in their favour; and, in their fuccefs, he faw and dreaded, with abomination, the reftoration of Mr. Buffy to the councils of Salabadjing, as the ruin of his own ambition. Baffaulut Jung inclined to the advice of Samä petrow.

petrow, and would probably have advanced into the plains of the Carnatic, with equal professions to the French and English, if the English troops had not arrived as they did at Kalastri. Their appearance difconcerted him the more, becaufe the commander of the French troops in his army, and the agent deputed to him from Pondicherry, had, with as much confidence as imprudence, affured him, before he croffed the Pennar, that Mr. Buffy would join him at Sydaporum on the 1ft of October. It was now the 19th, and Baffaulut Jung, fo long difappointed, would not at length believe that Mr. Buffy had even left Pondicherry ; when reports arrived of the revolt at Vandiwash; on which, he beat his great drum, recroffed the Pennar, and marched to the N. w. into the country of Cudapah, towards the capital of the fame name. The French troops accompanied him, diftreffed for neceffaries; but their officers prevailed on him to requeft of Mr. Buffy, that he would immediately advance and join him in Cudapah. Mr. Buffy received this intelligence on the 24th, and fet out the fame day ; but, as more than half the way he had to pafs was through the mountains, he took with him only three companies of Sepoys, 100 of the European horfe, and 200 black under a good partizan, which he had enlifted at his, own expence at Arcot, becaufe those he had brought from Vandiwash were gone off for want of pay. They marched without artillery, and with very little baggage.

The monfoon, with figns of ftormy weather, warned Admiral Pococke to quit the coaft : the prefidency endeavoured to perfuade him to leave fuch of his fhips as did not require the dock, in the bay of Trinconamalée; from whence they might return with the fair weather in January, ready to oppofe any part of the French fquadron, which might be fent back expeditioufly from the iflands, in order to command the coaft during the abfence of the Englifh; but Mr. Pococke judicioufly refolved not to diminifh his ftrength, until he had rounded Ceylon, and was far enough up the Malabar coaft to be fure the enemy were not waiting to meet him there, under this very difadvantage: but promifed, as foon as fecure from this event, to fend round Mr. Cornifh's fhips, if they fhould join him in the way. 533 1759. way. On the 16th, the Revenge, which had been left cruizing to the fouthward, came in with intelligence that the had on the 8th fallen in with Mr. Cornifh's division, and three Indiamen, having on board Colonel Coote, with 600 men, the remainder of his regiment, and that they were beating up to Madrafs. Mr. Pococke failed, with his fquadron, at break of day on the 18th, and the fame night met Mr. Cornish's off Pondicherry : he immediately put such of the troops as were on board the men of war into the Queenfborough frigate, and fent her away, with the three Indiamen, to Madrafs; where they did not arrive until the 27th, taking ten days against the monfoon to gain what with it might have been run in as many hours. As foon as the troops were landed, 200 from the camp were embarked, in five Indiamen, for Bengal, with Major Calliaud, whom Colonel Clive had requefted might be fent to take the command of the army in that province, if Colonel Coote should be detained to ferve on the coaft. Sixty Europeans had been fent a few days before to Mafulipatam ; but thefe detachments were partly compenfated by another exchange of prifoners with Pondicherry, from whence 170, all that remained there, were delivered, and arrived on the 17th at Madrafs.

The last exchange before this in August had cleared Tritchinopoly of the remainder of the French prifoners in confinement there. The numbers which, on different fucceffes, had been brought into the city, were 670, all taken during the campaigns of Colonel Lawrence. under the walls of the city; but only 400 were remaining to be releafed, in the late exchanges : of the reft most had died ; 30 had been fent on their offer of enlifting to ferve with Mahomed Iffoof in the countries of Madura and Tinivelly; and the others, who, although foreigners were not Frenchmen, had been admitted to ferve in the garrifon of Tritchinopoly, which, the final clearance of its dungeons releafed from the feverest and most anxious part of their duty. The detachment of 90 men fent from Madrafs, arrived at the city on the 26th of August. The Dutch at Negapatam would not let them land in their bounds, which obliged them to come on fhore in the open town of Nagore, where they would have been exposed to risque, if there there had been a ftrong force in the French fort of Karical. With this reinforcement the garrifon had 250 effimated Europeans, most of whom were invalids, deferters, or topaffes, and 3000 Sepoys; and the Nabob still maintained his 1000 horse, which had afforded parties fufficient to fecure the revenues of the districts of Tritchinopoly fouth of the Coleroon, of Seringham on the other fide, and even farther on to Volcondah, before the detachment with Fumel had extended the authority of the French government as far as Utatoor. The intermediate villages, of which the French had lately taken pofferfion, had remained for many months before unmolefted, and were flourishing; and, as foon as it was known that Fumel was returning from Volcondah to Pondicherry, Captain Joseph Smith detached Captain Richard Smith, with 180 Europeans, four guns, 800 Sepoys, and 500 of the Nabob's horfe, to recover the country that had been loft. They marched on the 18th of September; but had only croffed the Coleroon, when news of the arrival of the French fquadron at Pondicherry alarmed the Nabob fo much, that, to quiet his apprehenfions, all the Europeans, with 600 of the Sepoys, were recalled into the city; but the horfe, with the other 200 Sepoys, went on to Utatoor. Colonel Brereton, when determined to march against the French at Vandiwash, had enjoined Joseph Smith to undertake fome enterprize which might draw off a part of their force from their flations towards the Paliar, and oblige them to detain to the fouthward, what might be at this time in those quarters : his letters arrived on the 6th of October. J. Smith had for fome time meditated an attempt to retake Devi Cotah by furprize, to give the fquadron a certain station, from which they might be supplied with water and provisions, without begging leave, as it were, of the Danes and Dutch. The opportunity was at this time probable; for, confiding in the remoteness of its situation from any of the English stations, and wanting troops in other parts, Mr. Lally had reduced the garrifon to 30 Europeans and 100 Sepoys; and the Coleroon, which difembogueth into the fea near Devi Cotah, was at this time full and rapid. On the night of the 9th, Captain Richard Smith, with 140 Europeans and Topafies, 300 Sepoys, two petards, and fome fcaling ladders, embarked ZZZ VOL. II.

embarked in two large boats, which ferved as ferries over the Coleroon, and thirteen of wicker, covered with leather, which are likewife used on the fame river. Lieutenant Horne, with 500 Sepoys, and two field-pieces, marched two days before to Tanjore, and the Nabob's horfe, with the 200 Sepoys, advanced from Outatoor to the diftricts of Verdachelum; all the three parties were to join, and attack Chilambarum, if the attempt on Devi Cotah fucceeded. It was expected, that the current would carry the boats down in 60 hours. although the diftance by the course of the river is 200 miles. Heavy rains commenced as foon as the troops were embarked, and continued this and the fucceeding day. At the noon of the 11th they landed in an unfrequented part covered with wood to drefs their meal and clean their arms; in the enfuing night, one of the large boats, in which was Enfign Hunterman, with half the Europeans and Topaffes, the fcaling ladders and petards, and feven of the finaller boats, loft the main channel of the river, and entered into that which leads from it on the left toward Chilambarum, and foon after ran aground on a bank of fand; where feeing nothing of the other boats, and uncertain whether they were before or behind, or whether they might not likewife have ftruck on fome fand, Hunterman refolved to remain where he was until day-light; before which, Captain Smith, with the reft of the boats, was arrived at the rendezvous, five miles from Devi Cotah, and waiting for those with Hunterman, which did not come up until the evening. This delay difcovered the detachment. Neverthelefs Captain Smith marched acrofs the land, and took post on the 14th, intending to escalade in the enfuing night. Two broad and deep channels of the Coleroon pafs along the north and fouth fides of the fort; the ground to the weft was at this time a morafs; the eaftern face standing on dry fand, was the only part accessible; but had a dry ditch and glacis; both, however, flight. The boats carrying the troops dropt down the north channel to the firand,. where all landed. The Europeans were to efcalade, the Sepoys tofustain them, and no fire was to be given by any on any caufe, before the Europeans had gained footing on the rampart. The 21 moon moon was rifen, and the Europeans with the ladders were neverthelefs at the foot of the wall before they were difcovered by the garrifon, who immediately thronged and fired; which the Sepoys at the creft of the glacis, who fhared part of it, returned in much hurry and confusion, and then ran away; on which Captain Smith feeing no farther probability of fuccefs, ordered the Europeans to retreat likewife. Thirty of them had continued in the boats, unable to move with fwelled legs, acquired by fetting 60 hours up to their knees in water ; and nine, who were foreigners, had deferted. The next day he received intelligence of the repulse of the English troops at Vandiwash, fignified with apprehensions of evil confequences from the ill fuccefs; and this news, with the mifchances of his party, and the preparation of the garrifon rendered farther perfeverance imprudent. In the morning the difabled men were fent off to Atchaveram, and the reft followed in the afternoon. The fwelling of the rivers had prevented Horne's detachment from advancing beyond Tanjore; and if they had, the news of the repulse at Vandiwash, would equally have prevented the attempt on Chilambarum; and they were ordered to return to Tritchinopoly. Captain Smith followed, with his own detachment, and all the ftores, through the country along the fouth bank of the Coleroon, and arrived on the 24th. The fmall boats were burnt for want of hands to carry them back, but the two larger were left to be towed up, as foon as the freshes were passed.

All the revenues collected by the French government, even when their poffeffions were most extended, had never fufficed for the expences of the field. Much ground had lately been recovered by the English; whose reinforcements, and their late, although unfuccessful, attack on Vandiwash alarmed the country on the fouth of the Paliar; in which many of the villagers were quitting their fields, which gave the renters specious pretexts to require abatements on their leases from the administration of Pondicherry. No money, and many debts remained in the treasfury there; and the late revolt demonstrated that the troops could not be trusted for the time to come any longer than they should be flrictly paid. vince, whether under the French, the English, or the Nabob's authority, which had lately remained exempt from ravage, contributions, or military operations, was the country from Outatoor to the fouthern diffricts of Tritchinopoly, including the rich and fertile island of Seringham; where the approaching harvest of December, which is by far the greatest of the year, promised in this, a more abundant crop than ufual. The government's fhare was valued at 600,000 rupees, and would be received in February. From thefe confiderations Mr. Lally refolved to take poffeffion of these countries, with a force fufficient to keep the garrifon of Tritchinopoly within their walls. But as this could not be effected, without expofing the flations and country near the Paliar to rifque, by the fubftraction of fuch a number of troops as would be fent away to the fouthward, he meant to flation 800 men near Arcot, who were to move to the relief of any place that might be attacked; and, with this affiftance in profpect, he fupposed that the garrifons he should leave in the forts, although very flender, would defend themfelves to extremity, and protract the fucceffes of the English force, until his object to the fouthward was accomplished. Mr. Deleyrit, and the Council of Pondicherry, objected to the feparation of the army, as fraught with the most dangerous confequences. Mr. Lally imputed their repugnance to the intention he had declared of farming out the collections under his own infpection, by which they would be deprived, as he fupposed, of their usual perquisites ; and they attributed his propenfity to the expedition to the fame fpirit of peculation.

To confirm the appearance of maintaining the Paliar, a detachment of 50 men of Lally's regiment attacked three companies of Sepoys, pofted in a village called Checkrimalore, fituated on the fouth bank of the river, in a line oppofite to Conjeveram; but the Sepoys flood firm, killed five, and took three men, with an officer mortally wounded. Two companies were likewife pofted at Salawauk, between Outramalore and Chinglapett, of which Lieutenant Fletcher drew off one to ftrengthen the efcort proceeding with the laft exchange of French prifoners to Sadrafs; on which the French guard at Outramalore drove away the other company remaining at Salawauk; but a few days after, Lieutenant Fletcher recovered this post. At the fame time, parties and detachments were continually moving, to accom-November. plifh the difpofitions Mr. Lally had arranged. The troops allotted for the fouthern expedition were 900 Europeans, of which 100 were cavalry, 1000 Sepoys, 200 black horfe, and ten pieces of cannon; under the command of Mr. Crillon; their rendezvous was at Thiagar, to which they reforted from different parts by various routes, and were all affembled there on the eleventh of November. Neither the prefidency of Madrafs, nor Captain Smith at Tritchinopoly, obtained any certain account of their force or intentions. The Nabob's horfe, with the 500 Sepoys, which had been fent to Verdachelum, and had done no little mifchief during their excursion, had returned to Utatoor on the 12th, and were halting there on the r5th, when they discovered an advanced party of the enemy, which they fuppofed the whole, and immediately retreated to Pitchandah; a few hours after, the enemy came up to Samiaveram, and the next day, their horfe advanced, and reconnoitered the banks of the Coleroon, and then fell back and took poft with the reft in the village and pagoda of Munfurpet. The whole force was 35 Europeans, 100 Coffrees, 500 Sepoys, two guns, and fome black horfe, commanded by a partizan and two fubalterns; of which Joseph Smith obtained right intelligence; and early the next morning fent out 10 companies of Sepoys, 120 Europeans and topaffes, fix field-pieces, and 400 of the Nabob's horfe, under the command of hisfecond Richard Smith, and from the intimacy between them he. accompanied the detachment as a volunteer. They croffed the Caveri and Coleroon opposite to the city. The village of Munfurpet had rice-fields in front, through which the road onwards to the Coleroon was a caufeway raifed above them ; fo that the enemy had no attack to fear on this fide, and their retreat was open to Samiaveram and Utatore. The banks of the Coleroon are steep and high, and the water at this time was fo low as to run only in fmall channels, leaving large beds of fand, and a fhore of it, under the banks. Three companies of Sepoys were fent up the bank with the colours of all ther the companies, which they difplayed at proper diftances to refemble. whilft the main body of the detachment filed unfeen under the bank, two miles on to the left, when quitting the river, they continued their march in the bed of a water-courfe then dry, which led to the north, and brought them on two miles, ftill undifcovered, until they were in a line with Munfurpet, when the water-courfe turning another way the troops came out of it; and as they were afcending a rifing ground just before them, within a mile and a half of Munfurpet, were for the first time perceived by the enemy there: whole confusion was much lefs than might have been expected from the furprize. They got, although in hurry, their line into order, and began to retreat fast in order to gain Samiaveram. The Nabob's horfe were detached to harrafs and impede their front, and by hard driving four of the field-pieces were brought near enough to fire upon their line of march, when they very imprudently unlimbered their guns to return this fire. Neverthelefs the purfuit lafted four miles, when they halted in a village, to ftand the brunt; but were foon beat from their guns, and the whole broke, and every man begged quarter. One officer, 15 Europeans, and 30 Coffrees, were made prifoners; most of the rest of these troops were killed during the pursuit and fight. Some of the Sepoys were cut down in the beginning of the rout by the Nabob's horfe, who were immediately ordered to fpare all who flung down their arms. The two guns, two tumbrils, a great quantity of ammunition, all the baggage, and an elephant, were taken. Captain Richard Smith converfing with one of the prifoners, obtained information from him of the force with Mr. Crillon, and, to his great furprize, that it would encamp this very evening at Utatore, and advance on the morrow. Fatiguing as the fervice of the day had been, no time was to be loft. The whole detachment, with their prifoners and spoils, returned that night to the bank of the Coleroon, and flept on their arms, and early the next morning began to crofs the river, in which a fudden fresh was coming down, which obliged the latter part of the detachment to pass in boats, and the last boat in which was one of the guns, was driven on a fand, from whence. it took four hours to release it, and four men were drowned in the attempt;

attempt; and by this time the foremost of Crillon's troops appeared on the bank of the river. The flood kept them there until the 20th, when they croffed into the Ifland of Seringham, and encamped oppofite to the weft face of the pagoda, in which Captain J. Smith had flationed 200 Sepoys, 500 colleries armed with their long lances, and two field-pieces, with European gunners. The outward wall of the pagoda, being 40 feet high, can neither be defended nor escaladed ; and, if battered down, which would be tedious, the ruins would be difficult to pafs. The great gateway is within, 40 feet high, 30 broad, and 40 through to the infide of the pagoda. As it is impossible to weild gates of fuch a furface, a wall 20 feet high had been raifed acrofs the middle of the paffage, and in the wall was left an opening, in which likewife no gate had been erected. A trench was therefore. dug across the paffage in front, and a parapet was raifed behind the opening for the field-pieces. At day-break on the 21ft, the French advanced their heaviest cannon, which foon beat down the partition-wall, and difabled the field-pieces on the parapet. They then ran to the affault, and formed their way in; not without much refiftance from the Sepoys, but very little from the colleries. Irritated by their lofs, they refused quarter for fome time after all refistance had ceafed. They then turned out whom they had fpared, when the mufketry fired upon them as they were going away, and fome of the European horfe rode after and cut down others: but neither with the permiffion of their officers. The garrifon of Tritchinopoly beheld this wanton cruelty from the walls; but could give no relief. Few of the Sepoys regained the city, and one of the three companies was intirely loft. Joseph Smith reproached Crillon severely for this barbarity.

The prefidency, as foon as certified of the defination of this part of the French army, refolved that the whole of their own fhould immediately take the field. The choice of operations was left to Colonel. Coote, who on the 21ft of November came from Madrafs to Conjeveram, where the largeft division of the troops were in cantonment. Having taken the command, he immediately affembled a council of war, in which it was agreed, that the feparated and diftant fituations 541 1759.

The troops which had landed with Colonel Coote, joined the camp at Conjeveram on the 23d; from whence Captain Prefton was fent off the fame day with his own company of infantry and of the pioneers, to remain at Chinglapett, in readinefs to advance with them when called for to Vandiwafh, bringing likewife two eighteen-pounders and a howitz. The next evening Major Brereton proceeded with a ftrong detachment to attack 'Trivatore; and on the 25th Colonel Coote with the main body advanced towards Arcot, where all the enemy's troops in the field were encamped. Thefe difpofitions were meant to perplex their guefs of what blow was intended; they had moft reafon to expect againft Arcot, but neverthelefs concluded Vandiwafh.

A party fent forward by Major Brereton invefted Trivatore at nine at night, but kept their guards fo negligently, that the garrifon, which were only a company of Sepoys, efcaped through them before morning. Major Brereton, leaving two companies of Sepoys in Trivatore, marched on with his division, and arrived the next day, which was the 26th, at Vandiwash. Early the next morning they affaulted the pettah and carried it, after a slight resistance from fome Sepoys, but without any los.

Colonel Coote arrived the fame morning with his division at Arcot. where he faw nothing of the enemy's troops on the ground of their encampment near the town. They had fent a detachment on the night of the 24th, preceding the morning that ColonelCoote began his march, which attacked the English post at Checkrimalore, where the three companies of Sepoys had just been reinforced, without the enemy's knowledge, with 50 Europeans from Conjeveram. Their detachment attacked before day-break of the 25th, and were repulfed, with the lofs of 20 Europeans, and their commanding officer, and retreated immediately to Chittapet; to which, as appointed the general rendezvous, the reft of the troops in the field at Arcot were on their march in the evening of the 26th, whilft Colonel Coote's division was approaching the ground they were quitting. In the evening of the 27th, fome hours after his arrival at Arcot, Colonel Coote received an 4 an expreis from Major Brereton of his fucceis on the pettah of Vandiwash; and immediately made a forced march towards him. The next day, he left Major Monfon to bring on the line, and proceeding with the cavalry, arrived before noon at Vandiwafh; where Brereton had almost completed a battery for the two eighteen-pounders which accompanied his division. It was crected in the western pettah, against the tower and cavalier in the s. w. angle of the fort. In the night, another battery was begun near the N. w. angle of the fouthern pettah, directly opposite to the fame tower; and both were compleated before the morning; but as the two eighteenpounders expected from Chinglapett were not arrived, two twelvepounders brought up from the line were mounted in their flead. Hitherto the enemy had fired day and night from the walls, and only flightly wounded one man. The fire of the batteries opened with the day, which was the 29th, and the tower attacked was filenced, and a practicable breach made in it, before noon : when Colonel Coote fummoned the French officer, who answered, that he should obey the orders he had received, to defend the fort to extremity. The batteries then continued to difmantle other parts of the defences ; and in the evening Major Monfon came up, with the main body of the army.

In the morning, the Kellidar fent fome of his officers and fervants, to flipulate for his own fecurity in the event. Colonel Coote pledged himfelf to continue him in the fort, and in the rent of the districts, as a dependent of the Company, if he would, with his own troops, feize, and deliver up those he had admitted belonging to the French; but infifted on a politive anfwer by two in the afternoon; at which hour no anfwer came ; but a little after, the French foldiers appeared on the walls, and called out, that they would deliver up the fort. Colonel Coote chanced to be at the battery, and immediately ordered a company of Sepoys to advance, and take possefion of the gateway; who when they came there, were told that the key was with the Kellidar. This baulk might have produced untoward confequences, if Colonel Coote, at the fame time that he fent the Sepoys to the gate, had not advanced himfelf with another company to the 4A breach, VOL. II.

breach, which they entered without opposition ; and being immediately followed by fome of the officers with the picquet, no refiftance was attempted in any part of the fort. The troops belonging to the French were five fubaltern officers, 63 private Europeans, and 100 Sepoys; the Kellidar's, 500 horfemen and foot. In this fuccefs, not a man of the English troops was killed, and only five were wounded. The English forces had thrice before been against this place, and in the laft were repulfed, as we have lately feen, with as much lofs as they had fuffered in any action in thefe wars. The Kellidar had figned the treaty, just as the troops entered; but his importance in the province, his relation to the family of Chundafaib, his long connexion with the French government, and his inveterate enmity to the Nabob Mahomedally, weighed unjuftly more than the refpect due to a contract of which he was fulfilling his part. He was brought to Madrafs, behaved haughtily, and would give no account of his treafures, which he had fent away to Coilas Guddy, a fort on one of the highest hills near Velore, in which refided the widow of Subderally Cawn. The Nabob faid, that the making him prifoner was of more importance than the reduction of the fort, but offered to release him for ten lacks of rupees.

The French troops in the field had made no motion from Chittapet to interrupt the attack ; and, as their inaction rendered it unneceffary to march againft them, Colonel Coote refolved to attack Carangoly, before they were reinforced fufficiently to rifque an engagement. Carangoly is fituated 35 miles w. s. w. from Vandiwafh, 12 to the fouth a little wefterly from Chinglapett, and 18 from Sadrafs and the fea. The fort is large, having four not very unequal fides, of which the circumference is 1500 yards. It is built of ftone, and has, before the main wall and the towers, a parapeted faufebray, and a wet ditch. The four fides nearly face to the cardinal points of the compafs; a pettah, feparated from the fort by an efplanade, and extending in a curve, intirely enveloped the north, and part of the weft and eaft faces of the fort. As the weakeft part, becaufe neareft to the oppofite pettah, the French had thrown up a glacis before the north front, but had not completed it before the tower in the N.E. angle.

The

THE CARNATIC.

The army, by detachments, entered the pettah, on the 4th of December, and were exposed to fome fire from the fort, which killed a grenadier. The attack was confined to the north front, which, befides the two round towers in the angles, had the ufual voluminous defences of a gateway, and a fquare tower on each hand of it; in all five projections. On the 6th the army had finished, and began to fire from, a battery of two eighteen-pounders, opposite the square tower next the round one in the angle on the left of this front. One of the guns fired to breach in the angle of the curtain on the left of the fquare tower, and the other to take off the flanking fire of the round: but the fire of the fort was much fuperior; for befides feveral old guns long belonging to the fort, the French had nine excellent pieces well mounted, which they brought to this face; and embrafures not only in the gate-way, but in the two towers on the right of it, commanded the battery ; to oppose which another battery for two guns was raifed on the left of the first, which opened on the 7th in the morning, and the eight-inch howitz was planted in the N. W. part of the pettah, which firing dead shells in recochet infiladed in its whole length the rampart of the front attacked. At noon of this day the breach appeared practicable, and Colonel Coote fummoned the commandant, Colonel O Kenelly, an Irifhman, and an officer of reputation in Lally's regiment, fignifying that, if he perfifted, the garrifon would be exposed to the fame treatment as had been inflicted on the troops taken by affault at Seringham. O Kenelly anfwered, that, as the letter was not directed in French, he had not opened it; and as foon as the trumpet who brought it had reached the pettah, recommenced the fire. It continued hotly on the 8th and 9th ; when Colonel Coote advanced a zig-zag from the breaching battery. On the 10th in the morning, there only remained fhot for two hours ; and more had been fent for from Chinglapett ; but before the batteries ceafed, a flag of truce, little expected, appeared on the walls. Time was at this time of more importance than any thing but the difgrace of a repulse, and Coote granted almost all that was asked. The garrifon, which confisted of 100 Europeans, including officers, marched out with their arms, two rounds a man, a man, fix days provisions, colours flying, and drums beating : the Sepoys were difarmed, but likewife fet free. Four of the nine guns belonging to the French had been difmounted, two Europeans were killed, and five dangeroufly wounded. The Sepoys had fuffered more. The lofs of the English troops was lieutenant Campbell of the artillery; a grenadier, a Sepoy, and a Topass mortally wounded.

On the 12th, the army encamped again at Vandiwafh; where they were joined the fame day by Captain More, with his detachment from the northward. Thefe troops had advanced, accompanied by thofe at Tripetti as far as Nelore, and were joined on the road by the party of Europeans flationed there with lieutenant Elliot; but the troops of Nazeabullah although ready had not firred a ftep from the walls; he neverthelefs pretended that the dread of his preparations had been the principal caufe of Baffaulut Jung's retreat out of the Carnatic. All alarms having ceafed in this part of the country, Captain More fent back Elliot's party to Nelore, and thofe which had come from Tripetti, and returned with his own divifion by the way of Tripaffore to Conjeveram.

Colonel Coote, when marching against Vandiwash, had ordered Captain Wood, if to be done with fafety, to advance from Covrepauk, and take post in the city of Arcot, in order to prevent the French garrifon in the fort there from collecting provisions. Wood arrived in the town on the 28th, with 300 Sepoys, 50 Europeans, and 50 black horfe, who, without the least opposition, took posfeffion of the Nabob's palace and the adjacent fireets, although not half a mile from the fort; where they obliged the French renter and the principal inhabitants to redeem the reft of their property, by furnishing at the market-price a large quantity of rice, of which the fcarcity was encreasing every day by a general failure of the harvest in this part of the country. Captain More's detachment was ordered to join Captain Wood's on their return, and both to make preparations for the attack of the fort of Arcot, against which Colonel Coote intended to march as foon as he had reduced Carangoly. They had collected fafcines and other materials, and had even . begun to construct one of the batteries, when they were obliged to defift.

defift, and retire, on the 9th, by the approach of Mr. Buffy returning from the northward with a much larger force than had accompanied him out of the province.

After fifteen days march, and three of halt, Mr. Buffy, with his detachment, arrived on the 10th of November at Baffaulut Jung's camp, which was lying on a plain, fix miles from the city of Cudapah. The diftance from Arcot in the direct line is 110 miles, nearly north; but 300 by the road, which winds more than twothirds of the way along the valleys of rocky mountains. The French detachment with Baffaulut Jung, the Europeans as well as the Sepoys, were, for want of money, in want even of food; and to maintain them, their officers had fold every thing of their own, but their cloaths; from fimilar distreffes, although not fo fevere, the troops of Baffaulut Jung were ready to revolt. His propofals to Mr. Buffy were, " that the French fhould regard him as the abfolute " mafter of the province of Arcot, should furrender to his authority " all the countries of which they were in pofferfion, whether in this " province or in the dependencies of Tritchinopoly, and he would " account with them for one-third of the produce ; but whatfoever " might hereafter be conquered, should become entirely his own, free " of this deduction. All affairs and tributes were to be regulated by " the Duan he fhould appoint. The French were to fwear they would " affift him against Nizamally, if he should enter the Carnatic; " with whom they fhould make no treaty without the participation " of Baffaulut Jung; and, after they had conquered or made peace " with the English, should furnish him with a body of troops, to. " make war on Nizamally. After the peace, he was to be put in " full poffeffion of the whole Carnatic, and its dependencies, ac-" cording to the ancient ufages, when the French were no longer " to be entitled to any part of the revenues. He might return " into the Decan, whenfoever he pleafed ; and, during his absence " from his capital of Adoni, the French were to furnish a detach-" ment of 300 Europeans, and 2000 Sepoys, with artillery, ammu-" nition, and ftores, to garrifon this place ; and the expence of this 44 body of troops might be deducted out of his fhare of the revenues. 66 of:

" of the Carnatic. As his troops were unpaid, and fince the difafter " of Nazirjing were afraid of ferving in the Carnatic, Mr. Buffy " fhould immediately lend him four lacks of rupees to be diffributed " amongft them as the only means of engaging them to march. If " this agreement should not take effect after his arrival at Arcot, he " and his army fhould be reconducted out of the province with " friendship and good faith." The tenor of these terms bore the ftrongeft marks of Sampetrow's advice : Mr. Buffy anfwered them by other propofals, which left the iffue of every one made by Baffaulut Jung uncertain, and liable to future difcuffions and arrangements. The perfonal conferences only widened the difference. by difcovering more clearly to each the views of the other ; but Baffaulut Jung took no perional difguft to Mr. Buffy, and at his folicitation iffued patents fubjecting, at leaft in words, the whole province of Arcot to the government of Mr. Lally, and enjoining all the chiefs and feudatories to pay him the ufual tributes and obeifance. In the fame plain where Baffaulut Jung and Buffy were encamped, were likewife lying two other confiderable bodies of troops, the one a detachment of 3000 Morattoes appointed to guard that part of the territory of Cudapah, which had been ceded the year before the last to the Morattoe jurifdiction; the other was a body of 2500 Pitan horfe, belonging to the Nabob of Cudapah. Mr. Buffy, by former intercourfes, knew the officers of both. The Pitans lent him money, which enabled him to inlift 100 of their horfe, the fame number of Baffaulut Jung's, and 200 of the Morattoes; and to fupply the immediate wants of the French troops attending Baffaulut Jung, and his own detachment, which he now joined into one body under his own command. This whole force collected, confisted of 350 European infantry, 100 European horfe, 2500 Sepoys, of which 500 were Arabs or Abyfinians, 800 black horfe, and 10 pieces of cannon ; with which he marched away on the 16th of November, five days after his arrival, returning by the fame way he had come. On the 10th of December, he arrived at Arcot, from whence his approach had obliged Captain Moore and Wood to return with their detachments to Covrepauk, and from hence hence Captain Moore proceeded with his to the army at Carangoly, to which it added 180 Europeans, 1200 Sepoys, and 160 black horfe. The Europeans replaced the number which were left in garrifon at Vandiwash and Carangoly, and the Sepoys were more.

The lofs of these places was the feverest reproach of the error which Mr. Lally had committed in detaching fo great a part of his force to the fouthward : of which he himfelf was fo fenfible, that he justified it only by the diffress to which he was reduced for money to fupply the immediate pay and fubfiftance of the army. He now fent expresses to recall them all, excepting 300 Europeans, which were to be left in the pagoda of Seringham. The main body of the French troops remained waiting their arrival at Chittapet. Mr. Buffy left his force about the town of Arcot, and went himfelf to Pondicherry. The horfe he brought fpread themfelves, and committed every kind of ravage and destruction as far as Conjeveram, between the Paliar and the mountains. A body of Morattoes belonging to Morarirow had been for fome time at the pafs of Cudapanatam, w. of Velore ; they were commanded by Innis Khan, whom we have feen ferving in the former wars of Tritchinopoly. Both Madrafs and Pondicherry had agents in their camp, treating for their fervice. The English, Morarirow knew, had most money ; and pretending, that he had incurred great charges in preparing a body of troops at their requifition, to march to their affiftance before the fiege of Madrafs, for which he had not been paid, the terms he now demanded were peremptory, and the rates high. They endeavoured to bargain lower; and he, as the fhortest means, in his own politics, to make them conclude immediately, accepted 20,000 rupees from the French agents, and fent a thoufand of his horfe through the hills, who did not join their camp, but in two days were on the English ground between Arcot and Conjeveram.

Colonel Coote, with the army, marched from Vandiwash on the 13th, and encamped the next evening at Papantanguel, a town fix miles forward in the road from Trivatore to Arcot; in which situation, half a day's march enabled him to interfect the enemy's troops moving to join each other, whether from Arcot, or from Chittapet; but none appeared; for few of the returning troops from Seringham, and none they expected from Pondicherry, were as yet come up; and the division remaining at Arcot was too weak to venture, before the others were advanced near enough. to enfure the junction. On the 16th, the army marched, and encamped at Muleawady, fix miles nearer Arcot, but still to the fouth of the Paliar. By this time, the horfe brought by Mr. Buffy, and the Morattoes let loofe by Morarirow, were committing every kind of ravage and defolation in the country to the north of this river, and as far as within 20 miles of Madrafs. Thousands of cattle were fwept off in as many days, which they fold to the first purchaser, at seven or eight for a rupee, and then made them again the booty of the next excursion. With this experience, the inhabitants would no longer redeem them; after which, no fubmiffions exempted themfelves from the fword, and all abandoned the villages and open country, to feek fhelter in the woods, forts, and hills nearest their reach. Not a man ventured himself or his bullock with a bag of rice to the camp; which, for three days, were totally deprived of this staple food. Excessive rains fell during the 17th and all the next day, which the tents could not refift; and from the neceffity of affording the troops fome repofe, Colonel Coote marched from Muleawady on the 19th, and put the whole army into cantonments in the fort of Covrepauk, and the villages adjacent. The next day, he went to Madrafs, to confer with the Prefidency on the measures necessary to be taken against the force which had been fent to recover the countries of Seringham and Tritchinopoly : for intelligence had not yet been acquired, that the greateft part of them were recalled.

The reduction of Vandiwash, notwithstanding the loss of Seringham, revived the reputation of the English arms in the southern countries. The king of Tanjore sent horse and soot, and Tondiman and the two Moravers their colleries, to the Nabob at Tritchinopoly. Mr. Lally's orders, recalling the troops, were immediately obeyed. On the 9th, 600 European soot, and 100 horse, left the pagoda, and recroffed the Coleroon. As soon as they were gone, Capt. I

TRITCHINOPOLY.

Joseph Smith refolved to circumfcribe the troops which remained, as much as the ftrength of his garrifon allowed, and detached 500 Sepoys, and as many Colleries, to inveft Cortalum, a mud fort on the fouthern bank of the Caveri, 15 miles w. of Tritchinopoly, which were followed the next day by 300 more Sepoys, two field-pieces, two cohorns, and 50 Europeans, under the command of Enfign Morgan. The fort, in which were fome Sepoys, capitulated as foon as the cannon appeared. Enfign Morgan then fent half his detachment to attack Totcum, another fort like, and almost opposite to Cortalum, in which were 10 Europeans, and 200 Sepoys, who defended themfelves until Morgan came up with the reft of his force. when they furrendered. From Totcum, Morgan marched to Samiaveram, in order to join another detachment from the city, when both were to proceed against Utatoor. Early on the 16th, Joseph Smith received intelligence, that a convoy of ammunition, guarded by a few Sepoys, were on the road from Utatoor to Seringham; and at the fame time, a party of 40 Europeans, and 100 Sepoys fent from Seringham to join and affure the arrival of this convoy, were perceived croffing the Coleroon; on which he detached 40 Europeans, 400 Sepoys, 200 of the Nabob's horfe, and fome Colleries, acrofs both rivers, under the command of Enfign Bridger, with orders to proceed to Samiaveram, where he was to be joined by Morgan's party from Totcum, and both united, were to take poft at Samiaveram in order to intercept the return of the enemy's detachment. At the fame time, Captain Richard Smith marched out of the city with 100 Europeans, 300 Sepoys, and three guns, and took post on the fouthern bank of the Caveri opposite to the Pagoda of Seringham; where he foon after knew, by a fignal from the rock of Tritchinopoly, that 100 more Europeans had marched from the pagoda, and were paffing the Coleroon ; on which, as had been concerted, he crofied the Caveri, and kept up the hotteft fire he could against the gate of the pagoda, which was returned from various fcaffoldings within, and Captain Smith was wounded; but fiill perfifting, the enemy, as had been forefeen, recalled their detachment. Soon after Enfign Bridger's fignals gave token that 4 B he VOL. II.

he was in pofferfion of the pagodas at Samiaveram; but that Enfign Morgan's party was not yet come up. The next morning, the French detachment which first marched from Seringham, returned with the convoy from Utatoor, and advanced boldly to the upper pagoda of Samiaveram; near which, enfign Bridger was prepared to oppofe them. On the first firing, most of the coolies threw down their burthens of ammunition, and ran away; on which the troops, with the reft, took poft in the leffer pagoda, and, fhutting the gates, prepared for defence. But in lefs than an hour, enfign Morgan, with the whole of his force from Totcum, appeared, and the enemy furrendered. They were a captain, a lieutenant, and 38 grenadiers. Of Bridger's detachment, feveral Sepoys, with a Serjeant of one of the companies, and three Europeans, were killed. These operations were of confequence; for this being the seafon of harvest, and the corn ready to reap, the renters, as usual, yielded the government's fhare, which amounted to 100,000 rupees, to the ftronger force. The intelligence of these successes had not reached Madrafs, when Colonel Coote arrived there from the camp, but advices were received that the greatest part of the French force were returning from the fouthward; neverthelefs, the prefidency were much inclined to indulge the anxious and repeated requefts of the Nabob. to reinforce Tritchinopoly with 200 Europeans, in order to retake Seringham and Utatoor, and to recover the countries which had lately been loft, with fo much detriment to his revenues; but the arguments of Colonel Coote, confirmed by the recent example of the fame error committed by Mr.Lally, and its confequences, evinced the impropriety of diminishing the army at this time, when it feemed that the French were collecting their whole force, in order to rifque the fate of the Carnatic in a general battle. His reafons prevailed; and he returned on the 25th to Covrepauk, where, during his abfence, nothing had happened, but a fkirmish between the black horfe of the army, which were encreafed to 700, and an equal body of Morattoes, whom they beat off. On the 24th, a detachment of 40 black horfe, with fome Sepoys of the garrifon at Vandiwafh,

THE CARNATIC.

Vandiwash, furprised a party of the enemy's Sepoys, quartered in a village called Niconum, 15 miles to the fouth, of whom they December. killed twelve, and difperfed the reft.

The main body of the French army from Chittapett, encreafed by the returning troops from Seringham, and whatfoever more could be fpared from the garrifons to the fouth of the Paliar, had advanced to Arcot, foon after the English filed off to Covrepauk. Thus their whole force, but ftronger than before, was once again affembled; and they encamped along the fouth fide of the river quite up to the fuburbs of the city. On the 26th, Colonel Coote moved the English army to Chinesimundrum, a village fix miles from Covrepauk, and five from Arcot, where the ground afforded a very advantageous encampment; for a large tank extended in front, a morafs on each hand, and the only accefs in front and rear was by a caufe-way. On the 29th, the Generals Lally and Buffy came with a party of horfe to reconnoitre the camp, and a fkirmifh paffed between them and the out-posts. The next day, the greatest part of their horfe appeared again, and, after feveral motions, made an attack on a guard of Sepoys, posted in a village called Trimetcherry, about a mile in front of the camp, and cut down feveral of them in the ftreet; but the reft kept their ground in the houfes, and revenged the lofs by killing feveral of the horfe, who, feeing other troops advancing, retired. On the 31ft, three companies of Sepoys croffed the river, and, at three in the morning, entered, and beat up the camp of the Morattoes, which lay on the right of the French encampment. All fled, as usual when furprized; but of the few that which were returned, one chanced to wound Enfign Meredith, who commanded the party; after which, the Sepoys could not be prevailed upon to purfue their fuccefs by deftroying the animals and baggage. Thus closed the year 1759, the third of this dubious war, with the two armies in fight of each other, but neither ready for immediate decifion; for the English were afraid of the fuperiority of the enemy's cavalry, and were waiting in expectation, not only of drawing off the body of the Morattoes, which were with them, but likewife of being joined by 2000 more 4 B 2 who who were ftill remaining with Innis Khan on the other fide of the mountains. On the other hand, Mr. Lally was likewife negotiating for the fame affiftance, and ftill miftrufted the attachment of his European troops, although equal in number to the Englifh; and waited for an addition, by the return of what remained of the detachment which had been fent in April, under the conduct of Mr. Moracin, to reinforce Mafulipatam.

Not venturing to land the troops, as Mafulipatam was taken, Mr. Moracin failed away on the 18th of April, and in five days arrived at Ganjam, which is fituated at the northern extremity of the Chicacole province on the fea. The French had long kept a tradinghouse here, and were connected with Narraindeu, the principal Rajah in this part of the province : the fort and wood of his refidence is called Moherry, and is fituated twelve miles from the fea-fhore. and thirty miles w.s.w. from Ganjam: Befides Moherry, he had fix or feven other forts, which lie more inland, and farther to the north. His conftant force was 3000 men, befides which he occafionally hired from the other polygars. The Rajah Vizeramrauze, during his administration under Mr. Buffy in the province of Chicacole, had by fome feverities provoked the hatred of Narraindeu : which devolved, after the death of Vizeramrauze, on his fucceffor, Anunderamrauze, who, as we have feen, had invited and joined the English, whom nevertheless Narraindeu had less reason to diflike than the French, under whofe authority the vexations he refented from Vizeramrauze had originated. Neverthelefs Moracin proposed, " that their forces united should march first against the " English settlement of Vizagapatam, and then against Viziana-" garum, the principal refidence of Anunderauze. If fuccefsful " thus far, they were to go on, until joined by the French army of " obfervation, which was with Salabadjing, when Mafulipatam was " ftormed : probably Salabadjing would affift in retaking this place, " and Narraindeu, in reward for his fervices, was to be placed in all " the advantages poffefied by Anunderauze." Narraindeu accepted the terms, but with no intention of profecuting the expedition, any farther than the continuance of his own advantages.

Book XI. THE NORTHERN PROVINCES.

But the French troops, having expected to land at Mafulipatam, were not provided with equipments for long marches, which it required much time to prepare at Ganjam. There were in the detachment 43 English foldiers, who had been taken prifoners, and had entered into the French fervice, on condition of being only employed on this expedition. Thirty of thefe men together made. their efcape foon after they landed, and, through many hardfhips, found their way to Cuttack in Orixa in the middle of May, where they were relieved by the English refident, Mr. Grey, who fent them to Balafore, from whence they were conveyed to Calcutta. Seven more arrived at Cuttack in June, and afterwards came in feveral other deferters of other nations. It was the beginning of July, before Mr. Moracin was ready to march; by which time, he had expended all his ready money, and the fubfiftance of the detachment depended on the fale of fome trumpery commodities, and the precarious faith of Narraindeu; who, however, accompanied them with his troops. After three or four marches, they were diftreffed to extremity for provisions, which neither the army of Narraindeu, nor the inhabitants of his towns, would fupply without money. At Burrampoor, a town in the hills, fix miles before you arrive at Mogherry, the French foldiers entered the houfes to get victuals; a fray enfued, and blood was fhed on both fides. Narraindeu, with all his troops, immediately left them; and fummoned theaffiftance of the neighbouring chiefs. The French detachment, having no alternative, marched back towards Ganjam. Narraindeu, and his allies, met them in the way, and ftood what they called a battle; but the European arms, as ufual, eafily difperfed them; and the detachment took post in Munfurcottah, a town fituated eight miles from Ganjam, in a country abounding in flocks and grain, where they collected provisions, although furrounded by the enemy ; with whom they commenced a negociation, of which Narraindeu feemed to be as defirous as themfelves. To conclude it, one of the French officers, named Darveu, went to Narraindeu in his camp, but accompanied by 40 Europeans, and the fame number of Sepoys. On their return, they were attacked by the whole force they had vifited.

fited, and all the Europeans excepting three were killed : the Sepoys, not being fo much the object of this treachery, fuffered lefs. Mr. Moracin immediately returned to Ganjam, and encamped within and round the French factory, which is on the river-fide; and threw up works fufficient to protect his detachment from attacks through the avenues of the town, which Narraindeu, and his allies, furrounded. Of the two fhips which brought the detachment, the Harlem had been difpatched to Arracan for provisions, and the Briftol had been driven afhore in a hard gale of wind, before the troops marched to Burrampore. There was on the flocks on the river-fide a large fnow; and in the river, feveral fmaller veffels belonging to the factory, in which they intended to return to Pondicherry with the northern monfoon, after the English squadron should have quitted the coaft. In the mean time, they continued for many days, fkirmishing with the troops of Narraindeu, who at length offered to treat, which produced a ceffation of hoftilities, but no terms of reconciliation; for the demands of the French were in proportion to the injuries they had received ; and Narraindeu only meant to fave the expences of the field, with fecurity that the French troops would not make incurfions into his country, after his own fhould have returned to their quarters. This they promifed, and remained quiet.

In the mean time letters from Narraindeu to Colonel Clive arrived in Bengal, requifing him to fend a body of Europeans, which, joined by his own force, might eafily take or deftroy the whole of the French detachment with Moracin. The report of the deferters confirmed the feafibility of this project. But the dubious flate of the English affairs, and the decrease of their military force in Bengal fcarcely permitted any farther diminution of it : however, Colonel Clive, with his usual spirit of enterprize, determined to try theex periment. Sixty Europeans, half of them artillery men, were embarked on the Hardwicke, which had 100 Europeans as her crew. The spirited out of the river on the 30th of September, and on the 7th of October anchored in the road of Ganjam under Dutch colours. Two French officers immediately came on board to enquire news, and were detained prifoners. Captain Samfon then went afhore under der a paffport to Moracin, magnified the force he had brought, faid more was coming, and propofed that he fhould furrender his whole detachment to avoid unneceffary bloodfhed. But Moracin had obtained jufter intelligence. Samfon then landed meffengers which got to Narraindeu, who being by this time certified that the French detachment would foon go away of their own accord, had no farther motive or inclination to renew hoftilities againft them : but neverthelefs promifed Sampfon that he would foon appear with his army, and again inveft the town. A civil intercourfe of meffages continued between them until the 20th, when Sampfon being convinced that he intended to do nothing, failed away for Bengal.

In the beginning of November, Mr. Moracin embarked from Ganjam with 40 Europeans in a floop, and on the 11th landed at Cocanara, which lies clofe to the fea, on the right-hand of a finall river, about 20 miles N. E. of the eastern arm of the Godaveri. On this arm are fituated the English and French factories of Ingeram and Yanam. Of the prifoners taken at Mafulipatam, most of those who had been admitted to give their parole, had departed, and were refiding at Yanam, waiting for embarkations to proceed to Pondicherry : and, on this pretence, went to Moracin at Cocanara, and informed him fully of the flate of affairs in this part of the country. The diffricts from the Godaveri to Cocanara, were under the government of Juggapettyrauze, a near relation of Anunderauze. They had long been at enmity, and when Anunderauze invited the English, Jaggapetty joined the French, and with his troops accompanied them at the battle of Peddipore. After the victory Colonel Forde granted away his countries to Anunderauze, who hitherto, for want of the affiftance he expected from the English, had not ventured to employ his own force to get pofferfion. Jaggapetty neverthelefs expecting to be attacked by him, had kept the field on the western arm of the Godaveri, and from his camp corresponded with Mr. Andrews, the English chief at Mafulipatam, to revoke the ceffion made to his rival. His fort of Samel Cotah is only ten miles inland from Cocanara. Moracin fent agents thither and to his camp, to propofe an alliance, informing him of the force that was following from Ganjam, 2

Ganjam, and promifing more from Pondicherry. Jaggapetty neither concluded, nor rejected the propofal; but neither he nor his people at Samel Cotah gave even the common affiftances of the country to the troops with Moracin; who, for want of provisions, committed violences, were refifted, and most of them were either feized by the officers of the diffrict, or took fervice with them; which reduced Moracin to re-embark on the floop with five or fix, the remainder of his party; they failed on the 19th, and a few days after arrived at Pondicherry.

The troops remaining at Ganjam were 250 effimated Europeans, but of which half were Topaffes, and 100 Sepoys. They embarked under the command of the Chevalier Poete, on the fnow and two floops, rigged and manned with the ftores and crew of the Briftol : they arrived at Cocanara on the 19th of December ; and Poete fent afhore fifty Europeans, and the Sepoys, to try the inclinations of Jaggapettyrauze : immediately after they landed, a hard gale of wind drove the two floops afhore.

The troops fent from Bengal with Colonel Forde had received repeated orders from this Prefidency to return thither from Mafulipatam; but they were to march overland the whole way, in order to meet, and attack Moracin's detachment, who it was fuppofed would be, if not at Ganjam, fomewhere on the coaft. The rains would not permit the Bengal troops to take the field until the beginning of November; before which, Colonel Forde had failed in the middle of October from Mafulipatam for Bengal, where he arrived just in time to render one more very important fervice to his country. The command then devolved on Captain Fifcher, and varying refolutions detained the troops at Mafulipatam until the 5th of December. They were reduced from 500 Europeans, and 1500 Sepoys, to 300 of the one, and 800 of the other : the Europeans, by death and defertion, notwithstanding they had recruited 50 out of the prifoners; but the Sepoys, chiefly by the difinifion of 500. who had failed with Clive on the expedition to Bengal, and were permitted to return from Mafulipatam to their homes in the Carnatic.

natic. The waters of the Godaveri were not yet abated; near the fea are feven or eight channels between the two principal arms; and other fmaller rivers coming from the Colair lake, interfect the land between the weftern arm of the Godaveri and Mafulipatam; which render the march along the fea-fhore, although fhorter in diftance, much more tedious than the inland road. The troops therefore returned this way, which was the fame they had come, excepting, that they paffed the bed of the Colair farther to the weftward, where it becomes fooneft dry. At Rajahmundrum they heard, that the French detachment with the Chevalier Poete had landed at Cocanara.

Anunderauze, on the appearance of Moracin at Cocanara a month before, had no doubt that he would be immediately joined by Jaggapettyrauze, and fent off a body of troops from Vizianagarum to protect the diffricts of Rajahmundrum from their inroads. On the approach of this force, Jaggapettyrauze returned with his, from the Godaveri to his fort of Samelcotah, and both were near each other, when the French troops with Poete arrived on the coaft, and the English with Fischer at Rajahmundrum. The officers of Anunderauze begged affiftance from Fischer, who, advising them to keep the forces of Jaggapettyrauze at bay, proceeded with his command as fast as fatigue and impediments permitted, towards Cocanara. The diffrict for fome diffance round this place is covered with coconutgroves, for the shelter of the weavers ; and the French troops were lying in a village at the fkirt of the groves two miles from the Dutch fort, and the fea; and, for what reafon is not found, Poete had not yet landed any more to reinforce the first detachment. Jaggapettyrauze was encamped five miles on their left, againft whom the forces of Anunderauze were advancing, but in a different line of march, at the fame time that the English troops were approaching Cocanara, who, before they came in fight of the French detachment, faw the armies of the two Rajahs fkirmishing on their right; which Fifcher deeming a proof that none of the French had joined Jaggapettyrauze, fupposed them intent only on preferving their retreat to the fea, and fent forward Captain Yorke with the grenadiers 4 C VOL, II.

grenadiers and 500 Sepoys to prevent their embarkation. The French troops had gained no certain intelligence of the force with Fifcher, and waited on their ground until they could diffinguish the number of Yorke's division, who when near fent off the Sepoys to gain their flank, and haftened up in front with the grenadiers as fast as they could march. The French only remained to give one fire, and then ran as fast as they could through the grove, followed almost at the fame pace, to gain the Dutch factory, into which they were admitted. Yorke immediately furrounded the factory, which had very flight defences, and Fifcher coming up in the evening with the main body, invefted it more closely, and peremptorily demanded the French troops, whom, after a very formal proteft, the Dutch agents delivered the next day, which was the 28th of December. In the enfuing night Poete failed with the reft of his detachment 200 men, Europeans and Topaffes, all in the fnow. From Cocanara the English troops marched on to Vizagapatam, where they arrived on the 16th of January; and a few days after, all the Europeans embarked in two English ships proceeding to Bengal; but the Sepoys were left to purfue their route on fhore by Ganjam and through the province of Orixa. Thus nothing remained to fear in the company's pofferfions and acquisitions to the north of the Kriftna. We fhall now defcribe the progrefs of their officer Mahomed Iffoof in the countries towards Cape Comorin.

May

He arrived at Madura on the 4th of May, and had been abfent tenmonths. The force he left in the country, when called away, was 14 companies of Sepoys, fix in the fort of Madura, five in Palamcotah, and three at Tinivelly. Nothing more could be expected from either of thefe bodies, than to defend the ground in fight of the walls they garrifoned. Accordingly all the diffricts of both provinces from the foreft of Nattam to the gates of Travancore, lay fubject to their contributions, or exposed to their ravages. The declention of the Englifh affairs, which began with the furrender of Fort St. David, (on whichMahomedIffoof wasrecalled) and continued until the French were obliged to raife the fiege of Madrafs, kept Maphuze Khan in continual hopes, that he fhould be joined by a body of French troops, and eftablifhed:

blifhed with their affiftance in the government of those countries; and the administration of Pondicherry, by their letters and emissaries, encouraged him to think fo. Waiting this fortune, he remained with the Pulitaver, ftyling himfelf, and ftyled a fovereign ; but without any other means of fubfiftance than what the Pulitaver chofe to fupply, who, never regulating his money by words, fcarcely furnished him with common neceffaries. The return of Iffoof Khan bettered his condition ; as the Pulitaver was afraid he might at length liften to a reconciliation with the Nabob, and Maphuze Khan, always governed by the love of eafe, felt no refentment at the humility to which he had been reduced. He prefided, at least in appearance, in the councils of the eaftern Polygars; who refolved to meet Iffoof with their united force, and invited the western to the common defence; who having joined them against Palamcotah in the late diffreffes of the English affairs, expected no pardon, and took the field. The western league confisted of fix polygars: Catabominaigue, their former leader, was lately dead, and had been fucceeded by a relation, who took as usual the fame name, and bore, instead of the indifference of his predeceffor, an averfion to the English. Etiaporum was always the next to him in importance, and now in activity.

The force which accompanied Mahomed Iffoof from Conjeveram, confifted only of fix companies of Sepoys, and 60 horfe, but he had on his march requefted troops from Tondiman and the two Moravers, with whom he had always continued on good terms, and 3000 men, horfe, colleries and Sepoys, from the three polygars joined him on his arrival at Madura, where he neverthelefs immediately began to make farther levies, and by fhifting and garbling out of all that were with him, composed a body of 300 horse, and 700 Sepoys, who had feen fervice, which he fent forward to ravage the diffricts of Etiaporum, where they were to be joined by three of the companies of Sepoys from the garrifon of Palamcotal, which had reftored its loffes by new levies. This body of troops were to maintain their ground until the last extremity, in order to prevent the junction of the western with the troops of the eastern polygars, until Mahomed Iffoof himfelf could follow with the main 4 C 2 body

The Colleries of Nattam extend 40 miles, from the diffricts of the leffer Moraver to the eaftern mountains. Their foreft fkirts the Madura country to the north; and, where oppofite, is within twelve miles of the city. It was they who attacked the troops with Colonel Heron in 1755. They are much wilder than the colleries to the North of them in the territory of Tritchinopoly, and differ still more from those of Madura and Tinivelly, having neither forts nor military array. They acknowledge no confiderable chiefs, and live in fmall parcels, connected by choice or relation; fo that their difputes rarely exceed the private revenge of individuals. They regard all other people as booty; but robbery amongst themfelves as the greateft crime: and any one of them efcorting a ftranger is a fufficient protection against all the reft; but without this fafeguard, which is always paid for, the traveller rifques his life at every flep. Contemptible in the open field, where they rarely truft themfelves, they are much more dextrous than any of these races in the practices of ambuscade and thest. They had plundered the country up to the gates of Madura of all the cattle. robbed all the villages, and continued to waylay whatfoever parties were returning to the city with provisions from other quarters. As all of the troops with Mahomed Isloof were fit for hostilities against fuch an enemy, he refolved to employ them in attacking their haunts, whilft his levies were forming to better difcipline. He, however, attended the fervice himfelf, which appeared more like one of the general huntings peculiar to Afia, than a military expedition. Avenues were cut into the foreft, and the inhabitants fhot as they fled; but fome were referved to be releafed, or executed, on occafion. A month was, however, employed before he had completed this revenge, and reduced them to beg quarter, and pay cattle, their only money, mostly collected by theft; which, with others he procured, to the amount of 1000 beeves, and 2000 sheep, were sent to Tritchinopoly, from whence they were forwarded at different times by Captain Joseph Smith to the sea-coast, for the use of the squadron, and

and enabled them to keep the windward flation, without confuming their own flock of provisions.

On the fecond of July he began his march from Madura, with 600 horfe, 2000 Sepoys, and 2400 other foot belonging to Tondiman, and the Moravers, in all 6000 men. His artillery was one eighteen-pounder, and nine from fix and lower. He was fcant of powder, having none but what he made himfelf; for, fince the deftruction of the mill at Madrafs by Mr. Lally, the prefidency could not fupply their troops and garrifons in the Carnatic from their own produce; but borrowed from the fquadron, and received from Bombay. The mufkets of his Sepoys were old, infirm, of various nations, and not fufficient in number, and were fupplied by fowling-pieces, and any fuzees he could collect. He was likewife in want of flints, which are fubflituted in fome parts of India by agate; of which there is none in thefe countries. All thefe wants he reprefented to the prefidency, and efpecially requefted two eighteen-pounders, and two field-pieces of fix, with a full fupply of thot.

His first march was to Calancandan. He had taken this fort in 1756; but after his departure for the Carnatic, the Pulitaver and Vadagherri had extended their acquifitions thus far, and placed their guard in Calancandan. It was a mud fort, without cannon, and, after a flight refistance, fubmitted to his. From hence he proceeded to take up the large detachment he had fent forward against Etiaporum; who, by continually ravaging the diffricts of this polygar, kept his troops on their own ground, and deterred both him and Catabominaigue from marching across the country to join the Pulitaver: having fufficiently conftrained thefe chiefs, the detachment proceeded against Coilorepettah, which stands nearly midway in the freighteft road between Madura and Tinivelly, about 50 miles from each. This fort had likewife been flormed in June 1756 by Mahomed Iffoof, and carried with confiderable lofs. The polygar was then taken prifoner; whether reftored or fucceeded by another, we do not find; but the place was at this time in the hands of one who defended it as well; for 100 of the Sepoys were killed 4 killed and wounded in the attack, which lafted three days, and then the polygar made his efcape by night. The fort was immediately razed to the ground, after which the detachment joined the main body with Mahomed Iffoof, and the whole proceeding by the way of Gangadaram, arrived at Tinivelly in the middle of July. They were fcarcely arrived, when Maphuze Khan, whofe mind always wavered with every change of circumftances, wrote a letter to Mahomed Iffoof, offering to quit his allies, and proceed to the Carnatic; provided he was allowed a fuitable jaghire for his maintenance: He even afked a fafeguard to come to Tinivelly. Mahomed Iffoof, without authority, affured him that his requefts fhould be complied with; and recommended them to the Prefidency, by whom they were referred to the Nabob.

The midland country, for thirty miles to the north of the town of Tinivelly, is open and of great cultivation, and, lying between the eaftern and western Polygars, had been the favourite field of their depredations. The principal station from which the eastern made their inroads into these districts was the fort and wood of Wootamally, fituated 35 miles N. N. W. of Tinivelly. The Polygar, grown rich by eafy plunder, had many colleries, who were well armed ; and Mahomed Iffoof foon after his arrival at Tinivelly. marched against him with the greatest part of his force, and in a few days reduced his fort, in which he placed fome troops; and ftationed a guard of 50 horfe, and fome peons and colleries in a place called Shorandah, as an intermediate poft. He was no fooner returned to Tinivelly, than a multitude of colleries belonging to the Pulitaver and Vadgherri furprized the guard at Shorandah, and either killed or took all their horfes, with their riders; on which Mahomed Iffoof detached feven companies of Sepoys, recovered the post, and remained in it, in order to protect the adjacent country.

Equal confusion prevailed in the districts to the fouth of Tinivelly. The troops of the Maliaver, or King of Travancore, were making incurfions from their wall to feize the harvefts at the foot of the hills from Calacad to Cape Comorin. The variety of diftractions, tractions, which existed on every fide, could not be all opposed at the fame time, unlefs a greater army were embodied, than all the revenues of the two provinces could defray. But the king was the least inveterate enemy to the English; because the polygar of Vadagherri had provoked his refentment, by continually employing his colleries to make depredations in his country on the other fide of the mountains, through the pafs of Shencottah, which lies 15 miles to the fouth of Vadagherri. On this ground of common enmity, Mahomed Iffooff opened a negotiation with the king; who confented to a conference at the gates of his country near the promontory. They met in the end of August, and the interview passed with much po-litenefs and feeming cordiality. The king, at leaft publicly, demanded nothing, and agreed to defift from his inroads into the diffricts of Tinivelly, and to act with a confiderable force in conjunction with Mahomed Iffoof against Vadagherri, and the Pulitaver. On the 3d of September, Mahomed Iffoof still remaining at the gates of Travancore, was joined by 1000 of the king's Sepoys, armed with heavy mufkets made in his own country, and difciplined, although aukwardly, in the European manner; but they were well fupplied with flores and ammunition. He then returned to Tinivelly, and marching from thence with his whole force, in deference to the king, proceeded directly against Vadagherri, although 20 miles beyond Nellitangaville, the refidence of the Pulitaver: when arrived near Shencottah, he was joined by an army full as large as his own, confifting of 10,000 more of the King's troops of various kinds of infantry, who had marched through the pafs .-This was perhaps the greatest force that had been affembled. for fome centuries in this country. Vadagherri defended his woods for a day, in which about 100 men were killed and wounded on both fides ; but in the night abandoned his fort, and escaped away to the Pulitaver at Nellitangaville.

The arrival of fuch a gueft, who, for the first time, had been reduced to fuch diffres, frightened the Pulitaver; and fet his cunning to work to divert the florm from himself. The repulse of the English troops at the attack of the pettah at Vandiwash on the 30th of September,

September, was known in the country, and was believed, as the French had reprefented it, a fignal defeat. Maphuze Khan had received letters from Baffaulut Jung and the government of Pondicherry, which encouraged him to think, that they fhould very foon overpower the English in the Carnatic, when he might expect to be fubstituted to his brother Mahomed Ally, who was to be depofed from the Nabobship. This correspondence, and these expectations, the Pulitaver communicated to the king of Travancore, and offered, if he would quit the English, and join Maphuze Caun against them, to give him whatfoever districts in the Tinivelly country might lie convenient to his own. The King immediately exposed these documents to Mahomed Isloof, and standing on his importance, demanded the ceffion of Calacad and the adjacent diffricts, for which he had fo long contended against the Nabob's government. He faid, that more territory than he claimed had already been recovered with his affiftance; that what might be refufed by one, would be readily given to him by another; and that, if he fhould join the polygars, the Nabob's authority would never be established in the Tinivelly country. Mahomed Iffoof, whilft perplexed with this dilemma, was informed that the two eighteen-pounders, with 500 mufkets, which had been fent, according to his requeft, from Madrafs, were loft at fea; and that the two fix-pounders, although landed, were ftopped by the Dutch agent at Tutacorin. This mifchance gave greater weight to the king's arguments, and greater value to his affiftance ; for the force of Mahomed Iffoof alone was not fufficient to reduce the Pulitaver, whom all the beft colleries in the country were flocking to defend. He therefore furrendered the diffricts which the king demanded; and the Prefidency approved the ceffion : but the Nabob fufpected that it had been promifed by Iffoof at his first interview with the king, in order to fecure his future affiftance to his own ambitious views.

November.

As foon as this agreement was fettled, the Travancores moved again in conjunction with his troops. On the 6th of November, they invefted the wood and fort of Eafaltaver, which was one of the the dependencies of the Pulitaver. The Colleries defended the wood three days, and then abandoned both ; and retired to Nellitangaville. After this fuccefs, the want of ammunition obliged Mahomed Iffoof to remain until he received fupplies from Madura, Palamcotah, and Anjengo. The army of Travancore, to prevent difgusts from difparity of customs, encamped separately, but in fight of Mahomed Iffoof's; and on the 20th of November, a body of 5 or 6000 Colleries attacked the camp of the Travancores in open day. Mahomed Iffoof, on the first alarm, fent his horfe, and followed with his Sepoys and other foot; but the colleries retreated before they came up, and their nimblenefs, with the ruggednefs of the country, rendered the purfuit of little avail. They had killed and wounded 100 of the Travancores, before they went off. A day or two after this skirmish, Mahomed Isloof received three howitzes, with fome ftores, and a fupply of ammunition from Anjengo; and the two fix-pounders with their shot likewise came up from Tutacorin; he then moved with his allies, and on the 4th of December fet down before Washinelore, another fort dependant on the Pulitaver, much ftronger than any he had, excepting Nellitangaville, from which it is fituated twenty miles to the N. w. and twelve in the fame direction from Outamaly.

This fort flood within three miles from the great range of mountains, at the foot of which ran a thick wood, extending two miles into the plain, and within 1300 yards of the west and fouth fides of the fort, but turned to a much greater distance on the north, and to the east the plain was open, and everywhere covered with profuse cultivation. A very extensive pettah, the refidence of fome thousand inhabitants, commenced within forty yards, and extended 1200 to the N.E. of the walls : a thick thorn hedge, with barriers, furrounded both the pettah and the fort. The extent of the fort was 650 by 300 yards: it was of mud, but almost as hard as brick ; it had four large fquare towers, one at each angle, and feveral finaller, which were round, between. Every tower was a feparate redoubt, enclofed by a parapet, to command within as well as without the fort : the access to the tower was a fteep rampart, only two feet broad, the en-VOL. II. trance a narrow wicket in the parapet; the curtain between the towers had no parapet, and was only a rampart floping on both fides from a base of 15 feet to 3 a top; but the flope from within was much lefs fharp than from without, fo that if affaulted, the defenders might eafily run up to the top. The parapets of the towers have circular holes for the ufe of fmall arms, but no openings prepared for cannon, of which there was not a fingle piece in the fort. This defcription we believe fuits all the forts in the Madura and Tinivelly countries, excepting Palamcotah, and Madura itfelf, which are built of stone, and with the fame defences as the forts in the Carnatic. The Colleries on this fide of the Tinivelly country, poffiels nothing of the ugliness or deformity which generally characterize the inhabitants of the hills and wilds of India. They are tall, well-made, and well-featured. Their arms are lances and pikes, bows and arrows, rockets, and matchlocks, but whether with or without other weapons, every man conftantly wears a fword and fhield. In battle, the different arms move in diffinct bodies; but the lancemen are rated the most eminent, and lead all attacks. This weapon is 18 feet long; they tie under the point a tuft of fcarlet horfe-hair, and when they attack horfe, add a fmall bell. Without previous exercife, they affemble in a deep column, preffing close together, and advance at a long steady step, in some degree of time, their lances inclining forward, but aloft, of which the elafticity and vibration, with the jingle, dazzle and fcare the cavalry; and their approach is fcarcely lefs formidable to infantry not disciplined with fire-arms. The importance of Washinelore, and the great force which was come against it, brought fome thousands of Colleries to its relief; but all, excepting 8 or 900 chofen men, allotted to defend the walls, kept in the woods : from whence every day and night parties fallied, and alarmed or attacked one or other, and fometimes both the camps ; and greater bodies on three different days made general attacks on the batteries, of which these continued interruptions retarded the construction, infomuch that they were not finished until the 26th, 20 days after the arrival of the armies ; but the howitzes had commenced before. The only efficacious efficacious gun was the 18 pounder, which Mahomed Iffoof had brought from Madura, for the reft were only 6 pounders and lower; but from exceffive firing, the 18 pounder burft the day after it was mounted; and by this time, all the ammunition, as well of the batteries as troops, excepting the quantity which prudence required to be referved for defence, was expended. However, part of the parapet of the tower fired upon, was beaten down, and Mahomed Iffoof refolved to florm the next day. Many troops of both armies waited on the affault; and as foon as it began, the Pulitaver, with 3000 chofen colleries, who had marched in the night from Nellitangaville, iffued from the wood and fell upon the camp of Mahomed Iffoof, drove away the troops that guarded it, and began to commit every kind of deftruction. Mahomed Iffoof inftantly fent back a large body to repulse them, and continued the affault; but the garrifon within received double animation from the Pulitaver's fuccefs, which was announced to them by the ufual war-cry and the founding of their conchs. All the other colleries collected in the woods appeared likewife, as if on the fame notice, and in different bands attacked the troops at the batteries, and at the foot of the breach; and although continually repulfed, continually rallied, and with the refolution of the garrifon faved the fort until the evening, and then waited in the woods to interrupt the renewal of the affault in the night; but fo much of the referved ammunition had been expended in the day, that Mahomed Iffoof deemed it dangerous to remain any longer before the fort, and drew off his artillery. Two hundred of his troops and of the Travancores were killed, but more of the enemy. The next day he moved to a diftance, and difinified the Travancores, who proceeded through the pais of Shencotty to their own country, and Mahomed Iffoof returned with his own troops, and those lent him by Tondiman and the Moravers, to the town of Tinivelly.

HE two armies in the Carnatic continued, during the first days of January, in their encampments near Arcot, equally cautious of rifquing any attempt of confequence, because both were waiting. the refult of their negotiations to bring Innis Khan with his Morattoes to their affiftance. Both offered 60,000 rupees; but, whilft the English were proposing conditional bills, the French fent ready money, which determined his preference. He arrived on the 8th inthe French camp, with 3000 mounted, and a greater number of footplunderers, who are called Pandarums, and always troop with the horfe, as we have defcribed when Bajinrow joined Clive in the fight. near Arni. The next day, the French army filed off from their encampment which extended from the fuburbs of Arcot along the fouth fide of the Paliar, and took the road towards Trivatore; and, as they were going off, Mr. Lally, with a large body of Morattoes, fome of the European horfe, and two field-pieces, croffed the river, and advanced to Trimuddi, an out-poft, three miles in front of the English camp. at Chinafimundrum. A cannonade enfued, but more guns and troops coming up, Mr. Lally retired, and recroffed the river : during which, a body of 200 Morattoes, with whom Colonel Coote had treated, came over from the enemy's, and joined his camp. In the evening, Colonel Coote proceeded across the river, with an efcort of horfe, and reconnoitred the enemy's line of march, and fufpecting, that they might intend against Vandivash, took his measures accordingly. Orders were difpatched to Captain Sherlock, who commanded !

manded in the fort, to defend it to extremity, and to the two companies of Sepoys at Trivatore, to repair thither immediately. The baggage of the army was fent off that night to Covrepauk; and in the morning the whole army moved from Chinafimundrum, where they had lain eighteen days, and in the evening pitched anew on the bank of the Paliar, five miles lower down than the ground which the French had occupied on the other fide. A ftrong poft of horfe and foot was advanced at fome diftance towards Arcot, and another on the left, with orders to keep up continual patroles. The next day paffed without any alarm from the enemy, or intelligence of confequence concerning them, who neverthelefs were not idle.

Mr. Lally had formed another project befides that which Colonel Coote fufpected; and, to accomplish it, had not fuffered his army to advance with half the expedition they might. They were on the rith, the third day after they quitted their encampment, no farther than Papantanguel, fix miles on this fide of Trivatore, and halted there the greatest part of the day. Towards the evening, all were under arms, and the ftores and baggage loaded; but, inftead of marching on, he difplayed them on the plain, facing to the Paliar, and then exercised them as if for practice, in large evolutions, which were calculated to fling the whole line to the eaftward, with all the horfe, Morattoes, as well as Europeans, on the right, of whom the outermost, when the exercise ended, were fix miles from Papantanguel. Having thus whiled away the time until the close of the evening, he continued all on the ground they ftood until it was dark; and then feparated the army into two divisions. The horfe, excepting fome which rejoined the fecond, filed off, followed by 300 Sepoys, who had formed next to them, and marched on as faft as they could, keeping together; the reft of the army, which confifted of all the European infantry, with the baggage and artillery, were ordered to follow, but without frain. Mr. Lally led the first division himself. After a march of 15 miles, in which they had croffed the Paliar, they arrived at eight in the morning at Conjeveram; expecting to find in the town the magazines of rice which fupplied the English army ; but they had no fuch flore, living living on the purchase of the day ; nor had the inhabitants more than the common provision of their houses; but in the pagoda was the hofpital, and a flock of military flores, under the guard of two companies of Sepoys, commanded by Lieutenant Chilfholm, of which the capture would have been diffreffing; but Mr. Lally having brought no cannon made no attempt on the pagoda, and employed his troops in collecting plunder, and fetting fire to the houses of the town; during which, the Sepoys, and all the fick in the pagoda, who could move, came out, and being well acquainted with the ftreets and covers, continually attacked their finaller parties and ftragglers, and whenever likely to be over-powered, difappeared. In the evening the enemy retreated, driving off 2000 bullocks, the most valuable part of their booty, loaded with the trumpery they had collected. By this time the other division of the army had arrived at Jangolam, a village on the bank of the Paliar, three miles from Conjeveram, from whence both united, immediately proceeded, and the next day reached Trivatore.

The neareft ground of the French line, whilft marching on this exploit, was eight miles from the advanced poft of the Englith camp, whofe black horfe, awed by the number of the Morattoes, were afraid to venture, and could not be trufted fo far abroad; and the European horfe, being only one hundred, were not even fufficient for the neceffary patroles of the camp; fo that the firft intelligence of the enemy's march was from Lieutenant Chifholm at Conjeveram, fent as foon as they appeared there. It arrived in the afternoon; Colonel Coote immediately fet off with the cavalry, and ordered the whole army to follow, which was in march before the fun fet, and before it rofe at Conjeveram, where Colonel Coote, with the cavalry, had arrived at one in the morning. It was now a month, that Mr. Dury had accounter field in conjunction with Mr. Lally; and the intercourfe had only encreafed the averfion. The late errors of Mr. Lally's operations, which had loft Vandivafh and Carangoly, without gaining any thing equivalent by the expedition to Seringham, had lowered his military character throughout the army; and even his own regiment as well as Lorrain, although the King's troops, began to acknowledge the fuperior 573 1760. superior talents of Mr. Buffy to conduct the war: the battalion of India always thought fo. Mr. Lally imputed this rifing predilection in the officers to the influence of Mr. Buffy's money, and amongst the foldiers to the intrigues of Father St. Eftevan, a crazy, bufy Jefuit, who officiated in the camp, and confessed the regiment of Lorrain : his antipathy no longer liftened to any reftraints. As foon as the army returned to Trivatore, Mr. Buffy afked his leave to retire to Pondicherry for the recovery of a painful diforder, which incapacitated him for fatigue : but Mr. Lally forbid him in the name of the king to quit the field. He obeyed, and gave his best opinion concerning the future operations of the campaign. " The English, he faid, would not fee " Vandivash taken, without rifquing a battle to fave it, in which the " French army would be deprived of all the force employed in the " fiege; and from the necessity of covering it, not mafter of the choice " of advantages in the action : whereas, if the whole of the regular "troops kept together on the banks of the Paliar, and detached " the whole body of Morattoes to lay wafte the English districts, " their army would foon be reduced to the necessity, either of " giving battle at difadvantage, or of feeking its fubfiftence under " the walls of Madrafs." No advice could be more judicious ; for the first division of the Morattoes, although only 1000, had ventured to carry their ravages as far as Pondamalee and Vendalore, and by cutting off every kind of provision on every fide, had reduced the English camp to as great want, as they brought abundance to the French, where they fold the beeves they had plundered at feven for a rupee, and rice at half its value in any other part of the country; and at this very time the Prefidency of Madrafs, anxious for the lofs of their fureft revenues, repented that they had not bought the Morattoes on their own terms, and were advising Colonel Coote to fall back nearer to the adjacencies of the town. But Mr. Lally fuspected Mr. Buffy's advice, as defigned to prevent or disparage the activity of his own operations; and on the 14th marched away from Trivatore, with a detachment of 500 Europeans, half the European cavalry, 500 Morattoes, 1000 Sepoys, and four field-pieces, leaving Mr. Buffy with the main body at Trivatore, as the most central central fituation, at hand to join his own division, if the English army should march after it; or ready to oppose and interrupt them, if they should go against Arcot, in order to divert the siege of Vandivash.

Book XII.

On the 14th in the evening, Colonel Coote received intelligence of Mr. Lally's arrival at Vandivafh, and the next day marched with his whole force from Conjeveram, croffing the Paliar to the s. E. inftead of following the enemy by the longer, but better road of Trivatore. On the 17th, they arrived, and encamped near Outramalore. This fituation, lying half-way in the road between Vandivafh and Chinglapett, fecured the communication with this place, and from hence with Madrafs : it likewife had Carangoly in its rear to the left. The fort at Outramalore having long been neglected, was open in feveral parts from top to bottom of the wall; but was a much more defenfible repofitory for the flores and baggage of the army, than any poft in the open plain.

Captain Sherlocke kept 30 Europeans and 300 Sepoys in the fouth pettah of Vandivash, which Mr. Lally attacked at three in the morning with all his infantry, in two divisions : the one, in which the Europeans were marines from the fquadron, was allotted to the western rampart, and only intended to make a diversion during the real attack on the oppofite ; where the Europeans were of Lally's regiment, and led by himfelf. Both divisions were difcovered and fired upon before they gained the foot of the wall ; and the marines, unufed to fuch fervices, broke, and ran round to Mr. Lally's division, who, fuppofing them enemies, fired upon them until the miftake was difcovered. Nothing more was attempted until eight o'clock the next morning, when all the infantry in one column, with two field-pieces at their head, advanced against the fouth-fide of the pettah ; but the fire to which they were exposed, brought the front of the column to a halt without orders. Mr. Lally rode up, difmounted, and calling for volunteers, ran to the ditch, and mounted the wall, himfelf the first. The whole column immediately poured after him; and the troops in the pettah, having no orders to defend it to extremity, escaped along the streets, and regained the fort without any lofs in the retreat ; in the whole defence only four or five had been killed ; but the enemy loft twelve Europeans, befides Se-4 E poys, VOL. poys, and more wounded of both. They immediately entrenched the openings of the ftreets facing the fort, and began to raife a battery in the N.E. angle of the pettah, against the fame tower which Colonel Coote had breached, and nearly on the fame ground.

A thouland of the Morattoes had been ordered to observe the motions of the English army; but they followed nothing but plunder, and continued spreading themselves to the north of the Paliar; and as Mr. Lally never rewarded sufficiently to encourage daring spies, the first news he received of the approach of the English army, was on the 17th at fun-rife, by a letter from Mr. Buffy at Trivatore, by which time they were arrived at Outramalore. His aversion to the authority, made him unwilling to accept the information as authentic; and at first he only ordered part of the army to advance from Trivatore : but, on farther intelligence, left Mr. Buffy to act according to his difference; who at five in the afternoon marched with the whole, and arrived at Vandivash before midnight.

The English army arrived at Outramalore without provisions, and too much fatigued to march on, and reach Vandivash, before Mr. Buffy's division had joined Mr. Lally's there, which, otherwife, on their appearance, must either have retreated, or would have stood their ground with great inferiority and difadvantage. The horfe, as foon as the foot were encamped, went abroad to rummage the villages. for provisions, and the next day the troop of huffars fell in with 50 Morattoes, of whom they killed one, and took twelve with their horfes. Still the want of grain continued in the camp, and it was found that the renter, although he depended on Madrafs, had fold his ftore to fome agents, probably employed by the French, at Sadrafs; on which he was feized, and confined without eating, until the army was fupplied ; and his people in a few hours brought enough for the immediate want, and promifed more. The fcarcity had, however, been no obftacle to the operations of the army; for Colonel Coote had refolved not to advance upon the enemy, until they were ready to affault Vandivash, when he should have his choice of attacking either the troops employed against the fort, or the army which covered them in the plain. This Mr. Buffy forefaw, and again advifed Mr.

Their battery did not open until the 20th ; having waited for the cannon, which were brought 70 miles from the ramparts of Valdore, on carriages fent from Pondicherry. They were two eighteen, and two of twenty-four. By the night of the 20th the wall of the fauffebray was opened. Colonel Coote, on this intelligence, marched the next day with all the cavalry to reconnoitre the enemy's fituation and the flate of the fiege, and receiving, when near, a meffage from Sherlocke, that they had breached the main rampart, went back, and halted at Tirimbourg, a village half way, to which he ordered the main body of the army to advance without delay from Outramalore, but to fend their heavy baggage, for better fecurity, to Carangoly. They arrived at Tirimbourg in the night; at fun-rife, Colonel Coote taking with him 1000 of the black horfe, and the two troops of European, with two companies of Sepoys, advanced in front of the main body of the army, which he ordered to follow, but without preffing their march.

The diftance from Tirimbourg to Vandivafh is feven miles; the road leads from the N.E. to the s.w. The mountain of Vandivafh lies in the fame direction, extending more than a league in length. The fort ftands two miles to the s. of the mountain, but nearer to the weftern than the eaftern end. The French army was encamped directly opposite to the eaftern end of the mountain, at the diftance of three miles, and at two to the weft of the fort. The camp was in two lines feparated by paddy fields; a great tank covered the left flank of both lines. At 300 yards in front of this tank, but a little on its left, was another, and farther on, likewife on the left of this, another, neither more than 200 yards in circumference, and both dry; and the bank which furrounded the foremost tank had been converted into a retrenchment, in which were mounted fome pieces of cannon, which commanded the plain in front, and flanked in its whole length the efplanade in front of the camp.

WAR OF COROMANDEL.

All the Morattoes were returned, and lying with their plunder under the foot of the mountain, extending along it towards the N.E. end. Their fcouts brought intelligence of the approach of Colonel Coote's division, on which all mounted, as did the European cavalry in the French camp, and the whole fpread in different bodies acrofs the plain to the east of the mountain. Colonel Coote, with 200 of the black cavalry, followed by the two companies of Sepoys, was advancing a mile in front of the rest of the cavalry, which composed the division he was leading; and the Morattoes fent forward interfperfed them in platoons between the troops of horfe. The advanced body of the Morattoes neverthelefs pufhed on, but were ftopped by the fire of the Sepoys, before they came to the ufe of the fword. Neverthelefs, they recovered after their wheel, ftood till within reach of the Sepoys again, then turned again, and in this manner fell back to their main body, which with the French cavalry had gathered, and were drawn up, extending in a line to the eaft, from the end of the mountain; the French on the right of the Morattoes.

200 of their horfe, on which he halted, called up the Sepoys, and

Colonel Coote, whilft halting for the Sepoys, had fent off a meffenger, ordering up the body of cavalry, which were a mile behind, and the first five companies of Sepoys with two of the field-pieces from the head of the line of infantry, to come on likewife as fast as they could march : the cavalry foon joined him, but more time was requifite for the Sepoys and guns, as the line was three miles off. During which, Colonel Coote, by continual halts, advanced very flowly; and the enemy's cavalry continued on the ground they had chofen. At eight o'clock the detachment of Sepoys, with the guns, came up, when the division with Coote were at an afcent, which intercepted them from the fight of the enemy, who, although they had perceived the cloud of march, had not diffinguished the two guns which accompanied the Sepoys, who, joined by the other two companies, formed in a line in the rear of the cavalry, with the guns in the center; the two troops of European horfe were in the center of the cavalry in the first line. In this order the two lines advanced againft against the enemy, who were still waiting for them; but when at the diftance of 200 yards, the cavalry opened from the centre, and brought themfelves round, divided on each wing of the Sepoys, in the fecond line; and the inftant the ground was clear, the two field-pieces began quick firing on the enemy's line of cavalry, which were fetting off to take advantage of the evolution making by the English. The fieldpieces were, one a twelve, the other a fix-pounder, both of brafs; and Captain Robert Barker, although he commanded the whole of the . Company's artillery, had come up with, and now ferved them himfelf: the effect anfwered the good-will and dexterity; the fire was directed amongst the Morattoes; and every shot was feen to overfet men and horfes, which ftopped their career, but not before they were within reach of the mufketry of the Sepoys ; and fome of them on the wings had even rode in amongst the outward of the English cavalry during their evolution ; but the encreafing havock which fell amongft them toon after, put the whole body to flight, and they galloped away to their camp, leaving the French cavalry alone, who were advancing in regular order on their right, against whom the field-pieces were then directed, which they flood for fome time, feeming to expect the Morattoes would rally ; but feeing them entirely gone off, turned and went off themfelves, but still in order, and with much composure.

Colonel Coote advanced with his division to the ground they had quitted, and feeing the plain clear, quite up to the French camp, fent orders to his line of infantry to halt, wherefoever the order should meet them, until he returned to them himfelf. There were fome gardens and other enclosures half a mile to the right of the ground which the French cavalry had occupied, whilft drawn up in a line with the Morattoes extending from the end of the mountain. The enclosures were good shelter on necessity, and the ground beyond them excellent for the display and action of the whole army, which Colonel Coote having reconnoitred, ordered his division to file off to the left, and to form on this ground, in the fame order as before ; the cavalry in a line in front, the Sepoys in another behind them. 579 1760. As foon as this difposition was executed, he rode back to the line of infantry, which were halting, drawn up in two lines according to the order of battle he had iffued to the principal officers in the preceding night. He fignified his intention of leading the army on to a general action, which was received with acclamations, that left no doubt of the ardour of the troops to engage the enemy they had fo long been feeking. The plain dry, hard, and even, admitted of their marching on in the fame order they were drawn up, without filing off in columns, fo that they were foon upon the ground where the advanced division were halting, when the cavalry wheeled from the right and left, and formed the third line of the main battle, and the five companies of Sepoys took their place again on the right of the firft line : but the two field-pieces, ftill attended by Captain Barker with the two detached companies of Sepoys, kept apart at fome diffance in front, but to the left of the firft line.

In this array the army flood in full view of the French camp, in which no motions were perceived; but no firing was heard againft the fort of Vandivafh. Colonel Coote having waited half an hour to fee the effect of his appearance, rode forward with fome officers to reconnoitre the enemy's camp, who fuffered them to approach near, without cannonading or fending out a party of cavalry to interrupt them.

The day began to wear, and Colonel Coote, as foon as he returned to the troops, ordered the whole to file off to the right; the infantry marched in two lines at the fame parallels they had drawn up; the baggage formed a third column on the right, and the cavalry followed in the rear of all the three. They proceeded towards the fouth fide of the mountain, but inclining a little towards the French camp. As foon as the first files of the infantry came to the flony ground which extends from the foot of the mountain, on which the enemy's cavalry could not act, the whole halted, and the two lines of infantry facing to the right, prefented themfelves again in order of battle, opposite to the French camp, at the diffance of a mile and a half, but outfiretching it on the right; the baggage falling back at the fame time, gave place to the cavalry to refume their former flation as the third line. 7

BATTLE OF VANDIVASH.

The Morattoes were fpread at the foot of the mountain to protect their own camp, and none of them ventured within reach of the two guns, which during the march had kept on the left of the first line; but some of the French cavalry came out to reconnoitre, and were driven back by their fire. The army halted some time in this fituation, in expectation that the defiance would bring the French out of their camp; but they still remained quiet; which obliged Colonel Coote to profecute the rest of the operations he had meditated.

The ground for fome diftance from the foot of the mountain, is, as under all others in the Carnatic, encumbered with ftones and fragments of rock. From this rugged ground up to the fort. the plain was occupied by rice fields. The English army coasting the mountain until opposite to the fort, and then making a conversion of their lines to the right, would immediately be formed in the ftrongeft of fituations; their right protected by the fire of the fort; their left by the impaffable ground under the mountain, and with the certainty of throwing any number of troops, without opposition, into the fort; who, fallying with the garrifon to the other fide, might eafily drive the enemy from their batteries in the pettah; from whence the whole of the English army might likewife advance against the French camp, with the choice of attacking it either on the flank, or in the rear, where the main defences, which had been prepared in the front of their encampment, or arofe from the ufual difpositions on this fide, would become intirely ufelefs.

The English army had no fooner began their march along the foot of the mountain, than Mr. Lally perceived the intention, with all the confequences of this able operation. The camp immediately beat to arms, and foon after the troops were feen iffuing to occupy the ground in front of its line, where the field of battle had been previously marked out.

The French cavalry, 300 riders, all Europeans, formed on the right; next to them were the regiment of Lorrain, 400 firelocks:

in the centre, the battalion of India, 700; next to them Lally's, 400, whofe left were under the retrenched tank, in which were posted the marines or troops from the squadron, with Poete's from Ganjam, in all 300, with four field-pieces. Between the retrenchment and Lally's were three, the fame number between Lally's and India, India and Lorrain, Lorrain and the cavalry; in all 16 pieces. Four hundred of the Sepoys of Hyder Jung, whom Mr. Buffy had brought from Cudapah, were posted at the tank in the rear of the retrenched tank where the marines were, whom they were to fupport on occafion : 900 Sepoys were ranged behind a ridge which ran along the front of the camp; and at each extremity of this ridge was a retrenchment guarded by 50 Europeans, which covered the entrances into the camp. The whole force drawn out, infantry, cavalry, and artillery, was 2250 Europeans, and 1300 Sepoys: 150 Europeans and 200 Sepoys continued at the batteries against Vandivash; but none of the Morattoes, although 3000, left the ground and protection of their own camp to affift their allies in this decifive hour.

The fight of the French army iffuing into the open plain gave Colonel Coote all he intended by the preceding operations of the day. He inftantly halted his lines, which had advanced fome way along the foot of the mountain. Facing as foon as they halted, the two firft lines were in order of battle, oppofite but obliquely to the enemy. The baggage were fent back under the effort of two companies of Sepoys, to a village in the rear, and the cavalry as before took their place in the third line.

The English army confisted of 1900 Europeans, of whom 80 were cavalry, 2100 Sepoys, 1250 black horfe, and 26 field-pieces. In the first line were Coote's regiment on the right, the Company's two battalions in the centre, Draper's on the left; but all without their grenadiers; and 1800 Sepoys were equally divided on the right and left of the Europeans in this line; in the intervals of which were 10 pieces of cannon, three on each fide of the Company's battalions, and two between Coote's and Draper's and the Sepoys. In the fecond line were all the grenadiers of the army, 300, with a fieldpiece piece next, and beyond 200 Sepoys on each of their flanks : the cavalry formed the third line; the 80 Europeans, as before, in the center of the black horfe; the two field-pieces with the two companies of Sepoys of the morning still continued apart, advanced as before a little on the left of the first line.

As the English army were marching up, and before they were within cannon fhot, Mr. Lally, putting himfelf at the head of the European cavalry on the right, fet off with them, and taking a large fweep on the plain, came down, intending to fall upon the horfe of the English army, which made their third line. The black horfe, who were nine-tenths of this body, pretended to wheel, in order to meet the enemy's, but purpofely confufed themfelves fo much, that fome went off immediately, which gave a pretext to the reft to follow them, and the 80 Europeans were left alone, who faced and drew up properly to receive the charge, relying on better affiftance. As foon as the intention of Mr. Lally was understood, the division of Sepoys on the left of the first line were ordered to fall back in an angle from the front, ready to take the enemy's cavalry in flank as they were approaching, but performed the evolution with fo little firmnefs, that little hope was entertained of any execution from their fire; but Captain Barker with the 2 guns of the feparate detachment, had watched, and directing his own by the movement of the enemy, was within point blank of them just before they were opposite and riding in on the flank and rear of the horfe, where only the European were ready to oppofe them, for all the black were gone. In lefs than a minute the quick firing of the two guns brought down ten or 15 men or horfes. which, as ufual, threw the next to them, and they the whole, into confusion ; and the horses growing every moment wilder, all turned and went off on the full gallop, leaving Mr. Lally, as he afferts. fingly alone. If fo, he could not have flaid long where he was, for the European horfe, on feeing the enemy's check, were advancing ; and many of the black, encouraged by the fecurity, were returning, and the whole foon after fet off after the enemy, whom they purfued in a long courfe quite to the rear of their camp. 4 F

The English army halted ten minutes in attention to this attack, during which the French line cannonaded, but beyond the proper distance even for ball, and nevertheless often fired grape, and neither with any effect. The English did not begin to answer until nearer, and then perceiving their own fire much better directed, halted in order to preferve this advantage, as long as the enemy permitted it to continue, by not advancing from the front of their camp. Mr. Lally retiring from the English cavalry, and deferted by his own, rejoined his line of infantry, which he found fuffering, and with much impatience, from the English cannonade : his own impetuofity concurred with their eagernets to be led to immediate decifion. and he gave the order to advance. The English line was not directly opposite to the front of the French, but flanting outwards from their left, which required the French troops on this fide to advance much lefs than those of their right, who had more ground to wheel, in order to bring the whole line parallel to that of the English.

Colonel Coote feeing the enemy coming on gave the final orders to his own. None but the Europeans of the first and fecond lines were to advance any farther. The Sepoys on the wings of both, and the cavalry in the third line, were to continue where they were left, and to take no fhare in the battle, until they should hereafter receive orders how to act.

The enemy began the fire of mulketry at one o'clock, but Colonel Coote intended to refrain until nearer; neverthelets the company of Coffrees, which was inferted in one of the Company's battalions, gave their fire without the order of their officers, and it was with difficulty that the irregularity was prevented from extending. Colonel Coote was at this time paffing from the right to the left to join his own regiment, and received two or three flot in his cloaths from the fire of the Coffrees. As foon as he arrived at his regiment they began, and the fire became general through the whole line.

Coote's had only fired twice, when Lorrain formed in a column twelve in front: the operation is fimple and was expeditious. Colonel Coote made no change in the difposition of his regiment, but but ordered the whole to preferve their next fire; which Lorrain coming on almoft at a run, received at the diftance of 50 yards in their front and on both their flanks; it fell heavy, and brought down many, but did not ftop the column. In an inftant the two regiments were mingled at the pufh of bayonet; those of Coote's opposite the front of the column were immediately born down, but the reft, far the greatest part, fell on the flanks, when every man fought only for himfelf, and in a minute the ground was fpread with dead and wounded, and Lorrain having juft before fuffered from the referved fire of Coote's, broke, and ran in diforder to regain the camp. Colonel Coote ordered his regiment to be reftored to order before they purfued, and rode himfelf to fee the flate of the reft of the line.

As he was paffing on, a fhot from one of the guns with Draper's regiment, ftruck a tumbril in the retrenched tank on the left of Lally's, where the marines were posted, and the explosion blew up So men, many of whom, with the chevalier Poete, were killed dead, and most of the others mortally hurt. All who were near, and had efcaped the danger, fled in the first impulse of terror out of the retrenchment, and ran to gain the camp by the rear of Lally's, and were joined in the way by the 400 Sepoys at the tank behind, who, although they had fuffered nothing, likewife abandoned their poft. Colonel Coote on the explosion, sent orders by his aid de camp Captain Izer, to Major Brereton, to advance with the whole of Draper's regiment, and take pofferfion of the retrenched tank before the enemy recovered the confusion which he judged the explosion must have caused; as in this fituation they would command, under cover, the flank of Lally's regiment. The ground on which Draper's was ftanding oppofite to Lally's when the order came, obliged them, in order to prevent Lally's from enfilading, or flanking them as coming down, to file off by the right. Mr. Buffy, who commanded on this wing, had before endeavoured to rally the fugitives, of whom he had recovered 50 or 60, and adding to them two platoons of Lally's, led and posted them in the tank, and then returned to fupport them with the regiment. But Brereton's files kept wheeling at a diffance, and moving at the quickeft pace, fuffered little from their fire, and coming upon the left of the retrenchment, affaulted it impetuoufly, and carried it after receiving one fire of much execution from the troops within, under which Major Brereton fell mortally wounded, and when fallen refufed the affiftance of the men next him, but bid them follow their victory. The first of Draper's who got into the retrenchment fired down from the parapet upon the guns on the left of Lally's, and drove the gunners from them; whilft the reft, being many more than required to maintain the post, formed, and shouldered under it, extending on the plain to the left to prevent the regiment of Lally, if attempting to recover the post, from embracing it on this fide. Mr. Buffy wheeled the regiment of Lally, and fent off platoons from its left, to regain the retrenchment, whilft the reft were oppofed to the division of Draper's on the plain. But the platoons acted faintly, only fkirmishing with their fire instead of coming to the close affault. The action likewife continued only with mufketry, but warmly, between the two divisions on the plain, until the two fieldpieces, attached to the right of Draper's, which they had left behind when marching to attack the retrenchment, were brought to bear on the flank of Lally's, who had none to oppofe them; on which their line began to waver, and many were going off. Mr. Buffy, as the only chance of reftoring this part of the battle, put himfelf at their head, intending to lead them to the pufh of bayonet, but had only advanced a little way when his horfe was ftruck with a ball in the head, and floundering at every flep afterwards. he difmounted; during which the fire from Draper's had continued. of which two or three balls paffed through his cloaths, and when he alighted only 20 of Lally's had kept near him, the reft had fhrunk. Two platoons fet off on the full run from Draper's to furround them : the officer demanded and received Mr. Buffy's fword, and fent him with a guard into the rear; he was conducted to Major Monfon, who had wheeled three companies of the grenadiers of the fecond line, and was halting with them and their field-piece at fome diftance, ready if neceffary to fupport the event of Draper's. Mr. Buffy asked who the troops he faw were; and was answered 200 grenadiers, the best men in 4 the

the army, who had not fired a fhot; he classed his hands in furprize and admiration, and faid not a word.

During the conflict on this fide the two centers, which were composed of the troops of the two East India Companies, had kept up a hot, but diftant fire; neither chufing to rifque clofer decifion until they faw the event between Draper's and Lally's; but as foon as Lally's broke, the enemy's center went off likewife, but in better order, although in hafte, to regain their camp. Many of Coote's, in the first fury of victory, had purfued their antagonists of Lorrain up to the retrenchment, by which the fugitives entered the camp : they might have fuffered by this rafhnefs, if the guard there, as well as the nearest Sepoys along the ridge, had not taken fright, and abandoned their pofts on feeing the rout of Lorrain. It took fome time to bring the purfuers back to their colours, when the officers, fending off the wounded, formed the reft into their ranks, and afterwards only made the appearance of advancing, whilft the reft of the battle remained in doubt, left Lorrain with the Sepoys should rally; to prevent which the four field-pieces on the left kept up an inceffant fire plunging into the camp.

As foon as the other wing and the center of the Enemy's army gave way, their opponents, the Company's battalion and Draper's regiment got into order, and with Coote's, who were ready, advanced to the purfuit, leaving their artillery behind. They entered the enemy's camp without meeting the leaft opposition. India and Lally's had paffed through it hastily to the other fide, although not in rout as Lorrain's before. Mr. Lally, after the rout of Lorrain, rode away to join his own regiment on the left, but on the way faw the explofion of the tumbril at the retrenched tank, the difperfion of the marines in this poft, and the flight of the Sepoys out of the tank behind. He was in this inftant near, and intended to ipeak to Mr. Buffy, but turned fuddenly, and ordered the Sepoys flationed along the ridge in front of the camp to advance. None obeyed; and most of them being those of Zulphacarjung who had ferved with Mr. Buffy in the Decan, he rashly fuspected treachery, and, unable to controul the impulse of distraction, rode into the camp to stop the fugitives of Lorrain.

The whole body of the French cavalry, near 300, who were all Europeans, appeared on the plain in the rear of the camp to which . they had retreated, followed by the cavalry of the English army, whofe encounter they had hitherto avoided by abler evolutions : fo that neither of these two bodies had been within fight of the brunt between the two infantries. The French cavalry chanced to be near . enough to fee the flight of Lorrain through the camp, and, animated by a fense of national honour, resolved to protect them, if, as might be expected, they fhould endeavour to efcape ftill farther by gaining the plain. In this purpose they united their squadrons and drew up in the rear of the camp, and in face of the English cavalry, of whom , the black horfe, awed by their refolution, dared not, and the European were too few, to charge them. This unexpected fuccour probably prevented the utter difperfion of the French army. There were in the rear of the camp three field-pieces with their tumbrils of ammunition ; at which the fugitives of Lorrain, encouraged by the appearance of the cavalry, ftopped, and yoked them. Thefe protections reftored confidence to Lally's and the India battalion as they arrived, likewife beaten from the field. They fet fire to the tents and undangerous ftores near them, and the whole filed off into the plain in much better order than their officers expected. The three fieldpieces kept in the rear of the line of infantry, and behind them moved the cavalry. They paffed to the weftward, and when oppofite to the pettahs of Vandivash were joined by the troops, who had continued at the batteries there, which they abandoned, leaving all the flores and baggage, and received no interruption from the garrifon as they were going off. The Morattoes, who were under the mountain when the cannonade began, intended not only to protect their own camp, but to fall upon the baggage of the English army; but when they faw the whole body of Sepoys remaining in the rear of the action, were deterred from advancing to the village, to which the baggage was fent; and having their own all ready loaded on their bullocks, fent off the whole train to the weftward foon after the cannonade commenced; and with the first notice from their fcouts of the rout of Lorrain, began to go off themfelves.

themfelves. Their rout led them acrofs the way, along which the French were retreating; whom 700 of them joined and accompanied. Colonel Coote fent repeated orders to his cavalry to harrafs and impede the retreat of the French line. They followed them five miles until five in the afternoon, but the black horfe could not be brought up within reach of the carbines of the French cavalry, and much lefs of their field-pieces. The brunt of the day paffed intirely between the Europeans of both armies, the black troops of neither had any part in it, after the cannonade commenced. The commandants of the Englifh Sepoys complimenting Colonel Coote on the victory, thanked him for the fight of fuch a battle as they had never feen.

Twenty-four pieces of cannon were taken, 19 in the field and camp, and five in the battery against Vandivash, 11 tumbrils of ammunition, all the tents, flores, and baggage, that were not burnt. Two hundred of the Europeans were counted dead in the field, and 160 were taken, of whom 30 died of their wounds before the next morning; fix of the killed, and 20 of the prifoners, were officers: wounded continually dropt on the road; fo that the immediate diminution of the enemy's force was computed 600 men. Of the English army, 63 Europeans were killed, and 124 wounded, in all 190; of this number, 36 of the killed, and 16 of the wounded, belonged to the Company's battalions, 17 and 66 to Draper's, 13 and 36 to Coote's regiment; four of the European horfe, and two of the artillery, were wounded, but none of either killed. Of the black troops, 17 of the horfe were killed, and 32 wounded: in all, 22 and 47: of the Sepoys only 6 and 15. The killed, as well in the European as the black troops, was, although not in the different bodies, one half of the number wounded, a proportion on the whole which rarely happens, excepting as in this action. by cannonade.

The first news of the victory was brought to Madrafs at fun-rife the next morning by one of the black spies of the English camp. At noon came in another, with a note of two lines, written with a pencil, by Colonel Coote on the field of battle; other accounts followed, and soon after eye-witness. The joy which this fuccess diffused throughout the settlement, was almost equal to that of Calcutta 589 1760. January.

Calcutta on the victory at Plaffey. Their congratulations to Colonel Coote and the army were abundant as their joy.

The day after the battle fcarcely fufficed for the variety of orders neceffary to reftore the army to its ftrength, and to make the difpofitions, by which Colonel Coote, with his ufual activity, refolved to profecute his fuccefs. Captain Wood was ordered to advance with his garrifon from Covrepauk, and inveft the fort of Arcot; Lieutent Chifholm to fend to Covrepauk the fick and invalids left by the army at Conjeveram: Madrafs was requefted to fend to Conjeveram the recovered men of the King's regiments left in their hospital, together with stores, battering cannon, and ammunition: this line was meant to fuftain the fiege of Arcot. Whatfoever other troops could be fpared from Madrafs were to be fent to Vandivash, with medicines and conveniences for the wounded there. The baggage at Outramalore was ordered to rejoin the army; a letter was written to Innis Khan, advising him to quit the province, with all his Morattoes, without delay, or that no quarter would be given to any of them wherefoever met. Orders were iffued for 1000 of the black horfe to march to the fouth ; 200 fet off immediately to plunder and lay wafte the country between Allamparvah and Pondicherry: the next day, which was the 25th, 800 with 20 of the huffars, under the command of Vafferot, marched with the fame intent against the districts between Pondicherry and Gingee, and were to act in correspondence with the other detachment.

The French army reached Chittapett the next day, where they only remained the day after; and then Mr. Lally, without reinforcing the garrifon, fell back with all the European force, to Gingee, fending the Sepoys of Zulphacarjung, of whom he had ftill fufpicions, although Mr. Buffy was taken, to act under the commandant at Arcot, and advifed the Morattoes to renew their incurfions to the north of the Paliar. Colonel Coote, on intelligence of Mr. Lally's retreat, and the little care he had taken of Chittapett, refolved to attack this place before he marched againft Arcot. The baggage from Outramalore, waiting for fome flores from Chinglapett, did not arrive until the 26th. In the fame evening, a detachment detachment marched from Vandivash, and the next morning invefted Chittapett, when the commandant, De Tilly, refused to furrender. On the 28th, the whole army encamped within cannonfhot, and the commandant still persisting in his refusal, a battery of two eighteen-pounders was erected in the night, against the N.E. angle, and a howitz was planted in the pettah, to enfilade the north line of the rampart. The fire opened at five the next morning, and the breach was nearly practicable by eleven, when a flag of truce appeared, and De Tilly furrendered without terms. The garrifon confifted of four commissioned officers, and 52 private Europeans, with 300 Sepoys. In the hofpitals were 73 Europeans, wounded in the late battle. The artillery were nine pieces of cannon; the ftore of ammunition was confiderable, and amongst the arms were 300 excellent muskets, which were distributed amongst the English Sepoys. The garrifon reported, that a party, with two field-pieces, were marching from Arcot and Gingee, having taken the round-about road by Arni and Trinomalee; on which Captain Stephen Smith was detached, with 200 black horfe, and two companies of Sepoys, to intercept them.

In the mean time, the horfe fent to the fouthward had performed their miffion with great alacrity, having burnt 84 villages, and fwept away 8000 head of cattle, many of which were of those the Morattoes had taken on the north of the Paliar, and fold to whomfoever would buy them, at four-pence a head. The whole collection was driven under different convoys to Vandivash, Carangoly, and Outramalore, and more than reftored the number which thefe diffricts had loft. Befides what they had fold, they had driven away a great multitude of the beft cattle into the vallies leading from Lalliput to Damalcherri, which they intended to fend, with the reft of their booty, to their own country on the other fide the hills; but the menaces and fuccefs of Colonel Coote raifed apprehenfions in Innis Khan, that he might rifque the lofs of this plunder, if he continued any longer in the province. He therefore quitted Arcot, with all his Morattoes, on the fame day that Chittapett furrendered; and continued his march through the pafs, from 4 G whence VOL. II.

whence he wrote to Mr. Pigot, that he fhould at any time hereafter be ready to wait on him with his troops, if they could agree upon the terms.

On the 30th, intelligence was received from Captain Wood, that he had marched with his garrifon of Covrepauk to Arcot, and found the Sepoys of Zulphacarjung ftrongly posted in the ftreets of the town; he neverthelefs attacked them, and after much firing drove them from their flands, with confiderable loss on their fide, and little on his own. They retreated out of the town, as the garrifon in the fort did not want their fervice. On the 31ft, the army, which had moved by two fucceffive divisions, encamped near Arni, where they were rejoined by the detachment fent with Captain Stephen Smith, who had taken the party they had been fent after, which was much less than had been reprefented, confisting only of 20 Europeans and 50 Sepoys, efforting two brafs field-pieces, which Mr. Lally had ordered from Arcot. Captain Smith had likewife picked up three commiffaries, who were travelling to Pondicherry in their pallankeens.

February.

The next day, which was the first of February, Colonel Coote, with the first division of the army, joined Captain Wood in the town of Arcot, having left the fecond with Major Monson, to attack Timery, which lies in the road. This fort being very small, although well-built, only shells were fired, which before the evening reduced the garrison to surrender: they were one ferjeant commanding 20 foldiers, and 60 Sepoys, with five pieces of cannon. The next day Major Monson arrived at Arcot, and all immediately set to work in erecting batteries, for which Captain Wood had prepared the materials, and had nearly finished one on the north face of the fort.

The defences of the fort had been greatly improved fince it was defended by Captain Clive, againft Rajahfahib, in 1752. The Englifh had contributed moft; but the French finished what was intended, but left undone by them, when they abandoned the fort on Mr. Lally's approach to Madrafs. The ditch was moftly in the folid rock, and had every where been dug to man height : the fausfiebray 2 was was clear, but open ; being neither skirted with a parapet-wall, nor even with a palifade : a glacis, and a covered way, had been carried round the fort ; and from the center of the north-fide of the coveredway projected a ftrong ravelin, mounting fix guns, round which the glacis was continued ; a gate with a draw-bridge communicated with this ravelin : the narrow rampart of the old wall had in many places been widened, and ramparts raifed to it, for the ready running up of cannon; each of the towers, of which there were twentytwo, was rendered capable of a gun of any fize, those at the four angles would admit three, and the platforms of the two gateways more. The extent of the fort from the weftern to the eaftern fide is nearly 800 yards; the eaftern face 350; but the fouthern wall, receding as it ftretches to the eaftward, reduces the eaftern face to 260 yards, of which 50 are occupied in the middle by a gate-way, and the main rampart on this face had only the two towers in the angles.

Two batteries were raifed to the Eaft; one, of three embrafures in the front of fome houfes, standing at the distance of 360 yards, nearly opposite to the rampart between the gateway and the tower in the angle on its right; and was intended to breach in the interval: the other battery was on the left of this, but 100 yards nearer; it mounted only two guns, of which, one was to difmantle the tower in the angle to the right of the gateway, and the other the angle on the right of the gateway itself. A battery of three guns was raifed to the fouth, nearly opposite the s. w. angle of the fort, and bore upon the tower in this angle, and the two next to the eastward. This battery was at the diftance of 200 yards, where a few houfes gave shelter to the guards, and covered the workmen in the outfet of the approaches. The fourth battery was that raifed by Captain Wood on the north: it was to the left of the ravelin, at the diffance of 200 yards, and mounted two guns, which were to plunge over the ravelin, in order to break the drawbridge behind, by which the ravelin communicated across the ditch with the body of the fert : but this battery was of little use because it enfiladed no part of the rampart, and the ravelin it fired upon bore only one gun against the two batteries 4 G 2 batteries to the eaftward, and, in cafe the bridge fhould be broke, the guard would be withdrawn into the fort, where their fervice, if the breach fhould be affaulted, would be of more detriment than their continuance in the ravelin ; and the battery was employed only because it was ready.

On the 3d and 4th, whilft the batteries were conftructing, the garrifon threw many fhells to interrupt the work, but no men were hurt by them. On the 5th, all the three batteries opened; and the garrifon still continuing their shells, returned likewife on all fides with more cannon than fired upon them; and a foldier was killed. on the N.E. attack, and four artillery-men to the fouth. On the 6th, the enemy difinounted two guns in the battery of three to the eaft, in which two Europeans were killed and two wounded, and two were likewife wounded at the fouth battery. This day, 200. cohorn-fhells arrived from Madrafs, inftead of eight-inch fhells for the howitz, which was the only piece of bombarding artillery with the army; no powder came with the shells; and from the defence, the flock in camp feemed likely to be exhausted before the place could be opened to affault; and fhot grew equally fcarce. Four hundred bullocks were therefore fent off to bring a fupply of both from Madraís, with two eighteen-pounders to replace the two which had been difmounted. In the night between the 6th and the 7th. the army began their approaches from both attacks. On the 7th, two eighteen-pounders arrived from Chinglapett ; but from the want of ferviceable bullocks they were accompanied by only 50 fhot, and so barrels of powder expected with them were still lagging on the road. From the preceding to the prefent evening, only one man was killed, and two wounded. The approaches were pushed on all night; and the next day, which was the eighth of the month, arrived the powder from Chinglapett, and a quantity was discovered. buried in one of the houfes of the town; but all the fhot were fo nearly expended, that, at four in the afternoon, Colonel Coote beat a parley, in order to get time to pick up what the enemy had fired. The French officer, Captain Huffey, accepted the meffage, which was a fummons to furrender, as he could expect no fuccours :-

cours : he anfwered, that not a man had been killed in the fort; but that he was willing to furrender it, if not relieved before, at the end of fix days, on condition the garrifon should be free, have the honours of war, and retire to Pondicherry. This to and. fro lasted two hours, when the firing was renewed until dark. The lofs this day was only one man killed, and two wounded. In the night, the trenches to the s. were pushed on with much diligence, and the garrifon employed every means to interrupt their progrefs, cannon and fhells from the body of the place, mufketry, grenades, and fire-balls, which fet on fire the blinds, gabions, and fafcines of the advancing fap, dangeroufly wounded Enfign Macmahon, who conducted it, killed one, and wounded ten more of the men employed. Neverthelefs, the fap before the morning was very near the foot of the glacis. With the day, which was the 9th, the batteries, having received fome more shot from Chinglapett, continued, and by noon their fire had opened both breaches to fix feet of the bottom of the rampart ; and had difinantled the towers that flanked! them : but still the ditch remained to be filled, and no lodgement was yet made in the covered way. Great therefore was the furprize, to fee a flag, followed by a voluntary offer of furrendering the next day, if allowed the honours of war; which, as before, implied that the garrifon were not to be made prifoners. Colonel Coote refused ; and foon after came another letter, offering as the condition, that they might all retire to Pondicherry on their paroles not to ferve again. Colonel Coote replied, that he fhould allow the officers and men whatfoever belonged to them, and good treatment; but referved the right of disposing of their perfons : at the fame time, he invited the commandant to fupper, who came. The fort was closely furrounded during the night, to prevent any of the garrifon from efcaping; and early the next morning, the grenadiers of the army took poffession of the gates. The garrifon confisted of 11 officers, three of whom were captains, and 236 foldiers and artillery-men, in all 247 Europeans, and nearly the fame number of Sepoys. The artillery were 4 mortars, and 22 pieces of cannon, of which fome were eighteen-pounders: there was likewife a plentiful flock of ammunition .. TE.

ammunition, and military flores of all kinds. The batteries muft have ceafed firing the next day, until convoys arrived: the garrifon had not loft three men, and the fort might have held out ten days longer before the affault by florm could be rifqued. They extenuated the early furrender by the certainty of not being relieved. It required the refpite of fome days to refit the wear and tear which the army had endured during the activity of the late operations; for all the carriages were fhattered, all the men wanted cloathing, and all the bullocks were fore.

Colonel Coote, in confideration of Mr. Buffy's generofity to the Englifh factory when he took Vizagapatam, had permitted him to repair to Pondicherry from the field of battle, immediately after he was taken. He arrived there the next day, and reprefented the defeat as far from irretrievable. On the 25th in the evening, came in Mr. Lally, and the troops were following from Gingee to Valdore. His ill fuccefs, and the abandoning the field, rendered him ftill more odious than ever. No invective, howfoever unjuft, was fpared. Cowardice borrowing courage from drunkennefs was imputed as the caufe of wrong difpolitions, redrefied by worfe, until the battle was loft, and the retreat to Pondicherry as a defign to lofe the city, in revenge for the univerfal detefration in which he was held.

Neverthelefs, the beft ability and will would have been perplexed what meafure to purfue after the defeat. The neceffity of refurnifhing the army with the flores and artillery they had loft, would alone have required them to fall back nearer to Pondicherry; and the protection of the diffricts in the rear of Alamparwah and Gingee now became of great concernment; for fince the lofs of Mafulipatam, of the northern provinces, and of their fettlements in Bengal, very little grain in proportion to the former importations had been brought to Pondicherry by fea; and the diffreffes for money to anfwer more immediate calls had hitherto prevented the government from laying in a flore of provisions; fo that their greateft refource at this time was from the harvefts in thefe diffricts, which was ripe and gathering in.

The interruptions continually oppofed by the garrifon of Tritchinopoly to the French troops remaining in the ifland Seringham, had prevented prevented the controllers, appointed to manage thefe diffricts, from collecting enough to defray the expences of the late expedition, although the revenues, if unmolefted, would have furnished more: Mr. Lally had ordered the whole to return, and expected they would join him before Vandivash. They were, befides the 200 European in Seringham, two detachments lately fent from Pondicherry, with flores and ammunition, who were arrived, and halting at Utatore. The manager appointed to collect the revenues, who was a counfellor of Pondicherry, thought that matters would mend, when he fhould be reinforced by the detachments at Utatore, and ventured to difobey the orders. The Nabob and Captain Jofeph Smith at Tritchinopoly refolved, as the beft means of preventing the arrival of the detachments, to get poffellion of the fortified pagoda of Pitchandah, on the farther bank of the Coleroon, which terminates the only high road leading from Samiaveram and Utatore into the Island of Seringham. The pagoda was reported to be garrifoned only by a company of Sepoys, with a few Europeans. Accordingly Captain Richard Smith, who was recovered of his wound, croffed the river on the 28th of December, and took the command of the country troops, and those from the garrison, which had continued at Samiaveram fince the defeat of the French party, which had advanced a few days before. Early the next morning, Captain Joseph Smith moved with a party from the city, and began to cannonade the pagoda of Seringham from across the Caveri, in order to divert the French troops from fending a reinforcement to Pitchandah; for the attack of which, his fire upon Seringham was to be the fignal. The troops from Samiaveram were in time on their ground near Pritchandah. The two field-pieces which were to beat down the gate were in the road; the oxen were caft off from them, and they were to be dragged the reft of the way, which was 50 yards, to a choultry within fix yards of the gate. The troops were not difcovered until they had got under the wall, and were fixing the fcalingladders : the garrifon, more numerous than fuppofed, fired hotly from the walls, and efpecially on the field-pieces. Most of the Europed is in the detachment were foreigners, and none of those employed in bringing on the field-pieces liked the fervice; and to encourage them, Captain

Book XII.

Captain Smith and Lieutenant Horne pulled themfelves at the guns; their example brought more affiftance ; but of ten, who were at the gun with Smith, two were fhot dead, and three wounded, before they got them into the choultry, when a few rounds brought down the gate-way; in this inftant captain Smith received a ball under his thoulder, which totally difabled him. Lieutenant Horne then took his place and endeavoured to lead the men to the affault, but the detachment had fuffered fo feverely that none would follow him ; he, however, prevailed on them to abide, and bring off the wounded, and the two guns. Soon after, a certain account was received of the ftrength of the French parties at Utatore, which appeared an overmatch for the difpirited troops at Samiaveram; nor could Tritchinopoly fpare a reinforcement equal to what the French troops in the ifland might then fafely fend to act in conjunction with those coming from Utatore: the whole detachment at Samiaveram were therefore recalled, and arrived the fecod of February at Tritchinopoly. Their retreat relieved the French troops in the pagoda of Seringham from great diffrefs; for they had little ammunition left, and ftreightened towards the Caveri by the garrifon of Tritchinopoly, and on the other fide of the Coleroon by parties from the encampment at Samiaveram, they could neither venture out to feek. nor the country people to bring them in provisions; fo that all their fubfiftence, for feveral days, had been what they had plundered from the bramins in the pagoda, whole houles they pulled down for fire-wood to drefs the victuals they found in them.

The French troops at Utatore having waited for fome flores, which were lagging on the road, did not arrive at Seringham until the 8th: they were 140 Europeans, five pieces of cannon, and 600 Sepoys; and brought with them a competent flock of ammunition and fpare arms. A day or two after their arrival, 200 of their Europeans, with 600 Sepoys, commanded by Huffan Ally, marched againft Totcum, which had been taken for the Nabob on the 26th of December. The garrifon left in it were four companies of Sepoys, under the command of two European ferjeants; all of whom, although there were guns in the fort, behaved very ill, and furrenfurrendered the place before any impreffion had been made on the walls.

At the fame time that Mr. Lally recalled the troops from Seringham, he likewife ordered the fort of Devicotah to be evacuated, and the garrifon, having made feveral breaches in the walls and towers, marched away in the beginning of February; but left a company of Sepoys in the pagoda of Atchaveram, which stands five miles inland of Devicotah.

Captain Joseph Smith, on this intelligence, detached two companies of Sepoys, under the command of ferjeant Sommers, on whofe approach the French Sepoys at Atchaveram were reinforced by another company from the pagoda of Chilambrum, with which they marched out, and met Sommers' detachment on the plain, who routed them completely, taking five ftand of their colours, with four of their officers, and, befides the Sepoys who were killed, many were drowned in the hurry of croffing the Coleroon. Immediately after this encounter, Sommers proceeded, took pofferfion of Devicotah, and began to repair the breaches.

The news of the victory at Vandivash reached Tritchinopoly on the 30th of January, and cleared at once the cloud of defpondency which had overwhelmed the Nabob ever fince he left Madrafs to proceed thither. He immediately pitched his tent, and difplayed his great ftandard without the walls of the city, and declared his intention of returning into the Carnatic; but waited until the French troops fhould be removed from Seringham; and his with was foon gratified; for Mr. Lally, on his arrival at Pondicherry, difpatched a fecond order, under the feverest penalties of difobedience, for all the troops between Volcondah and Tritchinopoly to rejoin his army without delay. They hoped to conceal their retreat from the garrifon of Tritchinopoly, and made the preparations with all fecrecy; but fome of the Malabars employed by them were natives of this part of the country, who, follicitous to fecure pardon, if not favour, with the change of government, gave immediate and conftant intelligence to Captain Joseph Smith, who made ready to take fuch advantages as ufually occur, when troops retreating are purfued. whole body of the French troops were 450 Europeans and Coffrees, and 1200 Sepoys; of which 150, with the commiffary, were in the pagoda of Jumbakifina. The retreat was appointed at nine at night, on the 6th of February; of which previous intelligence was brought to Captain Joseph Smith ; and almost the whole garrifon of Tritchinopoly were on the bank of the Caveri, opposite to the pagoda of Seringham, ready to move as foon as the enemy. The notices were punctual; and fome, the first of the English troops, entered the fouth gate of the pagoda as the enemy were going out of the opposite. The rest of the English troops marched round the pagoda to the weft. When all were united on the north fide, they advanced to the bank of the Coleroon, and, when nearly opposite to Pitchandah, heard the found, and thought they faw the motion of aline of troops marching across them to pass the river. Captain R. Smith, who led the troops of the garrifon, formed in order to receive or attack the ftrangers ; but Captain Joseph coming up bid him not fire, because he had ordered the troops of the Polygar Tondiman, which had for fome time attended the garrifon, to advance between the pagodas of Seringham and Jumbalishma, and what troops they now observed might as probably be them, as a part of the enemy, who they really were, being those moving from Jumbakisina to join their main. body: they were foon after afcertained by a black fervant of R.Smith's, who had ftraggled into their line, and talking, was answered in French. On this intelligence the English troops immediately proceeded, and began to enter the bed of the Coleroon, as the enemy were leaving the farther bank, who in their hurry flung away fifty barrels of gunpowder, which were recovered; and they deftroyed a tumbril of gun-ammunition at Pitchandah. But the line never flopped until they got to Utatore. The Nabob's horfe followed, hanging in their rear, and continually picked up a deferter or a prisoner, in all 30 Europeans, or something belonging to their equipages and ftores; but the reft of the English troops halted at Samiaveram until the horfe returned, which was the next day; when a detachment of 1000 Sepoys, and 50 Europeans, with two guns and a cohorn, and a part of the Nabob's horfe, marched under the command

mand of lieutenant Horne, against Totcum and Cortalum : at the fame time, all the other troops returned from Samiaveram to Tritchinopoly; and, befides what had been gathered in the road, brought in two excellent eighteen-pounders, which the enemy had left in the pagoda of Seringham. The Nabob, folicitous to make his new appearance in the Carnatic with as much figure as possible, requested Jofeph Smith to go, and afk 500 horfe of the king of Tanjore. The king was ill, and with difficulty admitted the vifit, but promifed every thing, and referred the adjustment to his Dubbeer, or minister, which, amongft the Indians, is equivalent to the Duan of the Mahomedan princes. The Dubbeer, notwithstanding the late fucceffes of the English arms, infisted, that the Nabob should furnish the pay and expences, which he knew would not be complied with; and Captain Smith returned, as he had expected, without obtaining a fingle horfeman. In the mean time, Haffan Ally had abandoned Totcum, on the appearance of lieutenant Horne's detachment, but went away with the garriton, which were 400 Sepoys, to reinforce Cortalum. Lieutenant Horne followed him; and here the enemy made a ftand for three days, until a battery was raifed, when they all went off in the night, leaving a gun and fome ammunition in the fort. Some Sepoys were left in both, and the reft of the detachment returned to the city; where the Nabob was making, with accuftomed tedioufnefs, the preparations for his departure.

The ravages which had been committed by the English cavalry, in the districts around Pondicherry, brought forth a part of the French troops from Valdoor; but not before the cavalry were gone off with their plunder. The French detachment, feeing nothing to oppose them, advanced within 20 miles of Carangoly; which, on intelligence of their approach, the Prefidency reinforced with 40 Europeans. Captain Prefton had already been fent to command there; and on the 6th of February Colonel Coote had detached 500 black horfe, and 20 huffars, from the fiege of Arcot, with orders, if Prefton should think proper, to lead them against the enemy's detachment, who, gaining intelligence of their march before they had reached Carangoly, retreated fast; and on the 8th, 27 huffars with their horfes deferted and came to Vandivash, where 4 H 2

they were enlifted in the English fervice. Mr. Lally, on hearing that his detachment was retreating, and that Arcot was prefied, took a fudden refolution of marching with all the reft of the cavalry, in order, as he gave out, either to throw reinforcements into Arcot, or to retake Chittapett by furprize, and releafe the wounded prifoners there; but the cavalry, when drawn out, mutinied, refused to proceed with him, and all went out of the bounds, as if they intended to go over to the English garrifons; their officers however brought them back ; but fuch was the general difcontent for want of pay, that feveral of the common foldiers were overheard, in the night of the 11th, proposing among themselves to turn the guns in the ramparts against the government house, as the only means of bringing Mr. Lally to reason. He immediately reprefented the depositions of the witneffes to Mr. De Levrit and the Council, who, having no money in the public treafury, propofed expedients, which Mr. Lally did not approve. All the country in the rear of Vandivash and Chittapett, quite up to Pondicherry, had been let for five years to two of the European inhabitants of the colony, at the rent of 1,450,000 rupees a year: they were applied to in this exigency, and anfwered, that they had no money, having been difappointed of much they expected by the lofs of Vandivafh and Chittapett; on which the Malabar, to whom Mr. Lally had rented the diffricts round Arcot, whilft they remained under his authority, offered to advance 50,000 rupees in ten days, and 80,000 in twenty more, if what remained of the diffricts let to the two Europeans were leafed out to him, with the addition of all the country to the fouth of Pondicherry, as far as Chillambarum and the banks of the Coleroon. His propofal was accepted; but the prefent affiftance he fupplied could not ferve long, and the future depended on the protection of the countries : they were farmed to him at 1,750,000 rupees a year.

This arrangement was not approved by the council, becaufe they doubted of the credit and integrity of the Malabars; and, perhaps, becaufe it was a fuperceffion of their own authority in the adminifiration of the revenues. Immediately after, arrived intelligence of the the lofs of Arcot, which with that of Chittapett gave new fcope to the imputations againft Mr. Lally. It was faid, that he himfelf had declared, the one incapable of holding out four days, the other not more than five. Why then leave in them 400 Europeans, fo much wanted in his own army, to fall a certain prey to the Englifh? But this conduct, as his retreat to Pondicherry, was not void of juftification; for, had he withdrawn thefe garrifons, the Englifh army, having nothing to apprehend in their rear, might have immediately followed him to Gingee, and from thence to the adjacencies of Pondicherry, when the produce of the country, fo neceffary to flore Pondichery, would have fallen under the power of the enemy, whom the neceffity of reducing Chittapett and Arcot had turned another way; and, befides the time they muft employ againft thefe forts, other delays might concur to keep them ftill longer at a diffance.

The English army, after the reduction of Arcot, encamped without the town, towards Velore. The Kellidar Mortizally trembled for his fort; and having been very complacent to the English, fince the French had been repulsed from before Madrafs, he now intreated the Prefidency to spare the attack, and fent a prefent of 30,000 rupees to Colonel Coote; who refused it, fignifying, that he was not empowered, either by the Nabob or the Prefidency of Madrafs, to levy tributes. The Kellidar replied, that it was intended as a homage to himfelf, a great commander, according to the custom of the country; on which the money was accepted, and appropriated to the general flock of prize-money for the army.

The army had not reftored its equipments fufficiently to move from the neighbourhood of Arcot until the 20th of February, and even then left behind two eighteen-pounders and a ten-inch howitz, which were not repaired. They halted this day at Timery, and 500 Sepoys, with 100 black horfe, were difpatched with Captain Stephen Smith against Trinomaly. The next day the army encamped under Arni. The Kellidar of this fort, which is confiderable, and a fief belonging to the king of Tanjore, had conducted himfelf with fo much hospitality to both fides, that neither the French nor the Nabob confidered him as an enemy. On the 23d they

The rock on which the fort of Permacoil stands does not extend, even at its bafe, more than 500 yards in length. In breadth, it is at the northern end about 400 yards, at the fouthern not more than 200 : its height is likewife various, being at the narrow end 300 perpendicular feet, and diminishing by flopes and declivities to 200 at the other. Of these differences in the height, there is one more particularly marked, which croffes in a natural zig-zag of two re-entering angles, about the middle of the mountain, and all the ground to the eaftward behind this ridge is 30 feet higher than the other part before it to the weftward. This eaftern part is the upper, and the only real fort ; being inclofed and fortified with high ftone walls and towers ftrongly built. The other inclofure, although called the lower fort, is only furrounded with a wall of loofe ftones, and was principally intended for the immediate refuge of the cattle and inhabitants on fudden alarm. The rock falls every where fo fteep, that the area of the fortified furface above is equal to half the bafe below. The adjacent rocks before and behind are not high enough to carry any detriment to its fortifications.

Colonel Coote with the Sepoys, led by the guide, took poft behind fome rocks oppofite to the gate-way in the north face of the pettah, which flands nearly in the middle of the rampart. Two large pieces of cannon, mounted on field-carriages, were flanding at the entrance of the gate-way, which was in the left fide of its projection ; and fome Coffrees and Europeans, with two field-pieces, were on the tower juft behind to protect them. This guard, knowing that the cavalry in the rear could not act on the ground where the Sepoys were, ventured to fally. Colonel Coote ordered Enfign Carty to meet them, with one of the companies of Sepoys ; which turned out with great alacrity, gave their fire, and advanced to the bayonet. The French party, flattled by their refolution, ran back, and were followed fo clofe clofe by Carty's company, and they by Colonel Coote with the other, that the fugitives made no ftand at the gateway, but continued their flight, still purfued, through the pettah, to the foot of the rock at the farther end, where fteps were cut winding up to the upper fort, by which they efcaped into it; but Colonel O'Kennedy, the commander, who was at the steps, and lame with old wounds, had very nearly been taken. Here were lying two twenty-four pounders, of which the garrifon had burnt the carriages, becaufe there was no path to draw, and no means to raife them, into the fort. As foon as the pettah was cleared of the enemy's guards, Colonel Coote posted the Sepoys in the best shelter the houses afforded against the fire of the cannon in the upper fort, and the musketry from the lower, which recommenced immediately, and continued through the day. The horfe were distributed, fome under the walls of the pettah, ready to difmount and affift, if any defcent fhould be made; and the reft in different guards round the hills. In the evening came up fix companies of Sepoys, with the French Volunteers, and an eight-inch howitz, from Tondivanum : the enemy continued their fire through the night, and finall parties came down the fide of the rocks, who threw grenades, and fired musketry, by which a Sepoy was killed, and nine, with three Europeans, wounded before the morning; no lofs had been fuftained in the day. All the return was from the howitz, which did no damage in either of the forts,

Before morning pioneers and tools arrived, and fufficient cover for the whole was formed with earth thrown up and houfes broken down; during which fome were employed in raifing and fixing the two pieces of cannon, one after the other, to transporting carriages, in order to carry them off, which was not executed without difficulty and time; during which, the enemy fired down grenades and mufketry, but did no mifchief.

In the afternoon Colonel Coote fummoned O'Kennedy, who fent down one of his men to receive the letter, and anfwered it with a temperate negative; on which Colonel Coote refolved to furprize the lower fort. Two guides belonging to the Kellidar offered to Vol. II. 4 I fhew 607 1760. March.

thew the path leading up the north fide of the hill, which being extremely rugged and difficult, was not likely to be fufpected : they proceeded with two companies of Sepoys at eight at night; at the fame time a platoon of Coote's grenadiers, with another company of Sepoys, went up the fteps leading from the pettah to the back of the upper fort, and made a falfe attack to divert the enemy from the real, which were forty minutes in gaining the fummit, when the foremost got over the wall before they were difcovered. The enemy's guards confifted chiefly of Sepoys, and all of them aftonifhed by the first fire ran away from their different stations, and regained the upper fort, where Colonel O'Kennedy, ignorant of the numbers which had got into the lower, and perplexed by the falfe attack, would not rifque a fally which might have recovered the lofs; but kept up a hot fire upon them by guefs from the defences. along the ridge which feparates the upper from the lower fort; but with no effect, for the choultries and rocks riling every where afforded shelter. The guides, as foon as the party was established, came down with information of their fuccefs to Colonel Coote, who was waiting at the foot of the path, with the pioneer company, and the Volunteers of France, provided with ladders, gabions, and fafcines, and immediately proceeded with them up the hill; where as. foon as they had joined the party above, the whole proceeded acrofs the lower fort, to escalade the fortifications along the ridge, notwithstanding the garrifon was prepared to receive them. The ridge might be afcended without clambering. The grenadiers carried the ladders; the reft followed, ready to mount, and in the mean time fired up against the parapet; from which the fire instantly became exceffively hot. The ladders that were first applied proved too fhort; it was fuppofed they would answer better in other parts, to which they were removed, and tried with as little fuccefs. Neverthelefs the contest continued half an hour; and the Sepoys behaved with as much eagerness as the Europeans, but many dropping or difabled, Colonel Coote ordered the affault to ceafe. He received a wound in the knee; his aid de camp, Captain Adams, was shot through the hip; a ferjeant of the pioneers, one of the French Volunteers, lunteers, and feven Sepoys, were killed ; 16 Europeans and 25 Sepoys were wounded : in the false attack on the upper fort, two Sepoys were wounded, and Enfign Blakeney was killed. The next day, which was the 3d of the month, the fire of the fort diminifhed confiderably, as it was fuppofed, and rightly, from fcarcity of ammunition. At noon, a letter came from Colonel O'Kennedy, requesting a ceffation of 24 hours, to obtain Mr. Lally's orders concerning the furrender : this was refufed, and foon after he fent another letter requiring the honours of war, which were likewife denied. Several Europeans and Sepoys were killed and wounded through the day and night. Before noon of the next day, which was the fifth of the attack, a brafs fix-pounder was got up the hill with much difficulty by Captain Barker. There were two choultries in the lower fort, flanding 100 yards from the ridge and rampart, which divide it from the upper: one of these choultries was near the wall which runs along the edge of the rock on the fide over the pettah; and in this choultry the field-piece was planted; the other was a few yards on the left, which sheltered those whom it was not neceffary to expose. The defences in the upper fort immediately opposite to the choultries lay in a large re-entering angle, at the two extremities of which was a round tower. one on the edge of the rock overlooking the pettah, the other about the middle of the ridge, which from hence falls back in another zigzag out of fight of the choultries. The gate leading into the upper fort was on the left of the tower in the middle of the ridge. The fieldpiece managed by Captain Barker battered, firing upwards out of the choultry, against the gate and the parapet of the tower, both which were ruined before night; but the garrifon had heaped earth at the back of the gate, which continued to ftop the entrance. Many of those exposed in this fervice fuffered. New scaling-ladders had been provided; and the next morning, as the troops were preparing to advance with them, the garrifon beat the chamade, and furrendered at diferetion. They were fifteen European gunners, chofen men, 32 Coffrees, and 100 Sepoys: only one of each had been killed. There were in the fort 20 pieces of cannon, but not ammunition either either for them or the mufketry fufficient to have flood the affault, nor had the garrifon two days provision left. The total lofs and cafualties of the English, through the attack, were four Europeans killed, and 15 wounded, of the Sepoys 40 and 70; these troops had never behaved to well; of their killed, one was the Subadhar, equivalent to the Captain of a company, and two were Jemidars, the next rank of officers. The gallantry of Bulwansing, who was the fenior of the whole body in camp, was rewarded with a gold medal. The Kellidar, for his fervices, was continued in the fort, in which were left a company of Sepoys, with 12 Europeans and a lieutenant. A large detachment of the French army had advanced as far as Manour, within feven miles of Permacoil, and were in motion to throw in a confiderable reinforcement of men and flores, at the very hour they heard of the arrival of the English army at Tondivanum, on which they retreated towards Pondicherry.

On the 7th, Colonel Coote went from the camp at Tondivanum, with the cavalry, black as well as Europeans, and fix companies of Sepoys, to difcover near the bounds of Pondicherry. The diftance to the bound-hedge was 20 miles; and the Sepoys, after marching ten, wanted reft, and were left in the village of Trichimungalum.

The French troops which had been detached to the relief of Permacoil, had, on their retreat, encamped four miles to the west of the town, and three from the bound-hedge. A large collection of fand-hills, of which the whole together is called the Red-hill, rifes about half a mile from the fea-fhore, and a mile and half to the north of the town : they extend four miles to the weftward, and the laft hill, where they ceafe on this fide, is called Perimbé : acrofs from north to fouth they extend two miles, and have paffable dales between: directly opposite to the fide of Perimbé, stands the Fort of Villenore, a ftrong out-post, fituated near the north bank of the river of Ariancopang, which falls into the fea about 500 yards from the wall of Pondicherry, and in its courfe from Villenore forms a curve to the fouth. The Red-hill, on the other fide the plain, recedes to the N. E. from Perimbé to its end towards the fea. So that the interval between Villenore and Perimbé is the narroweft part of the plain between the

the river and the Red-hill, being here fcarcely more than a mile, whereas farther back it is three. The plain as far as the boundhedge was occupied by country houfes, enclofures, avenues, and arable ground. The market of the French troops was in the village under Villenore. Temporary barracks for the European cavalry had been raifed on the hill of Perimbé. Their foot and artillery were difperfed in the houfes and enclofures which occupied the fpace between.

Colonel Coote proceeded with the cavalry from Trichimungalum, not in the high road which paffeth by Valdore, but across the country to the left, and came in about the middle of the Red-hill, and paffing through its dales appeared on the outward ridge between Perimbé and the bound-hedge. The enemy had gained notice of his approach, but not of the force which accompanied him; and, imagining that it confifted of foot as well as horfe, fufpected likewife that the main body of both might be marching to get between them and the bound-hedge, and impede their retreat into the limits. In this perfuation, all their infantry got into march with much hurry and confusion, to gain the avenue nearest the Red-hill, which, as well: as another on its right, leads to the bound-hedge : they moved with all their field-pieces in front, to oppose the fupposed danger, which if real would have been the greateft : but the European horfe, which were 250 in three fquadrons, remained on the hill of Perimbé to obferve and protect their rear. Colonel Coote fufpected the error which occafioned the diforder he obferved in the infantry, and as fast as his troops came up ordered the European horfe, which were only 80, with three fquadrons of the black, to advance, and keep the enemy's cavalry in check, whilft he himfelf, with the main body, croffed over to the avenue, in which the laft of their infantry were entering; in whofe rear he hung, having thus feparated them from their cavalry, who, feeing their danger, retreated before the division advancing against them, to gain the other fide of the avenue on the right of their infantry, whole flanks were already protected from the cavalry with Colonel Coote by the ditch on each fide. Colonel Coote following the infantry, often advanced within 40 yards, to draw their fire; but the grenadiers of Lorrain, who formed the rear-guard, referved it with much difcipline. At length, however, the foremost troop of horfe, led by Affafbeg, a Jemidar of great fpirit, broke in upon a platoon, and cut down feven of them ; but the next troop drew up their bridles, and were afraid to follow the impreffion, which otherwife promifed to break the whole column, which recovered, and continued its way as before, until they had paffed the bound-hedge, under the redoubt of Valdore, which terminates the avenue along which they were marching, when the fire of the redoubt was left free, and Colonel Coote ftopped the purfuit. In the mean while, the other division under the command of Captain De Buke, had croffed over to the village of Villenore, and routed the market-people there without refiftance, and the black horfe with him, joined by more from the main body. collected all worth the while they could carry off, and drove before them all the cattle. The whole affembled again on the hill of Perimbé, where they fet fire to the barracks, and the carriage of an eighteen-pounder, for want of proper bullocks to draw it off. In the afternoon, the whole returned to Tritchimungalum, intending to reft the night there; but a corporal of the dragoons deferting, they removed five miles farther back to Manoor; from hence Colonel Coote fent orders to Major Monfon, to march the army from Tondivanum against Alamparvah.

The next day he moved himfelf to Taliaveram, which is five milesfrom Manoor to the N.E. on the road towards Permacoil ; but few of the black horfe accompanied him; they were all difperfed to fecure or fell the plunder they had got the day before. They, however, came back on the 9th, and he proceeded with them from Taliaveram again to the bound-hedge of Pondicherry, and obferved very nearly, without annoyance. On his return, he went to Convmere, where he met Mr. Buffy by appointment, who had been recalled on his parole to Madrafs, in order to be fent to Europe, in compliance with the earnest importunity of the Nabob, who regarded him as fraught with more dangerous refources than all his other enemies, and faid that if he became free, and commanded, he would protract protract the war ten years. On the 10th Colonel Coote came to Alamparvah, which the army had invefted the day before; but the wound he had received at Permacoil was fo much exafperated by his late fatigue, that he could not any longer flir without danger, he therefore ordered Colonel Monfon to carry on the fiege of Alamparvah, but ftill continued in the camp.

The fort of Alamparvah ftands on the fea-fhore, about 20 miles E. N. E. of Tondivanum, 15 E. of Permacoil, and 24 to the N. of Pondicherry. It formerly belonged to the Nabobs of the province; and was given to Mr. Dupleix by Murzafajing in 1750. It has many wells of good water, which is not to be found in all parts of the coaft fo near the fea. The fort was of ftone, fquare, of moderate extent, with four round towers at the angles, a parapeted fausfiebray, and a wet ditch, but without a glacis. A pettah extends along the ftrand to the north, and fronts within 250 yards of the fort. An eight-inch howitz bombarded; and a ricochet battery of two guns, to enfilade the north front from the weft, was began in the night, and finished before morning; during which, a ferjeant of pioneers and a Sepoy were killed. In the enfuing night, another battery of three eighteen-pounders was finished in the pettah, to batter the tower in the west angle of the north face; and the lofs during thefe 24 hours, was Lieutenant Angus, of Coote's regiment, and a grenadier killed. Both batteries opened together at day-light on the 12th, and in three hours difmounted most of the guns, and ruined the whole line of defence; and in the afternoon the Chevalier Viart, who commanded, furrendered at difcretion. The garrifon, befides himfelf, a Lieutenant, and a furgeon, were 50 Europeans, and 150 Sepoys. During the attack, three of their Europeans had been killed, and twelve wounded. There were in the fort 20 pieces of cannon, a howitz, and abundance of ammunition.

The feafon was now advancing, when the French fquadron might be expected from the iflands. The lofs of Alamparvah deprived them of the only flation under their command to the northward, and Karical remained the only one they had to the fourhward of Pondicherry; 613 1760. March.

cherry ; but the importance of Karical role with the feafon, and the encreasing distreffes of the capital; for becoming, with the change of the monfoon, the windward station, all their veffels arriving on the coaft might get their first intelligence here, and, if the road were not occupied by a fuperior force, were always fure of water, and fresh provisions from the fort, which the foreign settlements of Negapatam and Tranquebar might, or might not fupply. The grain of the diffricts, which was confiderable, was gathered, and, with what might be purchased in the plentiful country of Tanjore, would become a great refource to Pondicherry, continually lofing its own districts by the fucceffes of the army; for it might be conveyed from Karical in the boats of the country, which, favoured by the wind and current, would almost make the passage in a night, and with little rifque, even if difcovered and purfued, as they can keep close to the furf, in shallow foundings, and along the shore fwell of the fea, where veffels of European construction feldom. chufe to venture. The French government already repented of the lofs of fuch another poffession in Devicotah, although not commanding equal advantages; and had made a ftrong attempt to recover it. On the 24th of February, a detachment from Chilambrum of 30 troopers, 40 European infantry, and 400 Sepoys, with two field-pieces, invefted the fort. On the 27th, they were joined by 80 Europeans and Coffrees from Pondicherry, when the whole intrenched themfelves within 200 yards of the walls. The breaches which their garrifon had made when they abandoned it, were not completely repaired; and on the 29th in the morning, the enemy made an affault on that which was most practicable ; the fire lasted an hour, when they were repulfed, with the lofs, as the ferjeant fuppofed, of two officers, and 20 of their Europeans and Coffrees, and more of their Sepoys killed and wounded. They, however, during their flay, and on their retreat, fent and carried away a confiderable quantity of grain, which had just been got up from the harvest of the districts.

The Prefidency of Madrafs now became anxious to get poffeffion of Karical, before the French fquadron fhould arrive on the coaft; but, as it was intended that the army fhould as foon as poffible

ble encamp near Pondicherry, in order to intercept all convoys of provisions from the adjacent country, a body of troops fufficient for the attack of Karical could not be fpared from the camp, without frustrating the other intention. Admiral Cornish contributed to alleviate part of the difficulty, by offering to proceed with all the men of war which had arrived with him, and to land their marines, which were about 300; the Prefidency provided for the reft. All the artillery and flores for the fiege, with the Chief Engineer, Mr. Call, and a few gunners, were to be fent in the fhips from Madrafs. Colonel Monfon, who was to command, was to embark from Alamparvah, with the company of pioneers, which confifted of 50 choice Europeans, and with Captain Barker to direct the artillery. Captain Joseph Smith, who was efforting the Nabob from Tritchinopoly. was ordered to reinforce his detachment from this garrifon to the ftrength of 1000 Sepoys, 100 European firelocks, 40 artillery-men, and fix field-pieces; with this force, he was to march away from wherever he might be, with all expedition ; and either inveft or lay before Karical, as circumstances permitted, until the arrival of the fhips. Captain Richard Smith, appointed to command in Tritchinopoly after the departure of Joseph, was to fend from thence, through the country of Tanjore, Lascars for the fervice of the artillery, 500 Coolies to pull and carry burthens, tents, doolies for the fick and wounded, and cattle for provisions to the fquadron as well as the troops on fhore. The king of Tanjore was requefted to fend his troops, and every kind of affiftance.

The Nabob, notwithftanding his eagerness to appear at the head of an army in the Carnatic immediately after the victory of Vandivafh, was not ready to move from Tritchinopoly until the 18th of March, 40 days after he had received intelligence of that fuccefs, and a month after the French had abandoned the pagodas of Seringham. Befides the detachment from the garrifon of Tritchinopoly, he was accompanied by 1000 horfe, 1000 Sepoys, and a greater number of various forts of good-for-nothing infantry, entertained by himfelf. They arrived at Volcondah on the 20th, from whence he was folicitous to proceed towards Arcot; but Captain Jofeph Smith, iD in conformity to the orders of the prefidency, wifhed to lead him towards Pondicherry. This difference of opinion kept them fome days at Volcondah, and as a reconciliation, by which fome fervice, might be obtained from the Nabob's troops, Captain Smith confented to march against Thiagar, which would bring them nearer Arcot, without being removed farther from Pondicherry. But the prefidency, at the fame time that they fent orders to Captain Smith to march away with his detachment to Karical, enjoined the Nabob to keep with his own troops in the country to the s. of Gingee, between Volcondah and Chillambarum, and to employ them in reducing these districts, and especially in preventing any fupplies of provisions from being conveyed out of them to Pondicherry, from whence he would have nothing to fear, as the English army would be advanced and lying between.

The number of manned Maffoolas at Madrafs, which are the only boats that can ply the furf, were not fufficient to carry off the ammunition and flores intended for the fiege as faft as the men of war could have taken them in ; and during this delay, the Falmouth of 60 guns was fent forward to take in Major Monfon's party at Alamparvah, whilft the other fhips were lading at Madrafs : and on the 15th Colonel Coote, continuing much difordered with his wound, came in from the camp to adjuft with the Prefidency the prizemoney accruing to the army from their late fucceffes.

The Falmouth, ftanding into the road of Alamparvah on the 16th in the morning, difcovered a fhip at anchor clofe in fhore, about two leagues to the northward of Pondicherry, and bore down to her with an eafy fail, under French colours; but the ftranger cut her cable, and ran afhore into the furf, which being boifterous, fhe immediately bilged, and all but three of the crew got afhore. The boats of the Falmouth, finding it impoffible to get the fhip off, fet fire to her. She was the Harlem, which had been difpatched by Mr. Moracin from Ganjam to Mergui in the month of June, and was returning with rice and other provifions for Pondicherry, and had likewife tutenague and other merchandize on board, none of which KARICAL.

which could be recovered; but the loss of the provisions was by far the greatest detriment to the enemy.

Major Monfon, with the pioneers and their equipments, embarked in the Falmouth from Alamparvah on the 25th; they anchored in the road of Karical at day-break on the 28th, when the Captain of the Falmouth, Mathifon, went in his boat with Major Monfon to reconnoitre the fhore. They difcovered no figns, either of the people expected from Richard Smith at Tritchinopoly, or the detachment with Captain Joseph; whose instructions had not reached them in time to be as yet fulfilled. At eight o'clock, the fquadron, which had likewife failed from Madrafs on the 25th, appeared. Major Monfon went on board Mr. Cornish's ship, and it was agreed, notwithstanding they were entirely ignorant of the place, and difappointed of the troops they expected to meet, to make the landing immediately. Fifteen maffoolas accompanied the fhips ; they took in 170 of the troops, befides the Macoas, who are the black fellows that row them; these formed the first division, and were towed to the furf by the yawls and pinnaces of the fhips, which, befides their rowers, took as many foldiers as they could carry, who formed the fecond division : all these steered for the shore, five miles to the north of the fort. The third division of the troops embarked in the longboats, which were rigged with fails, and proceeded close to the furf, opposite to the fort, and the mouth of a river which leads to it, where they were to appear as if intending to land by pushing over the bar of the river, which was not impracticable.

A fmall fnow and a floop, which drew little water, and mounted guns, anchored as close as they could opposite to a village half-way between the real landing and the long-boats. As foon as the yawls and pinnaces reached the furf, they dropped their graplings, and caft off the maffoolas, which immediately rowed ashore, and landed the troops in them; then returned, and landed the fecond division out of the other boats, when a fignal was flung out, on which the long-boats came down, failing fast with the wind and current, and the troops in them were likewife landed all together by the maffoolas; the

the whole without the appearance of any opposition intended by the garrifon. As foon as all were on fhore, they advanced to the village opposite to which the two small veffels were at anchor, and received by catamarans two four-pounders, which belonged to the floop, and were mounted on fhip-carriages; for the reliance on the field-pieces expected with Joseph Smith had prevented any from being embarked at Madrafs. They paffed the night in the village without alarm; and early in the morning moved on to take poffeffion of the pettah of Karical, which lay on the north fide of the fort. It was a fpacious town, feparated from the fort by an efplanade of 100 yards; regular works had been traced round the other three fides, which on the weft had been raifed to four feet above the ground, but the baftion in the north-weft angle was completed, and converted into a clofed redoubt, which mounted nine guns, and had a good ditch all round, and a draw-bridge; it was called Fort Dauphin : the reft of the north line was open, as was the fide to the eaft. The troops advancing from the north, without a guide or intelligence, fell under fire of Fort Dauphin, by which two men were killed, and two wounded, before the whole line got under shelter of the buildings in the pettah; which they entered without meeting any interruption in the ftreets. They took post in the church-yard, which lay about 200 yards from the east fide of the pettah, and about the fame distance from the line of houses fronting the fort. They found about them plenty of provisions, as well in the houses of the natives, as of the French inhabitants.

The fort of Karical ftands 300 yards from the fea-fhore: a river coming from the weft ftrikes when opposite to the weft fide of the fort in a curve to the fouth, which continues until opposite to the east fide at the distance of 500 yards, when the channel turning again directly to the east, in a 100 yards more difembogues into the fea. The fort was an oblong square, completely fortified, but had the greatest of defects, the want of space: for its internal area, exclusive of the four bastions, was no more than 100 yards from w. to E. and only 50 from N. to S. The bastions admitted only three guns, guns in their faces, but each of the four curtains was covered by a ravelin much more fpacious than the baffions, and mounting fix. A wet ditch ran between the three curtains to the N. w. and s. and their ravelins; but on the east face the ditch furrounded the ravelin likewife, and dry ground occupied the fpace between the rear of this ravelin and the east curtain, continuing round the two bastions in an excellent fauffebray, from the interior angles of which the ravelin projected. A covered way well palifaded, and a complete glacis, furrounded the whole, nevertheless the exterior extent, measuring across from the foot of the glacis, was in the longest direction, that from E. to w. not more than 200 yards; and the pettah outftretched this face 200 yards on either hand. The garrifon had lately deftroyed the line of buildings in the pettah, which fkirted the efplanade, and had been fuffered to rife within 60 yards of the foot of the glacis; but this demolition added only a fpace of 40 yards to the esplanade, and that not clear; for the rubbish not being yet removed ftill afforded fome fhelter.

KARICAL.

As foon as the English troops had taken poffession of the pettah, Mr. Call, with the pioneers, marched, and took pofferfion of a faluting-battery, which lay near the mouth of the river, where was likewife the flag-flaff for the road. The fort fired fiercely as they were paffing, but did no harm; and in the night the pioneers began to conftruct a battery near the river on the efplanade, which was clear quite up to where the river changes from the curve it has made, and firikes fireight to the fea: they were not interrupted in their work; neither did the troops in the pettah receive any alarm from the garrifon. The next evening a ten-inch mortar was landed. and at ten at night began to bombard Fort Dauphin. The range was exactly gained at the first shell, and only thirteen were fired before the guard, confifting of 50 men, abandoned it; and, knowing ways of which the English troops were not apprized, gained the fort without interruption. About the fame time twelve gunners fent from Pondichery, who had landed at Tranquebar, got into the fort, notwithstanding a company of marines were looking out for them, who kept too far from the fea-fhore, whilft the gunners travelled velled along the beach until they came to the river, when they continued under the bank unperceived by the pioneers employed in conftructing the battery.

Book XII.

Book XII.

The cover afforded by the pettah determined the attack to be carried on against the north face of the fort; and the greater extent of the esplanade to the east, which is 500 yards (whereas to the weft it is interrupted by the curve of the river at 300) gave the preference of the enfilade from the east, which of confequence determined the breach to be in the north-east bastion, and on its north face. Accordingly, three batteries were marked out in the pettah, one to breach, and one on each hand to take off the defences : in the battery to the east, two of the guns enfiladed the north line in its whole length, and the other two plunged into the opposite ravelin, and acrofs into the ravelin on the fouth : fo that every part of the fort would be laid under fire. Sailors were landed with the heavy artillery from the fhips, and affifted in drawing them, and in the other fervices ufually allotted to bullocks and coolies; for all the neighbouring villages were deferted, and fupplied neither man nor beaft ; and no tidings arrived of the Captain Joseph Smith's detachment, nor of the affiftance expected from the garrifon of Tritchinopoly; and the king of Tanjore avoided all correspondence with the armament. salala en no tovit ods then

Captain Joseph Smith received the orders of the prefidency on the 25th, the day he was fetting out with the Nabob from Volcondah, againft Thiagar; he immediately turned his march to Karical; and the Nabob, unwilling to remain with only his own troops in the middle of the Carnatic, determined to march with the detachment. The neareft road leading from Volcondah towards Karical falls upon the Coleroon, 30 miles N. N. W. of the city of Tanjore. Having croffed the river, which is there fpacious, you continue to Combaconum, which stands five miles farther, on the bank of the first arm of the Caveri; and beyond this is another arm to crofs, before you join the road leading east to the fea-fhore : much of the ground between the rivers is funk in marshes, and the base ground is overflowed in rice-fields, without any continued road, which greatly re-2 tard the paffage of carriages; and the way between Volcondah and Karical being 120 miles, the march can fcarcely be performed in lefs than ten days; but Captain Smith had received his orders to advance only four days before the armament anchored at Karical, whofe ignorance of the impoffibility of his appearance aggravated their anxiety concerning the arrival of the French fquadron, which intelligence, artfully inculcated from Pondicherry, led them to expect from day to day when all the marines and failors muft have been reimbarked, and Major Monfon would have been left with only 60 Europeans, and without a field-piece.

However, these apprehensions only encreased their activity in pushing the attack. The ten-inch mortar, which had been employed against Fort Dauphin, was removed on the 31st, and threw shells all night. The garrifon returned round and grape from their cannon, and even used their musketry, although all they fired at was under cover, or out of reach : this early profusion of ammunition is rarely followed by vigorous defence at extremity. In the morning of the Ift of April the two embrafures on the right of the enfilading battery to the eaft were opened. The paffage into the covered way lay opposite to this battery, leading through the glacis on the left face of its angle projecting to the eaft, and the garrifon had lain a row of wood and palmiras in front of the barrier gate, which clofed this paffage at the foot of the glacis, in order to conftruct a battery there with thefe materials. The ten-inch mortar fometimes threw carcaffes of fire-balls to fet them afire, but without effect; and two royals, of which the shells are 5 inches and 5 twelfths diameter, continually bombarded the fort. In the morning of the 2d, the other two embrafures were opened in the enfilading battery. At ten o'clock, arrived Captain Richard Smith from Tritchinopoly with Lafcars, oxen, coolies, and ftores ; and the Nabob came up likewife with 1000 horfe and fix companies of Sepoys, whom Captain Joseph Smith had fent forward, as the rains and the badnefs of the roads retarded the carriages and baggage of his detachment, with which he remained to bring them on. This reinforcement afforded troops fufficient to 621 1760. March.

inveft the fort all round. In this day the enemy's fire was exceffive, and difmounted one of the guns at the enfilading battery, and endamaged all its embrafures; but all were reftored during the night, and the fame number of guns began to fire again the next morning, which was the 3d of the month. At eight o'clock of this day, Captain Jofeph Smith came up with the reft of his detachment, which were 1 30 European mufketry, thirty artillery-men, two field-pieces, and five companies of Sepoys. The enemy during the night finished two embrasures in one face of their battery at the barrier, which pointed against the enfilading battery; and traces appeared of another face to the north, which set for the attack had thrown up a flight retrenchment.

Early the next morning, the breaching battery in the centre ftreet opened with three twenty-four pounders against the N. face of the N.E. baftion, at the diftance of 1 50 yards, and was fo well ferved by Captain Barker, who attended it, that in three rounds the enemy quitted the three guns in the face attacked, and in lefs than an hour all the merlons were beat down; the other face had before been much shattered by the enfilading battery, which had likewife nearly ruined the north face of the east ravelin : fo that neither of the batteries had occasion to fire more than a shot now and then through the reft of the day. Sepoys were posted in the ruins of the houses, who kept up a constant fire through the night on the baftion and ravelin, to prevent the enemy from placing fand-bags to repair them. By the next morning, which was the 5th of the month, and the 10th fince the landing, a battery, intended to deftroy the east face of the north ravelin, was almost completed, and the other against the N.W. bastion quite finished; but the guns for neither were yet landed from the fhips. Intelligence was received, that a detachment of 450 infantry, and 150 European horfe, were arrived at Chillambarum from Pondicherry, intending to advance and interrupt the fiege. The breach, though broad, could not be mounted without clambering, and the immediate accefs to it was still defended by the ditch, to which the befiegers had not yet approached, and

and by the parapet of the fauffe-bray, which remained undamaged : but the gate of the barrier leading through the glacis to the eaft. ravelin, had been beaten down by ricochet fhot flying over the battery, which the enemy had raifed before it. The bafcul, or carpentry, which raifed and let down the draw-bridge before the N.E. face of the east ravelin, had likewife been shot away, and the bridge fallen into its place, and the garrifon had not yet deftroyed it to interrupt. the paffage, which thus remained clear to the ravelin. The gateway leading through the curtain into the fort was at the back of this ravelin : and the fame fire had deftroyed the gates which clofed it. nor had any thing been fubfituted to ftop the paffage; fo that, if the ftorm had been immediately and defperately attempted this way. the enemy had nothing to oppose it, but the arms in their hands... All thefe circumftances Major Monfon did not know; but the commandant of the fort feared, and anfwered the fummons by requefting to march away with the honours of war : to which Monfon replied, that the whole garrifon must become prifoners of war; but that the inhabitants fhould be left in pofferfion of their houfes in the pettah, the officers have their baggage, and the Sepoys might go. where they pleafed. The terms were accepted; and the English troops marched in at two in the afternoon. The garrifon confifted of 115 Europeans, of whom 101 were military, 72 Topaffes, and 250 Sepoys. Befides fmaller arms and flores, there were in the place 155 pieces of cannon of all forts, and nine mortars, with a large flock of ammunition for both. Only five men were killed in the defence, and in the attack only three Europeans, one of whom was a failor, and five wounded. Never perhaps was fo great an armament prepared, to fucceed with fo little lofs, excepting when Delabourdonnais took Madrafs in 1746.

Neverthelefs, the capture was well worth the exertion : as befides the advantages of its fituation with refpect to the fea, it afforded the French a conftant and certain inlet to the territories of Tanjore, , and by various purchafes and ceffions from the government they had acquired diffricts round the fort, containing 113 villages, of which the farms, with the cuftoms of the port and town, never Vol. II. 4 L produced produced lefs than 30,000 pagodas a year, fufficient for the expence of the garrifon. As the fort was too finall, all the European inhabitants had their houfes in the pettah, which were well built, as were many of those belonging to the natives, and room was left and marked for more to both. The Nabob derived no advantage by this fuccess, beyond the detriment it occasioned to his enemies; for a member of the council of Madrass had been fent in the squadron, to negotiate with Tanjore for the redemption of the diffricts.

Book XII.

The absence of Colonel Coote and Major Monfon had left the main army to the command of Major Robert Gordon, who moved with it from Alamparvah on the 28th of March, and on the 1st of April encamped at Killenore, from whence he fent forward a detachment of observation, to take post at Manoor, within five miles of Valdore. The fweep of Country to the weftward of Killenore as far as Villaporum, which lies 20 miles due weft of Pondicherry, abounds in cattle, and is as fertile as any part of the Carnatic, and remained at this time, as the French territory became every day more circumfcribed, their laft refource for provisions. All the countries, which had been reduced to the fouth of Chittapett and Vandivafh as far as Permacoil, had been let by the Prefidency of Madrafs to a Malabar, named Ramalinga, who accompanied the army ready to rent more, and kept feveral companies of irregular Sepoys with him, to place as guards in new diffricts, as reduced. By his advice, Major Gordon refolved to fend a detachment against Villaporum. The diftance was 35 miles, and the way lay between the garrifon of Gingee on one hand, and of Valdore on the other. The detachment confifted of 200 black horfe, and five companies of Sepoys, under the command of captain Wood, and the renter accompanied with his people. They marched from Killenore on the 3d of April, a little after fun-fet, and, passing through Vicravandi, captain Wood, with the horfe, arrived before Villaporum at ten the next morning, but the Sepoys did not come up until two in the afternoon. The best intelligence that could be obtained, reported, that there were 300 Sepoys and 400 horfe in the place; and at fix, as foon as the Sepoys were refreshed, Wood led them to the attack, which could only only be made by fcrambling up the wall, as they had no ladders. Eight or ten got up to the parapet, but three or four mounting at the fame time were killed, which deterred thofe who were next from following, and flung the whole into confusion, on which the enemy fallied, but the horfe rode in between, and drove them back. The Sepoys rallied again in the pettah, and were preparing ladders to efcalade before day-break; but at eight o'clock at night the garrifon abandoned the fort. Captain Wood placed three of the regular companies of Sepoys, and 200 of the renters, to garrifon it, under the command of an Entign; and at ten at night fet out on his return with the cavalry and the other company of Sepoys. They arrived at one in the morning at Vicrivandi, where he left this company, and, proceeding, rejoined the camp a little after fun-rife with the cavalry, which accomplifhed this march of 60 miles in 36 hours.

Since the retreat of the French army, their countries to the weftward of Villaporum and Gingee, and the forts intended to protect them, had, like this, been left to the defence of fuch troops as the renters chose to levy and maintain ; and in the end of March, Captain Airey, who commanded in Chittapett, and from thence over Trinomaly, fent a detachment of Sepoys to enable the garrifon there to take the field, which in a few days drove the guards out of Soolabgur, Tricalour, and Trivaneloor: thefe three forts had been taken poficifion of by Mahomed Iffoof and Kiftnarow of Thiagar, whilft they were ravaging the countries adjacent to them during the fiege of Madrafs. Soolabgur is fituated on a hill 15 miles s.s.w. and Tricolour on the plain 20 miles s. of Trinomaly : Trivelanoor stands 10 miles s. E. of Tricaloor, and 20 s. w. of Villaporum. The French garrifon of Gingee on the one fide, and of Thiagar on the other, were the nearest to protect these lesser forts ; but both were too much alarmed for their own fafety, to rifk any detachments. abroad : the one by the Nabob's camp then at Volcondah, the other by the English army at Killenore. Kistnarow, after the loss of Thiagar in the preceding month of June, had remained with the Nabob at Tritchinopoly, and, after the victory of Vandivash, obtained his permiffion to act as a free-booter in the French districts, and, having 4 L 2

having plunder to offer, eafily enlifted a number of horfe, with which he accompanied the Nabob to Volcondah, and from thence trooped away to the country about Chilambarum, where they were carrying on all kind of ravage, at the time that Captain Wood marched and took Villaperum.

Colonel Coote recovered of his wound, rejoined the army at Killenore on the 7th ; and the next day, after reconnoitring Valdore, fent off 350 of the black horfe, to join Kiftnarow in the country about Chilambarum; fo that a chain of troops, or posts, was now established, which encircled Pondicherry in a fweep of 70 miles, from that place to Allamparvah. On the 10th, a large number of Sepoys were feen marching into Valdore from the Gingee road: they were what remained of the body commanded by Zulphacarjung, who, when driven out of the pettah of Arcot by captain Wood, continued, until this fort was taken, at the back of Velore, encouraged for fear of accidents by Mortizally. From Velore he marched to Gingee; and Mr. Lally, yielding to the reprefentation of Mr. Deleyrit, and the general difcouragement, represed his prejudices against these troops, and recalled them to act again with the European force. Zulpharcarjung left a part of his Sepoys to reinforce Valdore, and marched on with the reft into Pondicherry.

The next day Colonel Coote advanced the army to Manoor, and fent forward Major Robert Gordon, with a large detachment, to take pofferfion of the pettah under the fort of Valdore; the day after, which was the 12th, he brought up the reft of the army, and encamped at Cartaricopum, a village about a mile to the eaft, nearer Pondicherry. In the night, two batteries were commenced, and fhells thrown, which the garrifon anfwered by fhot, and both were employed without mifchief. The next day all the cavalry, not on duty, were detached, under the command of a Lieutenant, to reconnoitre: and proceeded to the hither end of the Red-hill. The French cavalry with fome platoons of infantry advanced towards them, and made fome evolutions as intending to fall on their flanks, which the Englifh cavalry prevented by contrary motions, and returned turned to camp. They had perceived at a diffance a large cloud of duft, as of troops with cannon, advancing from Pondicherry.

The fort of Valdore stands nine miles N. N. W. of Pondicher.y. Its form is an exact parallelogram, fquaring with the compass; and extending 300 yards from E. to W. and 210 from N. to s. It is fituated in a plain, and its original fortifications, like the generality of the forts in the country, were a rampart with towers, a faussie-bray, and a ditch. Mr. Dupleix, had raised a glacis on the north-fide, and had converted the center tower on this fide, and that in the s. w. angle, into bastions with faces and flanks; but the pettah, which is to the west, remained within 150 yards of the wall: so that the vicinity of Pondicherry was its best defence. In the morning of the 14th, one of the batteries opened; it fronted and battered the tower in the north-west angle with one gun, and with the other took off the defences of the next tower in the west wall.

The duft feen the day before was from a body of troops marching to encamp under Villenore. The intelligence of the prefent day faid they were the whole army, and that Mr. Lally intended to attack the English camp by furprize in the enfuing night, which determined Colonel Coote to reconnoitre them himfelf when the fun abated in the afternoon. All the cavalry in two divisions, each accompanied by five companies of Sepoys, marched with him. When arrived at the Red-hill, oppofite to Villenore, he proceeded along the foot of it with one of the divisions, and fent the other across the plain, to examine the enemy's out-pofts on that fide, whilft his own division came opposite to a body of Europeans, with two fieldpieces drawn up in the high road nearest the hill, leading to the bound-hedge. They cannonaded, but at too great a diftance; and Colonel Coote continued under the fide of the hill until dark, in order to perfuade the enemy that he intended to patrole the field all night; but returned foon after to the camp. Five or fix Sepoys and a horfe were killed in this fervice. In the fiege, one of the guns in the battery was ruined by the fire of the fort. Shells continued through the night, and the next morning, which was the 15th, the other other battery was completed and opened. It faced the tower in the s. w. angle, and the fire from both continued through the day as hot as it could be fafely kept up. The whole of the French troops had affembled at Villenore during the night, and pushed on advanced pofts, which, in the morning, began to fkirmifh with those of the camp; where all, excepting the men at the batteries, were kept in readinefs to turn out the line, but the enemy's main body did not advance. Intelligence was repeated of their intentions to attack the camp this night, as the night before : on which Colonel Coote ftruck all the tents at funfet, as if he meant to change his ground, but pitched them again in the fame place after dark; but half the troops lay on their arms until day-light. The howitz continued through the night, and in the morning the batteries, which had been much impaired, renewed their fire as violently as the day before. The fkirmishes likewife recommenced between the outguards of both armies. At two in the afternoon, both breaches appeared practicable; and a deferter, who at this hour efcaped from the fort, reported, that the garrifon had nearly expended all their ammunition, and were inclined, if not immediately relieved, to furrender ; on which Colonel Coote ordered Major Gordon, who commanded the attack, to fummons the commandant at four o'clock, at which hour he fhould proceed himfelf with the main body from the . camp, and offer battle to the enemy's ; which if they avoided, and the garrifon refufed to furrender, Major Gordon was to ftorm the breaches, and Colonel Coote would fend affiftance; but, if the enemy's army came to an engagement, Gordon was to march from the batteries with his division, and form the third line in the order of battle. Accordingly the main body advanced a mile and a half from the camp, and halted in fight of the enemy, who only fent forward their European cavalry and fome Sepoys, which were met by parties of the English cavalry, European and black, fupported likewife by Sepoys, and fome were wounded on both fides by fire-arms, but no charges made hand to hand. At fix o'clock, Colonel Coote received word, that the garrifon of Valdore had confented to furrender without terms the next morning, and had given up the outer gate, on which he

he returned with the line to the camp. The garrifon confifted of a captain, a lieutenant, 80 other Europeans, and 280 Sepoys: they had loft only two men killed, and three wounded; and the English not more. There were in the fort 25 pieces of cannon, and fome paddy. Colonel Coote, as foon as he had taken possifier, detached 200 of the black horse, with 300 Sepoys, under the command of Affasheg, to take Trivadi, in which were sepoys that protected the district, and gathered the produce for the French government.

Of the French prifoners which had been taken in the late fucceffes, the Prefidency of Madrafs had inlifted 60 of those confined there, and fent them to the camp. These men, as foon as they came before Valdore, fo near their own army and their capital, deferted daily, and 40 of them were gone before the place was reduced; fome of the company of French Volunteers likewife went off, although they had hitherto behaved with as much spirit as if fighting under, instead of against, their own colours. But as foon as Valdore fell, new deferters began to come over from the enemy, three, four, and five in a day: nevertheles all that remained of those fent from Madrafs were returned thither to be confined again, for the perfidy of their comrades.

On the 19th, Colonel Coote went out again in the afternoon, with the cavalry, and fix companies of Sepoys, to reconnoitre on the Red-hill; the French cavalry, fupported likewife by fome Sepoys, came out, and advanced along the neareft avenue, but only the Sepoys on either fide engaged, and that with diftant firing, until four field-pieces came up from Villenore, on which Colonel Coote returned to the camp. Two of his black horfemen were killed, and the horfe of a trooper, with five Sepoys, wounded.

During theie operations of the main army, Colonel Monfon was advancing with his division from Karical. The French prisoners taken there were fent to Tritchinopoly, under the effort of two companies of Sepoys, and of 60 of the Europeans, who had been drawn from that garrison on this fervice; two other of these companies, and two lent by the Nabob, with 12 Europeans, were left in in Karical. Captain Joseph Smith, with the rest of his command! from Tritchinopoly, of which 30 were artillery men, remained, as did half the marines from the fquadron; the other half, with all the battering artillery, were re-embarked. The Nabob with his troops, likewife accompanied Major Monfon. They moved on the 10th of April, and continued by the road along the fea-fhore, until they came to the mouths of the Coleroon near Devicotah, when they ftruck to the weft, and paffed the river in its fingle channel, oppofite to the pagoda of Chilambarum. At the paffage, they were joined by Kiftnarow, with his party of horfe, who a few days before had intercepted two companies of Sepoys, efcorting three tumbrils of ammunition to Chilambarum, which he took, having killed and difperfed all the Sepoys, and gathered up their arms. Major Monfon fummoned this place on the 19th; and on refufal, two eighteen-pounders were difembarked from the fquadron, which was at anchor off the bar of Devicotah. They were brought on catamarans up the Coleroon, and joined the camp the next day. The flender walls of the pagoda would not have refifted a fingle fhot, and, although the French had projected redoubts at the four angles, and one in the middle of the north, and another of the fouth wall; thefe works had only been carried up a little way in earth, and could only ferve for cannon fired in barbette; fcaffoldings had been erected for musketry, and there was a gun in each of the towers at the angles. In the twilight of the evening, the garrifon perceived the artillery-men of the camp bringing fafcines to the fpot where the battery was intended, and miftook the fafcines for fcaling-ladders; on which the officers held a confultation, which did not refolve until midnight; when the camp, to their great furprize, faw a number of torches held out together upon the wall, and difcovered amongft them a white flag, which the torches were illuminating. The fignal of furrender was accepted; fome troops advanced to the gate, and were admitted on the promife of good treatment to the garrifon ; which confifted of eight officers, and 40 other Europeans. The next day, the marines were fent to Devicotah, to be re-embarked on the fquadron; and Kiftnarow, with his horfe, was detached to T. deftroy deftroy the French diffricts about Cuddalore. This way lay the neareft road to Valdore; but Major Monfon, imagining that Mr. Lally might poft a force at Cuddalore to interrupt the march of his own, which was not ftrong in Europeans, if they fhould take this route; and, being unwilling to expose the perfon of the Nabob to any danger, refolved to turn inland, and attack Verdachelum; from whence he might proceed to Valdore, keeping the main body of the army between his own division and Pondicherry.

The enemy kept only Sepoys in their flation at Trivadi, who abandoned it on the approach of Affafbeg's detachment, although they came without cannon. Encouraged by this eafy fuccefs, Affafbeg proceeded towards Cuddalore, where the fame panic had prevailed, and no troops remained to oppose his entrance; but the town was not entirely deferted by the inhabitants. This station was of much utility, as the road was in fight, and at this feafon to windward of Pondicherry: two companies of Sepoys were posted in the town; the houses of the factory were prepared to serve as an hospital to the fquadron ; bullocks were fent off to fupply the fhips with fresh provisions; and the few boatmen remaining in the town received encouragement to collect more of their own craft from different parts of the coaft. On the 25th Rear-admiral Cornish anchored in the road, with the fix men of war from Karical, and on the 29th was joined by Admiral Stevens, with four more from Bombay : they were part of the nine, which composed Mr. Pococke's fquadron in the preceding year, two of which were arrived before with Mr. Cornifh. Of the three others, the Salifbury was not completely repaired, and the Cumberland had not entered the dock when Mr. Stevens failed; the Yarmouth remained, in confequence of orders from the admiralty, to convey Mr. Pococke to England, from whence he had been abfent five years. All the prefidencies followed him with the most grateful acknowledgements of the eminent fervices he had rendered the nation during his continuance and command in the feas of India, which he completed, by efcorting fafely from St. Helena, in the heat of the war, 13 fail of the company's fhips returning from their fettlements, which arrived in VOL. England in the October following, and were the richeft fleet that had ever entered the Thames at one time.

The two armies had continued in their respective encampments. their advanced guards in full fight, and continually alarming one another; and on the 27th at day-break, the French cavalry, with 50 of their infantry, attacked a poft of Sepoys and black horfe, killed fix or feven of each, and wounded more; and loft themfelves two huffars killed, and their officer, with feveral wounded.

Nothing of confequence paffed for feveral days after, and in the night between the first and fecond of May, the whole French army decamped from Perimbé, and retreated close to the bound-hedge, leaving only an advanced post with two guns about half a mile in front of the main body. Colonel Coote went in the afternoon. with his ufual efcorte of horfe and Sepoys, to reconnoitre their pofition, and, advancing too near, feveral of his Sepoys were killed by the fire of the cannon from the advanced poft.

Major Monfon with his division, and the Nabob with his troops, arrived before Verdachelum on the 26th. This place stands 60 miles N. N. W. of Chillambrum, and 60 s. w. from Valdore. It is extensive, and was originally a pagoda, and although converted into a fort by the addition of towers at the angles, and projected maffies of mafonry in each of the fides as gateways, ftill continued of very feeble defence against cannon. It feemed therefore only to acquit his military honour, that the commanding officer refufed to furrender on the first fummons; for the next day, on the appearance of the two eighteen-pounders in battery, he of his own accord threw out the white flag, and furrendered at difcretion. His garrifon were, befides himfelf and another officer, 13 Europeans, and 1 50 Sepoys. This place as well as Chillambrum was delivered over to the Nabob, who gave them in charge of his own Sepoys, and put both garrifons under the command of Kiftnarow. He was here joined by his brother, Maphuze Khan, who when least expected, had left the Pulitaver in the beginning of January, and joined Mahomed Iffoof at Tinivelly; from whence he was fent, with an efcorte, to Puducotah, the principal town of the polygar Tondiman, where where he remained, ftill full of fufpicions of the evil intentions of the Nabob, until encouraged to truft him by repeated affurances from the Prefidency, that no harm fhould befall him. He arrived with very few attendants, and had not money to entertain more. From Verdachelum, the troops continued their route by Villaporum and Vicravandi, and arrived at Valdore on the 3d of May. The Nabob remained in the camp until the 10th, much delighted with the army and commanders, who had reftored him to fo great a part of his dominions. He then proceeded to Madrafs, in order to regulate with the Prefidency the modes of adminifration in the countries which had been recovered.

The French, when they abandoned Cuddalore, demolifhed the parapets of the baffions, took down the three gates, and made feveral breaches in the rampart, and the whole face of the town fronting the fea never had a wall. Several informations had been lately received, that Mr. Lally intended to retake Cuddalore, of which Colonel Coote advifed the officers there, and warned them to keep fpecial guard. On the 10th at night, 100 Europeans, with 60 huffars and three companies of Sepoys, entered the town, furprized and difperfed the Sepoys, and advanced to the hofpital, where they took five furgeons, fix petty officers, and 58 failors and marines belonging to the fquadron, moftly fick, whom they carried away, and left none of their own men to maintain the place. The next day, a reinforcement of two companies of Sepoys, with 20 of the European horfe, and a field-piece, under the command of Lieutenant Fitzgerald, were fent into the town from the camp, and 60 marines were landed from the fquadron. At four in the enfuing morning, whilft it was yet dark, a ftronger party than the night before entered the town again, and took the field-piece; but, finding more refistance than they expected, retreated over the rivers towards Fort St. David, of which the fortifications had been fo completely demolifhed, that a fingle redoubt was not left to give post to a company of infantry. Lieutenant Fitzgerald, with the huffars and fome Sepoys, for all would not move, and none of the marines, followed, and hung in their rear, until they had recroffed the Panar beyond Fort St. David; where the enemy abandoned the fieldpiece they had taken. It was faid, that the commander was killed. three other officers wounded, and 32 of the common foldiers killed and wounded. Of the English troops a Jemidar with 20 Sepoys were wounded, and a Subadhar was killed. From this earneftnefs, other attempts were expected, and diligence was used to render the place more defenfible, and the Sepoys were augmented to 700. On the 20th, information was received, that the enemy intended another attack, with a much greater force than the laft: on which, Colonel Coote detached an officer, with 30 Europeans, and 300 black horfe, to interrupt their parties, or fuccour the place. The officer went with the Europeans into the town, and flationed the horfe at a diftance without; between one and two in the morning, the expected attack was made by 700 Europeans, 400 Sepoys, 1 50 of the French horfe, which were half this body: and they had four field-pieces. They divided into five different affaults ; all entered the town, but were flopped at the traverfes which had been thrown up in the ftreets leading to the hospital, which refifted the direct fire of their field-pieces, and commanded their mufketry. They however perfifted, until two of their officers were killed, and 60 private men killed and wounded. The English officer followed them, with the black horfe and fome Sepoys, to the Panar: but their cavalry and field-pieces keeping in order in the rear, deterred any effectual attempt to interrupt their retreat.

On the 23d, the Salifbury joined the fquadron from Bombay, and brought from thence to the affiftance of the army three companies of the royal artillery, which the King had fent for the defence of that ifland, and the government there, very judicioufly, to the coaft, where they were more immediately wanted. They were 178 men, exclusive of officers, all found, and joined the army a few days after from Cuddalore, where they landed. After the retreat of the French troops to the bound-hedge, the two camps were at too great a diftance to afford fuch continual occasions of skirmish as before.

PONDICHERRY.

The fucceffes of the English army, had not a little conduced to encreafe the diffentions which had long rent the government of Pondicherry, where calamity, inftead of reconciling, only exafperated the animofities of those who were sharing the fame distresses. The lofs of Permacoil was imputed to the retreat of the army, which was on march to relieve it; but they were only faulty in not having advanced with more expedition; and in either cafe Mr. Lally, not being prefent, was exempt from blame : which neverthelefs was urged, becaufe the officer who commanded in his absence was of his own regiment, and fuppofed to be much in his favour. The fall of Alamparvah was afcribed to the lofs of Permacoil, and Valdore to malignant treachery, that Pondicherry might be deprived of the last post which remained to protect any convoys which might attempt to get into the town. Mr. Lally was informed of what every one thought and faid concerning himfelf; and retaliated with farcafms on their foreness for the loss of their own peculations out of the districts which he had been obliged to abandon. In this flate of virulence were minds, when the fquadron with Mr. Cornish was working up the coaft to Karical. There were in the town of Pondicherry, 600 Europeans, invalids, fit only for garrifon duty : and the inhabitants were 500 more Europeans. Thefe, added to the regular troops, would contribute to make a formidable difplay, which Mr. Lally intended to exhibit on the ftrand to the view of the fquadron, as they were passing through the road : orders were given in confequence. The covenanted fervants of the French company were to be a part of the parade; but a little before, at the hour appointed, they came into the court of the government-houfe, and fent up word to Mr. Lally, that they would not march unlefs led by the Governor and Council, whom Mr. Lally had exempted from this duty. Mr. Deleyrit, the governor, immediately offered to put himfelf at their head; but the counfellors coming in, faid, that none of the Company's fervants were obliged to bear arms out of the walls of the town. On this declaration, Mr. Lally arrested the twospokefmen of the Council, and two of the forwardest of the repugnants, difarmed and difinified the reft, and went on with the review without without them. The offence and punishment left no bounds to the mutual averfion between him and the company's fervants. Whilft the English army were attacking Valdore, two ships arrived from the illands; they brought neither troops nor money, but unfavourable advices, which were with much caution fuppreffed, and publifhed as good news with falute of cannon, fireworks, and rejoicings, " That Mr. D'Aché's fquadron, reinforced from France to 25 fail " of the line, might be foon expected on the coaft, with a large body " of land forces on board." After the fall of Valdore, a few enclofures under the guns at Villanore and Ariancopang, with the ground within the bound-hedge, and the town of Pondicherry itfelf, contained all the live provisions, on which the colony was to rely for their future fuftenance, and all further means were precluded of bringing in grain or other articles of flore from the country without; for although Gingee and Thiagar remained in the hands of the French, their fituation was diftant, and their garrifons not ftrong enough to furnish sufficient efcorts, and no parties equal to the fame purpose could be detached from the main body, without incurring the rifque of interception. When the farm of the diffricts adjacent to Pondicherry was taken from the European renters, and let to the Malabar, after the defeat at Vandivash, there was a fufficient quantity of grain on the ground in reach of Pondicherry, to have flocked the place, as fome fay, for years; but money was then more fcarce than victuals, and the new farmer was permitted to fell his grain, that he might be enabled to pay his rent in coin into the treasury, instead of delivering grain, as acquittal, into the magazines. As foon as Permacoil and Alamparvah fell, and the English army advanced between Gingee and Pondicherry, Mr. Lally faw this error, and that it was not retrievable, but by means which he had hitherto, with too much prefumption, defpifed.

Hyder Ally, the general of the Myforeans, had at this time acquired the whole power of the government. He had lately taken the King out of the hands of his uncle, the Dalaway, whom we have feen commanding the Myfore troops before Tritchino-ALL PROPERTY AND A STATE OF THE STATE poly. 2

poly. The Dalaway had agreed to retire to the fort of Myfore with a jaghire allowed for his maintenance and fecurity, and Hyder Ally was left without controul ; for the King was young, weak, and timid. Not unmindful, however, of a reverfe of fortune, Hyder Ally caft about to get fome place of refuge immediately for his treafures, and contingently for his own perfon; and judicioufly preferred Thiagar in the Carnatic, as well for the difficulty of accefs to it from Myfore, as the inexpugnable nature of its fortifications. A Portuguese monk, named Norognha, who affumed, and perhaps had obtained, the title of Bishop of Halicarnaffus, had, by refidence under the pretext of religious miffion, acquired much knowledge of the adjacent countries, as well as of the Carnatic itfelf, and Mr. Lally, immediately on his arrival at Pondicherry, gave him his confidence, and employed him in all his transactions with the chiefs of the country. The bishop performed his commissions with zeal; for he was greedy of money, and it is a common cuftom in India to give fome to the negotiator of a treaty. It was he who bargained for the Morattoes who joined the French army at Arcot; after which he continued in Velore, watching other opportunities, and either fuggefted to Hyder Ally, or difcovered his inclinations to obtain Thiagar. Mr. Lally feeing no other means of procuring relief to the neceffities which began to threaten Pondicherry, reprefied the contempt with which he had hitherto regarded the military faculties of the princes in India, and fent two of his officers to conclude the treaty with Hyder Ally. It was agreed, " that Hyder fhould immediately fend a body of 2000 horfe, and " 3000 Sepoys. with artillery, who, on their arrival at Thiagar, " were to be put in poffession of that fort, and of Elvanafore, with " the dependencies of both, which were to remain the property of " the Myforeans in perpetuity as long as the flag of France exifted in " India. This army was to be paid at the rate of 100,000 rupees a " month, from the day of their arrival at Thiagar. Ten eighteen " pounders were to be given as a prefent to Hyder, exclusive of the " artillery in the two forts, which, as well as all the military flores, " was to be delivered with them. His troops were to be furnished " with

" with ammunition, whilft ferving for the French ; who, after the Carnatic fhould be cleared, were to affift him in conquering the fouthern countries of Madura and Tinivelly. Befides the number already ftipulated, Hyder Ally engaged to fupply 1000 horfe and 2000 Sepoys more : in confideration of which, half the countries which fhould be recovered in the Carnatic, were to be affigned to his government, excepting the French company's domains of Villenore, Valdore, Bahoor, and Alamparvah : the territory of Vellore, as belonging to Mortizally, their ally, and the diffricts dependant on Trinomalee, having been granted in appanage to Rajahfaheb, the fon of Chundafaheb, were likewife exempted ; and whatfoever portion of the Carnatic fhould fall to the Myforeans, was to be delivered back to the French, in proportion to the progrefs of the acquifitions in the fouthern countries."

The negotiation was conducted with fo much fecrecy, that no furmifes of it were obtained by the English until the 24th of May. just as their late fucceffes feemed to have left nothing on the land. which could interrupt the profecution of their intention to blockade Pondicherry; for which, preparations were making at Madrafs, when Colonel Coote received intelligence of this unexpected alliance by a letter from one of his correspondents in Pondicherry, fignifying, that Mr. Lally was preparing a confiderable detachment, to march and join Hyder Ally at Thiagar. Hyder it was known was not there, nor was there any probability, that his other interefts would permit him to leave Seringapatam : nor were any difpositions observed in the enemy's encampment, which fignified fuch a detachment as was faid to be going. On the 30th, Colonel Coote went out to reconnoitre them himfelf, accompanied as ufual by the black horfe and Sepoys. The enemy cannonaded hotly, and killed fome of the horfemen ; but Affafbeg, with two or three fquadrons, broke in upon their Sepoys, and killed 14 of them. Nothing appeared for feveral days after to confirm the intelligence; and Colonel Coote began to regard it as a rumour thrown out by Mr. Lally himfelf, to conceal fome other defign, when, on the 7th of June, he received a confirmation of it from Kift-

June.

The first division of the Myfore troops, confisting of 1000 horfe, and 2000 Sepoys, arrived at Thiagar on the 4th of June, and the next day fome of their parties, roaming to collect cattle, skirmished with Kistnarow's near the pettah of Volcondah. The rest of the division still remaining at Thiagar were 30 miles nearer Pondicherry; and Kistnarow believing the exaggerated accounts of their numbers, and being in want of ammunition, hurried back to protect the diftricts of Verdachelum, which had been entrusted, not without profit, to his care; from hence he fent his report and his fears to Colonel Coote, with earnest request of reinforcements; and then, he faid, he would march, and beat the Myforeans.

A month before the rumours of these troops, the forces which the Myfore government maintained in Dindigul had commenced hostilities against the adjacent polygars depending on Tritchinopoly; and it was reported that they intended to get possession of the pafs of Nattam, which would preclude the immediate communication between Tritchinopoly and Madura. But as the Myforeans in these quarters had several times before attacked the poffeffions of the Nabob, their prefent hoftilities had not led to any fufpicions of the greater effort which Hyder Ally was preparing against the Carnatic ; nor were they deemed of danger to require immediate refiftance from this province : but Mahomed Iffoof fent a detachment from Tinivelly to Madura, from whence they were to take the field and enter the diffricts of Dindigul; and the troops maintained by the Nabob for the protection of the diffricts of Tritchinopoly, affembled at the pafs of Nattam, under the command of Huffain Cawn, who had ferved with the French at Terriore and Seringham until they retreated out of these countries, when he offered his fervice to the Nabob, and was accepted.

The heats of the feafon, fince the land-winds had fet in in April, had this year been much more intenfe than ufual; and had ftruck ficknefs through the camp. Sixty Europeans had died, and 300 were in the hofpital, and to preferve the reft from the fun, the dayduty of the line was done by the Sepoys. From the fame attention Vol. II. 4 N fifty 640 fifty of the late deferters had been incorporated, and called the Free 1760. June.

Company, under the command of two French officers, brothers, of the name of Martin; like the French volunteers, they were intended for the fervices of most fatigue and danger, and were now employed, for the first time. They marched on the 10th, accompanied by 25 Coffrees, two companies of Sepoys, 1000 black horfe, and an iron gun with five European gunners, to join Kiftnarow at Villaporum; as it was fuppofed the Myforeans would attempt to pafs either by this place, or Trivadi.

Book XII.

Although no regular detachments had marched from Pondicherry, fmall parties to the amount of 200 Europeans had paffed at different times undifcovered to Gingee, and from thence proceeded to Thiagar, before the first division of Myforeans arrived there; but remained in order to accompany the main body to Pondicherry. Preparing for this important convoy and reinforcement, the garrifons both of Thiagar and Gingee had collected all the cattle, which the inhabitants had not driven out of their reach : but the Myfore horfe in three days fwept a much greater number; but refused to proceed with them, until fully apprized what interruption they were likely to meet in the way; and the French officers were afraid to tell them that they only ran the rifque of more by this delay.

The Martins arrived at Villaporum on the 11th, and heard nothing of Kiftnarow; and the commandant of Gingee, thinking he could cope with their detachment, marched from his forts with 100 Europeans, fome Sepoys and black horfe. The Martins, as well as the deferters they commanded, behaved with much fpirit in their new caufe, and repulfed their countrymen, who acted but faintly. Some of the French Sepoys were killed, and two Europeans, a Topaze, and a Coffree, were made prifoners.

Notwithstanding this fuccefs and repeated injunctions Kistnarow ftill kept aloof; and, as it was fuppofed that the Myforeans already arrived were the whole body, and would advance, accompanied by the Europeans from Thiagar, to which force that with the Martins although ftrong, would in no wife have been equal, another detach-detachment still stronger was fent from the camp: both when joined would amount to 190 European infantry, 30 European horfe, 25 Coffrees, 600 Sepoys, and 1600 black horfe; and were to be commanded by major More, the fame who marched in January to Tripetty, and had lately been promoted from the rank of captain. More Myforeans arriving, they called in their parties, and being joined by 40 or 50 of the French troops from Thiagar, appeared before Tricalore on the 10th; but, the Frenchmen having brought only two or three fmall field-pieces, and the fort being of stone, the Sepoys within, who were three good companies left there by Captain Airey, refused to furrender; and by the fire of their mufketry from the walls obliged the enemy to retire ; who then went against Tritchimungalum, a fort five miles to the east, where the garrifon, which was likewife of Sepoys, took fright, and evacuated it on their approach. From this place all the Myfore cavalry, now 1500, fet off for Pondicherry, driving a multitude of cattle, but unaccompanied by any troops on foot, even their own, that, if interrupted, the horfe might be free to force their way, or retire. The rule of these countries had fo often been shifted to and fro by the fortune of war, and they had fuffered fo much. as well from the ravages of hoftility, as the concuffions of unfettled government, that they regarded both the English and French at leaft as tyrants, when not enemies; and, at this time, the renters and heads of villages, not knowing how foon they might have new mafters, gave no affiftance to Major More's detachment, who, diftreffed for provisions, and mifled by false intelligence, advanced from Villaporum towards Tricalore, where they expected fupplies, and hoped to intercept the Myforeans in their rout; who had paffed before to the fouth, by Trivanelore, and arrived at Trivadi on the 23d, where they halted the day. Mr. Lally, apprized of their approach, had moved his whole army from the bound hedge to his former encampment at Perimbé, in full fight of Valdore, and then detached 50 of his European cavalry to join the Myforeans on the road. Colonel Coote received quick intelligence of their arival at Trivadi, with an account of their num-4 N 2 bers, bers, and immediately fent out all the cavalry remaining in the camp, which were 1000 black, and 80 European horfe: they were led by Vafferot, but whilft proceeding ftreight towards Trivadi, the Myforeans filed off from thence along the Panar, until they reached the bounds of Fort St. David, and then croffing the plain, and keeping about a mile from the fea, came in towards the evening at Ariancopang, three miles in the rear of the French camp at Perimbé. They fet out from Trivadi, with 2000 head of cattle, which retarding their march, they left in different herds in various places, intending to return and bring them in by detachments; fo that only 500 bullocks arrived with them at the French camp.

The day after, Mr. Lally, in order to make proof of their fervice, advanced with them all, and the French European horfe, towards the grand guard of the Englifh cavalry, which was pofted a mile and a half in front of the camp. All, when at a proper diffance, fet off on the gallop, and furrounded the guard on every fide. Colonel Coote immediately pufhed to relieve them with the main body of the cavalry, from the camp; but before they came up, as thefe kind of onfets are generally decided in a very few minutes, the whole guard was difperfed, and hurrying back to take fhelter with the main body. The Myforeans carried off 30 horfes belonging to the black cavalry, and feven to the huffars.

Enfign Turner, who commanded at Cuddalore, receiving intelligence of the cattle which had been left on the way, went out with the Sepoys of his garrifon, and in two or three days collected and drove in 900 of them; and none of the reft got into Pondicherry.

The detachment of Myforeans efforted the officers appointed by Hyder Ally to fettle the treaty and the plan of operations with the French government. A little before their arrival a report had been fpread, that orders were on the way recalling Mr. Lally to France; which the Myforeans hearing, infifted that Mr. Deleyrit, and all the members of the Council, fhould fign the treaty: had they refufed, no further affiftance was to be expected; they therefore figned it, but at the fame time composed a proteft, which they kept entirely tirely fecret amongst themfelves, objecting more especially to the monthly furn which the Myforeans were to receive as pay, to difcharge which no money existed ; and that the territories ceded to them were of much more value than the indefinite fervices they were likely to perform. Neverthelefs this clandeftine difapprobation was unworthy their office, being calculated to exempt themfelves from blame, and to exaggerate it on Mr. Lally, if affairs fhould better with the affiftance of the Myforeans; at the fame time the apparent fanction evinced that the council faw no immediate means fo likely to ftop the progress of the English fucceffes, which had taken every thing abroad but Thiagar and Gingee, and were at this inftant menacing the capital, Pondicherry : fo that had the council meant fincerely, they only promifed the half of what they had loft, or never poffeffed, to obtain the only chance of gaining the other half, perhaps of preferving what, remained. The treaty was figned on the 27th, and on the 28th at. night all the Myforeans went away, promifing to return very foonwith their whole force, and abundance of provisions. The next day the French army retreated from Perimbé to the bound-hedge.

In this interval, the fquadron had been joined by two fhips of the line from England, the Norfolk of 74, and the Panther of 64 guns, which anchored at Cuddalore on the 15th; and a few days after one of the Company's fhips arrived from Tellicherry on the Malabar coaft, with a detachment of 100 Europeans, and 122 Topaffes, fent from that fettlement by order from Bombay. This, with the detachment of artillery which arrived a little before, would have been a great reinforcement at any time, but was at this juncture more efpecially feafonable; and thefe exertions did honour to the councils of that Prefidency, which had hitherto been very cautious of parting with any part of its force.

On the 30th, the day after the French army returned to their bounds, Celonel Coote detached the remainder of the huffars, who were 20, 500 black horfe, 50 European infantry, and four companies of Sepoys, to Major Moore, that he might be ftrong enough to encounter the whole body of the Myforeans in their approach to Pondicherry. row, with 500 horfe, and as many Sepoys. They proceeded against Trichimungalum, which furrendered after a fhort refiftance on the 26th. The garrifon were a ferjeant, another European, and 180 Sepoys, with a much greater flore of ammunition than their number required. They had collected 900 head of cattle in the fort, and a large quantity of grain in the town. Major Moore was again mifled by his intelligence, and the party of Myforeans returning from Pondicherry to Thiagar paffed again out of his reach.

Mr. Lally determined to rifque nothing before the main body of the Myforeans arrived; and his troops were too ftrongly pofted in front of, and within, the bound-hedge, to be attacked by a force, which exceeded them to little as the English army, fince the detachments it had lately fent abroad. So that both armies concurring in the fame caution, in expectation of the fame event, nothing of any moment paffed between them for twenty days. Co-Honel Coote, in this interval, went to Madrafs. He left the camp on the 6th of July, and returned on the 14th. The next day he received intelligence from Major Moore, that the Myforeans were fet out from Thiagar, with a very large convoy of provisions. This intelligence was confirmed the next day, with their route; and at three the next morning, which was the 17th, the van division of the army under Colonel Monfon moved, and took poffcilion of Perimbé, which is the ground under the point of the red-hill directly opposite to Villenore. The reft of the army came up before daylight; a party was immediately detached to take pofferfion of the pettah of Villenore, and make preparations for batteries; another deftroyed a redoubt on the hill over Perimbé, which the enemy had lately crected, in the fpot where they before had raifed the barracks for their cavalry, which Colonel Coote had burnt on his first excursion to reconnoitre this ground from Permacoil. The diftance acrofs, from the Red-hill, to the fort of Villenore and the river of Ariancopang, is little more than a mile, and the army poffeffed the whole fpace in posts and enclosures, which could not be attacked in front towards Pondicherry without great difadvantage; and nothing was apprehended in the rear, although the Myforeans were coming; for they,

Book XII. PONDICHERRY. THE MYSOREANS. they, it was not doubted, would, as before, endeavour to join the French army, by avoiding the English.

On this day, the 17th, the troops with Major Moore, and the whole body of the Myforeans, advancing by different routs, arrived nearly at the fame hour, in fight of Trivadi. With Moore were 180 European infantry, 30 Coffrees, and 50 huffars, and together with Kiffnarow's the black horfe were 1600, and the Sepoys 1100 ... The Myforeans were 4000 horfe well mounted, 1000 Sepoys, and 200 Europeans, or Topaffes of the French army, of whom a part managed eight pieces of cannon. At this time, when the English troops had been to long accustomed to fuccess, it was fup-pofed, that the force with Major Moore, notwithstanding the inequality of numbers, might have flood at leaft an obffinate brunt ;. but it happened otherwife; for by fome mifchance or mifconduct of which no certain account has ever been given, they were totally routed. The black horfe and Sepoys, who it is faid first gave way, difperfed on every fide; five and twenty of the huffars were cut to pieces, and most of the rest were wounded; they were the only part which behaved with firmnefs, fighting after they were deferted by the European infantry, who retreated in great hurry and diforder to the fort of Trivadi, which they gained with the lofs of 15 killed and 40 wounded.

The news of this misfortune reached Colonel Coote the next day, and encreafed his anxiety to get poffeffion of Villenore; for it was not doubted that Mr. Lally, as foon as joined by the Myforeans, would make every effort to fave this place.

The left of the English encampment was at the foot of the hill of Perimbé, and it extended 1500 yards to the right, across the plain towards Villenore. Through the center of the camp passed a road (raifed as all the others on the plain above the common level of the ground, and) with a row of trees on each fide. This avenue comes almost in a streight line from a redoubt in the bound-hedge, called the Villenore; but receives its name from the village of Ouglaree, through which it passet about half-way between the bound-hedge and the hill of Perimbé. of the English encampment, and 2000 from the bound-hedge, another avenue called the Villenore, ftrikes off from the avenue of Oulgaree, on the left as you come from the bound-hedge, on the right, if looking from the camp. The Villenore, after continuing 400 yards at a right angle from the Oulgaree, turns nearly at another right angle, and leads ftreight weft, and parallel to the other avenue; but ceafes midway in the plain between Perimbé, and the fort of Villenore, which Colonel Coote was preparing to attack, and which must always be diffinguished, in confidering our narrative, from the redoubt of the fame name in the bound-hedge : the Villenore avenue, towards its termination, covered the right flank of the English camp. From a redoubt in the boundhedge, at 1000 yards to the right of the avenue of Oulgaree, commenceth another avenue, called as well as the redoubt itfelf the Valdore : this avenue continues only 1000 yards fireight to the weft, when, ftopped by the opposition of the Red-hill, it inclines in another ftreight line to the left, until it has verged within 300 yards of the avenue of Oulgaree, which it then joins in another ftreight line, and at a right angle on the right, exactly facing the junction of the Villenore avenue on the other fide the road, fo that both together interfected the avenue of Oulgaree at right angles in the fame point. It was along the Valdore avenue, that Colonel Coote, with his cavalry, followed the French troops, when they retreated before him on the 7th of March, the first time he went to reconnoitre the ground about Pondicherry. Exactly opposite to the fecond angle of the Valdore avenue, as you come from the bound-hedge, and the first if you are going to it from the avenue of Oulgaree, stands a hillock, the highest, and the only confpicuous one on the plain, detached from the Red-hill ; from the outward ridge of which this hillock is about 300 yards diftant : thus fituated, it commanded in flank the third or laft, and in flant the middle or fecond turning of the Valdore avenue. Colonel Coote, having confidered all the ground we have defcribed, fortified the hillock with a clofed redoubt of three guns, threw up a retrenchment of three guns acrofs the avenue of Oulgaree, 150 yards in front of the fpot fpot where it is joined by the two others, and raifed another acrofs the Villenore avenue. Both retrenchments, and the redoubt on the hillock, lay nearly in the fame line in front of the camp, which the hill of Perimbé defended on the left; on the right, the plain on the other fide of the Villenore avenue was open and paffable to cannon and cavalry, even to the rear of the camp. But this approach would now be protected by the troops flationed in the villages under Villenore, and employed in the attack of this fort. All the three works were finifhed between the night of the 17th and the morning of the 19th. This difpofition was devifed with much fcience; for every thing was obviated which might produce a general difafter, if the troops fhould be compelled to quit the attack of Villenore, of which the fuccefs was fcarcely probable, if the enemy, as might be expected, rifqued boldly for its fafety.

A thirteen-inch mortar, fent from Madrafs, and landed at Cuddalore, arrived in camp on the 19th, and was immediately planted to bombard the fort; but the fhells fent with it were too finall, and would not take any certain range, and heavy rains prevented any work at the batteries during the night.

The next morning the French army, not yet joined by the whole body of Myforeans, appeared advancing along the river of Ariancopang, as if they intended to attack the detachmments stationed to guard the batteries; on which Colonel Coote marched from the right of the camp with the two battalions of the Company's troops, and half the horfe and Sepoys to meet the enemy, who halted, and began to cannonade; during which Draper's and Coote's regiments with the reft of the black troops, by previous disposition, marched from the left of the camp along the foot of the Red Hill, as if they intended to ftorm the redoubts of the boundhedge, and get into the rear of the enemy's army. Mr. Lally believed this feigned intention to be real, and immediately retreated to his former stations; a few of the English cavalry and Sepoys were wounded. In the evening the Myforeans arrived from Trivadi with 3000 bullocks, carrying their baggage, and drawing their artillery, and 3000 more laden with rice, and other provisions; the French · 4 0 VOL. French detachments from Thiagar and Gingee accompanied them : they came in unmolefted, as before, by Ariancopang, and their arrival was complimented with a long falute of cannon. In the evening the guards before Villenore were reinforced, and double diligence employed through the night at the batteries.

The fort of Villenore was a circle 50 yards in diameter within the wall; it was furrounded by a ditch, a covered way, and a glacis cut in angles, as a ftar. The rampart was a construction of masonry. divided into ten lodgements, or chambers, which were 'arched, the vaults bomb-proof, and the interffices at top were filled up to an equal level, which formed the terrace on which the cannon were mounted. Each of the chambers was likewife opened through the outfide of the wall in cafements intended for cannon, but none were mounted in them. The breadth of the rampart, which was the length of the chambers, was 30 feet, and reduced the area within to a fmall pentagon, which in no direction was more than 45 feet over; fo that if the chambers had not been bomb-proof, the place could not have flood an hour against this kind of artillery. Two villages lay near the fort, one directly north, the other to the north-eaft. They were about 200 yards from each other, and both were occupied by the English troops. The paffage through the glacis to the fort was fireight, and nothing obfiructed the view quite up to the foot of the wall but the barrier gate, and the draw-bridge, when up; neither of which could refift a fhot; neverthelefs, the French had neglected to cover this opening by a traverfe, either in front or behind the paffage. The advantage was taken, and a battery of two eighteen-pounders was crected between the two villages, to breach through the opening : another of the fame force was erected in the village to the north, to deftroy the parapet, and take in reverfe the part intended to be breached.

Both batteries opened with the day on the 16th. At nine o'clock the French army, with all the Myforeans, horfe and foot, approached along the bank of the river of Ariancopang. Some of the black horfe and Sepoys, with three field-pieces, were fent from the Englifh camp, to ftop their advanced parties, whilft the line got under under arms; and as foon as they were in motion, a detachment of Europeans, with four field-pieces, filed off from the right to reinforce the villages of Villenore. By this time the batteries there had beat down the parapet, and filenced the enemy's fire from the fort, when two companies of Sepoys fet off on the full run, and posted themfelves under the brick facing of the covered way, in a hollow, where the earth had not been filled up, as in other parts, to the creft of the glacis; fome, more adventurous, jumped over the wall. Still the garrifon had nothing to fear ; for the Sepoys had a ditch to pafs, and a very imperfect breach to mount : but the commanding officer held out a flag of truce, and opened the gate to a detachment of Europeans, who haftened up on the first fight of the flag. They immediately raifed the English colours on the rampart, and turned the guns against the French and Myforcans, who were advanced along the river-fide within the random reach of cannon-fhot. The change was received with the curfes of every man in the French army. All the lines flopped involuntarily, and at once, ftricken by horror; and Mr. Lally, more confounded than any, immediately ordered the whole to retreat under the guns of Ariancopang. There were in the fort 30 Europeans, 12 Coffices, and eight pieces of cannon on the ramparts, which might have held out two days longer, before the English would have ventured to ftorm ; and ten minutes more in the prefent hour would have brought on a general engagement to decide its fate. Of all his fucceffes, Colonel Coote deemed this the most fortunate, because least expected. Nevertheles, he had exerted much ability to place the army in a fituation to make the attack in fight of the enemy's, and, if it failed, have nothing unequal to apprehend.

The first arrival of the Myforeans in the province had alarmed the Prefidency of Madraís, as much as it furprized the army; for, befides the interruption they might give to the fuccefs of the war, the Nabob's revenues were loft wherever their parties appeared ; and, as horfe, they might in the back country extend their ravages from Tritchinopoly to Arcot : and this detriment was the more dreaded, becaufe the company in England, relying on the treafures of Bengal, had had determined to fend no bullion to any of their fettlements in India, and the Prefidency of Bengal had confumed all their incomes, and were borrowing money. It was therefore proposed to the Nabob, who was at Madrafs, to march with what troops had accompanied him thither, fupported by a detachment of Europeans from the garrifon, in order to protect the countries between Gingee and Trinomaly, and all behind them to Arcot. Captain Richard Smith, at Tritchinopoly, as foon as he had acquired intelligence of the ftrength and intentions of the Myforeans which were come into the Carnatic, propofed the expediency of a diversion, by marching with a force from his garrifon, and attacking the diffricts of Myfore. which confine on the weftward to those of Tritchinopoly, whilft the troops ordered by Mahomed Iffoof from Madura, fhould keep the Myforeans of Dindigul at bay. The idea was approved as the moft probable refource; he was ordered to carry it into execution, and Tanjore and Tondiman were requefted to give him what affiftance he might require.

The Nabob marched from Madrafs on the 3d of July, and on the 7th he arrived at Vandivafh; after loitering there fome days, he fuddenly changed his mind from keeping the field againft the Myforeans, and went away to make his entrance into his capital of Arcot; but left 700 of his horfe, and 500 of his Sepoys, with his brother Maphuze Khan, who on the 22d came with them to the army at Perimbé. The day after Colonel Coote, with all the cavalry of the army, a great part of the Sepoys, feveral field-pieces, an eighteen-pounder on a field-carriage, but without any European infantry, advanced towards the bound-hedge. This defiance as it were of meeting the Myforeans with equal arms could not provoke them to come out and try their ftrength; but the French infantry advanced, and cannonaded from feven pieces of cannon, which only wounded two European gunners.

The next morning, the 24th, on intelligence that a large body of the Myforeans intended to march that night to the weftward to efcort provisions, Major Monfon was detached, with all the black cavalry, fix companies of Sepoys, and two field-pieces, to take post at

at Valdore, near which, it was fuppofed, the Myforeans would return; but only a few were gone out, who halted at Rangapillah's choultry on the fea fhore, fix miles to the north of the boundhedge, where they were joined on the 26th by the large body from Pondicherry, of which intelligence had been given on the 24th. All went on to Permacoil; Major Monfon followed them on the 27th, and arrived on the 28th, when none were remaining there. In the mean time, Lieutenant Eifer had been detached from the camp on the 26th, with 400 Sepoys, 30 Europeans, and a hundred black horfe, the beft in the army, to proceed from Rangapillah's choultry along the fea-fhore, whilft Major Monfon was endeavouring to come up with them on the other fide; but they had ftruck off in feveral parties, fome towards Gingee, others to the northward, fpreading to collect cattle, and deftroying whatfoever elfe belonged to the inhabitants, who, as their ground now fupplied the English army with provisions, were every where confidered by the French as enemies. One of thefe parties went to Allamparvah. where they plundered the pettah, and took a lieutenant, who was fick, and chancing to be taking the air, having fhot him through the back as he was endeavouring to efcape in his palankin; however, the cannon of the fort drove the party away, and, as they were returning along the fhore towards Pondicherry, they fell unawares acrofs Eifer's detachment, by whom they were intirely routed, and 30 of their horfe furrendered to him, with which he returned to the camp in the evening, where major Monfon's division likewife rejoined the fame day; for the whole cavalry of the camp had marched in thefe two divisions.

The laft day of the month brought the welcome arrival of five of the company's fhips from England in the Road of Cuddalore : and two days after came in another, which had feparated from them. There were on board of the fix, 600 men drafted from regiments in England, to replace the deficiences which might have happened in Draper's and Coote's.

On the 3d of August, the free company of Frenchmen were fent to get in the rear of one of the enemy's advanced posts, which lay killed and wounded feveral, and drove the reft to the bound-hedge. The Myforeans, according to their contract, had delivered all the provisions they brought into the magazines of Pondicherry, where they were carefully flored for future need. The purfuit of Monlon. and the fuccefs of Eifer, deterred them from going out again in large detachments, and although the English army could not cover the ground fufficiently to prevent fmall parties from getting back, with a few head of cattle or other provisions, yet all thefe fupplies were unequal to the daily confumption of 10,000 mouths; for, with their followers, the Myfore army amounted to this multitude; and in a few days rice began to fell in their camp at the rate of two pounds for a rupee. This diffrefs, the conftant fatigue and rifque neceffary to redrefs it, and their convictions of the fuperiority of the English army, as well by the loss of Villenore, as the caution of the French to rifque an engagement fince that event, made them weary of their expedition and alliance; and their Sepoys, forefeeing lefs likelihood of retreating with fafety than the horfe, began to defert in numbers every day.

The garrifon of Gingee had collected 2000 carriage bullocks, and rice to load on them, and, with various parties which had got out from Pondicherry, 150 Europeans of the infantry, and 100 of the cavalry, were waiting there to efcort this train, expecting to be joined by the Myfore horfe; who were by this time determined to go away to Thiagar, and return no more; on which, 50 more Europeans, with three companies of Sepoys, were detached from Pondicherry, to reinforce the convoy. Colonel Coote took meafures to prevent its arrival. Some Sepoys patroled along the fea-fhore, as far as Rangapillah's choultry ; from Alamparvah, Martin, with the free company, four of Sepoys, and three field-pieces, marched on the 12th, to lie between Valdore and Permacoil, and were reinforced the next day by 30 huffars with Lieutenant Kircher. belonging to that garrifon, in which Major Monfon remained with the troops just arrived from England : fo that the outlets to the s. w. and s. were equally well guarded, and the main body of the army lying between Villenore and the Red-hill utterly precluded the passage to or from the weft. The convoy from Gingee were expected to fet out on the 12th, but did not until the evening of the 13th; intelligence of which was foon after brought to Colonel Coote, who went off at 11 at night, with all the black cavalry, 200 Europeans, the hundred Topaffes from Bombay, and two fieldpieces, and proceeded towards Killenore. The fame night the greateft part of the Myfore horfe, decamped from the glacis of Pondicherry, and marching fast fell in when it was deep dark with Martin and Kircher, who, charging them unexpectedly met no refistance, killed 40, took 200 of their horfe, and 900 bullocks laden with their baggage. At day-break Colonel Coote came up with his party, when all the Myforeans were not yet out of fight: they were retreating in broken parties to the west-ward. Colonel Coote divided his force in purfuit of them, which returned the fame day with many more bullocks and two European prifoners. One division of the Myforeans escaped both the encounter and purfuit. They were at fome diftance in the rear, when the front was ftopped, on which they immediately turned back, and paffing as they had come at the back of the Red-hill, and by the fea fhore, regained the bounds of Pondicherry.

Notwithstanding this rout, it was ftill confidered as doubtful, whether the Myforeans might not join and return with the convoy waiting at Gingee : and to prevent the continual fatigue of detachments marching from the camp on every report, to watch and intercept their approach, it was determined to post a force fufficient to cope with them separate from the main body of the army, which continued at Perimbé. The detachment which had accompanied the Nabob from Madrafs, when it was supposed he intended to keep the field towards Trinomaly, advanced from Vandivash; and on the 19th encamped at Ratlagramon, a town under the hills to the east of Gingee, and ten miles north of Valdore; a station which the the the tent of Valdore is a station which the tent of ten tent of tend of tent of tent of tent of tent 653 1760. convoy could not avoid without much circuit and trouble. The detachment was immediately joined by another from the camp, when the whole amounted to 200 European foot, 50 Coffrees, 500 Sepoys, 50 European horfe, huffars, and 500 black horfe; they were commanded by Captain Prefton.

Book XII.

The 500 Myforeans which had returned to Pondicherry were afraid to venture out again in a body, but in every of the fucceeding nights fent off fmall parties, which paffed undifcovered. To ftop thofe which remained, two companies of Sepoys, with 100 of the black horfe, were detached with Enfign Meredith, and took poft at Rangapillah's choultry. Another detachment of Sepoys marched the fame day from the camp in queft of a party of Europeans which had marched the night before from Pondicherry for Gingee, but only brought back four, whom they had picked up lagging on the road with fatigue. Early the next morning, a ftrong detachment from the bounds attacked the poft at Rangapillah's choultry, and obliged the party there to retreat. On the first notice, two companies of Sepoys, and all the grand guard of cavalry, marched to fuftain them, and the enemy retired on their appearance.

In two or three nights more, all the Myforeans who had returned to Pondicherry were gone, and all their parties had efcaped without interruption. News was received at this time that their main body, which had affembled at Thiagar, were marched from thence to attack Trinomaly; it was therefore concluded, that they would make no farther efforts of confequence to fuccour Pondicherry with provifions; and in this perfuasion, the Prefidency refumed the intention of blockading Pondicherry by fea and land; and the Governor Mr. Pigot came from Madrafs to confer with Admiral Stevens and Colonel Coote on the means.

The ground between Villenore and Perimbé was the beft on which the Englifh army could continue, whilft the Myforeans remained with the French; for it prefented a narrow front, was of hazardous approach, afforded feveral ftrong pofts, and was centrically fituated for the expedition of detachments to interrupt any which might be fent from, or coming to the enemy's camp. But this fituation did 4 not fully answer the purpose of a blockade, which was to reduce the town by famine; for, being five miles diftant, the army was not fufficient to form a chain of pofts in a curve of 15 miles from the fea-fhore on the north to the fea-fhore on the fouth of the town, close, or in all parts ftrong enough, to intercept every thing. The bound-hedge of Pondicherry fweeps from the north to the s. E. of the town, where it ceafes on the bank of the river of Ariancopang, which, in two arms, with an ifland between them, fupplies the reft of the barrier to the fouth of the town. The area included by the hedge with the arms of the river, comprizes nearly feven fquare miles. This ground afforded pafture for a number of cattle, which, if unmolefted, might, whilft the English army remained at their prefent distance, fupply the troops and inhabitants with provisions for feveral months; and the daily confumption might be replaced by fmall convoys from without; fo that the enemy could not be feverely diffrefied, until pent within the bound-hedge, when its redoubts and other flations in pofferfion of the English, would fuffer nothing to remain abroad beyond the foot of the glacis, and even there not in quiet. These posts would likewife obstruct the introduction of supplies in the whole extent of . the hedge, and the prefent flock would remain the principal reliance. until the French army fhould be fufficiently reinforced to recover them; but now that the Myforeans were gone, no probability remained of any troops coming to the fuccour of the town, excepting from the fea. Neverthelefs the English force was not yet fufficiently fuperior, even if in poffeffion of the bound-hedge, to open trenches against the town; and if it had, the preparation, embarkation, and transport of the artillery and ftores, which were all to come from Madrafs, could not be accomplifhed before the fetting-in of the monfoon, which at fartheft might be expected in the middle of October. If the French fleet appeared before this time, the iffue of the fight at fea would determine the future fuccefs of the fiege; if not, their delay must arife from the want of force to cope with Mr. Stevens's fquadron ; and in this cafe, it was fearcely to be doubted that fingle fhips, or more, would at any rifque venture with relief Vol. II. in the height of the flormy weather, in expectation that the English 1760. fquadron would have left the coaft to avoid it, as they had done August. during every monfoon for the laft five years. Thus it became neceffary to get poffellion of the bound-hedge and its redoubts without delay; and then that the fquadron should continue in fight of Pondicherry through the monfoon, in order to intercept whatfoever ships might be coming either with troops or provisions : but, previous to the attack of the hedge, Colonel Coote thought it neceffary to reduce the fort of Ariancopang, which ftanding on the fouth fide of the river, almost opposite, although at some distance from the termination of the hedge on the other bank, commanded all the ground between, as well as in front down to the ftrand of the fea: fo that from the garrifon of the town on the one hand, and the fort on the other, this quarter of the circumvallation, fuppoling the hedge to be taken, could not be completed without more force than the army could fpare from other parts; and even then the pofts eftablished on this fide would be continually exposed to dangerous. attacks; in the mean time, this extent of ground would remain open for the introduction of convoys; which, detachments from the fort of Ariancopang, if taken, might eafily intercept. The force of the English army before the town, exclusive of garrifons and detachments, was 2000 Europeans, and 6000 natives, either horfe or Sepoys. If Ariancopang were attacked by a detachment, the number requisite, of 800 Europeans, would leave the main body fcarcely a match for the whole of the enemy's force, if collected to attack them, who doubtlefs would make the effort. If Ariancopang were invefted by the whole army, they must move from the advantageous ground between Villenore and Perimbé, which would leave all to the north of Pondicherry open, and admit the French army then to detach a force, which, joined with the party already at Gingee, would be able to drive Prefton from Rattlagrammon, and bring in, if not the whole, at leaft a confiderable part of the convoy collected there. These grounds and circumstances Mr. Pigot represented in a memorial to Admiral Stevens, and, in confequence of them, requefted that he would land all the marines of the fquadron, to enable the army to attack Ariancopang, and take poffeifion of the bound-hedge; and that he would determine to remain on the coaft with the whole fquadron, through the monfoon. Mr. Stevens was very loth to deprive his fhips of their marines during the expectation of an engagement with the enemy's fquadron, but at length acquiefced to the neceffity and importance of the fervice they might render on fhore; and promifed without hefitation that his fquadron fhould not quit the coaft until compelled by irrefiftible neceffity. Accordingly, the marines were landed at Cuddalore on the 27th; they were, including officers, 422 Europeans.

The Myforeans, as foon as they arrived before Trinomaly, made an attack on the pettah, in which they were repulfed with the lofs of fifty or fixty men: but continued to inveft the place. Captain Prefton, on intelligence of their intention, fent off on the 22d two companies of Sepoys from Ratlagrammon, who, by bye ways in the mountain, got into the fort on the 26th; and the day after, the enemy in greater force than before made another affault, in which they were again beaten off, with the lofs of fixty men, and an officer of diffinction; the garrifon fallied as they retreated, and obliged them to abandon two field-pieces, which they had brought up and ufed in the attack. The whole raifed the fiege immediately, and returned to Thiagar.

Two hundred Europeans, with fome Sepoys, and two guns, marching round the Red-hill in the night of the 23d, efcaped the interruption of the English guards, and arrived the next day at Gingee; from whence they fet out again in different parties, efcorting 2000 bullocks loaded with provisions; of which fome were difperfed by Prefton, as they were coming out of the hills; and 300 were taken, when advanced within a few miles of the English camp, by a detachment of Sepoys and black horfe, fent out to look for them; and none got into Pondicherry: but as all that had been attacked had been met in the night, the efcorts regained Gingee with very little loss. Three or four thoutand more bullocks were ready to be fubfituted as the convoys fent might fail, and it was now determined to fend the whole of this collection together, under the 4 P 2 ftrongeft 657 1760. ftrongeft efcort that could be rifqued abroad: accordingly Mr. Lally detached 100 of the French cavalry and feveral more companies of Sepoys from Pondicherry, to join the troops already at Gingee; fo that one third of his whole force was now employed in this fervice; and he had by much follicitation, and by inducements of which we are ignorant, prevailed on the Myforeans to fend back 800 of their horfe to Gingee, who were likewife to accompany the convoy; and this body of horfe arrived there at the fame time as the laft detachment from Pondicherry. Intelligence was received on the 25th, that the convoy with the whole efcort intended to fet out from Gingee in the enfuing night; on which, difpofitions were made to oppofe their paffage.

The whole of the Red-hill is interfected by winding dales, in which troops may march unperceived until met within them, or difcovered from the rifing grounds above : in the middle of the general plot of the Red-hill, ftands one eminence higher than any of the others, and called from the trees it bears, the Tamarind grove: this hillock has dales on each fide of it, which join with others, leading from the plain of the country on the outfide of the Red-hill to the N. w. at the farthest distance from the English camp, from the left of which shouldered under the extremity of the Red-hill at Perimbé, the Tamarind grove was two miles to the N. E. and it was three to the N. w. of Pondicherry. This fituation being central for the interruption of troops marching through the dales of the Red-hill, either to or from Pondicherry, Colonel Coote, who, by his continual excursions, knew all the ground in the adjacencies of his camp, ordered a redoubt to be raifed there, which was finished in the day. Left the convoy fhould attempt to make their way to the fouth of the river of Ariancopang, the whole body of marines, which were flill remaining at Cuddalore, were ordered to march fome miles from thence along the river Paliar, and to advance fix companies of Sepoys beyond them towards Trivadi; whilft fcouts from the camp patroled between the two rivers : and, to watch the convoy if coming by the direct road from the weft, feveral companies of Sepoys from Valdore proceeded along it towards Gingee. The convoy fet out out from hence on the 29th, the day appointed ; but Captain Preflon having two days before taken a mud fort, called Penamalee, fituated at the opening of the hills, pofted a ftrong guard there, which the enemy miftaking for the whole of his force, retired again, and afterwards hearing of the difpositions made from the English camp, refolved to proceed as before in feparate troops.

On the 2d of September arrived at Cuddalore three of the King's fhips, convoying feveral of the Company's from England. Of the men of war two were the America, and Medway, each of 60 guns, which compleated the fquadron before Pondicherry to 17 fail of the line. In the Company's fhips were part of a Highland regiment, fupplied by the government, in addition to the troops it had already fent to India. These mighty aids witnessed in this quarter of the globe, as equal efforts, wherefoever neceffary, in every other, the fuperior energy of that mind, who possible equally the confidence of his fovereign and the nation, conducted the arduous and extenfive war in which they were engaged against their great and only rival.

The fame evening Colonel Coote ordered 400 men to march and inveft the fort of Ariancopang; but Colonel Monfon, the next in command, did not approve the operation, although it had been pleaded to Admiral Stevens, as the principal inducement to land the marines of the fquadron : and Colonel Coote, not to difguft pertinacity, when concurrence was fo neceffary, countermanded the detachment.

Mr. Lally received information, that the detachment had been paraded, and fulpected the fervice for which it had been intended. Such a proof of the opinion which the Englifh army entertained of their own fuperiority, convinced him that it would foon be followed by fome real blow of equal detriment, if they were not immediately convinced, that his own was capable of more than acting on the defensive. He refolved to attack their camp by furprize on the night of the 4th, and his difpositions were made with much fkills and fagacity.

In the three fhips at anchor before the town, were 150 European mariners; they were all landed, and Lascars fent on board. These 659 1760. August.

Europeans, with fome Sepoys, were allotted to guard the redoubts in the bound-hedge, that all the regular European military might ferve in the intended attacks, excepting the artillery men, who were distributed on the ramparts of the town, and in the out-posts which mounted cannon. By the detachments lately fent abroad, the whole force that could march on the prefent fervice were 1400 European infantry, 100 European horfe, and 900 Sepoys. The battalion of India and the volunteers of Bourbon, amounting to 200 rank and file, had for fome days been encamped under the fort of Ariancopang; the Portugueze company, which was likewife called the company of Jefus, and had a Jefuit at their head, with fome Sepoys, were quartered in the Company's gardens, fituated within the bound-hedge in the road towards the Valdore redoubt; the regiments of Lorrain and Lally, 500 men, the marines of the fquadron, 200, and 500 Sepoys, were in the town; the horfe were distributed in different patroles. The gates of the town were shut early, and opened again at ten at night; and although Colonel Coote entertained fpies and correspondents in the town, not one of them acquired the leaft furmife of Mr. Lally's intentions, or fufpected any unufual operation.

The marines and Sepoys marched out of the town in two parties. told off in equal numbers of each. They proceeded to the Valdore redoubt, and in the way the Portugueze company, with the Sepoys at the garden, fell into the rear and formed the third fubdivision of this line. Continuing in the avenues from the Valdore redoubt, the first party foon turned to the right, to gain the Red-hill, and proceed in it to the attack of the Tamarind redoubt; in which, if they fucceeded, they were to march across to the left and join the fecond; which followed them, and quitting the avenue likewife, were to advance along the foot of the outward ridge of the Red-hill, until they had gained the flank of the English redoubt on the hillock in the plain, which they were then to bear down upon, and attack. The Portugueze and Sepoys, which were the third fub-division, were to proceed quite through the three lines 2

lines of the Valdore avenue, difperfing what patroles and out-guards might be in the way, and to take post at the junction of this avenue with that of Oulgarry, where they were to wait the orders of the officer who commanded the attack, which was to be made by the regiments of Lorrain and Lally. Thefe troops, in two divisions, marched from the town, and through the bound-hedge, along the avenue of Oulgarry, until they came to the head of this village, where a deep water-courfe croffed the avenue, and had a bridge over it, which was defended by a retrenchment with guns. Here Lorrain halted, whilft Lally's regiment, quitting the avenue by the left, marched outwards in the fields to fall on the right flank of the English redoubt in this avenue; to which Lorrain was to advance ftreight along the avenue, and attack at the fame time. When carried, the Portugueze company, with the Sepoys, which were the third fub-division of the attack to the right, were to join, and, with Lorrain's and Lally's, proceed across on the left to attack the retrenchment in the Villenore avenue which flood in the fame parallel as that in the avenue of Oulgarry; but the Villenore retrenchment had on its left a large garden, called from its owner, Barthelmi's; in which were likewife posted a strong guard with some fieldpieces.- When this garden and retrenchment were carried, all the: troops of this attack were to regulate themfelves by the fuccefs of another attack on their left, which was to be made by the India Battalion and the volunteers of Bourbon. They were to march from the fort of Ariancopang, across the river, to the villages under the fort of Villenore; but were to leave two field-pieces on the plain in their way from the river, in order to fecure their retreat. As foon as the firing became general, at the retrenchment in the Oulgarry road, the redoubt on the hillock, and the tamarind redoubt, thefe troops were to advance from the village in which they were halting, and proceed along a fhort road which would bring them to the termination of the Villenore avenue, and exactly in the rear of the right flank of the English encampment; on which they were to fall with the utmost vigour, in full confidence, that the other attacks would have thrown the whole camp into diforder, by the uncertainty and diffraction of what and where fuccours were to be fent. Mr. Lally, with a guard of horfe, remained at the bridge of Oulgarry. Calculation had been made, when all the troops would arrive within equal reach of their refpective attacks, where they were to wait in filence for the fignal of two fky-rockets, which were to be thrown up at Oulgarry, when all were to advance to the attacks allotted them.

The fky-rockets were fhot off a little before midnight, and foon after the firing commenced nearly at the fame time, at the tamarind redoubt, the hillock, and at the retrenchment in the avenue of Oulgarry. The attack at the tamarind redoubt was repulfed; but the redoubt on the hillock was carried; the lieutenant of the artillery and three gunners were made prifoners there, and the reft of the guard driven out, nor did they rally; which gave the enemy time to carry off a brafs three-pounder, deftroy the carriage of another gun, fpike up a third, and burn down the battery. At the retrenchment in the Oulgarry road, the attack and defence were more fierce. Colonel Coote himfelf brought down troops to that in the Villenore avenue and Barthelmi's garden, and, inftead of waiting to be attacked, advanced acrofs to fuftain the other redoubt ; againft which Lorrain and Lally's perfifted until eight fergeants, befides common men, of Lally's, were killed ; when the officers, hearing no figns of the main attack on the right and rear of the English camp, drew off. This division, by fome unaccountable error, inftead of advancing to the villages under the fort of Villenore, halted in another a mile to the fouth of it, not far from the river, and in a line with the village of Oulgarry. At this erroneous diffance, they had not time, after the fky-rockets were fired, to reach the ground of their attack, before the three others were either repulsed or ceased. They were led by D'Harambure, who had always behaved hitherto with gallantry, and efpecially during the march of Mr. Law's reinforcement to Hyderabad in 1756; but Mr. Lally, with the ufual feverity of his prejudices, imputed the failure to a detign, as the commander of the Company's troops, of fruftrating the honour which would have redounded on himfelf, had the hardy effort he effort he was making fucceeded to his expectation. About twenty Sepoys were killed and wounded of the English troops, but fewer Europeans. Of the enemy, 30 Europeans were fupposed to be killed, and most of them either in Lorrain or Lally's; four were made prisoners, with Mr. D'Autueil, the fame officer we have feen opening the intestine war of the Carnatic at the battle of Amboor, in which the Nabob's father fell, and who afterwards furrendered to Clive at Volcondah.

The fhips laft arrived from England brought commiffions from the war-office appointing the majors Brereton and Monfon to the rank of lieutenant colonels, with prior date to Colonel Coote; but both were ordered not to affert their commiffions whilft he remained on the coaft. Colonel Coote neverthelefs concluded that it was intended he fhould remove as foon as might be to his original and eftablifhed command in Bengal, nor did Monfon propofe to continue ferving under him, but offered to retire to Madrafs; but Coote immediately delivered over to him the command of the army, and went thither himfelf, and requefted to proceed with his whole regiment to Bengal. The Prefidency remonftrated againft the detriment, and Monfon declared that the blockade of Pondicherry muft be raifed if thefe troops were taken away : on which Coote confented to leave them.

OLONEL Monfon being now mafter of his own views, carried into execution an operation which he had proposed in the council of war a few days before, when Colonel Coote explained his intention of attacking the fort of Ariancopang.

The bound-hedge of Pondicherry, befides its natural defence of trees and thorns, is ftrengthened by four redoubts; one on the north, opposite to the north-weft angle of the town, another nearly weft of this angle, a third nearly weft of the fouth-weft angle, and the fourth ftands directly fouth-weft of the fame point. All took their names from their fituations; the north was called the Madrafs redoubt, the next the Valdore, the third the Villenore, and that to the fouth-weft the Ariancopang redoubt. From the Villenore redoubt led the road and avenue, which paffed through the center of the English camp at Perimbé, and about a mile from the hedge this avenue leads through the village of Oulgarry, in which were feveral country-houfes belonging to the French inhabitants of Pondicherry, and a church belonging to the Jefuits. The regiment of Lorrain and Lally, which at this time did not affemble both together more than 400 men, were remaining in this village fince the late attack on the camp. The marines, 300 men, were within the hedge, to defend the redoubt of Valdore with the part of the hedge on each hand. The battalion of India, confifting of 500 men, were ftationed at the Villenore and at the Ariancopang redoubts, and between them. The north-fide of the hedge, with the Madrafs redoubt.

doubt, as being at the fartheft diftance from the English camp, was trusted to the Sepoys. The horfe, still only 100 riders, were difperfed in different posts round the limits. The rest of the army, which, exclusive of the garrison of Gingee and its out-posts, consisted of 500 European soot, 150 European horse, and 500 Sepoys, were abroad, most of them waiting to effort the provisions collected at Gingee.

At midnight the whole of the English army were under arms: a proportional number from each of the different bodies were left to defend the camp; and the main body appointed to march was divided into two brigades, of which the principal officers had the day before reconnoitred the ground of their respective attacks as near as the enemy's out-posts would admit. The regiments of Draper and Coote, comprizing both together 1000 men, 200 of the marines, the 150 highlanders, with 500 Sepoys, and four fieldpieces, marched off their ground from the left of the camp at three in the morning, and entered into the Red-hill, in which they were to take a large circuit round the tamarind-grove, and, coming out where neareft, were to attack the Valdore redoubt, and the weft fide of the hedge adjoining. This brigade was formed into two divisions; the grenadiers of the two regiments led the first, under the command of major Robert Gordon; major William Gordon commanded the rear division, and colonel Monfon the whole of this attack. The other brigade was composed of the Coromandel battalion . Soo, the two French companies 120, the Bombay detachment of 350 Europeans and Topaffes, 600 Sepoys, and four field-pieces. They were to march from the right, and attack the enemy's troops posted in Oulgarry, and, after routing them, to proceed and feize the Villenore redoubt. Joseph Smith, who fince the departure of Calliaud to Bengal was the first officer on the coast of the Company's troops, and a few days before had been appointed by the Prefidency of Madrafs to the rank of major, commanded this brigade. The cavalry, black as well as white, were intended to appear before the Ariancopang redoubt during the two other attacks, in order to prevent the troops there from fending detachments to fupport them.

Major

Book XIII. ATTACK OF THE BOUND-HEDGE OF PONDICHERRY.

Major Smith's brigade, having much lefs ground to go than Monfon's, did not move until four in the morning. The enemy's entrenchment in front of the village of Oulgarry lay across the avenue, and they had an advanced poft in a garden beyond, but a little to the right of the entrenchment. Smith, to avoid the immediate difcovery of his brigade, as well as the direct fire of the entrenchment along the avenue of Oulgarry, marched down the Villenore, as far as Barthelme's garden, which lies on the left as you come down; the line then turned and paffed through the garden, which brought them half the diftance between the two avenues, when the brigade ftruck down through the intervals of fome inclofures, which led to the left of the village of Oulgarry, from whence they might likewife take the entrenchment in reverfe; but the two French companies were fent off immediately from the garden to crofs the avenue of Oulgarry, and attack the enemy's advanced post on the other fide of this avenue; but were not to begin their attack, before the firing commenced upon Oulgarry, which foon happened; for fome black fellows belonging to the French troops, who were afleep in the freets of a ruined hamlet which flood opposite to the angle of the entrenchment, awakened at the wheels of the field-pieces which moved in front of the brigade, and fled with the alarm to the troops in Oulgarry, who immediately began to fire from the entrenchment, with fix field-pieces in barbette, and with fome aim. as the day had begun to dawn. The English field-pieces, which were of the fame number and calibre, drew out of the village to anfwer them, and were fupported by a part of the line; whilft the reft paffed on to gain the flank of the village of Oulgarry : when opposite to it, divisions were detached to attack the enclofures, which the enemy had lined with troops. In the mean time, the two French companies, led by captain Myers, formed the advanced post on the other fide of the road, and feized four pieces of cannon which were there, on which the party flationed with them retreated in much hurry to the main body at Oulgarry, who, difpirited by their rout, flackened infenfibly the defence of the enclofures, and ceafed ceafed firing the field-pieces in the intrenchment across the avenue. Major Smith perceived this wavering, fignified it to his troops ; and put himfelf at the head of the grenadiers. Wherever he commanded. affection to the man confpired with duty to the officer. The grenadiers rufhed on without firing, forced their way over the enclofures. and fell amongst the enemy, dealing their arms with irrefiftible impetuofity, increafed by the difadvantages they had furmounted : all the reft entered at other parts, driving the enemy before them acrofs the road ; but those at the intrenchment had time to fpike up the cannon, and then followed the reft, who were running towards a rifing ground on the other fide of the road, but farther back towards the bound-hedge. The main body of the brigade took pofferion of Oulgarry, and were foon after joined by the division with captain Myers. which had killed fome, and brought prifoners. During this, a body of Europeans were deferied advancing directly towards Oulgarry, in the plain between this and the Valdore avenue : their diffinctions could not be perceived, and the fudden halt of the run-a-ways on the rifing ground rendered their appearance very fufpicious. Meffengers after meffengers were fent to difcover whether they were friends or foes. but none returned before Major William Gordon himfelf came, and gave an account that the rear division of Colonel Monfon's brigade, which he commanded, had feparated from the van amongst the fand hills in the dark; and had continued wandering about until they heard the fire of the attack at Oulgarry, to which he had haftened to give affiftance; but it was now too late; otherwife his error might have been retrieved by the important fervice of intercepting the regiments of Lorrain and Lally in the confusion of their flight out of Oulgarry, who, in this cafe, would in all probability have been deftroyed to a man ; during his report, ftrong firing was heard at the Valdore redoubt.

It was fome time before the van of Colonel Monfon's brigade difcovered the feparation of the rear, which by turning wrong had got into windings leading towards the plain; and Colonel Monfon, apprehenfive that the rejunction could not be made before the dawn of day, which was the time defined for the attack of the Valdore redoubt, judicioufly determined to rifque it with the van division of his brigade alone. They defiled out of the fand hill exactly right, whilft it was ftill dark, at an opening directly on a line with the weftern fide of the bound-hedge and the redoubt, up to which, the road, when near, leads in a lane between two enclofures towards the flank of the redoubt. Two field-pieces were in the front of the line, followed by the grenadiers of the two regiments of Draper and Coote, after whom came the reft of the Europeans, and then the Sepoys of the division. Colonel Monfon knewt he ground, and intended that the line, inftead of advancing through the lane between the enclofures, fhould pafs through the enclofure on the right, which being a coco-nut garden, was furrounded by a ditch and hedge of little interruption ; and the ground within was not only firm, but free from underwood, and the trees themfelves have no branches. When paft the garden, they were to proceed ftraight on to the Valdore avenue, which was not far diftant, and, having croffed it, were to file down on the other fide, to gain the left flank of the Valdore redoubt; where, if not difcovered, they could not be expected, and the bound-hedge hereabouts was not fo ftrong as on the other fide. The redoubt had a dry ditch, with palifadoes at the bottom, and fix embrafures, of which the parapet was fraized. The grenadiers were to rush on, and escalade the redoubt without firing, whilft the reft of the line were, part to fupport them, and part to fpread along the bound-hedge, and to force their way through wherever they could find openings, or at leaft to continue the fire until they had driven away the enemy, who were expected to line and defend the other fide; the two field-pieces were likewife to affift in this fervice after the grenadiers had paffed them to the efcalade. The day had begun to dawn, when the head of the line arrived at the two enclofures, and Major Robert Gordon, who, excepting Monfon, only knew the courfe of march, and was to lead the grenadiers to the affault, was not prefent : and the grenadiers, wanting orders, naturally entered the lane which lay before them. Officers were fent

fent back to Colonel Monfon, to know what next they were to do-Monfon, exafperated at this fecond miftake in the conduct of his brigade, ran forward to rectify it if possible, or to put himfelf at the head of the grenadiers, and lead the affault. Just as he reached them, the enemy difcovered the line which had got to the end of the lane, within a hundred yards of the redoubt, which in this flank had a twenty-four pounder, double loaded with langrain. They fired it, and its execution was terrible, killing eleven men, and wounding 26; amongst them Colonel Monfon fell, struck with a piece of iron, which broke both the bones of his leg. The grenadiers, inftead of being difmayed, or now hefitating for want of order, of their own motion, rufhed to the efcalade; and the officers, of their own judgement, got the line as fast as they could out of the enclofed way, and led them to the hedge, when the attack and defence foon became general and extensive; but the affault of the grenadiers ftopped the firing of the cannon from the redoubt, which otherwife would have continued to enfilade the troops attacking the hedge. The grenadiers, although feverely galled by mufketry from above and in flank, perfifted after feveral repulfes, and at length forced their way through the embrafures of the redoubt, when the troops within quitted it, and ran out of the gorge; on which all defending the hedge abandoned their pofts likewife, and the whole hurried in diforder to gain the glacis of the town.

The regiments of Lorrain and Lally continued fome minutes on the rifing ground, in as much uncertainty as Major Smith's brigade, who the troops of Major William Gordon's division might be; but remained firm until they heard the firing at the Valdore redoubt, when comprehending the whole disposition of the attack, they marched off in hafte, regained the avenue, and retreated to the redoubt of Villenore. Major Smith immediately followed them with his brigade, preffing fo close on their rear, that they paffed through the winding of the hedge, without flopping to defend or reinforce the redoubt; this trepidation caught the guard, who, after difcharging the guns of their loads upon the brigade as it was advancing

Major Smith immediately took pofferfion of the redoubts, and was foon after joined by the Highlanders commanded by Major Scot, who belonging to Monfon's attack had forced their way through the hedge between the Valdore and the Villenore redoubts. The battalion of India still continued at or about the Ariancopang redoubt, having entertained no notion of retreating; but were deterred from making any motion to fupport the other posts, in expectation of being attacked themfelves: this however did not happen; for the cavalry of the army under the command of Vafferot, who were intended to make a feint attack upon this quarter, when the other two fhould commence, did not appear upon their ground until all was finished. There was a finall opening in the hedge about a quarter of a mile from the Villenore redoubt, where a retrenchment had been thrown up, and the battalion of India kept a guard, who abandoned it on the appearance of a party which Major Smith detached along the infide of the hedge to attack them in the rear. The total lofs fuftained in the two attacks, were 115 Europeans killed and wounded, which fell nearly equal in both brigades, but in Monfon's heavieft amongst the grenadiers, of whom, befides rank and file, a lieutenant and an enfign were killed. The Sepoys fuffered much lefs, having been very little exposed. The French lofs was not known; but they fuffered moft at the attacks of Oulgarry, where fome were likewife made prifoners.

The Bombay detachment of 350 men were flationed to guard the three pofts in the hedge, and the body of the army affembled and encamped in the paddy-fields to the left of Oulgarry. The fituation was ill chofen, being commanded by higher grounds, and liable to be fwamped on the first rain; but the talents of Major Robert Gordon were inadequate to the general command, which devolved on him by the incapacity to which Colonel Monfon was reduced by his wound. Major Jofeph Smith advifed that the whole of the Company's battalion, 1000 men, should remain in the village of Oulgarry to cover the three posts in the hedge; and that their gorges, which were open, should be retrenched, Vol. II. 4 R without without delay, and fufficient day remained to accomplifh the work; but Robert Gordon, from the falfe fhame of ignorance, would not fee the neceffity: and in the enfuing night, the enemy made a vigorous attack on all the three pofts, which they would have carried, had not the guards defended them, as dearly purchafed, with the utmoft refolution, until reinforced by the picquets from the camp, when the enemy retreated. Seventeen or eighteen Europeans of the Bombay detachment were killed in this defence; the enemy's lofs was not known, but could not be lefs. Had they attacked with their whole force, the redoubt would have been retaken, for the guards, inferior in number, had no advantage of defences on the fide towards the town, and the main body of the army, exhaufted with fatigue, and dead with fleep, were at too great a diffance to have come up in time to fhare the conteft.

Two days after, the battalion of India retreated from their flations at the hedge near the Ariancopang redoubt; but the ufual guard continued in the redoubt, and the ufual garrifon in the fort of Ariancopang on the other fide of the river. But the enemy receiving intelligence that preparations were making in the camp to attack the fort, the garrifon evacuated it on the 13th at noon, and as they were going off fprung a mine, which blew up the baftion to the eaft with part of the rampart, and laid the body of the place open. They retreated to the glacis of the town, where the main body of the army lay encamped, and had been reinforced by the arrival of feveral finall efforts with provifions, which the removal of the Englifh army from Perimbé had encouraged to venture round the Red Hill; the guard fill continued at the redoubt of Ariancopang.

The troops which Mahomed Ifloof appointed to attack the diffricts of Dindigul from Madura, were 300 horfe, 1500 Sepoys, and 3000 Peons; but as most of them had first to march from Tinnivelly, it was the middle of July before they commenced hostilities, when passing by Sholavanden, they reduced feveral small posts, commanding defiles, but weakly garrisoned, until they arrived at a more confiderable fort, called Battal Gunta, 12 miles to the s. E. of Dindigul, which made more resistance; and the troops of Madura having only finall fmall guns, with much difficulty made a kind of breach, which they flormed, and carried on the first day of August ; and immediately began to repair and add better works, but had not compleated them before the troops of Dindigul were reinforced from Myfore, and taking the field encamped within fight of Battal Gunta, in which the troops of Madura had kept a garrifon, but the main body lay without the walls.

The equipment and departure of the troops which accompanied the Nabob into the Carnatic, and the fubfequent affiftances fent to Karical, had left the government and garrifon of Tritchinopoly fo bare of men, money, and ftores, that Captain R. Smith could not undertake the expedition he had proposed against the Mysoreans, until all these wants were fupplied, which depended intirely on his own refources, for although the Prefidency and Colonel Coote approved and recommended to him the most active exertions against the Myfore territory, he received no affiftance either of money from the one nor of troops from the other; fo that the preparations neceffary for the expedition prevented him from taking the field until the 6th of August. His force was 50 Europeans, with two guns, and four cohorns, 700 Sepoys from the garrifon of Tritchinopoly; 600 horfe, and 1000 peons armed with match-locks, mostly fent by Tondiman, a few belonging to the Nabob, the reft to Tanjore ; and 3000 colleries from the neighbouring Polygars, who were content to ferve on very flight flipend, in expectation of ample plunder in the fertile diftricts they were going to invade. This army proceeded along the fouthern bank of the Caveri, and on the 13th came before Pudicotah, a mud fort, fituated on the bank of this river, about 40 miles to the weft of Tritchinopoly, which, with other diffricts, the Nabob had ceded to the Myforeans, when his allies, in the war of 1753.

On their arrival, a report prevailed, that a large body of troops were marching from Seringapatam to Caroor. The garrifon at Pudicotah, converting this news into hourly expectation of relief, flood on the defensive, and having three guns, obliged Captain Smith to raife a battery, which, having nothing but field-pieces to mount, would not have foon produced much effect : but, by the

the time the battery opened, the garrifon had lavifhed away all their powder, and capitulated. The lofs fuftained in the attack was only three men wounded. The next day Captain Smith, with 400 of Sepoys, and two Cohorns, paffed the Caveri to reduce lloor, a fort fituated on the other bank, ten miles beyond Pudicotah; but the garrifon evacuated it on his appearance. From hence he marched against Caroor, the principal object of his expedition. Caroor is fituated 50 miles west of Tritchinopoly, and stands on a plain five miles to the fouth of the Caveri, but near another river, which fall into the Caveri at that distance to the north. The river of Caroor was the ancient boundary between the dominions of Tritchinopoly and Myfore; and this conterminal fituation, under the fecurity of a ftrong fort, and its rule over a rich and extensive diffrict, had formerly rendered it a place of great mercantile refort and opulence, and it still continued populous with fome wealthy inhabitants. The river continues at the diftance of 800 yards opposite to the fouth fide of the fort, and 1000 yards beyond, turns fhort, and ftrikes directly eaft : along this part, after the turning, and clofe to the bank, extends the pettah, which likewife has the other courfe of the river on the fouth fide; but not fo near; the extent of the pettah along the river, from fouth to north, is 1000 yards, and recedes from it about 500, fo that the esplanade between the pettah and the fort is 500 yards acrofs. This ground is interfected by two water-courfes derived from the river to the fouth, one of which paffes close to the weft fide of the pettah, and turns along the north-fide until it rejoins the river to the eaft, and thus ferves as a ditch on the w. and N; the other water-courfe lies midway between the fort and the pettah, and ftretches to the north much farther out into the plain. The whole of the pettah is inclosed by a mud wall with towers, but of little defence.

The fort is built of ftone, and is nearly a fquare of 600 yards. It has fquare towers in the curtain, and baftions at the four angles, behind each of which ftands a cavalier, or round tower of folid mafonry, which rifes ten feet higher than the baftion. The whole fort is furrounded by a dry ditch, of which the counterfcarp is faced 4 with stone; and on the other fide is lined by the foot of the main wall of the curtain, without berm or fauffebraye; excepting along that part of the rampart, which extends from the left of the great gateway in the middle of the eaftern fide to the baffion in the N.E. angle, and round it half-way along the northern wall; in which extent a flip of dry ground, 20 yards broad on the eaftern fide, and 40 on the northern, is left as a place of arms, and fkirted with a parapet wall, with loop-holes for mufketry; and round this wall the ditch, leaving the body of the fort, continues. There was no glacis, but a clear esplanade of 400 yards round. The garrifon confifted of 800 horfe, 1000 Sepoys, 1000 matchlock-men, and a great multitude of colleries which had been drawn from the hills towards Dindigul. Most of these troops were affembled in the pettah, and manned the walls on the appearance of Captain Smith's detachment, which came in fight on the 17th, in the morning, approaching from the eaftward : the river, although it had no where more than three feet water, was three hundred yards in breadth.

The neceffity of preferving the communication with Tritchinopoly required that the army fhould command the river during the attack of the fort; which if advancing from a different point of fupport, they might have attacked outright at once on the western face; and as the pofferfion of the pettah would beft fecure the river, Captain Smith prudently made this his first object. If the pettah were attacked on the eastern fide, the river was to be paffed under the fire of this front : if on the north or fouth, the attack would be expofed to the additional fire in flant or flank from the fort; which outvailed the paffage of the river, as the ground on the eaftern fhore was higher than the eaftern face of the pettah, which defended the paffage. Accordingly the attack was made on this fide. The field pieces were posted in the higher ground. The troops were formed into three divisions. The cavalry composed the left; the auxiliary foot the right; the Sepoys and Europeans the center. All entered the river in this order, fupported by a brifk fire from the artillery. The enemy feemed difposed to difpute the paffage, and from

from the rampart of the pettah kept up a conftant but ill-directed fire against the center division; but the cannon-shot penetrating through their parapet did much execution, and seeing the columns to the right and left far advanced in the bed of the river, they became apprehensive that their retreat to the fort might be exposed to these bodies of horse and soot on each hand; and abandoned the defence, returning to the fort before either of the columns had croffed the river; but they had killed and wounded some Sepoys in the passage.

Book XIII.

The plunder was given up to the troops without referve ; but they found little of any value, excepting grain, of which the whole crop of the country was in the town, but no merchants to buy it, nor had the troops means to fend it away. The ftrength of the fort, and the finall number of Europeans with Captain Smith, on whom, neverthelefs, the fuccefs of the attack muft depend, determined him to proceed with all the caution necefiary to their prefervation, by opening trenches; and more artillery was ordered from Tritchinopoly. The convenience of the pettah determined the point of attack against the fouth-east bastion, and as usual against its falient angle : the efplanade in this line was interrupted about half way between the pettah and the ditch by fome ftraw huts, to which the enemy had fet fire, but left the mud-walls ftanding. The next morning, which was the 20th, a party of Sepoys were posted there. but a ftrong fally of horfe and foot obliged them to retire, and the enemy remained in the poft: the field pieces advanced, and drove them from it, and it was again taken pofferfion of by the Sepovs: in a few hours the enemy made a fecond attempt, but were beaten off with lofs. The fituation being exactly proper for the breachingbattery, an entrenchment was thrown round it, and a trench of communication continued to it from the pettah, to preferve the troops from the fire of the fort, which was inceffant, as well from their cannon as finall arms. On the 23d the artillery with much difpatch arrived from Tritchinopoly; they were one eighteenpounder, two field twelve-pounders, one eight, and one nine-inch mortar, with five cohorns; and by the next morning the breachingbattery was compleated, and another in the rear to the right, to enfilade filade the fouth curtain with ricochet. Both opened at fun-rife, the breaching with fix guns, the mortars and cohorns; the ricochet with two field-pieces; the fort returned with firmnefs, and with much vivacity, and the advantage of a crofs fire from the s. w. baftion and cavalier on the left, and from the mafs of mafonry of the gateway on the right. On the 26th the approaches were carried on to within forty yards of the ditch, when the fire of the enemy's mufquetry growing ftrong and fure, Captain Smith ordered the remainder of the trenches to be conducted by double fap, which is with earth and gabions on each fide. The fmall number of Europeans in the detachment, with the inexperience of most of them in carrying on trenches, and the continual fire of the fort by night, aswell as by day, rendered the progress of the double fap extremely tedious, infomuch, that feven days were employed in carrying it, although not more than 200 yards of work, to embrace the angle of the counterfcarp, and to fpring a mine, which blew it into the ditch.

It was perhaps the first time that the Myforeans had ever feen an enemy advancing under cover to the foot of their walls, and notwithftanding the novelty of the attack, they fufpected, which was true, that the fort might be entered by the fame means; this apprehenfion, with the ruin that had been committed in a large tract of country round Caroor by the matchlock-men and horfe of Tondiman and Tanjore, and the whole body of colleries, who had every day been making excursions, prompted the governor to propole terms for the ceffation of hostilities. He began by difavowing any participation of the King with the body of troops which had joined the French in the Carnatic, and declared Hyder Ally, whom he filed a rebel, the author of that alliance and expedition; in confequence, he wanted a temporary and conditional furrender. Several meffages paffed, in the intervals of which the attack and defence was renewed; at length the eighteen-pounder, the only piece of effectual battery, burft, and the breach was not yet practicable, which induced Captain Smith to agree to the following conditions : " That  an English ferjeant, and fixty Sepoys, should immediately be put 44 in: 2.

"in poffeffion of the baftion attacked, and the Englifh colours hoifted in the fort. That the Englifh army fhould remain in the pettah, or any where elfe out of the fort, keeping guards at the counterfearp of the ditch, for twenty days; during which, if no orders arrived from Madrafs to deliver the fort again to the governor, it was to be evacuated by the garrifon, who, in confideration of their gallant defence, were to carry away their arms and horfes; but all provifions and ftores belonging to the government of Myfore were to be left in the fort. If in this interval an army approached from Myfore, the garrifon were in like manner to evacuate the fort to the Englifh troops: four hoftages were to be given by the garrifon, until the conditions were ultimately decided, and an European deferter was to be furrendered." This capitulation was figned on the 2d of September, and the Englifh Sepoys immediately took poffeffion of the baftion attacked.

Captain Smith in his interview with Boniapah, the governor of the fort, was convinced that the king of Myfore had no concert in the affiftance which Hyder Ally had fent to the government of Pondicherry; and Boniapah having no doubt from the articles of capitulation that Caroor would be reftored to the king, proferred to withdraw the garrifon to Namcull, a fort 20 miles to the north, and there wait the orders of Seringapatam, and Fort St. George; to which Captain Smith confented under the reftriction, that none of the garrifon fhould act againft the Englifh until the fate of Caroor was determined at Fort St. George. Accordingly all the Myfore troops evacuated the place the fame day. The acquifition was valuable and important; for, befides that its revenues amounted to 44,000 l. a year, it highly aggravated the refentment of the miniftry of Myfore againft Hyder Ally, as the author of the lofs.

Hoftilities had continued in this interval between the Myforeans of Dindigul, and the troops of Madura. The Myforeans continued the attack of Battle Gunta for fix days, and having driven away the troops which fupported it without, carried the fort itfelf by affault; but the defence had been maintained with refolution; for in the courfe of it 30 Sepoys and 20 horfemen had been killed and wounded; and of the Peons 50 wounded, and 40, with an officer of note, killed. The Madura troops retired to a fort three miles diftant, called Gadamcotah, one of those which they had taken from the Myforeans, and were there joined by a reinforcement from Madura, which had marched to relieve Battle Gunta, but came too late ; this addition rendered the whole body equal to the Myforeans, against whom they marched, beat up their camp, took their artillery, recovered possefition of Battle Gunta, and advanced to reduce the other poss towards Dindigul.

The capitulation of Caroor arrived at Madrais on the 13th of September. On the fame day intelligence was received from Captain Prefton, that the body of Myforeans, which had continued with the French troops at Gingee, had moved from thence with all their baggage; and on the 11th the French troops followed, both proceeding in the road to Thiagar. The prefidency were by this time convinced that the king of Myfore and Hyder Ally were at utter variance; but confidered, that either they might reconcile their differences, or that Hyder, as was most probable, would predominate ; and in either of thefe cafes, other fehemes might be formed by the Myfore state to balance, as formerly, the contest between the two European nations, against which Caroor in their own hands would be the best indemnity. They therefore ordered Captain Smith to keep pofferfion, ftill with profession of amity to the king, but neither to give any assistance, nor oppose any force which the king might fend against Hyder Ally, but rather to employ his detachment feparately against the troops of Hyder Ally, if the opportunity should occur.

Colonel Coote was not embarked for Bengal, when the news of the fuccefs againft the bound-hedge arrived at Madrafs, and with it Colonel Monfon reprefented the incapacity in which he was likely to remain for feveral months of acting in the field, and requefted that Colonel Coote might refume the command of the army. The Prefidency feconding the requeft, he confented, and arrived in the camp on the night of the 20th; where he found the army in the greateft difcontent, efpecially the black troops, for the want of provisions, owing to the avarice of the renters appointed by the Nabob in the conquered countries, who, forefeeing that the Vol. II. 4 S 679 1760. price of grain would rife, fuffered none to be brought to the camp. Sicknefs likewife prevailed, and with the wounded there were 600 Europeans in the hofpital.

The next day Colonel Coote caufed the gorges of the redoubts in the bound-hedge to be fortified, and fixed pofts in proper flations in the higher ground round the camp: from whence on the 23d, a detachment of 200 rank and file, with the company of pioneers, a great number of cooleys and carpenters, marched to a hillock of fand, which flood half a mile from the fea, and at the diftance of a mile directly opposite to the Madrafs redoubt in the north fide of the bound-hedge. Here they were to remain, and raife a large redoubt on the table of the hill, capable of containing five hundred men. On the 27th in the forenoon, Colonel Coote advanced, with his usual effort of three companies of Sepoys, and 300 black horfe, towards the Ariancopang redoubt, at which the guard took panic, and firing off the guns before the party were within point-blank-fhot, abandoned the poft, of which Colonel Coote took pofferfion, and leaving the Sepoys in it, returned in the afternoon with workmen to retrench the gorge; on whofe appearance the town cannonaded and threw shells, but without effect, and the gorge was compleated the next night. Early in the morning of the 29th, 400 of the enemy's Europeans, with two field-pieces, marched from the glacis to recover the redoubt, and made various attempts, in all of which they were repulfed, until they perceived two companies of Sepoys marching on their right to gain their rear, whom Colonel Coote, who was always early abroad, had fent from the Valdore redoubt; on which the enemy retreated, but as they were going off received the fire of the Sepoys, who were themfelves exposed to a ftrong, but diftant fire from the town. The enemy had two officers and feven private killed, and the adjutant of the Lorrain regiment with 18 wounded. None were killed in the redoubt, and only one Sepoy in the plain. Fifty Europeans were appointed to be the guard in future, as fufficient for the fudden defence, until reinforced ; and more would have been been unneceffarily exposed to the fire of fhot and fhells, which continued and reached from the town.

In that part of the limits, which is immediately behind the Madrafs redoubt, was a regular village of feveral ftreets, called, from its intention, the Blancherie, in which all the cloths purchased for the French company at Pondicherry were bleached, and warehoufes were built in the village to receive them. As thefe buildings would not only afford shelter but convenience to the English troops, the enemy refolved to deftroy them, and to ftrengthen the Madrai's redoubt, with the ground about it. They began to demolifh on the 30th of September, of which Colonel Coote received intelligence, and faw the intention. He went the next day, with his ufual efcort of Sepoys and black horfe, as if he only meant to review the progrefs of the redoubt he had ordered to be raifed to the north of the hedge, in which Major Joseph Smith commanded for the week. After dinner, both officers mounted their horfes, and proceeded with the efcort along the ftrand of the fea, towards the limits of Pondicherry, as if they only meant to reconnoitre. The boundhedge ceafeth at fome diftance from the water-mark, and left an opening on the fand, which the enemy had neglected to close or obstruct. As foon as near this opening, Colonel Coote ordered the Sepoys to form in three parties, and the horfe to divide equally with them; but the Sepoys having entertained no fufpicion that they were led to fuch an attack, boggled; on which he ordered the horfe to cut down whoever refufed to advance, or attempted to run away ; and the Sepoys, ashamed of their backwardness, recovered their fpirit. Two of the divisions went off to the right, one to force through the bound-hedge, 500 yards beyond the Madrafs redoubt on its left, the other to attack the redoubt itfelf, whilft Colonel Coote with Jofeph Smith remained along the fea-fhore, ready to pufh, and gain the rear of the hedge, and all the three attacks were to be made at the fame time. There were fome fmall pieces of cannon in the redoubt, and feveral guards of Sepoys along the infide of the hedge, all of which kept up a conftant fire, but at too great a diftance, whilft the two parties fent to the right were advancing to

to the ground opposite their respective attacks. All bore down properly, as it had been concerted. Colonel Coote's attack eafily pushed round, and that on the right through the hedge; and as foon as within both advanced, driving the guards before them, to gain the rear of the redoubt, against which the division which attacked it had not fucceeded, having more difficulties and refiftance to encounter; but as foon as the guard faw the danger approaching from either hand within the hedge, they abandoned the redoubt, and retreated haftily into the warehoufes of the bleaching town, which flood within 200 yards inclosed with a high wall. Five Sepoys were killed, and the fame number wounded in the different attacks. All the three companies, with an Enfign, were left at the redoubt; Colonel Coote and Major Smith returned, the Major to his poft, the Colonel to the camp, from whence he fent off a party of pioneers with gabions and fafcines under the command of Enfign Macmahon, to clofe and retrench the gorge of the redoubt; but they were first to proceed to Major Smith's post, from whence they were to be accompanied by a detachment of European foldiers : but Macmahon, miftaking his orders, did not call for this neceffary reinforcement. In war more than in all the other occupations of man, neglect rarely fails to bring on its own punifhment.

At midnight, whilft the pioneers were at work, they were fuddenly attacked by 400 Europeans, and 600 Sepoys, detached from the town. The Enfign, a Dane, who commanded the Sepoys in the redoubt, abandoned it on the first onfet, in which Enfign Macmahon was killed ; and the pioneers, furprized and defencelefs. efcaped as they could; what Sepoys were within the redoubt jumped out; but the greateft part, who were flationed round, encouraged by a Subahdar named Coven Naig, kept with him, and gained the plain at fome diftance without fright, where they formed, under his direction, and followed him to recover the poft. They mounted the outfide of the rampart, gained footing on the infide, kept it, and continued a hot fire on the area below, efpecially towards the gorge. The enemy imputed this refolution to much greater numbers than they expected, and than really were at the the poft, and in this fuppofition retreated to the bleaching-houfe. Soon after came up a ftrong party of Europeans detached on the firft firing by Major Smith from his poft to the north. In the different actions from the firft affault, three private Europeans, befides enfign Macmahon, were killed, and 30 Sepoys killed and wounded. The enemy the next morning erected a battery of four pieces of cannon at the end of a lane, which joined the ftreet of the Blancherie, leading as well as that in a ftraight line to the rear of the redoubt, on which they continued firing two days without killing any of the guard, and then having other occupations they defifted ; fome mufketry ftill continued in the bleaching houfe, but were driven out the next day, and abandoned the village.

The acquisition of the Madrafs redoubt compleated the entire poffeffion of the bound-hedge from the fea-fhore to the north, as far as the river of Ariancopang to the s. E.; and turned against the town, with every advantage, the line of circumvallation intended for its defence. But the ground to the fouth along the courfe of the river. from the redoubt of Ariancopang to the fea, was still open, and the river fpreading over fheets of fand, which were often dry, was at all times, excepting in the rainy feafon, fordable; and to fecure the paffage, Mr. Lally had fome months before erected a redoubt which he called St. Thomas in a fmall ifland of fand in the river, oppofite to the center of this face of the town, and about 500 yards from the walls. The rains were now approaching, and the redoubt, if immediately taken pofferfion of, could not be maintained by the English army after the river fhould fill, and as usual overflow the country; for which reafon Colonel Coote deferred the reduction of it, until the rains were paffed. In the mean time efforts were ftill to be apprehended to bring provisions into the town; for the French troops, which had followed the laft division of the Myforeans to Thiagar, continued there; and although the main body of the Myforeans had left Thiagar, no intelligence was yet received of their departure to their own country.

The French force which had marched to Thiagar, was 400 European foot, 250 European horfe, and 1000 Sepoys. The little 683 1760. October.

Prefton, was not equal to an open encounter with this force; he, however, with his usual activity, determined to give them all the interruption in his power, and ordered Captain Martin, who, with the free company of 50 Frenchmen, was abroad with the Polygar of Ventivalum in the hills to the fouth of Gingee, to hang in the rear of the enemy's march; and moved himfelf with the main body of his division from Ratlagrammon, to watch their motions at Vicravandi, left they fhould turn, and lay wafte the recovered diffricts between this place and Verdachilum. Martin knowing the country, and using the night, picked up twelve Europeans of the French troops. They reached the Panar just as it was fwelled by a fudden flood ; and perfifting neverthelefs to crofs it, fome of them were carried away and drowned in the stream, which the Myforeans had passed with eafe before the freshes came down. As foon as Preston was arrived at Vicravandi, the garrifon remaining at Gingee marched and affaulted Ratlagrammon, in which had been left only two companies of Sepoys, who defended the post with refolution, and obliged the enemy to retire, after they had loft fourteen Europeans killed in the attack, and leaving an officer and three wounded, who were made prifoners. Prefton receiving intelligence, that the French troops and the Myforeans were affembled at Thiagar, returned from Vicravandi to Raltagrammon, left they should return fuddenly during his abfence, and attempt to move to Pondicherry with the convoy of bullocks which still continued at Gingee.

By this time the prefidency knew the caufe of the departure of the laft body of Myforeans from Gingee to Thiagar, but were not able to account for the march of the French troops fo far to the weftward, at a time when their utmost efforts became every day more neceffary to efcort the provisions they had collected, into Pondicherry.

In the beginning of the year, Balagerow, the general and regent of the Morattoes, fent an army of 8000 horfe, and the fame number of foot, with cannon, under the command of an officer of fervice. named named Vizvazypunt, which croffed the Kriftna in the month of February, and advancing to the fouthward ftopped frequently to exact contributions from forts and ftrong-holds in the way; feveral of which, on denial, they took. In the beginning of June they halted and encamped at Chinabalabaram, on the confines of Myfore to the N. E. and not far from the hills to the N. w. of the Carnatic, from whence Vizvazypunt fent letters, fignifying expectations of money, but profering affiftance to the Nabob Mahomed Ally; and others to the king of Myfore, demanding with more authority the arrears of the chout, or tribute, to which the Morattoe nation pretends a right from all the countries in the peninfula. At this time Hyder Ally, at Seringapatam, the capital of Myfore, had, as if in difguft, refigned his employments of general and minister : he had fome time before concluded his treaty with M. Lally, and fent off the body of 4000 Myforeans, which came to Pondicherry under the command of his brother-in-law Muctoon Saheb; relying on this alliance, and his own courage, he was fo affured of his importance and fafety, that he abided at a town within three miles of Seringapatam, with all his family of women, attended only by 300 horfemen, who were of proved fidelity and refolution. Agents accompanied the letters of Vizvazypunt, with whom the king concerted, that their mafter should move with his army to Seringapatam, as if to haften by intimidation the levy of a large contribution, which the king had privately confented to pay. Hyder Ally fuppofed, that their approach would reinstate him in the command of the king's forces to oppose them, and difcovered when near, that the Morattoes had engaged to feize his perfon; on which he mounted in the dead of night, accompanied by fome of his horfemen, and left his whole family behind. Some Morattoes followed them, whom he out-ftripped, and the next day arrived at Bangalore, a ftrong city 60 miles to the north of Seringapatam. Being the bringer of his own errand, he had time, and found means to engage fome of the officers, who prevailed on the reft to declare they would abide by his fortunes; and in confequence they fhut the gates. From this retreat he immediately fent orders to his brother-in-law, to quit the Carnatic

Carnatic with all the troops under his command, and to march, avoiding the Morattoes, to Bengalore. Muctoon Saheb had received the letters, when he moved from Pondicherry on the 16th of Auguft; but concluding Hyder Ally to be in fafety for a while at Bengalore, and believing either that a reconciliation would take place between him and the King, after the retreat of the Morattoes; or otherwife, that Hyder Ally might think it most expedient to come himfelf, and join the French, for the fake of the ceffions flipulated in the treaty ; he determined, although not to return to Pondicherry, to continue in the Carnatic, and in confequence employed, as we have feen, his troops against Trinomaly, and other places in that part of the country, until he received, in the beginning of September, farther intelligence from Hyder Ally, which left no alternative to his departure; on which he recalled the 800 horfe which were at Gingee, and without folicitation, with an integrity rare in the politics of India. requefted the French force to accompany them in order to receive back the poffeffion of the fort of Thiagar, which he without ftipulation tendered of his own accord. On their arrival there on the 13th of September, he fulfilled his word, claiming only on occalion their future affiftance, and three days after marched away with his whole force to join his brother. The French left 200 European foot, and five companies of Sepoys in Thiagar, and the reft. being the fame number of foot, 1 50 European horfe, and three companies of Sepoys, returned to Gingee.

The refitution of Thiagar, and the departure of the Myfore troops out of the province, confirmed the veracity of the king's difavowal of any participation in that expedition, and the Prefidency repeated their orders to Captain Smith and the troops of Madura to ceafe hoftilities in the Myfore diffricts. Previous to the receipt of thefe orders, Captain Smith had fent a detachment from Caroor, againft a fort called Pudicotah, different from that he had taken in his approach. It ftands nine miles to the N. E. of Caroor on the fourth bank of the Caveri. The garrifon evacuated it on the appearance of the detachment, who left a party to hold it, and returned to Caroor. The want of money prevented any farther operations; for, although the the revenues of the country reduced exceeded 300,000 rupees a year, the devastation of the auxiliary horfe and foot which could not be reftrained, left no contributions to raife. Captain Smith, therefore, returned with a part of his command to Tritchinopoly, and on the way fent off a detachment to reinftate two polygars, who had been driven out of their pollams by the troops of Dindigul, from whom the detachment met no refiftance, as the governor of Dindigul had received orders, in confequence of the capitulation of Caroor, to ceafe hoftilities against the poffeffions of the Nabob. By this time the troops of Madura had taken five other forts between Batal Gunta and Dindigul, in all feven, and continued to keep poffeffion of them until farther orders, encamping their main body at Batal Gunta, and keeping flight guards in the others. Captain Smith arrived in the beginning of October at Madrafs, to give an account of his expedition, and the flate of the conquered country; and foon after returned to his command in Tritchinopoly.

As foon as it was afcertained that the Myforeans had quitted the province, Colonel Coote, to fave the heavy expence of the black cavalry, difcharged 500 of them, mostly those brought by Maphuze Khan, which reduced the number to 800, of which 500 were with Prefton, and the reft with himfelf in the camp. A party, with fome bullocks, advancing from Gingee, arrived on the 2d of October at Malamoodi, a village twelve miles from Pondicherry between the river of Ariancopang and the Panar, intending to pufh into the town in the night under the protection of St. Thomas redoubt. On intelligence of their approach, Colonel Coote détached all the cavalry in the camp, which, befides the black, were one of the two troops of Europeans, to lie in their way: of which the party got intelligence, and leaving their bullocks retreated during the night, and in their return three officers, who lagged behind in their palankins, were taken by fome black horfe and Sepoys, which Captain Prefton had detached to harrafs the party from Ratalgrammon.

The army had hitherto continued on the ground between Oulgarry and the river of Ariancopang, where they had encamped immediately after the fuccefs of the bound hedge. This ground is always Vol. II. 4 T overflowed 687 1760. October, overflowed in the rainy feafon, of which the figns encreafed every day; and on the 6th the whole army marched off by the left, and encamped on the ridge of the Red-hill, a mile and half nearer the bound-hedge than their first encampment at Perimbé, but to the left of that ground. The heighth and fandy foil of this fituation drained and dried the wet as fast as it fell, and fecured at least the troops from this inclemency under foot, and large caferns of mat and bamboo were built to shelter them from the other.

At one the next morning, firing of cannon and mufketry was heard in the road of Pondicherry. Befides finaller craft, three French fhips, the Hermione, the Baleine, and the Compagnie des Indes were at anchor before the town, as near the furf as prudence permitted, and under the command of 100 guns, mounted along the works on this fide, and the strand, to protect the road. These ships were intended to wait until the flormy weather, and then fail to ports to the fouthward, and return with provisions, of which the prevention would in that feafon become precarious, even should the Englifh fquadron be able to continue in fight of Pondicherry. Mr. Stevens had for fome time determined to cut them out of the road. His fquadron always continued at anchor before Cuddalore. A fortnight before the prefent, a night had been fixed ; but the fhips beginning to hoift out their boats before it was dark, they were perceived by telescopes from Pondicherry; and men were immediately fent from the fhore to reinforce the French fhips ; which was likewife difcovered by the fquadron, and obliged Mr. Stevens to defer the defign, until the enemy's fufpicions fhould have ceafed. In the mean time the Tyger of 60 guns was fent to continue near Pondicherry, and anchored a little to the fouth, two miles from the fhore. On the night of the 6th, the enterprize was refumed. The boats, fix and twenty, were hoifted out after dark, and manned with 400 failors, mostly volunteers, and failed to the Tyger, where all affembled at 12. Soon after they perceived the lights in the great cabbin of the nearest ship, the Hermione, extinguished, and concluding that the officers were gone to reft, fet off for the attack. The boats moved in two divifions, one allotted to the Hermione, the other to the next ship, the Baleine: 4

Baleine; the attack of the Compagnie des Indes was to depend on the fuccefs of thefe. To prevent deviation, the boats of each divifion moved in a line, holding to one other by ropes. The niches of the oars were covered with fresh sheep-skin, to prevent creaking. The watch-word by which the men were to know one another in the attack, was Cathchart, a found which few Frenchmen can pronounce. It lightned continually, as usual in the nights before the change of the monfoon; neverthelefs, the division to the Hermione got within piftol-fhot of her ftern, before they were difcovered ; when the boats feparating, ranged up equally on each fide of the fhip, and two went forward to the bows to cut the cables. During this approach, all hands in the fhips were up, and firing mulketry on the boats, and fhot came from the guns of the Compagnie des Indes, which lay to command both the other fhips. The Hermione was boarded in as many parts as there were boats round her. The crew, which were 70 Europeans, behaved well, defending themfelves and the fhip with pikes and piftols, when the attack came hand to hand. The man who first attempted to cut the cable had his head cut off by an officer ftanding to guard it in the bows; neverthelefs numbers prevailed, and the crew were all driven or tumbled down the hatch-ways; for no concert of furrender could take place, or be trufted. As foon as they were all down, the hatches were clofed and centinels fixed over them, and then the mizen topfail, the only fail bent, was fet to carry off the fhip, which feveral boats were likewife ready to tow: but by this time, the fhore, which had waited until the firing of the attack had ceafed in the ship, began a violent cannonade, of which the lightning directed the aim : and fhot continually ftruck : one deftroyed the wheel of the rudder, killed the two men who were fteering, and cut the tiller rope. The prifoners confined below deterred every one from going down into the gun-room to fix another rope to the rudder, and the fingle fail was not fufficient to fteer the fhip; the boats remained the only means of carrying her off, and they tugged with fuch violence, that they continually fnapt the towing ropes. Mean while the fire continued from the fhore. At length, fome imagined that 4T 2 that the fhip had no motion, and relifted by a cable and anchor concealed under her keel; on which the officer who commanded the attack, refolved to leave her. The prifoners below were told, that it was determined to fet her on fire, on which they came up readily to be carried off in the boats, which rowed away with them to the Tyger. When arrived on board, the captain, Digby Dent, faid he fhould fend his own men, if the division did not immediately return to bring off the fhip. This fpirited rebuke prevailed, all the boats fet off again and met the fhip half a mile nearer; for the land-wind had fprung up and was driving her out.

The difpolitions for the attack of the Baleine, were the fame, and fucceeded more eafily. The crew made little reliftance; only two men were killed before they furrendered. The rudder of the fhip was alhore, but feveral fails were bent to the yards which fufficed to move and fteer her, and fhe was brought, and anchored near the Tyger, before the Baleine came up. No attempt was made on the Compagnie des Indes.

By this time the want of provisions prefied to hard, that Mr. Lally affembled a general council, and proposed the immediate expulsion of the black inhabitants, who represented that their fidelity alone to those who might condemn them to this fevere calamity, had left it in their power to inflict it : by their removal, likewife, all the Europeans would be deprived of their domestics; and from these confiderations the affembly broke up without decision : but fome from fear of the other inconveniences of the blockade during the ftormy weather, requested permission of Colonel Coote to fend away their families either to the Danish or Dutch fettlements on the coast, which were neutral in the war; and passports were granted.

Intelligence was received on the 11th, that the garrifon intended to march out a detachment of 400 men, to florm the Madrafs redoubt in the bound-hedge, and then pufh on to attack the large redoubt, which the Englifh army had raifed to the north of it; on which the picquets of the camp marched, and took poft half-way, in order to fall on the rear of the detachment : being difcovered, the enemy enemy made no motion, but the next day the town fired hotly, but without execution, on the Ariancopang redoubt.

The winds had for fome days veered and ftrengthened; and on the 22d and 23d, the two Admirals failed out of the road of Cuddalore with all the thips, excepting four, which two days after, on fuspicion of flormy weather, went away likewife. Their departure was unexpected, becaufe contrary to Mr. Stevens's declaration, that he would not quit the coaft until compelled by the utmost neceffity, which had not yet come. As foon as they difappeared, the Compagnie des Indes, and a floop which was in the road, prepared as had been forefeen to put to fea. The fhip failed on the 30th to bring provisions from Tranquebar, and the floop armed with feveral guns was intended to cruize in the offing for the grain-boats, which at this feafon of the year come with the wind and current from the northern to the fouthern parts of the coaft, and generally fail in fight of the fhore. The four men of war which left Cuddalore on the 23d, anchored on the 1st of November off of Alamparvah, from whence they fell down on the 14th to the road of Pondicherry, and gave information, that Mr. Stevens was gone with the other 12 ships of the squadron to refit them in the bay of Trincomaly.

Captain Prefton, on the 18th of October, detached fome black horfe and Sepoys from his poft at Ratlagrammon, who came back with 400 head of cattle of those collected by the French, which were grazing in the country round the pettah of Gingee: The detachment was neither oppofed or purfued, although a confiderable party of the French troops was then in the pettah ready to march. This party moved on the 21st; they were 200 Europeans and Coffrees, 400 Sepoys, 100 European, and as many black horfe. They crofied the river Panar on its decline, and on their arrival at Thiagar, a detachment larger than their number was formed, and marched away, to attack the fort of Chandamungalum, which flands half way towards Trinomalee : the fort was garrifoned by four or five companies of Sepoys, with a few Europeans from Chittapet, who repulsed the affault with uncommon ability, having killed ten Europeans and 40 Sepoys, and wounded 50 Sepoys and 20 horfes :

horfes; after which the French party attempted nothing more, but returned to Thiagar.

Captain Preston, on the first intelligence of their motion from Gingee, fet out, as before, to follow them with the greatest part of his force from Ratlagrammon, but when arrived on the 24th near Villaporum, found the river fwelled, and continued on the bank, in expectation of its fall; and on the 1st of November, the garrifon of Gingee, being ftronger than the force he had left at Ratlagrammon, again detached a party of 25 European horfe and 20 foot with three companies of Sepoys and fome black cavalry, to drive away all the cattle about this place, which by the late captures and purchases made for the camp were many herds. Captain Robert Fletcher, who commanded during the abfence of Prefton at Ratlagrammon, waited until the enemy began to retreat with the cattle they had gathered, when he appeared with 50 black horfe, and three companies of Sepoys in their rear, and followed them fix miles, but as if cautious of coming too close to their fire; which continually drew it from them; when, perceiving that they had almost expended their ammunition, he approached nearer, and engaged them regularly, which they fcarcely fuffained, and foon broke, and all their Sepoys flung down their arms. Fifteen of them were killed, and 30 with a Subadar or captain made prifoners : of the Europeans, fix were killed, or fell wounded, and 150 muskets were collected. The next day, Fletcher, with a ftronger force, marched again from Ratlagrammon, and contriving his time, arrived at night, and entered the pettah of Gingee, which has but a flight wall, by furprize, fet fire to it in every part, and met no refistance, excepting the uncertain fire of the cannon from the hills above, and on his return he drove off a greater number of their cattle than the enemy had taken the day before.

The frequent, although flender attempts and enterprizes, which had been made by the body of French troops in the field, in order either to fupply Pondicherry with provisions, to gain plunder, or to create diversions of the English force, had in the whole expended more than three hundred Europeans; most of the rest were now at Thiagar, Thiagar, and from the force remaining at Gingee, including what the garriton might on occafion fpare, no attempt of convoys to Pondicherry beyond the provisions of a few days were to be apprehended. They had loft, if ever it lay open, the opportunity, when they were in full force. Neverthelefs the number of troops remaining at Pondicherry, with the defences and ammunition, ftill fecured the town from every danger, excepting famine; and Mr. Lally not imprudently preferred that the troops he had detached, fhould remain abroad, where they might do fome fervice, and would fubfift themfelves, rather than return to confume in Pondicherry the flender flock of provisions, of which they had fupplied fo little. He now wished even to add more to their number for another purpose, on which ill fortune and necessity obliged him to rely as the likelieft means that remained of relieving the diffress of Pondicherry.

The French fquadron, which had left the coaft on the 1ft of October of the preceding year, arrived on the 15th of November at the ifle of France. This ifland never furnished provisions fufficient for the fettled inhabitants, and had been fo much exhausted of the ftores collected from abroad, by victualling the fquadron at their departure for the coaft, that little remained to afford them on their return; and this fcarcity had been injudicioufly encreafed by the equipment of two veffels, which had been fent to attack the English factories in the gulph of Perfia. In this diffrefs, it was refolved to follow the example of the preceding year, and to fend three thips of burthen, under the convoy of the Centaur of 74 guns, belonging to the French Company, to purchase provisions at the Cape of Good Hope. But Mr. D'Aché propofed to give the command of the Centaur to the captain of the King's fhip the Actif ; on which all the captains of the Company's thips of war protested against this preference, as derogatory to their own rights; and whilft the tedious difputations ufual on fuch occafions were carrying on in writing, with much acerbity and little public zeal, the annual tempeft of the elements in this climate arose in the night of the 27th of January, and lasted without intermission, and with the utmost excess, for 36 hours. Thirty-two veffels in the port of Mauritius were torn from their anchors :

anchors; but all, excepting one of 30 guns, were stopped by the ooze of the bay from driving on the rocks which fraize the fhore; on which all the fmaller craft were ftranded and wrecked. The ruin was greater on the land. All the vegetation of provisions above the furface was deftroyed. The cattle and fowls were washed away by the torrents, or perifhed by the inclemency, and of the magazines of grain, which are all built of wood, fome were overthrown, and the reft opened by the wind to the rain. Three months were employed in repairing the damages of the marine and fhore. In this interval, fome few provisions were brought by fome trading veffels of the colony from Madagafcar, and the furplus of the ifland of Bourbon. On the 26th of May it was determined to fend four thips of war, as fast as they could be equipped, in order to subfift at Foul-point in Madagafcar. On the 8th of June, arrived a veffel from France, apprifing, that an armament was fitting out in England to attack the two iflands of Mauritius and Bourbon; in confequence of which, the French government had fent the regiment of Cambray, of 700 men, to reinforce them ; and the fquadron, if at Mauritius, was ordered to continue there; and, if gone to the coaft, to be immediately recalled. Thefe orders determined Mr. D'Aché to remain with the greatest part of his ships for the defence of the ifland, but to fend away those before allotted to Madagafcar; which, to fave the confumption of victuals, were not to return to the ifle of France, until the 20th of August: if at this time they received no directions how to act, the council of war might proceed to the execution of any fervice, of which the condition of the fhips might be deemed capable : meaning to intimate, that they might, if they chofe it, go to the coast of Coromandel. The Centaur failed for Madagafcar on the 16th of June, but the other three not in lefs than a month after, by which time the regiment of Cambray was arrived in feveral of the Company's fhips from France. The news of the florm was brought to Pondicherry by the Hermione and Baleine in July, but by detaining the failors for a while on board, the report was kept fecret, until others properly fabricated and given out, perfuaded the colony, and the enemy at their gates, gates, that the fquadron ftrongly reinforced from France might be every day expected on the coaft. In the middle of October, letters difpatched from Mauritius to Mahé, on the coaft of Malabar, arrived from hence, with information of the departure of the four fhips to Madagafcar, and dubious affurances of their intention to come at all events to Pondicherry. Mr. Lally had always regarded the operations of the fquadron as fo unzealous and indecifive, that he was convinced thefe fhips would not make the effort. He, however, concealed this opinion, and the intelligence concerning the fuppofed attack of Mauritius from England; but gave out that the fhips gone to Madagafcar, and more, might be expected at Pondicherry with the regiment of Cambray on board. But, defpairing of the relief he pretended, he perfuaded the Council to conclude a treaty for the affiftance of the body of Morattoes under the command of Vizvazypunt, which had lately returned from Seringapatam in Myfore to the confines of the Carnatic.

Vizvazypunt, on his first approach from the Kristna, had in April fent letters to Pondicherry, tendering the fame affiftance to the French as he was offering to the Nabob and the English: a vague correspondence had continued in confequence of these overtures; but, on his nearer approach, Mr. Lally fent two agents to his camp. The Morattoe required a fum of ready money in hand, and the ceffion of the fortrefs of Gingee, which, befides the influence it would give Balagerow in the province of Arcot, was the wifh of a national point of honour, fince Gingee had, until the beginning of the prefent century, been the capital of a race of Morattoe kings, whofe dominion extended from the Coleroon to the Paliar. The Council empowered the agents to agree that Gingee should be delivered to him as foon as the English army retreated from Pondicherry, and that 500,000 rupees should be paid him when his own appeared in fight of the town. All the French troops abroad were to join the Morattoes as foon as they passed the hills, and entered the province. If thefe terms were not readily accepted, the agents were to infinuate that, although the diffreffes of Hyderally had broke any farther expectations of affiftance from him, the king of Myfore himfelf 4 U VOL. felf would be glad to obtain Gingee on the fame terms; when the Morattoes would be precluded from the probability of gaining any advantage by their expedition to the Carnatic.

But as the negociation might be protracted, and provisions, even for a few days, were become of great importance, Mr. Lally ordered the troops abroad to make what effort they could before the rains ceafed ; and as Gingee was fo clofely watched by Prefton's command, he directed the main body to continue and act from Thiagar. from whence, by the diftance, and the nature of the country between, their motions would be lefs liable to be afcertained and interrupted. In the mean time, as well to fave the confumption in the town, as to convince the Morattoes that the troops in garrifon were more than fufficient to defend it, he refolved to fend out more to join those already in the field. Accordingly on the night of the Ift of November, 100 Europeans croffed the river of Ariancopang in boats, and were proceeding along the fea-fhore, from whence they intended to turn inland, and gain their way to the weft between the two rivers, expecting no interruption, as the rains were almost continual, and had drenched the plain : but in the close of the evening, a guard of Sepoys had been advanced from the fort of Ariancopang, and took post on the strand of the fea; they fired on the first alarm upon the French party, who, imagining their force greater, and that it had been stationed on purpose to intercept them, hurried back to their boats, and regained the town : only one of the Sepoys was killed ; the enemy's lofs was not known, but was fuppofed to be more.

Exceffive rain flopped any farther opperations between the English camp and the French troops for feveral days, during which, both continued intent only on the fea. To oppose the armed boats of the town, fome were equipped in the like manner at Cuddalore, which on the 7th took a boat coming with paddy from Tranquebar, and another going thither with effects of value; and intelligence being received that the fhip la Compagnie des Indes, with a fchooner and feveral smaller veffels, were taking in provisions there, Commodore Haldan detached two of the men of war with orders to feize them, and every other veffel which had more than the provisions of their own diet on board. They came into the road on the 8th, where they found the Salifbury of 50 guns arrived from Triconomaly, which had anchored close to the Compagnie des Indes, and kept her under command, waiting orders from the commodore. The Compagnie des Indes flruck on the first fummons; and the schooner, which was loaded with 400 bags of wheat, and fome barrels of falted meat, ran associated with 400 bags of wheat, and fome barrels of falted meat, ran associated the Salisbury failed away with the prize to rejoin Admiral Stevens at Triconomaly. The news of this loss was received in Pondicherry with as much concern as a difaster in the field. The Danish government fent deputies to Colonel Coote, with a protest against the infraction of the neutrality of their port; but were shewn intercepted letters, which proved their associated and the French agents, and filenced their remonstrances.

On the 9th of the month, a ricochet battery of four eighteenpounders was finished in a ruined village, 1400 yards to the north, between the fea-fide and the bleaching town : the shot plunged along the east face of the town, and were answered very hotly by twelve pieces of cannon, which as well from the distance, as the parapet of the battery, by which the guns were entirely concealed, could do no mischief.

On the 12th, Colonel Coote received information, that a convoy was advancing from Thiagar; they were 24 European and 100 black horfe, efforting 100 bullocks, laden with falted beef, and each of the horfemen likewife carried a parcel of it at the croup of his faddle. They croffed the Panar on the 13th, at fome diffance above Trivadi, and proceeded between this and the river of Ariancopang; but imprudently loft time in driving 300 bullocks more, which they had taken up in the way. At four in the morning they came up near the fort of Ariancopang, and were immediately furrounded by a detachment of 100 European foot, 40 European and 150 black horfe, which were waiting to intercept them. The officer with one of the troopers was killed, and ten, with more than half the black horfe, furrendered; but the other 12 of the European 4 U 2

horfe pufhed to the river, and were ferried over to the town under the guns of St. Thomas' redoubt. To prevent fuch attempts in future, 50 Europeans, with a company of Sepoys, were flationed and retrenched on the flip of fand on the fea-fhore, oppofite to the bar of the river.

By this time the waters of the Panar were run off, and, as the troops at Ratlagramon with Captain Fletcher were deemed fufficient to oppofe what the enemy had at Gingee, Captain Prefton, with the main body of his command, marched away from Villaporum to attack Elavanafore, to which the officer at Thiagar fent a reinforcement, chiefly of black troops; but after Elavanafore was invefted did not advance to its relief. The only guns fit for battery with Prefton's division, were two field twelve-pounders, which are too flight againft ftrong defences; but, as the laft thing which is done in country forts is to repair them, a breach was eafily made, and the garrifon capitulated at difcretion, although they were 11 Europeans, 19 Topaffes, and 400 Sepoys, with three field-pieces, befides the guns of the fort.

Preparations had for fome time been making at Madrafs to convert the blockade of Pondicherry into a regular attack; and on the 16th, the Admiral Watfon, a fhip of 500 tons, laden with all kinds of ftores, arrived, and anchored off the north redoubt, and the maffoolas of Cuddalore repaired thither to unload her. On the 18th, Mr. Call, the chief engineer, arrived in the camp, to conduct the trenches.

There were remaining in Pondicherry about 50 horfes belonging to the cavalry, for which no forage could be procured either within or without the walls; and, as the grain they confumed was fo much taken from the fuftenance of the garrifon, Mr. Lally refolved to fend them with the beft riders to Thiagar. Colonel Coote received intelligence of the intention, but not of the time. At two o'clock in the morning of the 21ft, 200 grenadiers, with the horfemen, paffed the river on rafts, near the bar, oppofite to the retrenched guard on the fpit of fand, from which the Europeans had been withdrawn, and only the Sepoys were remaining ; on whom the French

French grenadiers immediately advanced, and gave their fire, whilft the horfemen went off as faft as they could over the plain, taking the road to Trivadi. On the alarm, the pickets of horfe in the camp mounted, and croffing the river, which chanced to be fordable at Villenore, went in purfuit, and took thirteen, whofe horfes were too feeble to keep pace with the others.

Major Prefton, following his fuccefs, marched from Elavanafore, againft a fort called Rifhavandum, which ftands 15 miles to the N. E. of that place: it furrendered to him, after little refiftance, on the 22d: the garrifon confifted of 200 Sepoys, and five Europeans. From hence he marched againft Chacrapollam, a mud fort, 15 miles north of Thiagar; which furrendered to him without making any defence; for the garrifon was only a company of Sepoys, with a ferjeant. In the mean while, the French troops remaining at Gingee, exclusive of the garrifon there, went againft Chittamoor, a fort 10 miles to the s. E. and were repulfed, with the lofs of 20 Sepoys and four Europeans, killed and wounded.

The landing of the flores from the Admiral Watfon had been impeded by the defertion of the boatmen, who ran away, becaufe they had not been regularly paid; but the blockade continued with the utinoft vigilance, and nothing, fince the laft convoy, had attempted to get in by land; feveral boats coming from the fouthward, with falt provisions and arrack, were intercepted by armed boats equipped The encreasing diffrefs determined Mr. Lally to conat Devicotah. fult nothing any longer but neceffity; and on the 27th, he turned out of the gates all the blacks remaining in the town, excepting a few who were domeffics to the principal inhabitants. The number expelled were 1400, of both fexes, and every age. They wandered in families and companies towards all parts of the limits, hoping the mercy of being fuffered to pafs away; but they were every where ftopped by the advanced Sepoys, and ordered to go back; on which they retired, and affembled round the foot of the glacis, begging admittance, and many of them attempting to pass over into the covered way, were fired upon by the mufketry and cannon, and fome were killed. At night they were quiet ; but the next day, and for fix.

fix more, they repeated the fame importunities to the town and the Englifh pofts, and received the fame repulfes. Examples of this feverity rarely occur; and in civilized war is never exercised but with the utmost reluctance. At length Colonel Coote, finding Mr. Lally inflexible, let the whole multitude pass. Their only fuffenance, excepting the little they had brought out of the town, fecreted about their perfons, had for eight days been the roots of grafs they picked up in the fields, in which they lay. They were all extenuated by famine, and few had homes or friends to go to; nevertheles their thanks were inexpretible, even for this chance of prefervation.

The Nabob was prefent at this act of mercy, and concurred in it. He left Arcot on the 15th of November, and went to Madrais to confer a few hours with Mr. Pigot, from whence he arrived in the camp on the 3d of December. On the 2d and 3d, two veffels, a floop, and a pinnace remaining at Pondicherry, failed away for Tranquebar, but the pinnace was taken by the boats of Devicotah.

Four ricochet batteries, which were first to open against the town, were finished on the 8th. We have already given fome description of Pondicherry, when attacked by Mr. Boscawen in 1748. All the baftions remained in their first form, which, for a town of this fize. was very confined; but counter-guards had been made before three of them, and ravelins raifed before the three gates to the land; a rampart of earth had been added to the curtains, which before were only walls of brick five feet thick. A wet ditch had been compleated on the three fides to the land, excepting in an extent of 200 yards on the fouth fide towards the fea, where the ground rifing higher required a deeper excavation, which for this reafon, as being more laborious and expensive, had not yet been dug; to the extremity of this higher ground where the ditch ceafed, came a large creek from the river of Ariancopang, which fupplied the ditch all round with water. The berm within the ditch was 25 feet broad; the covered way was narrow, and the glacis not fufficiently raifed. The face to the east being within a few yards of the furf, and exposed only to an escalade by furprize, had no ditch, but its curtain was flanked by projecting batteries, which likewife commanded the road. The citadel tadel was a pentagon with five baffions, but too fmall to endure bombardment; two of its baftions over-looked the east curtain, and added to the fire on the fea. The town was very commodioufly laid out in straight streets which traverfed it entirely in both directions.

The ricochet battery of four guns, which had opened on the 10th of November, had for fome time been quitted, and the guns removed to the north redoubt beyond the bound-hedge; becaufe their effect was not equal either to the expence of ammunition, or the fatigue and rifque of the guards. The four batteries which were now opened were thus fituated. One flood near the beach to the north, 200 yards in front of that which had been abandoned, and about 1200 from the walls; it mounted four 18 pounders, and enfiladed the eaft front of the town. Another of two 24 and two 18 pounders, with three mortars of 13, 10, and 8 inches, was raifed on the other fide of the morafs, which spreads to the west; it was 1400 yards from the walls, and bore, but a little to the left, upon the weft flank of the baffion in the north-weft angle, which mounted 10 guns, and had before it, within the ditch, a ftrong and extensive counter-guard, mounting 25 guns. The two other batteries were to the fouth. One on the edge of a large ifland, formed by the river of Ariancopang; this battery mounted only two guns, of which, one bore on the baftion next to that in the s.w. angle of the town, the other on St. Thomas redoubt, which flood on the opposite bank of the river lower down; the other battery was raifed in a finaller ifland below the Coco-nut, from which it is feparated on one hand, and on the other from the fpit of fand, which forms the ftrand of the fea from the bar of the river. This is called the Sand Ifland; the battery bore upon St. Thomas redoubt, and on the curtain of the town between the two baffions on this fide nearest the fea.

All the four batteries were only intended to harrafs the garrifon by a crofs fire of ricochet fhot along the ftreets or ramparts; for none of them were on the perpendiculars on which the breaching batteries were were intended to be erected. They opened at midnight, between the 8th and 9th, firing all of them at the fame time, and in vollies, on the fignal of a fhell. A little before the first volley, Colonel Coote, with two or three officers, approached towards the glacis of the north front, in order to obferve what effect the firing would produce upon the garrifon. They beat to arms, but without confusion, and feemed to have every thing in proper order on their baftions ; they raifed blue lights in different parts of the town, but did not fire a fhot. Captain Fletcher, who was with the Colonel, very imprudently quitted him without notice, and went to the foot of the glacis, where he fell in with the centinel of an advanced guard of Sepoys, whom he feized and difarmed, and was bringing off; when the guard, hearing the ftruggle, ran into the covered way, from whence immediately came a hot fire of mulketry upon Colonel Coote's party; but Fletcher brought off the Sepoy, who gave no intelligence but what was better known before.

The batteries ceafed before day-break, and the guns were kept mafked until the afternoon, when they recommenced, and the town returned with great vivacity, but the firing ceafed on both fides in two hours. The two batteries to the fouth prevented the enemy from launching a large boat which they had fitted on the fhore near the bar, and drove them likewife from their guns in St. Thomas's redoubt, which were only mounted in barbette.

The firing continued in the fix following days, but was every day renewed at a different hour, and lafted varioufly, and never more than three or four hours at a time. On the 18th, the vollies ceafed for want of powder, and only fired on particular occafions. In all this confumption, only one man was killed at the baftions, and very few in the town; but the purpofe was anfwered of wafting the garrifon with fatigue, which their feanty allowance of provifions rendered them little able to endure. On the 19th, a party of pioneers appeared at work with great eagernefs, to raife and convert the barbette of St. Thomas's redoubt into a parapet with embrafures. The battery on the fand ifland fired to interrupt them I by night as well as by day, but they perfevered. On the 20th, fome powder arrived in a vefiel from Madrafs, and the enfilade and bombardment recommenced from all the batteries as before; and was conftantly anfwered with the fame vivacity from the town. On the 23d, the ship Duke, of 500 tons, arrived from Madrafs, laden with 17 pieces of battering cannon and their fhot, and with all kinds of ftores for the fiege; but fo few of the boatmen had returned to their maffoolas, that very little could be landed until others were affembled from the neighbouring ports on the coaft, and even from Madrafs : this delay, however, appeared of lefs detriment, becaufe the materials for the trenches, and for the batteries which were to difmantle the defences and breach the body of the place, were not yet collected, and the engineers reported, that they should not be ready to open this fire before the third of January; but the batteries already conftructed continued theirs. On the 26th, Admiral Stephens in the Norfolk, with three other thips of the line and the Protector fire-thip, returned into the road from Trinconomaly.

The French troops affembled at Thiagar were fo much fuperior to the little forts around, that they became the terror of the country, and their smallest parties brought in provisions in plenty, and without rifque. Major Prefton, having no longer any apprehensions that the troops at Gingee would either be able to pufh any convoys through the circumvallation of the English army, or even to distress the posts under the protection of Captain Fletcher at Ratlagrammon, refolved, by cutting off the daily fupplies of Thiagar, to oblige the troops there to employ large efcorts, which he hoped to intercept. He marched from Rashivandum on the 1st of December, and encamped in the evening three miles to the N. w. of Thiagar. On the night of the 3d, all the French cavalry, amounting to 200, led by Major Allen, an officer of Mr. Lally's regiment, pushed out of the pettah, and went to the west of Trinomalee. Being fure of provisions abroad, they intended to remain in the hills, waiting the event of the negociation, which Mr. Lally was carrying on with the Morattoe Vizvazipunt, whofe troops, if it fucceeded, they intended to accompany to Pondicherry. VOL. II. 4 X A few

A few days afterwards, they were joined by a party of 100 European infantry, whom, to alleviate the confumption of provisions, Mr. Lally had fent out of Pondicherry in the two veffels which failed on the 2d and 3d of the month, and escaped to Tranquebar ; from whence, headed by the bifhop of Hallicarnaffus, they marched to efcort him to the camp of Vizvazipunt at Cudapanatam, with whom the bifhop was empowered to conclude the negociation. They proceeded to Combaconum, by the fame road as the Nabob and Major Tofeph Smith had come to Karical, and received no moleftation in their journey through the country of Tanjore. From Combaconum, they croffed the Coleroon, and then paffed between Volcondah and Thiagar, out of the reach of Preston's troops; but 10 or 12 of them deferted, and travelled to Tritchinopoly, where they offered to ferve. but were not enlifted; becaufe Captain Smith had at this time difcovered a confpiracy of the French prifoners to rife and overpower the garrifon; in which the number of Europeans did not exceed 100. and most of them were invalids or foreigners; whereas the prifoners were 500; being the collection of all that had been taken at Karical, Chillambrum, and Verdachilum, by Colonel Monfon, and in the different actions at Seringham and its diffricts, by the two Smiths from Tritchinopoly.

The King of Myfore, not thoroughly convinced that his proteftations of good-will to the Englifh would induce them to reftore Caroor, fent a large body of troops to the confines of its territory, in order to fecond the terms of his negociation by the appearance of renewing hoftilities, if not accommodated ; and other troops proceeded to reinforce thofe at Dindigul; from whence the governor on their arrival marched, with 1000 horfe, 2000 Sepoys, as many common peons, and fome cannon, againft Agarpatty, the neareft and laft of the forts, which the troops of Madura had taken, but having left it only 40 Sepoys, it furrendered on the 4th day of the attack. From hence the Myforeans marched againft Narafingapore, another of the forts, fix miles farther, which they likewife battered for four days, when they were attacked themfelves by a ftrong body detached from Madura, who beat them off the ground, and drove them back to Dindigul, with the lofs of 50 men killed and wounded. The colleries of Nattam, encouraged by this renewal of hoftilities, made incurfions into the northern diffricts of Madura, and ftopped the whole road of the pafs, with trees which they felled on either fide, and with much labour dragged and laid them acrofs the road with fo much contrivance, that a fingle perfon could not pafs without continual difficulty.

No events of great importance had happened during the courfe of this year, in the country of Tinivelly. The commandant, Mahomed Iffoof, after the repulse before Washinelore in the end of the preceding year, was, from the want of battering cannon, no longer in a condition to attack the ftronger holds of the polygars ; and contented himfelf, until fupplied, with pofting the greateft part of his army in flations to check the Pulitaver and the eaftern polygars; but remained himfelf with the reft at Tinivelly, watching Catabominaigue and the western. The departure of Maphuze Khan from Nellitangaville in the month of January, left the Pulitaver and his allies no longer the pretext of oppofing the authority of the Nabob in fupport of the rights of his elder brother; and they debated whether they fhould treat with Mahomed Iffoof, or wait the event of Maphuze Khan's journey, who they fuppofed would return to them, if not received on his own terms by the Nabob. In this uncertainty, they formed no vigorous defigns, and employed their colleries in night robberies, wherever they could elude the stations of Mahomed Isloof; but attempted nothing in the open field or day. Neverthelefs, their depredations were fo ruinous to the cultivation, that Mahomed Iffoof thought it worth the expence, to draw off fome of their dependants and entertain them in the Company's fervice, as beft able to retaliate the fame mifchief on those by whom they had been employed; and towards the end of April, feveral of thefe petty leaders, with their followers, amounting in the whole to 2000 colleries, joined him at Tinivelly, and faithfully enteredon the duties for which they had engaged. Nothing, however, like regular fighting happened untill the end of May, when Catabominaigue appeared at the head of two or three thousand men, near 4 X 2 Etia705 1760.

Etiaporum, and ftood the attack of feven companies of Sepoys, drawn from the limits towards Nellitangaville, by whom they were difperfed, but with little lofs. In May Mahomed Iffoof received intelligence of the hoftilities commenced by the Myforeans from Dindigul, and the orders of the Prefidency to oppose them; in confequence of which he fent the detachment we have mentioned of 1 500 Sepoys, 300 horfe. and 3000 peons. They were fcarcely gone, when a new and unexpected alarm arofe in the Tinivelly country. The Dutch government at the ifland of Ceylon had received a large reinforcement of European troops from Batavia, which affembled at the port of Columbo, opposite to Cape Comorin, from whence a part of them arrived in the beginning of June at Tutacorin, a Dutch fort on the continent, 40 miles east of Tinivelly. Two hundred Europeans, with equipments, tents. and field-pieces, immediately encamped, giving out that they fhould fhortly be reinforced by more than their own number, and that 400 other Europeans had left Batavia at the fame time with themfelves, and were gone to Cochin on the Malabar coaft, in order to join the king of Travancore. The natives were frightened, and pretended to have discovered, that the force they faw was intended to affift the polygars in driving the English out of the country of Tinivelly, and to begin by attacking the town. Mahomed Iffoof immediately fent to the Dutch chief at Tutacorin, to demand an explanation ; who answered, that he should give none. A few days after the troops advanced inland, and halted at Alvar Tinivelly, a town in a very fertile district, fituated 20 miles s. E. of Tinivelly, and the fame diftance s. w. of Tutacorin; and at the fame time, another body of 200 Europeans landed from Colombo at Manapar, 20 miles to the s. E. of Alwar Tinivelly. Mahomed Iffoof had previoufly drawn troops from the eaftern flations, and marching with 4000 Sepoys, and fome horfe, appeared in fight of the Dutch troops at Alvar Tinivelly in the evening of the 18th of June; who, in the enfuing night, decamped in ftrict filence, and marched back to Tutacorin; those at Manapar went away thither likewife in the fame embarkations which brought them; and no more was heard of this al arm.

MADURA AND TINIVELLY.

The depredations of the polygars continued; but, deprived of Maphuze Khan, and hearing how clofely Pondicherry was invefted, they ventured nothing more : the Pulitaver's colleries continued as ufual the most active in the robberies; and to reprefs them, Mahomed Iffoof again flationed the greatest part of his force towards Nellitangaville. In December thefe troops formed a camp at the foot of the hills within three miles of this place, and Mahomed Iffoof joined them from Tinivelly on the 12th; he had purchased feveral eighteen-pounders at Tutacorin, and had the two mortars which had been fent to him the year before from Angenjo, but no fhot or fhells for either, and was moreover in want of gun-powder and flints, all which he expected from Tritchinopoly, and, whilft waiting for them, made fuch preparations as the country afforded to attack Nellitangaville in form. On the 20th of the month, the colleries, with the Pulitaver at their head, attacked his camp, fallying, as usual, on all quarters at once, and perfisted until 100 of them fell; but they killed ten of Mahomed Iffoof's men, and wounded feventy, and fome horfes.

At this time the Myforeans on the frontiers of Caroor, although profeffing peace, and difavowing the operations of the governor of Dindigul, did not prohibit their own horfe from foraging in the diffricts, of which they had confented that the Englifh fhould collect the revenue until the Prefidency and their king had agreed concerning the reftitution of the fort. The crop on the ground was plentiful and ready to be cut; and as the renewal of hoftilities would only aggravate the evil they meant to revenge, Captain Richard Smith refolved to remain quiet until the harveft was gathered. Such was the flate of the fouthern countries at the end of the year.

The confumption of provisions in Pondicherry had ever fince the month of August exceeded the fupplies received. In November, when the black inhabitants were turned out, the foldiery were put to an allowance of a pound of rice a day, with a little meat at intervals. In the beginning of December, Mr. Lally caufed a frist fearch to be made in all the houses of individuals, and what could be found found in them was brought to the citadel, from whence they were distributed indiferiminately to the military and inhabitants. Two colonels lately arrived from France, men of family, deemed the fearch in their apartments an affront, and fent word to Mr. Lally, that they would no longer act as officers; but on every occasion as volunteers. But the event justified the feverity; for by the end of December, notwithstanding fome fupply had come in by the fea, the flock remaining in the public flore was not more than the confumption of three days; and Mr. Lally, guided by certain information, determined that another fearch should be made; on which father Lavaur, the fuperior of the Jefuits, who knew all the fecrets of the town, prevailed on him to defer it, promifing to produce a fufficiency for fifteen days more, but gave no expectation of farther fupply; but the French agents with Vizvazypunt fent hopes of fucceeding in their negotiation; and on the laft day of the year intelligence was received in the English camp, and fomewhat credited, that a large body of Morattoes, with all the French horfe, were arrived from Cudapanatam at Trinomalee, and were going to Thiagar, from whence they intended, at all events, to push with provisions to Pondicherry.

The rains had ceafed for fome days, and the weather was reftored to its usual temperance; the fky bright, although the winds fometimes ftrong, which always, at this feafon, blow from the north, and near the coaft in the day from the fea, and at night from the land: but on the 30th of December, although the weather continued fair, a large fwell came from the s. E. and the furf beat fo hollow and heavy, that no boats could pafs; which encreafed in the night. The next morning the wind freshened, and the sky was clofe and dufky, but without that wild irregularity which prognofticates a ftorm ; and this afpect did not change till noon, nor the wind encreafe until eight at night. There were in the road eight fail of the line, two frigates, the fire-fhip, and the fhip with flores from Madrafs, in all 12 fail. From eight o'clock the wind blew in foualls, every one ftronger than the laft, until 10, when the Admiral's fhip, Norfolk, cut her cable, and fired the fignal for the other fhips to do do fo too; but the fignal guns were not heard, and the fhips, in obedience to the difcipline of the navy, rode until their cables parted with the ftrain, when they with much difficulty got before the wind, none able to fet more than a fingle fail, and none without fplitting feveral. Every minute encreafed the ftorm until twelve, by which time the wind had veered from the N. W. where it began, to the N. E.; when it fuddenly fell ftark calm with thick haze all round. In a few minutes the wind flew up from the fouth-eaft, and came at once in full ftrength with much greater fury than it had blown from the other quarter.

By the delay of not getting early under fail whilft the form was from the north, most of the ships lost the opportunity of gaining fufficient fea-room before it came on from the fouth-eaft. The first guft of this wind laid the Panther on her beams, and the fea breaking over her, Captain Affleck cut away the mizen ; and this not anfwering, the main maft likewife, which broke below the upper deck, tore it up, and continued fome time encumbering over the fide of the fhip without going clear off into the fea, until the fhock of a wave fent it away. The fhip then righted, the reefed forefail flood, and brought her back into fourteen fathom water, when fhe dropped the fheet anchor; but not bringing up, which means turning to ride with her head to the anchor, they cut away the fore-maft, which carried away the bowfprit, when the fhip came round; and thus rode out the florm. The America, Medway, and Falmouth, cutting away all their mafts on the different neceffities with the fame prudence, rode it out likewife, after they had anchored again nearly in the fame foundings as the Panther.

The Newcaftle, the Queenborough frigate, and the Protector fire-fhip, returning with the s. E. florm, miltook their foundings, and drove towards the fhore, without knowing where they were, or attempting to anchor. The roaring of the furf was not to be diftinguifhed in the general tumult of the elements; and the danger was not difcovered until it was too late, and the three fhips came afhore about two miles to the fouth of Ponditherry; 709 1761. The Duke of Aquitain, the Sunderland, and the Duke ftorefhip. : unfortunately preferved all their mafts through both the ftorms, until they were driven back to the neceffity of anchoring; and in bringing up with them ftanding, all the three either broached to. or overfet, and went to the bottom. Eleven hundred Europeans . perished in these ships; only feven, and feven lascars, were faved out of the crews, who were picked up the next day, floating on pieces of wreck.

The difference of the element prevented the deftruction from being equal at land; but the ravage in proportion was not lefs. All the tents and temporary caferns of the camp on the Red-hill, and its out-posts, were blown to-pieces. The ammunition abroad for immediate fervice was ruined. Nothing remained undamaged that was not under the shelter of masonry, either at the redoubts of the bound-hedge, in the buildings at Oulgarrey, or in the fort of Villenore, where the main flock of gun-powder was deposited. The foldiers, unable to carry off their mulkets, and refift the florm, had left them to the ground, and were driven to feek shelter for their own perfons wherefoever it was to be found. Many of the black attendants of the camp, from the natural feebleness of their conftitution, perifhed by the inclemency of the hour. The fea had every where broken over the beach, and overflowed the country as far as the bound-hedge; and all the batteries and redoubts which the army had raifed were intirely ruined. But thefe detriments might be repaired. The great anxiety remained for the other fhips of the fquadron, whole fortuge was not yet known.

The town of Pondichery beheld the florm and its effects as a deliverance fent from heaven. The fun rofe clear, and fhewed the havock fpread around. It was proposed by some to march out immediately, and attack the English army; but this operation was impracticable; becaufe no artillery could move through the inundation, nor could the troops carry their own ammunition dry; otherwife three hundred men, properly armed, would not, for three three hours after day-light, have met with 100 together in a condition to refift them. The wifh of every one then turned to expectation that the fhips from Madagafear might arrive in the interval before the Englifh fhips in the road were repaired, or others joined them from the fea: but the excellence of the opportunity did not alter Mr. Lally's miftruft of the refource; and letters were immediately difpatched to the agents at Puliacate, Tranquebar, and Negapatam, ordering them to fend away provisions with inftant expedition, at every rifque, on any kind of embarkation.

The anxiety for the miffing fhips continued until fun-fet of the next day, when the Norfolk with Admiral Stevens's flag was difcovered in the offing. The fhip, prepared at all points, before the fouth-east form arose, scudded before it with a stay-fail, without lofing a maft, and without being obliged to anchor until the wind fell, when in the morning they difcovered Sadrafs. The apprehenfion of more bad weather made the Admiral put out again to fea; when he met the Liverpool, entirely difmafted. This fhip, having parted her cable, and got under fail before the others, had gained more fea-room than any of them; but the fouth-east ftorm had carried away all her mafts; foon after they were joined by the Grafton, who gave the welcome information that fhe had left, on the 28th of December, the Lenox, Admiral Cornish, with the York, and Weymouth, 30 leagues off the land : they were all returning together from Trincomaly : the Grafton, after parting with them, met hard weather during the hours in which the form was raging near the coaft. The Admiral, leaving her to take care of the Liverpool, anchored in the road of Pondicherry the next morning, and they in the afternoon. The other three fhips came in the next day. On the 7th came in the Salifbury, with the prize la Compagnie des Indes, likewife from Trincomaly, and the Tyger from Madrafs, where the violence of the ftorm had not reached. No more were to be expected; for the Elizabeth and the Southfea-caftle, wanting the dock, were failed for Bombay, with the two other prizes, the Hermione and Baleine. But by this time, the four difinafted fhips, although not quite refitted, were again in a condition to VOL. II. 4 Y act act on neceffity; and thus in a week after the florm, which had raifed fuch hopes of deliverance in the garrifon of Pondicherry, they faw their road again blockaded by eleven fail of the line, and although three of them were only of 50 guns, all were manned above their complements by the addition of the crews which had been faved from the three ftranded fhips. Their boats continually cruizing, intercepted, or drove away whatfoever embarkations came towards the road with provisions; but feveral boats which were launched from the town in the three nights immediately after the ftorm, favoured by the wind, the current, and the darknefs, escaped to the fouthward. In one of them Mr. Lally fent away Rajahfaheb, the fon of Chundafaheb, who, ever fince the defeat of Vandiwash, had refided with his family in Pondicherry; he landed at Negapatam, and from thence paffed to Ceylon in the character of an elephantmerchant.

Every diligence was exerted to reftore the works and flations of the army to the condition from which they had been difmantled by the ftorm. Reports of the Morattoes continued, and the advantages of the prefent opportunity increased the apprehensions of their attempts to throw provisions into the town. The bound hedge and its redoubts remained as before a fufficient defence as far as they extended; but the fouth fide of the blockade along the river of Ariancopang was laid open by the ruin of the two batteries on the coco-nut and fand ifland, and of the flar redoubt on the fpit of fand over against the bar; which could not be reftored in ten days; and the torrent of the river prevented the immediate transport of men and materials to fet about the work. Colonel Coote therefore determined, as foon as the river fubfided, to furprize St. Thomas's redoubt, which, whilft it remained as at prefent without opposition on the other fhore, would protect the paffage of what convoys the garrifon might expect; but if taken, would preclude their approach even more efficaciously than the posts on this the blockade which the florm had ruined. The waters fell fufficiently on the 5th, and the detachment intended for the attack, having previoully affembled at the Ariancopang redoubt, which flood above at the extremity of 1 the

the bound-hedge, and on the fame fide of the river, marched down after it was dark under the bank, which was fleep and fkirted by a fand. The redoubt ftood at the opening, but on the farther fide, of a channel, which strikes to the north from the main body of the river, and carries water into the ditches of the town. A French officer, with three troopers of his nation, who had taken fervice in the English army, croffed first, whilst Colonel Coote himself, with the rest of the detachment, halted on the nether fide of the channel. The officer was challenged, and answered that he came from the town with a party, which Mr. Lally had fent off in hafte, on intelligence that the English intended to attack the redoubt this very night. He was believed, and admitted; and Colonel Coote hearing no buffle or firing, immediately fent over the front of his party, who, as foon as their numbers were fufficient, declared themfelves, and threatened to put the whole guard to death, if a fingle man made the least noife, or attempted to efcape. All obeyed, excepting one Caffre, who ftole away unperceived. They confifted of a ferjeant, five gunners, five Caffres, and fome Sepoys. The chief engineer, Mr. Call, followed with the pioneer company of 50 Europeans, and 100 Lafcars, carrying gabions, fascines, and tools, with which they immediately fet to work to close and retrench the gorge; over which it was intended when neceffary to turn the guns against the town. At one in the morning blue lights appeared over the ramparts along the fouth front, as if the garrifon apprehended fome attack on their walls. Soon after they began to fire fingle fhot upon the redoubt, which came with fuch good aim, that the party at work threw the guns out of their carriages on the ground, to preferve them. At two, every thing was quiet in the town, and the work forward, when Colonel Coote went away to get reft at his head quarters at Oulgarry, leaving a lieutenant of artillery, with the 40 Europeans, and 100 Sepoys, in the redoubt, which the officer was ordered to defend to the laft extremity. The workmen had finished, and were withdrawn at four o'clock. At five, the redoubt was attacked by the four companies of grenadiers from the garrifon: they affaulted on every 4 Y 2 fide fide at once, few fired, and all pufhed with fixed bayonets through the ditch over the parapet. The refiftance was not equal either to the firength of the poft, for it was clofed on all fides; or to the number of the guard, which were, including the Sepoys, 170 men. Some efeaped by jumping over the parapet; a few were killed, and the greateft part, with the officer, furrendered themfelves prifoners. At noon, Mr. Lally fent back all who had been taken, to the Englifh camp, for want of provisions to feed them; but on condition, that they fhould not act again. This difcovery of the diftrefs of the garrifon could only be required or warranted by the utmost neceffity. However, Mr. Lally might fuppofe, that the prifoners had not time to learn the worst of what the town was enduring, and that they could not tell fo much as deferters.

On the failure of this attempt, a large portion of the working parties was allotted to complete the redoubt on the fpit of fand, which was to replace that which had been washed away. It was raifed for the advantage of higher ground, three hundred yards in the rear of the former; its fcale fufficient to contain 400 men, and to mount 16 guns in different directions. Equal attention was given to repair and complete the Hanover battery, where, from the lownefs of the fituation, much labour was requifite to clear the water, which had filled the trench that communicated with it from fome inclofures in the rear. The only fire from the town was to interrupt the workmen here, but with little effect. On the 7th, the Company's ship Falmouth arrived from Madrafs, laden with battering cannon, ammunition, and ftores, to replace what had foundered in the Duke : and on the 9th another fhip brought Mr. Pigot the governor, with Mr. Dupré, one of the council, and Captain Robert Barker, who had been to Madrafs to fuperintend the embarkation of the ftores and artillery, which Captain Hiflop and he were now to direct against the town.

At this time the Nabob received intelligence that his agents had concluded a negotiation with the Morattoe general Vizvazypunt. Allen, and the Bifhop of Halicarnafius, had added the offer of Thiagar to Gingee, and the payment of 500,000 rupees for their affiftance, and profered fubftantial fhroffs as fecurity; how this wary tribe of money-changers were induced to this venture, when there was not fo much in Pondicherry, nor likely to come, remains un-Either Vizvazipunt himfelf must have encouraged accountable. them to fland forth in appearance, that he might obtain the highest terms from the Nabob ; or fome fecret enemy of the Nabob, who was to gain advantage by the march of the Morattoes into the Carnatic, and the fupport of Pondicherry, must have proved to the shroffs the certainty of producing the money before the payment should fall upon their fecurity; in this cafe we fee no one but Hyderally to conjecture. 'The Nabob's agents were fo perplexed by the fact, that they role by degrees from the fame fum of 500,000 rupees with which they had begun, and concluded for two millions, of which one was to be paid in 20 days, and the other in nine months; on which Vizvazipunt told the French reprefentatives, that they had no affiftance to expect from him; and Allen and the Bifhop went away with their troops, who were 200 Europeans mounted, and 100 on foot, to Hyderally in Bengalore, which is five days from Cudapanatam. The Nabob, on this important occasion, as indeed on all others ever fince he was convinced of the probability of taking Pondicherry, enlarged himfelf with more decifion and fpirit, than he had ever exerted fince his government, and first connexion with the English nation ; and as the finallest undiffembled exceffes of the mind tell more than the whole compofure of political reafon, he never failed to alk Colonel Coote every day, whether he was fure, and when, Pondicherry would furrender. Advices were at the fame time received from Captain Prefton, that he had attacked the pettah of Thiagar, which ftands on the plain, and after fome refiftance carried both the mud-walls; on which the French troops who defended it ran to the rock, and faved themfelves in the fortifications above, which could only be affaulted by furprize, or reduced by famine or bombardment : he had already begun to throw shells from two howitzers, and was waiting ing for mortars from Madrafs. These advices removed any farther apprehensions of fuccours getting into Pondicherry from the land.

By the morning of the 10th, the Hanover battery was compleated; but before it opened, Colonel Coote, with feveral officers, advanced from the Villenore redoubt, to reconnoitre the baftions of the town. As they were standing about 800 yards from the walls, a flag appeared approaching. Colonel Coote fent forward his aidde-camp lieutenant Duespe, (not the officer we have mentioned at Vandivash) to receive his message or letters. Two other officers accompanied Duespe, and went on in the avenue leading from the Villenore redoubt to the glacis, until they were challenged by the centries, and ordered to retire; but not obeying, a flot was fired from a fix-pounder on the Villenore gate, which mitted them, but unfortunately ftruck and killed Duefpe, as he was talking to the meffienger. Colonel Coote fent to demand fatisfaction for the outrage, fuppoling it unprovoked. Mr. Lally confined the officers on duty at the gate, and the next day fent his aid-de-camp to explain the mischance, for which he expressed much concern.

A few hours after Duespe was killed, the Hanover battery opened with ten guns, fix were twenty-four, and four eighteenpounders, and with three mortars, two of thirteen and one of ten inches. The fix guns on the left fired upon the west face of the N. w. baftion, and of the counter-guard before it. The two next upon the next baffion on the left, which was finall, and mounted only three guns: it was called St. Joseph. The two other guns on the right battered the two projecting towers flanding on each fide of the Valdore gate, which had a good ravelin in front between them. The mortars fired varioufly. The fire of the cannon ceafed in three hours, but the mortars continued at intervals throughout the day. The garrifon returned very fparingly. The next day, the 11th, the battery, having been da-maged by its own use, fired lefs, and the town more, with the addition of shells from two mortars in the Valdore ravelin, which feveral times fell in and near the Hanover battery; which neverthelefs opened again the next morning quite repaired, and with great gteat vivacity; but the enemy neither in this nor the preceding night had given any repair to the N. W. baftion, and its counterguard; which, in confequence of this neglect, had very little fire to return, nor did much come from the baftion of St. Jofeph, or the works of the Valdore gate. Many deferters came over in thefe two nights, and their accounts agreed of the difinal diffrefs of the garrifon. The Englifh army, on the contrary, received the confirmation of a report, that more forces from England (fent by the fame fpirit as the others) were arrived at Anjengo, on the coaft of Malabar. fix hundred men, the remainder of the highland regiment, had embarked in the month of May in five of the company's fhips and two men of war of the line. Three of the company's and one of the men of war arrived at Anjengo on the 15th of December, and the others were daily expected there.

The redoubt on the fpit of fand to the fouth was compleated by the night of the 12th, and the workmen and tools recalled, to ferve at the opening of the trenches, for which all the materials were by this time collected. The Hanover battery fired little through the 13th, and received only a few shells. In the beginning of the night, all appointed for the trenches were affembled at the bleaching town. They were 700 Europeans draughted from the rank and file, 400 lascars, the pioneer company of 70 Europeans, and 200 coolies: there were likewife 400 oxen, with their drivers, one to three. The ground was opened, under cover, just within the skirt of the bleaching town, in the part nearest the beach. After three short returns, the trench was brought to the outfide of the houfes, and from hence pushed on obliquely in one ftreight line, untilit paffed crofs the high road leading from the Madrafs gate, on the other fide of which road, the intended battery was to be erected. This oblique trench was 480 yards long, and from its termination was continued another of 280 yards, parallel to the defences of. the town. Two fhort trenches continued, one from each end of this parallel, and fell in with the two ends of the intended battery, which was to be confiructed 40 yards in front; and the parallel in the rear was to be the flation of the main guard for the

the fupport of the battery, if attacked. All this work, comprehending 800 yards, sheltered on the left by gabions, fascines, and fand-bags, was executed by the European foldiery, divided into companies, all working at the fame time according to the trace, on the different ground allotted to each division; whilft the 400 lafcars, and the 200 coolies, were employed in bringing the materials, not only to them, but to the battery, where the pioneers were at work, as requiring more knowledge and exactness; who before the morning had finished fix embrafures in the battery; to which, likewife, the oxen had brought the cannon from the artillerypark, which had been formed near the fea-fhore, just without the bound-hedge. It was fearcely poffible for the fame number of hands to have done more work in the fame time. Colonel Coote, and the principal officers, paffed the night in the trenches, and were accompanied by Mr. Pigot and Mr. Dupré. The town, to their great furprize, although blue lights often appeared on the walls, did not fire a fingle fhot to interrupt the work. Care had been taken to leffen the ufual noife, by not driving the picquets of the gabions into the earth with the entrenching tools; neverthelefs, fo many perfons continually bufy, the found of the carriages and oxen, and the call of their drivers could fcarcely remain unheard; as the battery was within 450 yards of the walls. Juft before day-light all the workmen were withdrawn, and 100 Europeans, with 300 Sepoys, were posted in the parallel, and another party of the fame number in the cover of the village at the tail of the trenches, in order to support the foremost guard. The embrafures that were finished were left masked; because there had not been time to lay down the platforms for the guns. Neverthelefs, it was expected, that the garrifon would fire hotly the enfuing day, were it only to damage the parapet of the battery.

They were doubtlefs aftonifhed at the work they faw done; but, only fired now and then, and only fingle fhot at a time; obferving which, the chief engineer fent carpenters, who laid down the platforms, without receiving any hurt. The Hanover battery fired throughout the day, with all its artillery and redoubled vivacity, which which before night filenced all the guns against which it opened; on the N. W. bastion and its counter-guard, on St. Joseph's, on the two demi-bastions, and on the ravelin of the Valdore gate.

At night the pioneers, with 300 Lafcars, went to work again at the royal battery; and the town, having well marked the aim, kept up a fmart fire of fhot, grape, and musketry, which killed or dangeroufly wounded 12 men in the battery. Several fhowers of rain fell in the night, which gave apprehenfion that the enemy would fally; but they refrained, and before day-light the battery was compleated. It was called the royal, and contained eleven twenty-four pounders, and on the left three heavy mortars. It opened early in the morning, and, feconded by the crofs and enfilading fire of the Hanover battery with 10 guns, foon filenced all the defences which bore upon it; excepting a gun or two on the baftion next the beach. Inactivity joined neceffity in this unaccountable abandon of defence; which was fo great, that, what rarely happens until all commanding works are entirely demolifhed, men were fet, and continued at work throughout the day, along the whole line of the trenches, fixing more fecurely the gabions, ramming down the earth, and fmoothing the tops of the parapet, that the troops, if fallied upon in the enfuing night, might fire over them with certainty and fafety. A party was draughted to begin, as foon as it was dark, another battery of fix guns, 300 yards nearer to the beach, and 150 nearer the walls: it was intended to deftroy the flanks of the feveral baffions, which the royal battery could only take in reverse.

As the fun was fetting, Colonel Coote coming, as was his cuftom, to fupervife the batteries, faw a flag advancing in the Villenore avenue; who, being challenged, announced the approach of a deputation. They came on foot, the town having neither horfes or palankin bearers to carry them, and Colonel Coote received them at his head-quarters at Oulgarry. The deputies were Colonel Durre, commandant of the king's artillery, father Lavaur, fuperior of the Jefuits, Moracin and Courtin, members of the council, with Tobin ferving as interpreter.

Colonel Durre delivered a memorial figned by Mr. Lally of the following purport: "That the English had taken Chanderna-" gore against the faith of the treaties of neutrality which had al-" ways fubfifted between the European nations in Bengal, and ef-" pecially between the English and French; and this at a time, when " that fettlement had just rendered the English the most fignal fer-" vices, as well by refufing to join the Nabob Surajah Dowlah in " the attack of Calcutta, as by receiving and fuccouring the inha-" bitants of this colony, after their defeat and difperfion; by " which protection they were enabled to remain in the province, and " by this continuance to recover their fettlements; as Mr. Pigot had " acknowledged in a letter to the government of Pondicherry .---- " That "the goverment of Madrafs had refufed to fulfil the con-" ditions of a cartel concluded between the two crowns, although " Mr. Pigot had at first accepted the cartel, and commissioners had " been appointed on both fides to meet at Sadrafs, in order to fettle " amicably whatfoever difficulties might occur in the execution."-" This conduct of the English (Mr. Lally goes on) puts it out of " his power, as refponfible to the court of France, to propose any " capitulation for the city of Pondicherry."-" The troops of the "king and company furrender themfelves, for want of provi-" fions, prifoners of war to his Britannic Majefty, conformably " to the terms of the cartel, which Mr. Lally claims for the " civil inhabitants and citizens, and for the exercise of the " Roman religion, the religious houfes, hospitals, chaplains, fur-" geons, domefticks, &c. referring to the two courts to decide a " proportional reparation for the violations of treaties fo folemnly ef-" tablished."-" In confequence, Mr. Coote may to-morrow morn-" ing at eight o'clock take poffeffion of the Villenore-gate, and on " the fame hour the next day of the gates of the citadel (Fort Louis); " and as he has the force in his own hands, he may dictate fuch far-" ther difpolitions as he may think proper." --- " From a principle of " juffice and humanity alone I demand (thefe are Mr. Lally's words) " that the mother and fifters of Rajahfaheb be permitted to feek an " afylum wherefoever they shall think proper, or that they re- main

Father Lavaur and the other deputies prefented another memorial, drawn up by the governor and the council of Pondicherry, containing the following requifitions. " That no hurt fhould be " done to the inhabitants; their houfes be preferved, their effects " and mercantile goods left to their own difpofal : that all who " chofe might remain in their habitations, and were to be con-" fidered as British subjects, and enjoy their former possessions and " advantages. In their favour the Roman Catholic religion was " to be maintained; the churches, the houses of the ecclesiaftics, " and the religious orders, whether within or without the city, to be " preferved with every thing belonging to them; the miffionaries free " to go and come, and receive under the English flag the same pro-" tection as they had under the French." " No buildings or edifices, " and no part of the fortifications, were to be demolifhed, until the " decifion of the refpective fovereigns." - " The records in the " register-office, on which the fortunes of individuals depend, were " to remain under the care of the present depositaries, and be fent " to France, at their diferetion."-" Not only the inhabitants who " were French, but of whatfoever other nation eftablished at Pon-" dicherry for their commerce, were to participate of these con-" ditions."- " The Creoles of Bourbon and Mauritius, of whom " the number, including five officers, are 41, having ferved only as " volunteers, shall have liberty to return home by the first oppor-" tunity." 4Z2

" tunity." — " Safeguards were to be furnished to prevent diforders." " And all these conditions were to be executed with good faith."

Colonel Coote gave an anfwer in writing to Mr. Lally's memorial; fignifying, that " the particulars of the capture of Chandernagore "were before his Britannic Majefty, which precluded him from " entering into any difcuffion on this fubject, neither could he admit " that it had any relation to the furrender of Pondicherry." " That " the difpute which had arifen concerning the cartel remained as yet " undecided, by which it was out of his power to confent that the " troops in Pondicherry fhould be deemed prifoners on the terms " of that cartel; but that they must furrender prifoners of war, to " be treated at his difcretion, which should not be deficient in hu-" manity." " That the gates of the town and citadel should be-" taken pofferfion of by the English troops at the hours proposed by " Mr. Lally." " That the mother and fifters of Rajahfaheb fhould " be efforted to Madrafs, where proper care fhould be taken for " their fafety, and that they flould not on any account be delivered " into the hands of the Nabob Mahomedally." To the other deputies Colonel Coote only faid, that their propositions were answered in his answer to Mr. Lally : they returned into the town at midnight.

The next morning, it was the 16th of January, the grenadiers of Coote's regiment marched from the camp, and took poffeffion of the Villenore gate. Colonel Coote dined with Mr. Lally; who, apprehenfive of tumult or diforders, confented that the citadel fhould be delivered up in the evening, that the foldiers might be put under confinement before night. Accordingly more troops marched in from the camp; and in the afternoon the garrifon drew up under arms on the parade before the citadel, and the Englifh troops facing them; Colonel Coote then reviewed the line, which, exclusive of commiffioned officers, invalids, and others who had hid themfelves, amounted to 1 too, all wearing the face of famine, fatigue, or difeafe. The grenadiers of Lorrain and Lally, once the ableft bodied men in the army, appeared the moft impaired, having conftantly put themfelves forward to every fervice; and it was recollected, that from their firft landing, landing, throughout all the fervices of the field and blockade, not a man of them had ever deferted to the English army. The victor foldier gave his figh (which none but banditti could refuse) to this folemn contemplation of the fate of war, which might have been his own. The French troops, after they were reviewed, marched into the citadel, where they deposited their arms in heaps, and were then conducted to their prifons.

The next morning the English flag was hoisted in the town, and its display was received by the falute of a thousand pieces of cannon, from every gun of every ship in the road, in all the English posts and batteries, the field-artillery of the line, and on the ramparts and defences of Pondicherry.

The furrender was inevitable, for at the fcanty rate of the wretched provisions, to which the garrifon had for fome time been reduced, there did not remain fufficient to fupply them two Neverthelefs, the deteftation against Mr. Lally, if days more. poffible, increased, as the fole author of the calamity, and, no longer reftrained by his authority, broke out in the most vindictive expreffions of menace and reproach. The third day after the furrender was appointed for his departure to Madrafs. In the forenoon of this day a troop of officers, mostly of the French Company's battalion, went up the steps of the government house, towards his apartments, where they were met by his aid de camp, whom they infulted; and were difperfed by the guard, which came up on the quarrel. This troop then affembled and waited below at the gate of the citadel until one o'clock. Mr. Lally did not move until the close of the day; his efcort was 15 English huslars, and four troopers of his own guard ; he came out in his palankin, and at the gate were gathered a hundred perfons, mostly officers, with them the counfellors Moracin and Courtin. As foon as Mr. Lally appeared, a hue was fet up by the whole affembly, hiffes, pointing, threats, and every abufive name ; but the efcort prevented violence. Mr. Dubois, the King's commiffary, who was to proceed with Mr. Lally, camo out of the fort an hour after, but on foot; the fame affembly had continued on the parade, and fhowered the fame abufes. ftopt, and faid he would anfwer any one. One Defer ftept out, they drew, and the fecond pafs laid Dubois dead, who was 60 years of age, fhort-fighted, and always wore fpectacles. No one would affift his fervants to remove and bury the corpfe; and his death, violent and iniquitous as it was, was treated as a meritorous act : his papers were immediately taken poffeffion of by the register. It was known, that he had, ever fince his arrival at Pondicherry, compofed protefts on the part of the King against all the diforders and irregularities which came to his knowledge in any of the departments of the government and the collection was very voluminous; but none of his papers have ever appeared.

The total number of the European military taken in the town, including fervices attached to the troops, was 2072; the civil inhabitants were 381; the artillery fit for fervice were 500 pieces of cannon, and 100 mortars and howits. The ammunition, arms, weapons, and military flores, were in equal abundance.

On the 4th day after the furrender, Mr. Pigot demanded of Colonel Coote, that Pondicherry should be delivered over to the Prefidency of Madrafs, as having become the property of the English East India Company. A council of war, composed of the two admirals, and four post-captains of the fquadron, Colonel Coote and three Majors of the king's troops, affembled, to deliberate on this demand; and required the authority on which it was made. Mr. Pigot infifted on the king's patent, dated the 14th of January 1758, which regulates the Company's fhare and title to captures. The council of war deemed the patent incompetent to the pretention. Mr. Pigot. as the fhortest way, declared, that if Pondicherry were not delivered, the Prefidency of Madrafs would not furnish money either for the fubfiftence of the King's troops, or the French prifoners. This conclufion barred all farther argument, for neither the Admiral, nor the commander of the King's troops, were authorized to draw bills on the government in England for fuch a contingency. The council of war, therefore, fubmitted to the requisition, but protested against the infult it conveyed against the King's prerogative, and declared the Prefidency refponfible for the confequences.

During

PONDICHERRY.

Book XIII.

During this difcuffion, Colonel Coote detached eight companies of Sepoys, under the command of Captain Stephen Smith, to inveft the forts of Gingee; and a convoy of military flores were fent from the camp to Major Prefton, who was continuing the blockade of Thiagar.

The Nabob requefted and expected that the army, after the neceffary repofe, would accompany him againft fuch chiefs and feudatories, whom he wifhed or had pretentions to call to account, either for contempts of his authority, or for tributes unfettled, or withheld. He had not forgiven the rebellion of his half-brother Nazeabulla of Nelore. His indignation had never ceafed againft Mortizally, the Kellidar of Velore, who, as well as the three greater Polygars to the north, and of Arielore, and Woriorepollam to the fouth, were fufpected of hidden treafures; ftill more the greater and leffer Moravars; and the king of Tanjore, wealthier than all, fcarcely confidered the Nabob as his fuperior.

But the Prefidency had other attentions to regard ; their treafury and credit was exhaufted in the reduction of Pondicherry ; the care of 2500 French prifoners required ftrong guards and no little expence. Bengal was engaged in hostilities, wanted troops, and could fend no money. Bombay had extended its military concerns by the acquifition of the caftle of Surat in the beginning of the year 1759, which had induced the neceffity of other important attentions in that part of the continent ; and they were at this time earnestly requesting the return of all the troops they had fent to Coromandel. The factory at Tellichery likewife advifed, that they intended to ftop the troops which were just arrived and expected in the ships from England, and waited only the orders of their fuperiors at Bombay to attack the French fettlement at Mahe, in which fervice they requefted what affiftance could be fpared from Coromandel. It was fill uncertain what was become of the French fquadron; the English fquadron wanted their marines, and were enjoined a fecret fervice from England, in which Madrafs was to affift. Thefe views and confiderations appeared to the Prefidency of more immediate importance than the indulgence of the triumphal notions which fwelled the the mind of the Nabob, whofe joy at the reduction of Pondicherry, although the arfenal which had forged all the anxieties of his life, was immediately imbittered by this interruption to the future conquefts he had fo near at heart: and, unwilling to continue in the Carnatic without the entire predominance of his authority, he retired as it were in difguft with victory to Tritchinopoly, where he arrived on the 15th of February.

February.

Four hundred of the French prifoners were fent to Madrafs, and the Highlanders, fix companies, with fome artillery-men, and four companies of Sepoys, marched thither to reinforce the garrifon; 200 were fent to Tritchinopoly under the efcort of 100 Europeans, and fome Sepoys. The reft of the prifoners remained in the dungeons of Pondicherry, until they could be otherwife difpofed of; and 300 Europeans, including the pioneer company, and 50 artillery-men, with the troop of European horfe, and four companies of Sepoys, were appointed to garrifon the town. The troops from Bombay, being 1 20 of the king's artillery, and 190 common infantry, belonging to that prefidency, embarked in two fhips to return thither; the marines were reftored to the fquadron; the reft of the army went into cantonments at Cuddalore.

The court of France had inftructed Mr. Lally to deftroy the maritime poffeffions of the English nation in India, which might fall to their arms. These inftructions had been intercepted; and, in confequence of them, the court of Directors of the English East-India Company had ordered their Presidencies to retaliate the fame measure on the French settlements, whenever in their power. Accordingly Mr. Pigot, with the approbation of the council of Madrafs, resolved to demolish the fortifications of Pondicherry; and as Mr. Stevens fignified his intention to repair forthwith to Bombay, in order to refit his squadron, the demolition was commenced without delay, left a French armament should arrive during their absence, and recover the town, whilst the fortifications remained in a condition to afford any advantage in maintaining it.

Mr. Stevens failed on the 23d of February, with all the fhips, eleven of the line, and two frigates. They took away 400 of the prifoners in

in Pondicherry, all of the regiments of Lorrain and Lally, to be confined at Bombay, or fent to Europe as opportunities fhould offer. As Mr. Stevens intended to aid, if neceffary, in the attack of Mahé, the Prefidency fent 50 of the company's artillery, and three of their engineers in the fquadron.

Mahé is fituated four miles to the fouth of Tellicherry. The fort and town ftand not far from the beach of the fea, along the fouth fide of a river, which admits finall veffels. Several hills rife near the town, and on the two neareft on the fame fide of the river are built two finall forts, and a much larger, called St. George, on a hill on the other fide. The fettlement prefides over all belonging to the French company on this fide of the peninfula, excepting their factory at Surat. Thefe dependencies are five forts to the north of Tellicherry, and a factory houfe at Calicut.

The five fhips from England had landed the troops at Tellicherry by the 5th of January; but from the length of the paffage to and fro, the permiffion from Bombay to attack Mahé did not arrive before the beginning of February; and with it the prefidency fent one of their cruizers, and a bomb-ketch to affift; as none of the fhips had been detained. The delay had given Mr. Louet, the governor of Mahé, time to make treaties for affiftance with feveral of the neighbouring chiefs of the country, with whom the fettlement had long been in commerce; and they promifed and fwore to affift efficacioufly, as againft a common enemy. The aid was much wanted, for the European military, on whom the ftrefs of the defence was to reft, did not exceed 100, and even they, from the general neceffity of the French company's affairs, had not received their pay for feveral months, and miffed no opportunity of deferting. The black troops belonging to the company, were a thoufand.

The troops at Tellicherry marched out and encamped on the 8th of February on the limits of Mahé. Their numbers, for the garrifon took the field, amounted to 900 Europeans, and 700 natives; they were commanded by major Hector Munro, who determined to direct his first attack against Fort St. George, on the hither fide of the river.

All the folicitations of Mr. Louet were of no avail, when his allies faw the English troops taking the field, and were apprized of their numbers; they did not fend a man; and before day-break the next morning, he difpatched a letter to Mr. Hodges, the chief of Tellicherry, proposing terms of capitulation, on which Major Munro was ordered not to commence hostilities. Agents fent to explain doubts and objections, continued going to and fro until the morning of the 13th, when the capitulation was figned. It was agreed, that all the European military should be transported at the expence of the English, either to the island of Bourbon, or to Europe, and when landed there, to be free. The effects, artillery, and military flores, belonging to the French company, were to be furrendered, but the effects and poffeffions of individuals were to be preferved to them entire, without moleftation in the ufe. The free exercife of the Roman religion was to be permitted as before the furrender; the priefts on no account were to be vexed, nor the churches or religious edifices impaired. The forts to the northward of Tellicherry were to be given up on the fame conditions as Mahé, and the factory at Calicut was to continue unmolefted under. the ufual neutrality of that town : ample honours of war were allowed to the garrifon. Five hundred men under the command of. Major Peers marched into Mahé at noon ; and foon after, the garrifon were efcorted with their honours to Tellicherry. A detachment was then prepared under the command of Major Monro, to take in the forts to the northward, which it was fuspected might dispute the terms of capitulation provided for them. The news of the furrender of Mahé arrived at Madrafs on the 3d of March.

Captain Stephen Smith, as foon as encamped before Gingee, fummoned Macgregor, the commanding officer, who anfwered, that if he had brought one hundred thoufand men, the forts would not be reduced in three years. The troops encamped to the eaft oppolite to the outward pettah on the plain, which, although it it had a mud wall, was of much lefs defence than the inward town, which ftands on higher ground, nearly in the center of the triangular valley, extending between the three mountains. The valley is enclosed on the three fides by a ftrong wall with towers of ftone. which have a ditch before them, excepting in fuch parts where the rocks render it unneceffary; but the wall continues up the mountains, and furrounds the three forts, connecting them with each other. Befides this exterior enclofure, the interior and higher defences run double round the two forts to the eaft; and the great mountain to the weft, which is the principal fortification, has four enclofures, one below another towards the town in the valley, but of different fpaces and elevations; and the highest is a steep rock in the north-west part of the third enclofure above the valley ; this far overtops all the mountains, and in the fort on its fummit, although fmall, is a continual fpring of water. The extent of wall in all the fortifications measures more than 12000 yards; to defend which the French had only 150 Europeans, topaffes, or coffrees, 600 Sepoys, and 1000 natives of the adjoining hills, whom they called colleries. But they fuppofed the forts on the mountains to be impregnable, and that the town below would not be attempted, becaufe, if taken, the troops which were to maintain it, would be continually fubject to the fire of the defences above.

The wall on the eaft fide of the valley extends 1200 yards from the mountain of St. George on the right, to the English mountain on the left, and nearly in the middle paffeth along the fide of a heap of rocks on which the French had raifed a work, which they called the royal battery; under which on the right towards the mountain of St. George stood a gateway opposite to the outward pettah in the plain : but the pettah extended only from this mountain to the rocks of the battery.

Obfervation and deferters (of whom feveral came every day) apprized Captain Smith of the flate of the garrifon and defences, and that the garrifon remained in perfect fecurity as well in the town below, as in the forts above. On the night between the 2d and third of February, he marched from his camp with 600 Sepoys, in two divifions, of which the foremost, 200, carried a fufficient number of fcaling ladders, and the others were to support when called for. They left the north wall of the pettah on the left, but passed through through 5 A 2 through the intervals of fome houfes, which adjoined to it and brought them opposite to the middle of that part of the wall of the valley which extends between the royal battery and the English mountain. They croffed the ditch, placed their ladders, and got over the wall unchallenged : the object was now to get pofferfion of the gate on the other fide of the royal battery ; but the rocks on which it flood extended backwards to the first houses of the town, and it was necesfary to go through the first street leading across, in order to pass bevond the rear of the rocks and gain an avenue of trees, which led down to the gateway : they proceeded even quite through the freet unperceived ; but, as they were coming down the avenue, were challenged and difcovered by the guard of the gateway, who fired; which alarmed the other flations in the town, but with fo much confusion, that Captain Smith gave no attention to it, but hastened to the gateway, from which he difperfed the guard at the pufh of bayonet, and opening the gate let in the other division of 400 Sepoys, who were halting not far off in the nearest shelter, and with them took poffeffion of the royal battery. It was now three in the morning, and Smith waited for day light to drive the enemy out of the town, who retired before; fome to St. George's, others to the English mountain, but most of them into the enclosure next the town towards the great mountain, where they continued firing from the adjacent rampart throughout the next day upon the guards which were advanced and flationed in the houses of the town; and cannon from all the hills continually plunged down, wherefoever they faw or fufpected any of the English troops ; but with little effect. In the enfuing night the enemy's troops, who had retired to the fecond enclofure, left it, and retreated to the higher defences of the great mountain.

On intelligence of this fuccefs 1000 more Sepoys were fent to Smith, who as the town was very unhealthy, continued more than one half of his force in the encampment on the plain. The defertion continued, and amongst them came a very experienced Jemautdar of the Sepoys, who profered to lead a party by a path he knew to furprize the forts on St. George's mountain : he was trufted, and 4 the next night 200 Sepoys marched under his guidance. We are not apprized of their track, but fuppofe they proceeded from the camp and went up on the outfide of the mountain to the fouth, to the enclofure of the outward rock which is 80 feet higher than those beneath. They fixed their ladders, and got over the wall before they were difcovered, and feized 8 Europeans, but the reft of the guard efcaped to the enclofures below; where all continued very alert until day-light, when an officer came down to capitulate, and demanded very liberal terms; but captain Smith knowing that they were at any time in his power, by fending more men up to the rock above them, refused to accept the furrender, excepting at difcretion; to which they contented. They were 42 Europeans, of whom fix were officers, and 70 Sepoys. A large flock of provisions was found in the forts of this mountain, by which it was concluded, that those in the two others were equally as well provided ; and no enquiry gave hopes that either of thefe fortreffes could be taken by furprize, and ftill lefs by open attack. It therefore remained to try if time might produce the fuccefs which was not to be expected either from force. or fortune.

The fameday that the mountain of St. George furrendered to captain Smith, the important fortrefs of Thiagar capitulated to Major Prefton, after a blockade and bombardment of 65 days, during which, above 40 Europeans had deferted to him from the rock, 20 had been killed or died, 25 lay wounded in the hofpital, and 114 rank and file, with twelve officers, were in a condition to march, fo that the whole number of Europeans which had been thut up were upwards of 200, with 300 Sepoys, and 100 Coffrees; they had provisions for two months longer; and the water, which gave the principal value to the fort, continued as usual in plenty, and of a good quality. Neverthelefs, the commanding officer only ftipulated that the garrifon fhould receive the fame treatment as the troops taken in Pondicherry ; according to which the officers were to be fent to Europe upon parole, not to ferve again during the prefent war, and the Europeans of rank and file were to be treated at diferetion ; and they were fent to be confined with those already in the prisons of Tritchi731 1761. Tritchinopoly; but the Sepoys and Coffrees being excellent were taken into the Company's fervice.

In the mean time, the detachment from Tillecherry was profecuting the reduction of the dependencies of Mahe. The first is called Fort Delhi, fituated on the ftrand of a promontory called Mount Delhi, which is a remarkable head-land ten miles to the north of Tellicherry; four miles further on is the mouth of the river of Neliferum, which, defcending from the mountains to the eaft. turns fhort many miles above, and continues parallel to the beach of the fea, from which it is no where a mile afunder; a mile and a half up this river on the left hand, and on the mouth of another. stands Ramatilly, which is a finall fort; on the fame fide, five miles beyond, is the fort of Mattalavy, which stands strong on a rocky eminence: feven miles farther, on the N. fide of the mouth of another river, is the fort of Neleferum, which is much larger ; and fix miles up this river, to the eaft, and on its left fhore. ftands the fifth fort, which is finall, and called Veramaly. Fort Delhi, Neliferum and Ramatilly were garrifoned by French troops, but the government of Mahé had delivered up the other two in pledge for debt to two chiefs of the country, who were determined not to part with them until compensated; and as they equally commanded the rivers, which were the channels of traffick, the other three would be of no fervice, if the two continued in hoftility. Delhi and Ramatilly furrendered on the first fummons, but at Mattalavy were affembled a large body of Naires, whofe bravery is always defperate. The two fhips from Pondicherry, which were carrying back the Bombay troops, were at this time working up the coaft of Malabar, and had paffed beyond the river of Neliferum; and Major Monro, finding more refiftance than he expecteed in his expedition, fent after them for artillery-men and cannon, which came, and two batteries were erected against Mattalavy : but the fettlement of Tellicherry had in the mean time been negotiating with the two chiefs who were in poffession of Matalavy and Veramally, who confented to furrender them on condition of receiving an annual fine, which for both amounted to 3000 rupees. forts were delivered, the French garrifon at Neliferum, which did not. exceed 20 Europeans, fubmitted without refiftance.

On the 5th of April, Captain Stephen Smith received a propofal from Captain Macgregor, who commanded in the great mountain of Gingee, that he would capitulate, if his garrifon were allowed the honours of war, the rank and file to be fent to Europe by the first opportunity as prifoners liable to exchange, but the officers permitted to retire, with their arms, baggage and effects, to any of the neutral fettlements on the coaft, where they were to be fubfifted according to their ranks at the expence of the English company, who were likewife to defray their paffage to Europe. Three hundred of the English Sepoys had already died in the town, and in the mountain of St. George, from the peculiar inclemency of the air, which has always been deemed the most unhealthy in the Carnatic, infomuch that the French, who never until lately kept more than 100 Europeans here, had loft 1200 in the ten years during which it had been in their poffeffion. Captain Smith, therefore, very readily accepted the terms, and in the afternoon the garrifons marched out of the two mountains. They were 12 officers, and 100 rank and file, Europeans, coffrees, and topaffes, and 40 lafcars for the artillery, which were 20 pieces. of cannon and fome mortars. A paffport and fafeguard was allowed to a moor of diffinction, who had long refided in the great mountain.

This day terminated the long contefted hoftilities between the two rival European powers in Coromandel, and left not a fingle enfign of the French nation avowed by the authority of its government in any part of India; for the troops which had gone away to Myfore, were hereafter to be regarded as a band of military adventurers feeking fortune and fubfiftence. In Bengal they had not a fingle agent or reprefentative, and their factories at Surat and Calicut were meer trading houfes on fufferance. Thus after a war of 15 years, which commenced with the expedition of Delabourdonnais againft Madrafs in 1746, and had continued from that time with fcarcely the intermiflion of one year, was retaliated the fame meafure of extirpation, which had been intended, and invariably purfued, by the French councils againft the Englifh commerce and power: for fuch, as is avowed avowed in the French memoirs on the events we have related, was the object of Delabourdonnais' expedition, of the whole government and ambition of Dupleix, and of the great armament of naval and land forces, which accompanied Mr. Lally to India, who conftantly declared, that he had but one point, which was, not to leave an Englifhman in the peninfula. To retard as much as pofiible the facility of their re-eftablifhment in Coromandel, if reftorations fhould be made at the conclusion of a general peace, Mr. Pigot laid a reprefentation before the council of Madrafs, which determined them to deftroy all the interior buildings, as well as the fortifications of Pondicherry, of which the demolition was by this time nearly completed : and in a few months more, not a roof was left ftanding in this once fair andflourifhing city.

For two years before, the fortune of France had been declining in every other part of the world; they had loft their fettlements on the coaft of Africa, half their weft india iflands, the whole region of Canada; their naval force was utterly ruined, and their armies were ftruggling under defeats in Germany. The lofs of India, as a laft hope, excited the public indignation more than any of the former difafters, which was fo far from producing any reconciliation amongst the amenable, that it only sharpened their vengeance against each other. Mr. Lally, on his arrival, formally accufed Mr. De Leyrit, Mr. Buffy, Mr. Moracin and Courtin, of having wilfully confpired the ruin of the French affairs from their averfion to himfelf, as appointed by the King to inveftigate and correct the abufes of the government of Pondicherry. Of 200 perfons who were either arrived or returning from hence, not more than 20 were in habits or connections with Mr. Lally; all the others, revolted by the exceffes of his temper, or the feverity of his authority, bore him either fecret grudge, or avowed hatred; all thefe became voluntary partizans with Mr. De Leyrit and the council, whofe refolutions were conducted at Paris, as they had been at Pondicherry, by the jefuit Lavaur. Their first step in public was to prefent a manifest to the comptroller-general, in exculpation of themfelves, and accufing Mr. Lally of mifconduct under nine different heads, which, as they faid, proved more than incapacity;

incapacity; and in August 1762, they petitioned the King to vindicate themfelves juridically from the accufations of Mr. Lally; who fome months after was confined in the Bastile. In June 1763, father Lavaur died; this jefuit had composed in India two memoirs, the one a juffification and panegyrick, the other a defamatory impeachment of every part of Mr. Lally's conduct. Arguments taken from this piece were occafionally fupplied to propagate the public antipathy, but it had never been authentically published. As Lavaur was rated as an evidence, his papers were taken pofferfion of by the officers of juffice, and amongst them this libel was found. Lavaur, as if ruined by the lofs of Pondicherry, had petitioned the government for a finall penfion of fubfiftence; and it was difcovered that he died poffeffed of 60,000 pounds in gold, diamonds, and bills of exchange. This hypocrify, with the frauds of another jefuit, who managed the weftern miffions, conduced not a little to the expulsion of the order; but full attention was given to the memoir of Lavaur, and from its documents the attorney general inferted the charge of high treafon, which deprived Mr. Lally of the affiftance of counfel. After he had been confined 18 months, the deponents in the procefs were brought before him, and he permitted to interrogate them before the recorder. The number of facts depofed against him amounted to one hundred and fixty, for every violent or unguarded expression during the courfe of his government and ill fuccefs was admitted. The number of witneffes must likewife have been many, for Mr. Lally oppofed ftrong reproaches of incompetency to thirty-four of them. The recorder was the fame, who had given the most fanguinary judgment ever pronounced in France against a young man of family; and Mr. Lally, with his ufual indifcretion and intemperance, aggravated the feverity of his character, by treating him with haughtinefs and contempt during the discharge of his office. Eighteen months paffed in the confrontation and interrogatories, when the final decifion was to be made by the whole parliament of Paris, which is composed of 120 members. It must be left to conjecture, how many of them went regularly through the immense volume money, and the diffrefs for provisions. That the attempt to retake Vandivafh, reduced Mr. Lally to the neceffity of receiving battle, which as the Englifh were feeking, he ought to have avoided; but that he had reafon to expect greater induftry and fpirit in the artillery, officers, and engineers, who might have breached the place in half the time. Whether, after this battle, Pondicherry might have been better flored, or whether the provisions collected were injudicioufly difpofed of, would, after all witneffes, have remained a decision of doubt.

The troops which arrived with Colonel Coote in November 1759, with his immediate activity in the reduction of Vandivash and Carangoly, brought the war nearly to an equality ; which justified him in rifquing the battle for the relief of Vandivash, although he fought it with the inexplicit difapprobation of the prefidency in his pocket; but his difpofitions had fecured refources against mischance. Before this important fuccefs, the views of no one had extended to the reduction of Pondicherry : but inftantly after, all were imprefied with the firmeft perfuafion of this termination of the war. This fortunate confidence led to the most vigorous counfels. Nothing, it was reafoned, if all advantages are taken, can fave Pondicherry, excepting the arrival of their fquadron in force fufficient to cope with the English; or the lucky introduction of troops and money by divifions of their fhips, if the whole do not venture : whatfoever is gained in the mean time will require fo much effort to recover, fhould the enemy be reinforced; and if they are not, will be fo much accomplifhed towards the ultimate object. The enterprizing fagacity of Colonel Coote loft no time in difcovering and taking every advantage. The prefidency feconded his operations by the expedition to Karical, and in fupplies to the field ; the garrifon of Tritchinopoly by their activity; the detachment to the weftward by its vigilance; the army by their zeal on all occafions. Colonel Coote, by conftantly exposing his own perfon with the Sepoys, had brought them to fuftain dangerous fervices, from which the Europeans were preferved. By this occonomy, and the reinforcements from England and Bombay, if the armament fo much announced had arrived, and landed a greater greater force than France had ever before fent to India, the English on the day of the furrender of Pondicherry, were in a condition to have given them battle, if they had chosen it, under their very walls.

Colonel Coote embarked on the 13th of March, leaving his regiment to follow; and with him, our narrative returns to the affairs of Bengal.
